Results of sign ordinance visible on Milwaukee Avenue

The times they are a-changin', and so is Milwaukee Avenue. The street, which has undergone visual changes as a result of a Niles sign ordinance enacted in 1979, has become more aesthetically pleasing. The new ordinance has led to a reduction in the number of signs visible on the street. The village officials expect to receive additional data to analyze the impact of the ordinance on the business district, and they hope to use this data to improve future ordnances.

Black answers candidacy questions with candor

After months of silence, former Democratic County Commissioner Victor C. Black, running as a Democrat for the 5th District seat in the Illinois General Assembly, said he hopes to return to politics after a four-year absence. Black is the current Democratic County Commissioner in the 5th District, but he has not run for re-election in the past two years.

"I'm not going to say I'm running just yet," Black said. "But I do intend to run in the 5th District, and I'm working on a comeback plan." Black said he has been involved in politics for many years, including serving as a state senator and as a county commissioner. "I've been in the political game for a long time," Black said. "And I'm still a strong supporter of the Democratic Party." Black said he plans to run as a Democrat in the 5th District, and he hopes to win the primary election in March. "I'm going to be a strong contender," Black said. "I've got a lot of support from the people of the 5th District, and I'm going to work hard to win the primary." Black said he plans to campaign on issues such as education, the economy, and the environment. "I'm going to focus on the needs of the people of the 5th District," Black said. "I'm going to work hard to win the primary, and then I'm going to work hard to win in November."
Maine plans Tri-M golden anniversary

the General Electric 90-day refund or exchange privilege.

Even though you may have read it, you may have missed it—GE's 90-day refund or exchange privilege. You don't have to be an engineer to understand it. It's simple. If you are not completely satisfied with your General Electric major appliance, and you return it within 90 days, you are refunded the money paid. And, it's not just the price you paid. It's the total price of the appliance. And you get a receipt for yourlicated service, parts, and labor charges.

What's more, the 90-day refund or exchange privilege covers all electrical and mechanical parts, major and minor. It covers all parts and labor, including installation.
