Oven causes Pinocchio Pizza blaze

An overheated drive motor on a pizza oven apparently caused flames that enveloped a Niles pizzeria May 24. A spokesman for North Maine Fire District Chief

Morris Farberman estimated the cost of the fire at Pinocchio Pizza, 9700 Milwaukee Avenue at $150,000. He said State Fire Marshall and independent insurance inspectors concurred on the source of the fire. No one was injured in the blaze which began in the kitchen area and spread rapidly to the roof.

Small mall replaces Tasty Pup

Bulldozers recently razed Tasty Pup restaurant, 9001 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles. Joe Salerno, Niles Director of Code Enforcement, said owner Chuck Aiello will construct a mini-shopping mall housing a grocery store and several small shops.

Salerno said although building permits are yet to be issued, it is known that the building will be one story. The site encompasses approximately 8000 square feet and will have entrances from Milwaukee Avenue and Ballard Road.

Oldest Niles business goes back five generations

Niles tries to close Ruesch Garage

by Sheilya Hackett

Niles officials have begun a campaign to force what may be the oldest business in town to shut down its operation. Ruesch's Garage, 8650 Shermer Road, has been under village pressure to relocate for years. The Ruesch family bought the land the garage is on in 1885 and built the current garage in 1928. The surrounding area remained farm land until the 1950s when homes began being built in the areas surrounding the garage. In the years since then, the village has been uneasy about a garage operating in a residential area. Niles escalated the controversy on Monday when four inspectors visited the garage to again inspect the premises. Jim Ruesch, 36, operator of Ruesch's Garage, said his firm, which does general maintenance of trucks and buses, has been harried since 1976, but that the harassment has escalated in the last week. Todd Bavaro, housing director, zeroed in on the Village's complaint: "The entire property doesn't look like it belongs." Continued on Page 46

by Nancy Keraminas

Ruesch Garage sits on a one-acre parcel of land just south of Dempster Street on Shermer Road in Niles. The truck repair business is the last remnant of a family-owned enterprise that dates back to 1922 when Helen Louise and George Ruesch Sr. built a home and took over 25 acres of farmland that had been in their family for years before. The couple operated a truck farm and raised cows, pigs and chickens on their acreage. George Sr. hauled his produce to Chicago's South Water Market in a horse-drawn wagon. In 1928, most of the acreage was sold and the garage that currently stands at 8650 Shermer Road was built. The street was then called Telegraph Road and was gravel-covered, according to James Ruesch, George Sr.'s grandson, who now operates Ruesch Garage. Homes were not built in the surrounding area until Continued on Page 45

by Bud Besser

Sunday and Monday it seemed we were taking a class on "Government and the People."

When we woke up Sunday morning the news stories from around the world were astounding. I don't believe we ever heard so many important news stories reported during such a short time period. There were the stories about China and its people and Poland and its election and Russia and the train tragedy and the death of Khomeini and the Iranian people. It was mind-boggling attempting to sort out all of these reports.

Each story was about a country and its people. The brave Chinese students standing up to the tanks and the army in Beijing. The Polish electorate turning away from its incumbent representatives to vote in favor of the Solidarity-backed candidates. The Iranian people losing their spiritual and political leader which could bring a more moderate and democratic form of government. And Russia being confronted by a second major tragedy in recent months and publicly seeking reasons for its causes.

The four stories were all about "people and their governments."

Monday, I was called to jury duty. It was an American example of "government and

Niles Zoners approve Village Crossing eatery

by Nancy Keraminas

The Niles Planning and Zoning Commission approved a 36-seat hot dog restaurant to be built on the Niles portion of the Village Crossing Shopping Center at 5699 W. Touhy Ave. Chairman John G. Frick was absent for the Monday night proceedings. Commissioner Angelo Troiani chaired the regular commission meeting.

Mages Red Hots, which also has an outlet at 4925 W. Dempster St. in Skokie, intends to operate a restaurant at Village Crossing if it receives approval from the Niles Village Board at the July 25 meeting. Attorney Alan Garfield and Michael Menn, of Karson and Associates, the architectural firm told the officials the eatery was a family-run business that had been in operation for 12 years. They noted the company was in an expansion mode and would be an asset to the center. The restaurant will be south of Continued on Page 44

by Shellya Hackett

At a spot where open lawns now invite strolls, a wrought iron fence once encircled grounds. Young orphans and kids from broken homes were sheltered in the mammoth red brick building now housing seminary students and college classrooms. Today's Niles College Seminary, at Harlem and Touhy avenues in Niles, began in 1911 as St. Hedwig's Industrial School, under the auspices of the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago.

"We learned to make decisions for ourselves; we developed deep family ties with a lot of the kids...there are little spots in your life (when) you remember that somebody cared."

Tall slides and swings creaked with playing kids and baseball diamonds striped the grass. Trees shaded a grove and wading pool and chapel bells pealed over nearby fields and homes.

During the years, until 1960, the structure housed as many as 7000 kids who often arrived as young as two years. A young priest, Fr. Francis Rusch, was the first superintendent, aided by Felician order nuns who taught school and served as house mothers.

With a schedule of studies, chores and fun, kids were kept occupied. According to alumna Rose Rathnow Killips, "We were so busy we didn't have time to be negative." Kids' days began early, with Mass at 6 a.m. Every meal was followed by table clearing and dishwashing for four lunchrooms. Outdoor exercise came after school and the baker in the 1940s, Sister Phillip, allowed them their fill of cookies—gingers were a favorite. They went back to classrooms for homework at 4:30 p.m.

The school fielded football and basketball teams and the large gym and indoor pool echoed with kids' shouts. Kids auditioned for choice roles in class plays and one lively nun taught the teens to dance. A 30-member band led parades.

Chores sandwiched in between included weeding, dusting, and, in the days before drip-dry, learning to iron clothes at an early age. Boys helped on the small vegetable and poultry farm. One alumna, Cat Rathnow Behrens, in later years described her floor polishing in rhyme. The chore involved moving her polishing cloth underfoot through the halls to "one, two, three—move" cadence. She wondered, in part, "Whoever thought of using the feet, to do this work so nice and neat?"

The school operated grades from K-8 and two years of high school. Boys who did well could continue at Chicago schools such as Trinity or Weber, and in later years, girls went on to Good Counsel. The goal was to help kids become independent and self-supporting, though there was no set age for leaving. In addition to regular studies, boys learned printing and book binding, girls were taught domestic arts and secretarial skills.

There were many activities to ward off summer doldrums years ago at St. Hedwig's Industrial school. Picnics on school grounds brought the chance to dance with Coco the clown or to try out equestrian skills on the back of a pony.

In a lingo devised by the kids, special, out of the ordinary days were days "with fat, covered over." One of these was Paczki Day, a pre-Lenten feast when Sister Phillip would dole out the sugary Paczki pastries as a treat. Summers, the Archdiocese provided for a week's vacation at a Pistakee Bay camp and an auto group took the kids to picnics in Chicago's Lincoln Park, where Cubs and Sox players would stop by when in town. Ponies and Coco the clown would visit school grounds and the Knights of Columbus took them to River-view amusement park. These were definitely days "with fat, covered over."

In World War II, the kids formed a miniature military unit, dressing in olive drab uniforms, practicing marching drills and folding parachutes. A new group arrived during the period, when 104 kids orphaned or displaced during the seige of Poland found their way to St. Hedwig's by way of Russia, Africa, and Santa Rosa orphanage in Mexico. Like all newcomers, the Santa Rosa kids, as they were called, were quarantined in the modern infirmary before blending into the school population.

