Maine Highs' tax levy up 18 percent; Dist. 63 elementary up 22.8 percent

Residents brace for tax hike

by Sheila Hackett

Niles-area residents will see increased school levies on their next property tax bills, according to figures from the Cook County Clerk's tax extension office.

Most elementary school districts are asking for substantial boosts in their levies; one high school district, Maine Township district 207, is noteworthy in its request for an 18 percent escalation.

Investigation determined that a short circuit caused the fire and damage was estimated at $500. Out of 28 high school districts listed, eight are asking for a more than ten percent boost in their levies. In that group, District 207 is asking for $45,141,000, an 18 percent increase over the 1988 billing of $38,237,527. By contrast, Niles Township district 219 is seeking $28,489,778; a 2.4 percent rise over the 1988 request of $27,805,892.

In elementary school districts, East Maine district 63 is requesting $14,836,680 in tax funds, up 22.8 percent from the 1988 request of $12,078,000.

by Bud Besser

The more superstitious contend death comes in threes. There's a trinity of mortality which strikes, linking three of a kind together in life's game of poker.

Tony Smigiel died this past week completing the trio of Niles public officials who recently passed away. Former trustees Ang Marcheschi and Pete Pesole died during the past weeks.

Tony's history in Niles parallels Niles' post World War II boom.

His good friend, Ben Sosnowski, refreshed our memory about Tony's gaining prominence in Niles. The Kirk Lane area, in the Howard-Waukegan vicinity was being developed for returning veterans after World War II. Forty-three of the ex-G.I.'s who invested in homes in the area, had their money absconded by a developer. Ben said each veteran lost between $2,000 to $3,000, which was a kingly sum in those days.

The 43 G.I.'s turned to attorney Smigiel, who then had offices in Chicago on Irving Park Road. Smigiel formed a corporation which included the 43 G.I.'s. While they didn't get their money back, Smigiel was instrumental in getting them new money from Talmán Savings which resulted in their homes being built. The formation of the corporation

Fire hits Morton Grove house

Morton Grove firefighters fought an attic fire in a single family residence, 7800 Lake St., the morning of Jan. 2.

According to District Chief Ron Ruehrdanz, the house occupant, Ms. M. Sohn, was safely evacuated, but Tom Mandik, a paramedic-fireman, suffered a pulled muscle.

Twenty-seven firemen assisted in extinguishing the blaze. Cause of the fire and estimates of the damage to the house roof and structure are under investigation. The blaze was struck at 9:15 a.m.

In another incident, about noon, Dec. 30, the driver of a burning car pulled onto the driveway apron of the Morton Grove fire station, 8954 Shermer Rd. Letting himself into the station, the car owner, a Wheeling resident, apologized for interrupting the firefighters' lunch and asked

Township to distribute surplus food Jan. 11

Those who do not have identification cards and would like to participate in the government surplus food program should bring verification of residency and proof of income to the township offices at the time of the distribution.

if they would extinguish the fire in his waiting car.

Using hand-held extinguishers, the firefighters quickly put out the blaze in the driver's side door of the 1983 Oldsmobile Toronado.

Investigation determined that a short circuit caused the fire and damage was estimated at $500.

Pathologists' role important in patient diagnosis

Treatment for many patients cannot begin until the patient's physician has sufficient and accurate clinical and anatomical test results.

Performing this vital role at Resurrection Medical Center are three pathologists who help bridge the gap between laboratory science and practical patient care. Edmund A. Petrus, M.D., chief pathologist and laboratory director, Gleb Nedzel, M.D. and Herbert Reiman, M.D. comprise the laboratory staff.

Together they bring more than 101 years of specialized training in laboratory testing of patient samples and examinations of tissue specimens, and offer their expertise to patient's physicians.

Typically, the physician who is directly caring for the patient orders the tests. The pathologist performs or supervises the tests and then reports the results back to the physician who uses the results to diagnose and treat the patient.

At times the pathologist will suggest additional tests to help answer specific clinical questions that the patient's physician asks. The pathologist's education and medical background can become essential ingredients in solving difficult clinical questions or arriving at an answer in the most efficient manner.

Pathology is divided into two main areas: clinical pathology and anatomic pathology. Clinical pathology involves such fields as chemistry, blood bank, microbiology, immunology and hematology, and mainly deals with tests performed in the hospital's laboratory. The pathologist is responsible for the accuracy of all test results.

