NI Gas unprepared for hearing action

The executives of Northern Illinois Gas Company have shown little regard for people who paid gas bills at Niles Drug, the former subsidiary of Northern Illinois Gas Company, according to city officials. The executives have shown a serious lack of gas or steam, which was reflected in the utility rates charged by the company.

The city council has demanded an explanation from the company for its failure to provide service. The company has been requested to provide a written report to the council by May 30, detailing its operations and the reasons for the failure to provide service.

The city council has also asked the company to provide a written report to the state's attorney for investigation.

The company has been given until May 30 to submit its report to the city council.

When Niles Village Clerk Frank Wagner was elected, he had the idea of engaging in business for a year or two in the village. His plan was to buy a home and go into a retail business.

Last winter the Police Department reported that the village was in need of a police officer. Wagner, who is a member of the Police Department, made his bid for the position and was appointed as assistant chief of police.

Frank has served the village with distinction. He has proved himself a capable and efficient officer.

About two weeks ago he received a call from the village that he had been appointed assistant chief of police.

The management report states that the village has been doing well financially and that the village is in need of a police officer.

Frank, in charge of the village, is the officer in charge of the police department. He has been doing a fine job of maintaining order and enforcing the laws of the village.

Niles Village President, Fred Blaske, has been doing a good job of running the village.

The village has been doing well financially and the village is in need of a police officer.

Frank Wagner's election as assistant chief of police is a step in the right direction for the village.

Wagner's election will enable the village to have a more efficient police force.

There is little doubt that Wagner will make a good police officer. He is a man of sound judgment and is well qualified for the position.

Wagner has been a member of the Police Department for many years and has served the village faithfully.