Father Rusch and the Felician nuns clothed and fed, loved and disciplined, educated and entertained the kids, but one long-term administrator, Sister Aloysius, still sensed loneliness in some. To combat this, she devised another Paczki Day near Christmas and distributed individualized shopping bags filled with knit articles, candies and fruit to the kids. In a turn-about in recent years, alumni held a Paczki Day for their former teachers, surprising them with colorful shopping bags filled with gifts like the ones the kids received long ago.

St. Hedwig alumni publish a newsletter, The Hedwigian II, edited by Killips. Hedwigian II tries to rekindle ties of friendship and support. Killips has begun an orphan search, trying to locate former classmates and even direct them to sources that can help them trace their families.

Killips capsulizes her feelings of childhood at St. Hedwig's: "We learned to make decisions for ourselves; we developed deep family ties with a lot of the kids...there are little spots in your life (when) you remember that somebody cared."

Skokie Bicycle Safety Day

Skokie's Traffic Safety Week, sponsored by the Skokie Traffic Safety Commission, runs from June 5 to 11. The week is designed to increase the public's awareness of traffic and pedestrian safety.

The biggest event of the week takes place on Sat., June 10 with Bicycle Safety Day. The special event will be presented from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Oakton Community College Skokie Campus parking lot (7701 Lincoln Ave., west area). Bicyclists will be able to register their bikes with the Skokie Police Department. A bicycle safety riding range will be set up for children up to age 14 to test their knowledge of the law and their ability to handle bicycles properly. Members of the Skokie Fire Department will be on hand to help promote traffic safety. Prizes, balloons, certificates and more will be given to all participants at Bicycle Safety Day. The rain date for Bicycle Safety Day is June 17.

Other activities are planned for the week. On June 8 and 9, from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., the Traffic Safety Commission will have a booth set up at the Skokie Public Library, 5215 Oakton St. The booth will display assorted educational materials stressing the importance of traffic safety, including information on the Skokie Health Department's Infant Safety Seat Loaner Program.

The Illinois Department of Transportation's "Seat Belt Convincer" will be on display outside Village Hall on June 9 and 11, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. You can also see "The Convincer" at the Bicycle Safety Day activities for a very convincing demonstration of why you should wear a vehicle safety belt.

Area Chinese-Americans back mainland protestors

by Shellya Hackett

The eyes of the world watch Beijing, China as soldiers smash a weeks long student demonstration in Tianamen Square. Area Chinese-Americans voice concern for the students and worry about their quest for democracy. Skokie residents, Yu-Hwa and Judy Wei, owners of First Wok restaurant, had hopes the government would accept the student requests for more freedom without bloodshed. They and other Chicago area Chinese-Americans donated money to help the demonstrating students on the Mainland. They say the Communists fed the people, but the people, including the army, want freedom.

Some of those interviewed requested anonymity because they have relatives, some of whom are students, in Beijing. To a retired chemist living in Morton Grove, "The road to democracy takes a long time...the whole country is awake." Powerful men back Premier Li Peng, he noted, and "If you have power, you can get anything." He backs the students' stand for democracy because, he said, the Chinese people have nothing to say about the government.

Both this retiree and a Skokie art professor have relatives in Beijing. The professor remarked on the bravery of the students as they awaited government action last week. She said many of the protestors are from the "cadres" or middle class group whose fathers have power in government. The demonstrators, 20 years or chi, Przybylo and Board President voted to eliminate a ramp uniting the new and old lots and to retail an existing entrance to the new lot. According to the trustees, the board is unanimous in its opinion that the new plan is both user and neighbor-friendly without increasing costs. Cost of the project has been estimated at $259 thousand.

Quattrocchi noted that "It was a crazy plan. Fortunately for the taxpayers of Niles, we changed it." Commenting that there was no foresight in the previous plan regarding residents on Oakton Court, Quattrocchi added, "Staff will be required to park in the upper lot which will free up 20-30 spaces during some business hours." Niles resolves dispute over interest payment

Niles settles lawsuit with cable company

by Nancy Keraminas

The village of Niles and Cablevision recently settled a protracted legal dispute with each other, in what could be termed in the village's best interest. Niles will dismiss a lawsuit asking for $112,000 in fines levied against the cable company in exchange for Cablevision forgiving interest payment of $430,900 or more due on a $500,000 franchise fee, payable to the cable company when its franchise term expires at the end of 1997.

Niles awarded the cable TV franchise to Cablevision in August, 1981. At that time the Federal Government limited a municipality to a five percent franchise fee based on the total anticipated revenues received by the franchisee. Cablevision paid Niles $500,000 based on its estimates. In October, 1984 the Federal Cable Communications Policy Act required the municipalities to calculate interest on prepaid franchise fees and repay the cable company sums in excess of the total earned franchise fee. Niles calculated that, assuming a conservative rate of 7-1/2 percent, the potential interest claim could be 430,900. Niles' actual return on invested funds is 8-1/2 to 9 percent.

A Polish Polka Festival, Mexico Folklorico, Chuck Wagon Howdown and Nate Williams' Ink Spots are all on the June schedule of "Nite Club at Noon."

"Nite Club at Noon" is a unique concept formulated by Corinne Gold in which senior citizens can go to a well known night club or restaurant from noon to 3 p.m. They enjoy a fine luncheon, are entertained by musicians, vocalists, and other acts, and then proceed to the dance floor themselves.

Between 200 and 800 persons attend the noontime cabarets. The cost ranges between $15 and $20 per person.

The June festivities begin with the Polish Polka Festival on Thursday, June 8 at the White Eagle, 8639 N. Milwaukee Ave., Niles. In addition to the Polish cuisine, the patrons will enjoy the music of Eddie Blazonyk and the Ampolares. Polish dancers will perform and teach the seniors the ethnic dances.

Additional information and reservations may be obtained by calling 787-8810 or 787-8830.

KEEPSMILING
 The most common disease of man is dental decay. Modern dental science has made enormous advances in decreasing the incidence of dental disease through preventive techniques. Older individuals can benefit from dental science because preventive treatments that work for children also work for adults. With aging, there is a decrease in the production of saliva, which may make eating and swallowing more difficult or may sometimes cause a burning or stinging sensation in the mouth. This can be improved by frequently taking small sips of water or other liquids, particularly while eating. An increase in the amount of liquid consumed during the day may also help to relieve dry mouth. The consumption of drinks containing caffeine should be avoided as caffeine contributes to dry mouth. The Illinois Foundation of Dentistry for the Handicapped provides a special program called Dentistry for the Homebound and can be reached by calling 674-7755.

Homes wired for safety

Electricity is the servant of modern man. It heats, cools, lights, and helps us clean our homes; it freezes our food and provides us with the information and entertainment of radio and television. However, this "good and faithful servant" must be used properly to prevent accidents.

The number one cause of accidents is a lack of knowledge or skill. Here are some things all of us should know about electricity and electrical equipment.

First, be sure your home is wired correctly. Wiring should be installed and checked by a qualified electrician to comply with national codes as well as state and local ordinances. Appliances should be approved by Underwriters' Laboratories. Your home is inadequately wired if you notice any of the following symptoms: lights dim when an appliance goes on, motors slow down, fuses blow or circuit breakers trip off frequently, toasters or irons fail to heat properly, TV picture shrinks, you're short of outlets.