Anatomic pathology involves the study of tissues or cell samples usually obtained by a surgeon or other physician and then delivered to pathology. The pathologist studies the tissue immediately by performing a "frozen section" and often makes a diagnosis while the patient is still in surgery.

In all cases regular microscope slides are prepared by specially trained technologists, and the pathologist will study the slides the next day to arrive at a correct diagnosis.

Another important facet is cytology. A cytotechnologist prepares and examines slides with specimens from such sources as the cervix for pap smears, sputum, urine and other sites. The slides are then studied by the pathologist for results.

Pathologist Herbert Reiman, M.D., prepares a slide for observation in the Laboratory at Resurrection Medical Center.

A new development over the last few years is fine needle aspiration cytology, according to Reiman, who recently joined the medical center's team of pathologists from the Mayo Clinic. A fine needle is stuck directly into a region of the body and cells are obtained for study. Common sites include the thyroid, breast, and even deeply seated regions such as the lung and pancreas region.

Reiman reports that this kind of study often can give the surgeon a clear indication whether surgery is warranted or not in a questionable situation.

Reiman comes to his new pathology post at Resurrection as a widely recognized expert in soft tissue tumors and orthopedic oncology. These tumors involve the extremities, where muscles and fatty and fibrous tissues would be. These tumors are rare and make up less than one percent of all malignancies.

"Bone tumors are actually a little bit less common than soft tissue tumors included in that one percent," Reiman noted. "And in the United States there may be no more than 5,000 soft tissue sarcomas a year. As a result, no one hospital is likely to see very much soft tissue tumors in a year or in a lifetime of any physician."

MDA searches for ALS cause

The Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) has begun an international research effort to uncover a suspected genetic cause for cases of the fatal neuro-muscular disorder amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) in families with a prior history of the disease.

The announcement came from Robert Ross, MDA vice president and executive director, who stated that "in as many as one of 10 ALS cases, someone else in Places like the Mayo Clinic and the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C. are the principal recipients of referrals for bone and soft tissue tumors. Reiman now brings this special expertise to Resurrection Medical Center.

Another new development is immunoperoxidase staining (antibody technology), according to Petrus, chief pathologist and director of Resurrection's Laboratory. With this test, the pathologist is able to differentiate cancers from one another in many cases.

A female patient in 1981, with a biopsy diagnosis of indeterminate cancer located in lymph nodes next to the spine, had a very grim outlook. "Instead she is alive and well," Petrus said. "Special staining in 1989 proved that the original disease was malignant lymphoma, a cancer much more responsive to therapy by her physician," Petrus explained.

In another case history a biopsy of an enlarged lymph node, taken from the back of the neck in a young female patient, revealed a cancer spread from an unknown primary site. "By special stains," Petrus noted, "the pathologist was able to direct the surgeon to the nonpalpable thyroid gland which was the primary source of the tumor and allow proper treatment."

A fine needle aspirate of a thyroid mass in another young female patient disclosed, with special staining, an unusual tumor diagnosed before her operation so that the surgeon could better plan the operative approach.

Most laboratory testing is performed on automatized, expensive laboratory equipment. It is also the responsibility of the pathologist to advise administration on equipment purchases to keep Resurrection Medical Center abreast of modern medicine.

Another area of anatomic pathology is the performing of autopsies by the pathologist. The number of autopsies has decreased over the last 20 years, but they still remain an important part of medical practice. The confirmation of diagnosis or the finding of surprise conditions can be helpful to the patient's family as well as the attending physician.

The pathologist has many roles in medicine today, bringing a unique expertise in determining the diagnosis that the primary physician uses to treat the patient most effectively.

MDA provides more support for ALS research than any other voluntary health organization in the world.

ALS attacks the motor nerve cells controlling muscles, causing progressive muscle weakness and wasting. It generally strikes between the ages of 35 and 65.

The disorder causes death by weakening vital respiratory muscles.

