NORTTRAN ridership up 35%

Ridership at North Suburban Metra Transit District, Glenview, rose an average of 35% in the first six months of July, one of the largest increases in the nation, according to the district's operating budget for the current fiscal year.

Glenview Metra President Donald J. Ritter, who heads the district, said the increase was due to a number of factors, including the addition of new trains and the expansion of service.

"The increase in ridership is a reflection of the district's commitment to providing quality service to our customers," Ritter said.

The district's budget for the current fiscal year includes $3.5 million in new service improvements, including the addition of new trains and the expansion of service to additional communities.

"We are committed to providing our customers with the best possible service," Ritter said. "We are pleased to see the increase in ridership, which is a reflection of the public's confidence in our service."