Fuses and circuit breaker shut off the current whenever too much of its tries to flow through a wire. This can result from a short circuit (bare wire touching a ground), overloading (too many lights or appliances on one circuit) or from a defective part in an appliance or other equipment.

If a fuse blows, try to find the cause and correct it. Pull the main switch and replace the burned out fuse with a new one of the correct size. Turn on the main switch. If the fuse blows again, make another check for the cause. If you can't find the problem, call an electrician.

Circuit breakers, which are more convenient than fuses, automatically turn off if something goes wrong. Once the trouble is fixed, simply reset the switch.

Cords are another potential source of trouble. Be sure you have the right type for the equipment you're using, such as heavy duty for tools or moisture resistant for outdoor work. Worn cords can cause short circuits, shocks and even fires.

Don't place cords where someone will trip over them or where they will get excessive wear (under rugs, across doorways, etc.). Don't pull a cord to disconnect a plug; pull the plug itself. Do keep cords away from heat and water. Do inspect cords often for wear, especially at plugs and connections.

At this time of year, many of us are busy with outdoor chores, so here are a few hints to help you perform those tasks safely: keep ladders, especially metal ones, away from electric lines; never use electric tools outside in rain or on wet surfaces; use electric power mowers on dry grass only; wear shoes when using an electric lawn mower or hedge clipper.

If you remember and practice these safety tips, you will help ensure that electricity will continue to serve you well.

Charles Swindoll film series

In a day of fading hopes, weak resolve and yawning indifference, Charles Swindoll is giving Christians across the country a new enthusiasm for Christian commitment. He challenges your pre-conceptions and clarifies your choices through his lively, biblical instruction. Caleb, King Saul, Adam, Paul...you'll gain a new insight into the dilemmas they faced...and what the Bible can teach us through their example.

The powerful film series, Strengthening Your Grip, featuring Chuck Swindoll will be shown at St. John Lutheran Church, 7429 Milwaukee ave., on Sunday mornings at 9:15 from June 11 to July 16. We invite the community to join us for these films which will challenge us in our daily walk with the Lord.

Business offers reduced-cost funerals

Temple Judea Mizpah

On Thursday, June 8, Temple Judea Mizpah will hold Tikkun Leil Shavout Services at 5:15 p.m., 8610 Niles Center Road, Skokie, and later the same evening at 8 p.m. our Shavout Eve Service. At the evening service we will hold our Kabbalat Torah/Confirmation and the Temple Choir will sing, conducted by Richard Green.

Friday, June 9, we will conduct our Shavout Morning Service at 11 a.m.

A Chicago-area funeral business offering high-quality, reduced-cost funerals to bereaved Jewish families interested primarily in graveside services, opened recently in Skokie.

Lloyd Mandel Funeral Direction will offer a full range of funeral services, including livery, body preparation, caskets and funeral supervision. However, because the establishment has no chapel, savings from low overhead will be passed along to families.

"In previous generations almost all Jewish funerals took place in funeral chapels," said Lloyd Mandel, owner. "But in the past five years, more and more people are choosing to hold funerals at the graveside. Families seem to prefer a graveside service because it makes a funeral less drawn out, and it eliminates a dangerous funeral procession. Friends can pay their condolences at the home after the service."

The average cost of a funeral today in Illinois is about $3,000, and Jewish funerals tend to cost even more, Mandel said. He predicts that the savings for funerals directed by his establishment will usually be $1,000 or more. This figure combines reduced rates for the funeral service plus reduced costs for caskets and vaults.

Mandel, 28, a fourth-generation funeral director, has worked in his profession for more than five years. He is a graduate of Ohio State University, and also holds a degree in mortuary science from Worsham College, Des Plaines. A native of Wilmette, Mandel now resides in Skokie.

The Lloyd Mandel Funeral Direction is located in Crawford Square, 3939 Dempster St., Skokie. Call 679-3939 for information.

MaineStay hires new coordinator

Youth worker Angela S. Palmer has joined MaineStay, Maine Township's youth services department, as program coordinator of MaineTRAC, a restitution program for juvenile offenders.

Palmer, formerly a foster care caseworker with ChildServ in Wheaton, earned a bachelor of science degree in family life from Western Illinois University. She also worked as a foster care caseworker aide with Catholic Social Services in Macomb, Illinois. Palmer replaces Deborah Hallman who had coordinated the MaineTRAC (Maine Township Restitution for Adolescent Change) since its inception two years ago.

MaineStay Director Jan Buscher said, "She fills a very important role on our staff, and we are delighted to welcome her. Her experience with adolescents will help us continue this model program."

MaineTRAC offers young offenders who have been involved in minor nonviolent crimes a chance to make restitution through community service.

It is the first program of its kind in this area and was recognized as an "exemplary program" in the 1988 Governor's Awards for Outstanding Achievement in Community Crime Prevention.

The program accepts juvenile offenders from Maine Township between the ages of 12-17 who are referred by the police, probation officers, and juvenile court.

The youths work after school, weekends, and vacations at public and nonprofit agencies in Maine Township including park districts, hospitals, service centers, local governments, and other community-based organizations. Job assignments can include maintenance work, office work, yard work, senior citizen assistance, and other supervised tasks.

The teens are required to participate in mandatory orientation and pre-employment workshops to prepare them for a community service placement. Additional workshops focus on job skills, substance abuse awareness, and values. Short-term counseling is also available through MaineStay.

Parents are also part of the process and are required to attend two family meetings at the beginning and end of the program.

Palmer also will serve as the township's liaison to community-based youth programs such as Operation Snowball, Snowflake, and Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD).

Chernin's puts entrepreneurial spirit in retail sales

Keith Kohen, an intelligent and highly ambitious young man who graduated top-ten in his class at the University of Illinois' School of Business, left a successful four-year career as a commodities broker to become a sales person at Chernin's Shoes.

Now, seven years later, Kohen is corporate general manager for Chernin's eight store locations. He earns a desirable salary with generous benefits, including a nice company car equipped with a phone. Kohen has achieved even more than he had hoped, and is confident that his professional future at Chernin's will be bright.

Kohen and the host of other young men and women at Chernin's Shoes have found a place to shoe retailer's positive work environment is not the norm.

In a recent retail study in Women's Wear Daily, by Walter K. Levy Associates entitled, "Bought Out or Sold Out," former and current retail executives gave some disturbing responses on the future of retail. According to the study, "...64 percent of all respondents anticipated fewer opportunities for advancement in retailing..." and "...35 percent have developed a decreased sense of loyalty to their jobs and/or their employees."

With the retail picture so bleak, how is Chernin's Shoes—an independent, local shoe-store chain—drawing the best and the brightest young business minds into its sales and corporate programs?

Steven Larick, corporate vice-president of Chernin's Shoes, attributes the company's enviable hiring record to its entrepreneurial spirit: "We like to think that each new employee is being put into business for himself. It's a great investment for us, because when the salespeople, buyers, and managers make a profit, Chernin's Shoes makes a profit, too. I think most retailers have forgotten how critical their employees are to their sales."

States Kohen: "I learned very quickly that if I worked hard and worked smart, Chernin's would allow me to achieve my goals—whether I wanted to make a lot of money or climb the corporate ladder. Employees aren't just spinning their wheels here. If they possess the drive and ability to do their job well, they will succeed."

IRS reminder for newlyweds

It's summer—the traditional time for weddings and also an appropriate time for a friendly reminder from the Internal Revenue Service for all the newly married couples.

If you plan to take your new spouse's name in place of your own or as a hyphenated last name, you should contact your local Social Security Office to update your record to reflect your new name. Your social security number will remain the same.