Organ Bank begins bone banking
The Regional Organ Bank of Illinois (ROBI) has announced that it is now retrieving tissues (bones) in addition to organs for transplantation. ROBI's newly appointed director of tissue procurement, Ricky Roth, R.N., said "By retrieving bones, ROBI is providing more service for the hospitals and the public in general. Although heart and liver transplants are more dramatic, there is a greater need for replacement bones. According to Roth, anyone who dies between the ages of 15 and 60 is a potential bone donor. With the recent "Required Request" laws, which call for hospitals to offer the option of organ and/or tissue donation to the next-of-kin of potential donors, the Regional Organ Bank of Illinois expects to recover bone from an increasing number of donors. ROBI officials stressed that neither organs nor tissues will be removed without the consent of the next-of-kin.

Next Theatre Company presents 'Abingdon Square'

"Abingdon Square," Maria Irene Fornes' story of stormy love, lust and sexual awakening, will be the third production of the 1989-90 subscription season at The Next Theatre Company, 927 Noyes St., Evanston.

Directed by Eric Simonson and starring Johanna McKay and Jack McLaughlin-Gray, "Abingdon Square" will open Tuesday, Jan. 23, and will run through Sunday, Feb. 18.

Low-priced previews begin Thursday, Jan. 18.

Set in New York during the years before World War I, "Abingdon Square" is the story of Marion (McKay), a 15-year-old girl who, after the death of her parents, marries a widower (McLaughlin-Gray), a widower 35 years her senior.

The two begin their marriage with dreams of creating a new family, but Marion's sexual awakening threatens to tear them apart. Fornes has created a world of striking images and symbols, interweaving themes of lost parents and children, of love and hate, of trust and suspicion, of birth and death.

The play combines a melodramatic story with a sparse style, distilling the essence of Marion and Juster's stormy love.

"Abingdon Square" opens Tuesday, Jan. 23 (that performance is sold out). Performances continue Thursday, Jan. 25 through Sunday, Feb. 18, on Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m.; Saturdays at 5:30 and 9 p.m.; and Sundays at 3 p.m.

Tickets are priced at $14 on Thursdays, $18 on Fridays and Saturdays, and $16 on Sundays.

The preview schedule, with tickets priced at $10, is as follows: Thursday, Jan. 18, at 8 p.m.; Saturday, Jan. 20, at 8 p.m.; Sunday, Jan. 21, at 3 p.m.; and Monday, Jan. 22, at 8 p.m.

On Friday, Jan. 19, at 8 p.m., there will be a special "singles night" preview, sponsored by Next in association with Gail Prince. Tickets, priced at $25, include a 6:45 p.m. pre-show reception at the theatre and a discussion of the show with Next's artistic staff, followed by the performance.

The Next Theatre Company is located in the Noyes Cultural Arts Center, 927 Noyes St., in Evanston, next to the Noyes "ell" stop. The Noyes Center is handicapped accessible and has free parking.

"Listen to My Song" at National Jewish Theater

National Jewish Theater is pleased to present "Listen to My Song: Kurt Weill's Theater Music," an original dramatic presentation of the music of Kurt Weill.

"Listen to My Song" will open at the National Jewish Theater, 5050 W. Church St. in Skokie on Monday, Jan. 15.

Devised by Sheldon Patinkin and directed by Estelle Goodman Spector and Sheldon Patinkin, the show commemorates the 90th birthday of the late Kurt Weill, one of the most important composers in the history of the musical theater.

"Listen to My Song" is a unique approach to the music of Kurt Weill. Unlike the popular "Berlin to Broadway," "Listen to My Song" is not merely a chronological revue to showcase the composer's work. The music is an original dramatic presentation.

Seven characters use songs as dialogue to create a world that mirrors the life of the artist and reflects his thoughts and feelings.

There are 45 Weill songs in the production taken from 11 musicals including "The Three-Penny Opera," "Happy End," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Lady in the Dark," "Street Scene," and "Lost in the Stars."

It is amazing the variety of ways in which Weill kept returning to the same themes and ideas within the context of very different shows in very different times and places," says Sheldon Patinkin, creator and co-director of "Listen to My Song."

Kurt Weill was a remarkable artist who traveled from pre-Nazi Germany to post-World War II Broadway. His greatest European fame arose with his collaboration with Bertolt Brecht with "The Three-Penny Opera" and "The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny."

The son of an orthodox Jewish cantor, Weill was born in 1900 in Dessau, Germany. A classically trained composer already known for his operas and operettas, Weill arrived in New York in 1935 and began dedicating himself to writing for the Broadway stage.