It is important that this change be made because a mismatch of name and social security number could delay your refund, if you are entitled to one, by as long as eight to ten weeks beyond normal processing time.

The name change is made on Form SS-5, and can be done by mail. An SS-5 form is available from your local social security office or by calling the IRS at 1-800-424-5676.

The engagement of Lisa Ann Lewis and James John Murray is announced.

Lisa is the daughter of Donald and Gladys Lewis of Mt. Clemens, Michigan. James is the son of James and Grace Murray of Mount Prospect, and Elaine and Joe Lotito of Berwyn. Lisa is currently employed at Sears Headquarters as an Associate Catalog Marketing Manager in women's apparel. James is currently employed at I.D.S. American Express as a Personal Financial Consultant. Both graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater.

A Sept. 23 wedding at St. Raymond Church in Mt. Prospect is planned. Reception will be held at the Cotillion Banquet Hall in Palatine.

Coalition tackles child care crisis

The gap between supply of and demand for licensed child care in Chicago will reach 80,000 by 1990, according to a recent community needs profile conducted by an organization specializing in community service and advocacy.

Equally significant, respondents to the National Council of Jewish Women study conservatively estimate the ratio of unlicensed homes to licensed ones by two to one, affecting safety and quality of care for thousands of children.

Contrary to a common perception that corporate care here has greatly increased, the study also revealed that of 13 on-site employer sponsored child care centers in suburban Cook County, 11 are hospital-related, one is for federal employees, and just one is in a corporation.

These and other newly-compiled statistics were announced before a gathering of nearly 150 local corporate, social service, and government executives, on how to resolve the child care crisis in the 1990s.

Figures show that solutions have outpaced local efforts to tackle this growing, unwieldy problem, in large part because a national child-care policy and system do not exist in the United States, unlike most Western nations.

Culminating three years of national and local NCJW research, starting with the 1986 Mothers in the Workplace study, today's event launched the NCJW "Challenge for Community Action." Research showing parents prefer family day care (child care in the caregiver's home) was the impetus behind the kickoff, organized by a new 11-member Chicago Challenge Committee. The goal: Develop a strategic plan to expand the quality, availability and affordability of family day care.

"NCJW is proud to have mobilized this major private/public partnership. Child care has finally come out of the closet. It is an economic issue now, not just a social one. That's why we had a strong corporate turnout," said Mary Goodman, president of NCJW's Chicago Section, one of nearly 150 sections nationwide forming similar coalitions.

Representatives from Carson Pirie Scott, Citicorp, Commonwealth Edison, Fel-Pro/Mecklenberger Foundation, and U.S. Robotics were among the attendees, who discovered that corporate support of working mothers—which has been shown to reduce absenteeism and turnover—is not synonymous with on-site care, one of the myths common among employers.

Other more cost-effective options are available. For instance, resource and referral programs have been initiated at companies such as Leo Burnett, whose compensation manager Sue Holsinger was one of five panel members.

In follow-up to this kickoff, a meeting is scheduled June 20 for all professionals interested in joining the Challenge for Community Action.

Loyola awards students

Two of Loyola's 14 National Merit Finalists have been awarded corporate-sponsored Merit Scholarships. This year, millions of dollars of Merit Scholarships will be offered to 6,100 students selected from the 14,000 distinguished Finalists. Approximately 1,400 of these scholarships will be provided by some 400 businesses for Finalists who meet their specific criteria. Not all Finalists are considered for these Merit Scholarships and not all states are represented in the winner group. Corporate sponsors typically select students who are residents of their employees or where the business is located, or who have career interests the sponsor wishes to encourage.

Loyola winners of four-year renewable Merit Scholarships and their corporate sponsors are: Michael A. Youtsey of Glenview, Allied-Signal Foundation, Inc. and Frederic V. Mukulec of Morton Grove, Monsanto Fund.

Gilbert M. Licudine of Chicago (60646) has received a four-year renewable Special Scholarship from W. W. Grainger, Inc. Blood center offers self-donations LifeSource has expanded its operations to include a state-of-the-art procedure that ensures patients undergoing surgery to receive the safest blood available: their own.

LifeSource, the state's largest blood center, recently performed its first intraoperative autologous transfusion, a transfusion in the operation room that actually returns to the patient most of the blood lost during surgery. The machine used to collect the patient's blood, clean it of everything but the healthy red blood cells and return it to the patient is called Cell Saver.

"It is a quick, efficient process that reduces the use of voluntarily donated blood and virtually eliminates the very small risk of serious transfusion-related reactions of transmission of blood-borne diseases," said Dr. Ennio Rossi, Vice President, Medical Affairs of LifeSource.

In recent years, according to Dr. Richard Bradley, Director of the Lake Forest and Highland Park Hospital blood banks, physicians have advocated the use of predeposit autologous blood, i.e., blood donated by the patient in preparation for his upcoming surgery. LifeSource's intraoperative Autologous Transfusion Service (ATS) is "a logical extension to the predeposit or autologous program since re-using the patient's own blood is the safest transfusion," said Canon Cousins, MT (ASCP), SBB, director of program development at LifeSource.

Dr. Adam Romeiser, a general surgeon at Lake Forest Hospital, is the first surgeon there to call for ATS and was impressed by the procedure's efficiency. "It worked well," he said. "The (aneurysm) patient lost 600 ml. of blood during surgery and we were able to recover 80 percent of that blood and return it to him. We also transfused two autologous units. There were two units of donated blood available for him, but we didn't need them."

Although four new tests have been added in the past three years at LifeSource, public awareness of the possible transmission of infectious disease through blood products has contributed to patients and physicians seeking alternatives to standard blood transfusion practices. As a result, the use of autologous blood as an alternative to voluntarily donated units has become "the fastest growing aspect of our operations," said LifeSource President, J. Daniel Connor.

The advantage of ATS is that it can be used even in a near-emergency situation, such as a leaking aneurysm, where autologous blood is not available. For a patient to safely give two pints of autologous blood for an upcoming surgery, the surgery must be at least a week away. ATS is done in the operating room on a patient who may not have been healthy enough or had time enough to donate for himself.

This blood salvaging can be used in orthopedic, heart, lung vascular and trauma surgery. LifeSource is scheduled to begin pilot programs for patients at Highland Park and Holy Family Hospitals in early February. The next ATS-supported surgery will be performed by Dr. Michael Young at Good Shepherd Hospital on a patient who needs a total hip replacement.

Resurrection Hospital beams with laser technology

Described by specialists as the medical tool of the future, laser technology now offers Resurrection Medical Center surgeons an alternative for minimizing recovery time and reducing hospitalization costs.

Since 1984, medical center physicians have been using these sophisticated lasers in a growing number of medical procedures for the treatment of skin conditions, eye problems, gastrointestinal and gynecological problems, brain tumors and other illnesses.

"The quality of life patients experience after laser treatment is tremendous," he explained.

The term laser actually stands for the acronym "LASER," meaning Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation. The first laser of any type was produced in 1959, but medical science is only now on the cutting edge of discovering the benefits lasers can provide.

Most lasers operate by producing an intense amount of light and energy which is converted into heat and used to stop tissues from bleeding, or to cut and destroy other tissues.

"We are a leader in laser technology in the Chicago metropolitan area," Dr. Roland Medansky, dermatologist and chairman of

Most lasers operate by producing an intense amount of light and energy which is converted into heat and used to stop tissues from bleeding, or to cut and destroy other tissues.

Resurrection's laser advisory committee, stated. "The rapid advancement in laser technology is constantly changing and being updated with sophisticated new equipment, safety procedures and training requirements."

At Resurrection, specialists including ophthalmologists, neurologists, otolaryngologists, neurosurgeons, dermatologists, gastroenterologists, urologists and general surgeons have discovered this amazing medical tool and its invaluable advantages in patient treatment.

Several types of lasers are in use at Resurrection Medical Center.

Candella LaserTripter is the newest addition to the Surgery department. As one of the most advanced laser applications for the treatment of ureteral stones and selected kidney stones, the Candella LaserTripter vaporizes enables ophthalmologists to select which color to use for each particular patient. According to Dr. Joel Kaplan, ophthalmologist the green color is most widely used for managing patients with diabetic retinopathy, a complication of diabetes which develops in patients who have had the disease for many years. The green and red dye color are used for older patients who suffer age-related macular degeneration. This is a degeneration of the retina which interferes with reading ability. Some of these patients may be helped with laser treatment if treated early in the course of the disease. The blue/green and green color can be used to repair retinal tears and holes which lead to retinal detachments.

And, with the addition of a special fiberoptic arm, dermatologists like Dr. Medansky use this laser for the removal of portwine stains and other blemishes.

The krypton laser emits a red beam which allows treatment through blood and is helpful in treatment macular degeneration and other ocular diseases affecting visual acuity.

The neodymium YAG laser enables surgeons to shrink certain tumors in the lungs, esophagus, stomach, rectum, and bladder. The YAG laser produces a high energy light transmitted through a special fiberoptic in. In many cases, this capsule becomes opaque and needs to be opened at a later date. The YAG laser accomplishes this without taking the patient back to surgery.

Special colored safety glasses are worn by both the patients and surgeons during argon, krypton, or YAG laser surgeries.

The CO₂ laser is used in the Outpatient and Surgery areas and offers advantages of minimal bleeding, fewer postoperative complications, rapid healing and reduced hospitalization time.

According to Dr. Patrick Murphy, gastroenterologist, "laser treatment is not a curative process, but it is used for patients not considered for extensive surgery."

Dr. Suad Shuber, gynecologist/obstetrician, noted that the CO₂ laser is an excellent tool for the removal of precancerous lesions of the cervix, vagina and vulva, in addition to condyloma which may involve the entire lower genital tract. In the intra-abdominal approach, the CO₂ laser may be used either directly or with the laparoscopy procedure to treat endometriosis, adhesions and infertility cases. Women having the intra-abdominal laser surgery to evaporate endometriotic spots frequently avoid the more extensive laparotomy surgery and experience faster recovery times, according to Dr. Shuber. Dermatologists remove warts, tattoos, and various skin cancer lesions with the carbon dioxide laser. Otolaryngologists (ear, nose, and throat specialists) state that the laser accurately and precisely eliminates lesions in the larynx, pharynx, nose, and mouth.

According to Dr. Patrick Murphy, gastroenterologist, "laser treatment is not a curative process, but it is used for patients not considered for extensive surgery."

Another gastroenterologist, Dr. Don Larson, noted that the YAG laser practically melts away tumor mass and opens obstructed esophageal and rectal areas.

"The quality of life patients experience after laser treatment is tremendous," he explained. "Patients eat and drink fluids easier after treatment and maintain their nutritional requirements."

Dr. Darius Francescatti, general surgeon, added that the YAG laser has been successful in the treatment of esophageal and rectal cancers, in addition to other applications such as sealing off blood vessels to control bleeding, the destruction of tumors in the digestive and urinary tract areas and eliminating bleeding ulcers.

The neodymium YAG laser enables surgeons to shrink certain tumors in the lungs, esophagus, stomach, rectum, and bladder. The YAG laser produces a high energy light transmitted through a special fiberoptic

The first laser of any type was produced in 1959, but medical science is only now on the cutting edge of discovering the benefits lasers can provide.

Neurosurgeons have discovered the CO₂ laser as a successful tool in the removal of some brain and spinal cord tumors. According to Dr. Ramon Gamez and Dr. Louis Pupillo, neurosurgeons, "When removing tumors near the brain stem, there is less chance to damage vital tissue areas with the carbon dioxide laser."

"An ultrasonic vibrator called the cusa removes large tumors faster than conventional lasers," they report. "The two lasers can be used in combination for state-of-the-art tumor resection. Lasers are an exciting and challenging addition to our surgical procedures."

Since laser technology is constantly changing, Resurrection will be updating their equipment as it becomes available.

The 15th annual flea market of the Old Things Antique Club of Park Ridge will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 10, in Hodges Park, uptown Park Ridge.

Antiques, collectibles, white elephants, books, furniture, jewelry, junkie and used household items will be offered for sale by the club's members.

Their wide variety of interests ranges from primitives, glassware, china, pottery, toys, dolls, postcards, prints, furniture, world's fair and railroad items to such modern collectibles as advertising memorabilia, commemorative plates and Beam bottles, and they are happy to share their knowledge.

Virtually anything new or old is sold at flea markets, but at the Old Things market the emphasis is on items of antiquarian value. This gives people interested in these items an opportunity to look, learn and perhaps buy an underpriced treasure in a market fair atmosphere.

The club's members are from Park Ridge and many surrounding communities. They meet to hear presentations and share information about the many aspects of collecting.

In the past the group has contributed furnishings to the Park Ridge Historical Society and books on antiques to the Park Ridge Library, and has made cash contributions to each.

Rain date for the flea market is two weeks later, Saturday, June 24.

Abandoned fawn found under car

Marc Kazakeich, son of Wally and Marti Kazakeich of Glenview, was surprised when he came home from a softball game and found a "Bambi" under his car. "The fawn couldn't even stand up yet. I don't know how she got under my car," Marc said.

Marc and his friends took the fawn to River Trails Nature Center after giving it a bottle of milk.

Drunk driving victims share their pain

MADD-Illinois has recently established Victim Impact Panels in Cook County. As a new technique in the education of drunk driving offenders, MADD is conducting similar panels throughout the country. In Cook County, panels are being given under the auspices of Interventions Instruction, Incorporated, and the Circuit Court of Cook County as part of re-education classes for Level I DUI offenders. The object of a panel is to show drunk driving offenders the pain of those who have been injured or have had a loved one killed as a result of a drunk driving crash.

Panel members hope that by telling the offenders their stories, these men and women will never again drive drunk. It is another way in which MADD hopes to save lives—both innocent victims' as well as drunk drivers'.

To be eligible to donate blood, LifeSource reports, an individual must be in good health, weigh at least 110 pounds and be at least 17 years of age. It is important to eat a good meal before donating. Blood donations can be given once every 56 days.

LifeSource reports, blood supplies are especially low over this summer and donors are needed to help avert a critical blood shortage.

Activities include water therapy, swimming, outdoor education and recreation at a nearby forest preserve, field trips and activities in the school building.

HFH child center picked for study

Holy Family Child Care Center is participating in the National College Early Childhood Work Environment Survey for a follow-up study to assess what makes a quality child care program.

As part of the study, a representative from National College of Education interviewed Susan Fahey, Holy Family Child Care Center director, on the center's policies, qualification of staff members, benefits and the educational program. The center was chosen to participate along with several other day care facilities.

Fahey, a Glenview resident, also works as joint coordinator for the Illinois Chapter for the National Association of Hospital Affiliated Child Care Program. The organization recently received affiliation from The American Hospital Association. Holy Family's Child Care Center is a member of the NHAACCP.

According to Fahey, hospitals are the leading provider of employee-sponsored child care programs with more than 700 nationwide.

Letters To The Editor

Ode to Notre Dame carnival

Where People Count
Heralds the Village of Niles philosophy. Entering and leaving its boundaries—but, Residents surrounding Notre Dame High School Evidently have no rights to this slogan.

Patrons of this schools (most with no allegiance to Niles) Ellected to have a carnival to raise money. Opposition from surrounding neighbors Proved futile. Liquor (beer and wine) was allowed. Educating their students with a message that to have a good time one must supply alcohol.

Contrary, one would think to a Christian attitude. Outrage to this degradation of our neighborhood, Unneighborly of Notre Dame, you bet! Negative reactions to the noise, litter, traffic congestion and late hours, you bet! Transgression of the Niles slogan, you bet!

Community uses for military bases

Dear Editor:

I understand Governor Thompson is forming a committee to look into possible future use for the military bases being closed here in Illinois. I feel we have a wonderful opportunity before us with the unfortunate closing of these facilities. An opportunity to put our state of Illinois in the forefront as an example of moving forward to resolve some of the problems plaguing all the states, such as crime and homeless children and adults.

Each of these facilities have an excellent foundation for the future development and use in either of these areas.

We are releasing up to 90 individuals a day from our criminal system for lack of housing to roam our streets and unfortunately in many cases they commit even more severe crimes against society. It would again put teeth into our justice system, as the saying goes, if you can't do the time, don't commit the crime. None of these facilities need to be maximum security for major felony convicted prisoners, but for lesser crimes, this just might stop someone from committing a major felony such as taking a life. Let's start getting tough and make it known if you commit a crime you're going to serve your time.

Lets help these homeless and abused children, the needy. Have we all forgot the wonders that were performed at a place called Boys Town? Why can't we show and offer our children of this great state a better way to survive. Why can't we have our town for these boys and girls, the leader's of tomorrow or they will be lost.

These military facilities have served their country and this state with honor and contributed, to our society. Let us not tarnish this memory and legacy with talks of a championship golf site, beach or a park.

Let us use this opportunity to add to this great legacy. We can show the rest of the country we are still making history by leading the way for others to follow our example in fighting crime and saving our children from the streets.

Sincerely,

its people." Judge John Hourihane explained to the fifty potential jurors in our group about our responsibility to serve. More than forty of us were interviewed before the fourteen jurors were chosen (12 plus two substitutes). We were America's true representatives. We were a cross-section of America, about to sit in judgment of a fellow-American. He was accused of a felonious crime and his fellow citizens were preparing to give him a fair hearing.

Judge Hourihane told us the man accused of a crime was innocent unless the state could prove otherwise. He emphasized the man did not have to prove his innocence but the state has to prove his guilt. If any of the jurors had any prejudices or did not feel they could serve impartially, they were excused from jury duty. There were three nurses who were quizzed by the judge. They were approved. There was a Ph.D. He was turned down. A Chicago artist was dismissed. A man with a speech impediment was accepted. A postal worker who had served on several previous juries was dismissed. Two others with previous jury duty were accepted.

The judge queried the jurors about their backgrounds, about their families, occupations, education and hobbies. He wanted to know if they were involved in any crimes as a participant or victim. He wanted to know if they had any family members who were attorneys.

It was another story about a "government and its people."

When we returned to the office about 5 p.m., Jimmy Ruesch, from Ruesch's Garage, just down the street from our office, was sitting disconsolately here at The Bugle. Inspectors from the village had been in to see him and asked him to clean-up his act at his truck garage.

Jim, whose family has been here for six generations, had tears in his eyes as he was relating his worst fears. He was fearful Niles was pressuring him, with anticipation of moving his business out of the village.

The garage is located in the heart of a residential area which was built there 40-45 years ago. It presently is standing on land which is zoned for a non-conforming use.

Jim thinks the village wants him out. The village officials told The Bugle they want Jim to clean-up his act.

We can't believe Niles would be so heartless to remove Ruesch's Garage, after being in business here since the early 1920's. We also believe neighbors have a right to a clean and orderly neighborhood.

From the news about China and Russia and Iran and Poland we got pictures about "governments and their people." Monday, as a juror, we saw another picture of a "government and its people." Monday night when we returned to the office and heard about the Ruesch problem, we got one more picture of a "government and its people."

a planned 64,000 square foot Jewel/Osco store, facing Touhy Avenue. Garfield also told the board that it is company policy to police the area hourly for debris. There will be no outdoor seating and the restaurant caters mainly to carryout and fast delivery clientele.

In addition to Mages and Jewel/Osco, other projected tenants for the first phase of Village Crossing are a 2-story 134,552 square foot Montgomery Ward store, a 25,000 square foot Office World outlet and Michael's Crafts, a 17,040 square foot store. Occupancy is scheduled for this spring.

$192 a day for driving trips

A family of four should budget $192 per day when vacationing by automobile this summer, according to the AAA-Chicago Motor Club.

AAA-CMC's motorist vacation budget includes $90 per day for meals, not including tips and alcoholic beverages; $78 per night for lodging; and $8 per 100 miles traveled for operating costs including gasoline. Based on 300 miles of daily travel in a motor vehicle getting 23 miles per gallon, the total is $192 a day.

In addition to food, lodging and driving costs, travelers should budget for entertainment, shopping, recreation, admission to places of interest as well as road and bridge tolls. A reserve fund should be included for emergencies.

Actual vacation expenditures vary depending on personal preferences, and costs vary by area. For instance, higher lodging rates are usually found in metropolitan areas and at resorts in season.

AAA-CMC advises travelers not to carry large amounts of cash and instead use credit cards or traveler's checks.

To help reduce motoring vacation costs, AAA-CMC offers these suggestions: —Make sure the car is in top mechanical condition to save on fuel and avoid costly breakdowns.

—Avoid driving during gas-gulping urban rush hours.

younger, are viewed by Chinese as from "the generation that didn't suffer" because they grew up after the cultural revolution of the '60s and were able to pursue their studies, usually without interruption. As the economy has improved, the students have tasted a small amount of freedom and are less tolerant of the government, she said. Most Chinese over age 30 accept suffering as normal and don't try to resist. She was touched by the sight of older professors marching with the students.

The government's bloody weekend assault on the students substantiates the cynicism she and most Chinese-Americans feel for the Communist government. She noted the army is preparing for winter and predicts a long struggle.

Some of these Chinese-Americans telephone the Mainland, but avoid discussing Beijing events for fear the lines are tapped. One young man born in Taiwan, but with roots in China, a student in Northwestern University's graduate School of Management Science, scours the media for Beijing news. He capsulated the attitude of most of his countrymen when he said "(I) hope with prayer that they will eventually get democracy."

Jim's business is his whole life. He works always. He's there early in the morning and is usually still working on into the evening hours. We've seen him there as late as midnight.

The garage is located in the heart of a residential area which was built there 40-45 years ago. It presently is standing on land which is zoned for a non-conforming use.

Jim thinks the village wants him out. The village officials told The Bugle they want Jim to clean-up his act.

agreed to furnish the village with labor, lighting and related equipment for the new community theater that the village hopes to build near Oakton Avenue and Waukegan Road at a cost not to exceed $17,500 or assume the cost of installing a new studio at the new village complex at the same intersection.

The $112,000 lawsuit that Niles is dismissing against the company was filed in 1985 when the village contended Cablevision had not complied with its franchise agreement by not furnishing a community channel or institutional network. Niles now says it has no need for these features. Each is responsible for its own legal fees. Cablevision will also have the option to purchase its present tower/receiver site in the event it elects not to move it to the relocated Village Hall.

hours." Ted Przybylo explained that the entrance and exits proposed for the new lot accommodate the large percentage of library users, which has steadily increased.

Eastbound Oakton St. traffic will be able to enter the current lot via a service driveway which connects Oakton Street and Oakton Court. Westbound Oakton Street traffic will enter the new upper level lot off Oakton Street. Traffic exiting the new lot area, which will not be accessible by car to the old lot, can turn right (west) onto Oakton Street or north onto Waukegan Road. Northbound or southbound Waukegan Road traffic can enter the new lot from Waukegan Road or the current lot on Oakton Court. "There's not too many constituents east of us," Przybylo observed. This plan will keep our neighbors (on Oakton Court) happy. Charlene Wagner said, "I don't have any objections to this plan. I think we have stalled long enough. The village has been patient with us and I just hope we can break ground soon."

Wagner noted that the library would incur no liability because of the necessity of having the specifications re-bid but expressed doubts that there would be a savings in cost as a result of the revision.

"We're hoping we'll save money," said Chmielowski. "I was never in love with that ramp, especially in the winter." The trustee explained that he had previously abstained from making a decision about revising the plan until an expert opinion could be obtained. None of the trustees interviewed seemed to think patrons would mind walking the five steps between the new lot to the west entrance of the library and Quattrocci felt he would use that manner of egress because there would be less traffic than at the lower level lot. Chmielowski indicated that if the library did realize a cost savings, he would ask the board to consider improvements to the courtyard which faces Oakton St., possibly making it a working entrance to the library.

Quattrocci indicated the board would accept the lowest bid, expressing the viewpoint that the minimal changes would not take long to be incorporated into the existing plan, which the architect had computerized.

Motor club offers RV driving tips

Driving a recreational vehicle (RV) is different from driving an automobile, but with off-the-road practice and basic motoring skills an RV can be operated safely by most experienced drivers, according to the AAA-Chicago Motor Club.

"Before getting behind the wheel, new and veteran RV drivers should read the owner's manual," said Phil Arendt. AAA-CMC's manager of automotive information. "Pay particular attention to the maintenance schedule and the guides that explain how to operate all equipment."

Driving an RV trailer in reverse can be an adventure, until the motorist masters the proper technique. But the biggest difference most drivers notice when operating RVs - motorhomes, van conversions, travel trailers, truck campers, and folding camping trailers - is turning radius.

"Because of the vehicle's size and weight, you have to make wider turns and allow more room for stopping, accelerating and lane changing," Arendt said.

"I am stressed that when the family car is used to tow an RV, it is important to make sure the car can do the job. The car owner's manual will specify what types or RVs the vehicle can tow and the maximum load weight it can pull.

Single unit RVs, which are not towed, are actually truck frames and power trains converted into vacation vehicles, Arendt said. "When the conversion company outfitted the truck, transforming it into a pleasure vehicle, they increased the need for preventive maintenance."

In addition to routine mechanical maintenance such as fluid and filter changes, lubrications, tire inflation, an inspection of all lights and a tune-up - RVs have additional systems that must be checked.

AAA-CMC suggests the following checklist for RVs: make sure propane tanks are securely attached, properly filled and not leaking; flush all holding tanks with clean water; flush the potable (drinking) water tank. Then fill it, add one ounce of bleach and flush again; check all water pumps for proper operation and pressure; inspect the furnace, air conditioner and water heater for proper operation; check all electrical system components including the auxiliary batteries, converter unit and battery charger and inspect all appliances for proper operation.

Boating under the influence

Operating a motorboat under the influence of alcohol or other drugs is just as dangerous as drinking and driving a motor vehicle. According to the U.S. Coast Guard, approximately 50 percent of all boating accidents are alcohol-related.

During Safe Boating Week in Illinois, boat operators are reminded of Illinois' operating under the influence (OUI) law. The law requires boat operators to take alcohol concentration (BAC) tests if arrested for OUI. Operating either a motorboat or a vehicle with a BAC of .10 or more is illegal. Moreover, a BAC less than .10 and more than .05, when combined with other evidence, may result in an OUI or a DUI conviction.

People and businesses have been calling on him to fill job vacancies as well as vacant space since 1984. In addition, if there are problems created by a businessman, Bast attempts to resolve them with diplomacy rather than fireworks.

One success story noted by Bast is the landscaping at Nu Arc, 6200 W. Howard St. The raised planting area along the roadway was created as a result of a need by Nu Arc to have additional parking for their employees and a need by the Village of Niles not to have the community become, in Bast's words, "an asphalt jungle." Diplomatically, Bast got the company to agree to visually screen the additional parking expansion from the roadway with shrubs and trees.

Sometimes a buffer and sometimes a buffer and sometimes a landlord-tenant issues, Bast deals with leaky roofs in rental retail space and negotiates with industrial owners about eyesores and safety hazards.

the 1950's. James Ruesch has been repairing trucks for customers since 1968 when his father switched career paths for health reasons. One customer has been bringing vehicles there for repair for nearly 60 years, according to Ruesch.

When Ruesch's father, George, Jr., was born in 1925, and until the 1950's, there were no homes surrounding the property. Two homes occupy the land, both occupied by Ruesch family members. In addition, a residence which dates to 1933, is owned by a distant relative living at 7129 Carol Court. The residence which stands on the Carol Court portion of the Ruesch garage property is 150 years old and was moved from its original site at Harlem Avenue and Oakton Street in 1952.

Sutker receives education award

The Illinois Community College Trustees Association recently announced that State Representative Calvin R. Sutker (D-56) will soon receive the Meritorious Service Award for outstanding legislative leadership. The group commended Sutker for his "strong support of the Illinois community college system."

"I am pleased to receive this distinct honor," Sutker said. "When I first became a legislator, I pledged to help make education the state's number one priority. While I'm still working to reach that goal, I am excited about the progress we've made."

Sutker's long time support of higher education is highlighted by his sponsorship of the College Savings Bond Program. His plan allows families to purchase special bonds which later mature as children reach college age.

"Education, on all levels of learning, has been seriously underfunded in Illinois for much too long," Sutker added. "That's why I am fully supporting the recent income tax surcharge plan which raises over $262 million for Illinois schools and colleges. Under our plan, no bureaucratic agency will receive extra funding."

"Government must learn to spend wisely and effectively with education as our highest budget priority. Our children are too important for anything less."

Sutker will receive the award on Friday, June 9, in Springfield.

Great book hunt at Lincolnwood Library

"The Great Book Hunt" reading game at the Lincolnwood Library begins Monday, June 19, and continues on until Friday, August 4. For readers in grades kindergarten on up, the game takes kids to exciting places all around the world to hunt and find treasures.

Players receive a special pair of "Great Book Hunt" shoelaces, bookmarks, and stickers. Children who do not yet read can play the "Read-to-me Game."

Older kids in grades 6-8 are invited to volunteer to be a S.T.A.R. - Summer Time Assisting Reader. They help younger readers with the game and do other related tasks. The game begins anytime a player registers. Registration is required. For more details on the summer reading game, call the Children's Department at 677-5277. The Lincolnwood Library is located at 4000 W. Pratt Ave.

One man was described as being about 19 years of age and weighing 135 pounds and the second man was heavy set and in his mid-sixties. The two women were in their mid-twenties and weighed 140-150 pounds.

M-NASR presents special recreation camp

If you have children, or know of some children who are educably mentally handicapped, have learning disabilities or behavior disorders who want to attend a summer day camp, the Maine-Niles Association of Special Recreation (M-NASR) has eight children's day campsites.

The campsites are located at various park districts and school facilities in Maine and Niles townships. The exact locations are being finalized and will be advertised in the summer brochure. The camps are for educationally mentally handicapped 5-21 year olds, the physically handicapped 5-21 year olds, learning disabled 5-11 year olds, behavior disordered 5-11 year olds, a teen program for learning disabled and behavior disordered 12-15 year olds, one camp for preschoolers with mild learning, social, motor, or language delays for three to five year olds, and a half day program for trainably mentally handicapped children.

M-NASR also hosts a two week day camp for children with cancer and their siblings (ages 4-11). The day camps offer activities and events to promote physical, emotional, and social skills. Activities include sports, games, arts and crafts, music, drama, dance, swimming, and nature hikes.

The camps run from June 19 through July 28 from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. or 9:45 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. The child's day can be extended through after camp latch key program. Parents have the option of signing up for transportation services directly from the day campsite to the latchkey site. This program is located at the M-NASR Leisure Center and will operate from June 19 through August 11. In addition, M-NASR would like to announce its newest summer program called "August Camp". Signing up for this new camp can extend a child's camp involvement through August 11. M-NASR will host two separate camps at the M-NASR Leisure Center for learning disabled, behavior disordered, and early childhood children and trainably and educationally mentally handicapped children. This program will operate from 9:45 a.m. to 3:15 p.m., Monday through Friday. Again, parents may sign their children up for the after camp latch key program. Details and exact registration procedures can be found in the M-NASR summer brochure. For more information and a brochure on summer programs call M-NASR 966-5522.

Center of Concern honors volunteers

Martha Sprieser, The Center of Concern's April Volunteer of the Month, said she never can repay The Center for all the benefits she has received from it. The Center feels the same debt to her because of the freely offered assistance she has given in their office, as well as in their Friendly Visitor program. She became acquainted with The Center at its open house in 1987. Because she enjoys "neighboring" she is a real asset in the Friendly Visitor program, calling on and telephoning the shut-ins.

For Martha and all the other volunteers who give of their time and talents, The Center of Concern is very grateful. Please get in touch with Dee if you, too, could share your day or days with The Center. You may drop in at Suite 125 of the 1580 N. Northwest Hwy. in Park Ridge, or call 823-0453.

OCC intensive computer program

Applications are now being accepted at Oakton Community College for the fall Intense Computer Career Program which will begin August 23. The nine-month program is offered at Oakton East, 7701 N. Lincoln Ave., Skokie.

"The program is designed for adults who are willing to devote considerable time and effort to develop marketable career skills as data processing professionals," said Leona Roen, chairperson of the Data Processing Department.

"This is the first concentrated program of its kind offered by a two-year college in the State of Illinois. Niles tries...

Ruesch catalogues Village involvement.
--April, 1976 Mayor Nicholas Blase notifies him he is in non-conformity with the Village zoning code and map and should plan to terminate use of the property as a "garage, etc." by December of '81.

--Village inspectors come once or twice a year demanding sidewalks to be paved and gas pumps to be removed.

--November '86 Upon notice of gas odor in area, Ruesch calls out an inspection team early one Sunday morning and representatives from the State Fire Marshall and Niles Village Department urge speed in the testing. Inspection teams find no leak, but only an air bubble. A fireman on the scene tells Ruesch they knew his pumps weren't leaking. The inspection certification costs Ruesch $5,000.

--Sept., '89 Ruesch removes gas pumps.

--March 21, '89 Housing Director Todd Bavaro notifies Ruesch he must rid his property of all inoperable vehicles (Ruesch uses old vehicles to salvage from and store parts) clean up junk stored outdoors, remove chicken coop and chickens and repair fences, or legal action would be taken.

--March 27, '89 Ruesch said Code Enforcement Director Joe Salerno told him he should close and that he wanted a letter to that effect by March 31.

The following months were peppered with Village complaints and Ruesch reactions; frustration on the part of Ruesch because of uncertainty about Village plans and his future; frustration on the part of officials Bavaro and Salerno because they feel Ruesch oversees a "pigeon" as Salerno puts it. Salerno said Ruesch will clean the site only to let it again fall into unsightly disrepair.

Bavaro said "My concern is to have our village reasonably clean...it's my duty to get it cleaned up; I've taken action on my own." He said he has visited the site for three consecutive months and has seen evidence of some painting was done, but that other corrections, such as removal of truck parts and fence repair remain. He said by ordinance Ruesch must have a paved driveway and parking lot. He said "It's up to him."

Perhaps Ruesch's hope lies in what is often referred to in legal circles as a "grandfather's clause" under which municipalities cannot establish laws that in effect legislate against a business that has been operating prior to the law's inception. Tuesday, a tired Jim Ruesch said he could document having spent $30,000 in repair on the building since 1981. He said "Somebody wants something and we don't know what. We like to work, be quiet and mind our own business. We've been in business 70 years."

The Ruesch family has had roots in Niles since 1885, originally owning 25 acres, including the land for Tam O'Shanter Country Club. The Ruesch garage, begun in 1922, now operates on about three fourths of an acre and the surrounding area has been developed into neat homes with expansive lawns.

Jim Ruesch began working at the family garage when he was 15 and attending high school. He was graduated from Niles North High School with a bronze key for academic honors and awarded plaques by both the school and the township for achievement in industrial arts. His firm often serviced Niles Village vehicles. Today he helps support his 88-year-old grandmother and lives with his family in a house adjacent to the garage.

Culver teacher retires

Albert Liska, coach and teacher, is retiring from the teaching profession after 35 years of service in Illinois.

Al Liska began his teaching career at Aledo High School, coaching and teaching Physical Education. He moved to the northwest suburbs and taught for one year at Libertyville Fremont High School. The following year he came to Niles Public School, where he taught science and physical education.

In Niles, he found a challenging, growing school system with teachers, parents and administrators all working together in a friendly atmosphere. During these years, he received his masters degree in guidance and counseling from Roosevelt University. He and his wife raised two children, both of whom have graduated from college.

"It's time that my wife and I spend more time together and do some of the things that we could not do earlier in our lives," Liska said. "I will miss the children, staff, parents, administrators and school board members who have supported me and made the Niles elementary school District #71 a very special place for learning and developing life skills. I will always remember my teaching days at Culver."

Library buys reader/printer, microfilm news

The Lincolnwood Library has designated per capita grant money received from the State of Illinois to purchase a Minolta microfilm reader/printer and to reserve back issues of "The Lincolnwood Life" on microfilm, according to Gall Inman, adult services coordinator at the library, 4000 W. Pratt Ave.

The versatile, compact reader/printer replaces a 20-year old model. "This new machine streamlines the use of our microfilmed resources," Inman said. "Now, without help, library patrons can easily make bond paper photocopies of microfilmed articles." Copies cost ten cents each.

She said that the local newspaper microfilming project will cover issues of the semi-weekly "Lincolnwood Life" from May 1980 on. The project is financed under a cost share program in conjunction with the Illinois State Historical Library and is expected to be completed in December.

The effort is part of the state-by-state United States Newspaper Program to preserve newspapers as a primary source for history and genealogy. "In a few decades, 'The Life' will serve as an important source for local information," Inman said, "adding color and vitality to historical research."