In the United States, he collaborated with Maxwell Anderson, Ira Gershwin, Elmer Rice and Langston Hughes, Moss Hart, and Alan Jay Lerner.

He was an active participant in the struggle to free Palestine. He died in 1950.

The cast of "Listen to My Song" includes Ross Lehman, Kate Buddeke, Frank Farrell, Aisha de Haas, Gary Lowry, Brian Herriot, and Donna Jerusek.

The production opens on Monday, Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m. Musical runs Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays until Feb. 11. There are no Friday evening performances.

Showtimes are Wednesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. Saturdays at 8:15 p.m. and Sundays at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

Ticket prices range from $11.50 to $20 and are available by calling the box office at (708) 675-5070. National Jewish Theater is located at 5050 W. Church St. in Skokie. There is ample parking.

Jewish teens learn with T.L.C.

Jewish teens reinforcing their Jewish identity and connecting with each other is the motivating idea behind a new program launched this year by the Associated Talmud Torah's Morris P. Zaransky-Meyer Katzman Consolidated Hebrew High School (CHHS).

The formal name of the program is Teen Leadership Connection, also called T.L.C.

Continually exploring new ways of encouraging teens to continue with their Jewish education, the Consolidated Hebrew High School formed a partnership with the National Conference of Synagogue Youth in Chicago to sponsor an informal educational program that combines Jewish learning with social interaction.

Once a month, the teens gather at a central location to spend an evening of learning and entertainment. Speakers present a program of Jewish values, which is followed by group discussion.

The teens then share an experience which would teach them the beauty and importance of Yiddishkeit.

In the few months that the program has functioned, over 400 teens have attended.

Information regarding the T.L.C. can be obtained by calling Mrs. Garelick, principal, at 973-2828.

Women in sales honor 4 for leadership

Start 1990 Right -- Get up to $50⁰⁰ trade in for your HO Train Set

There was a time when a Lionel train was the ONLY train a child would ask for at Christmas. We know there are companies that would have you think that their HO train sets are what your child really wants. We want to set you straight on this point.

HO trains must be mounted on a rigid board or they wobble and fall off the track, so you can forget about running an HO set under the Christmas tree. HO trains love to fall off tracks that are not perfectly level and if that isn't enough, think of your children calling you to find out why the train isn't running.

The SuperStore has THE ORIGINAL ITEM: Lionel trains that put smiles on children's faces.

Because buying a Lionel train set buys you a lot more than rolling stock and locomotives.

It buys you time. That brief span of time you're given with your children during which they will listen and share and absorb. And come to understand what it is you value.

We know something about spending time with children. Because for more than 80 years Lionel has concentrated on making quality trains. Unlike any other toy you've seen, Lionel trains can be the mortar of a rare parent-child relationship.

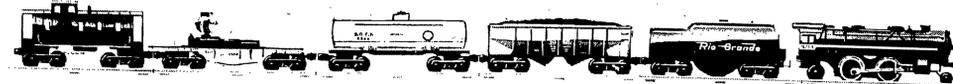

There's nothing very outer space or "innovative" about them. They don't glow in the dark. Children still find them easy to set up and operate.

If you come in now, we'll give you up to $50 dollars for your HO set*, good towards the purchase of a Lionel set. Lionel, a tradition in the American home: die-cast engine, puffing smoke, the rugged construction that can take the real-world abuse of real children.

If you'd like to take over a REAL Lionel train this year, stop in and see us. Our phone number is 470-9500. You'll get up to fifty dollars for your HO set*, we'll answer all your questions, and you can see one of the Midwest's largest displays of Lionel stock (post and pre-war).

You can still make your child happy. You still have time.

All-pro Goalkeepers' clinic set

The Arlington Hts. Park District is sponsoring the second annual All-Pro Goalkeepers' Clinic. The clinic, under the direction of former Spring coach Gary Hindley, has been scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 21, at Buffalo Grove High School.

In 12 previous sessions throughout the country, the clinic has drawn over 5,300 participants including over 350 participants at last year's Chicago session.

It is designed for players and coaches from the youth level through collegiate.

The clinic is a co-ed, player participation format with each player being able to practice the skills and techniques of the position in a small group set-up after a demonstration and explanation.

In addition to Gary Hindley, the expert staff will include current Power goalkeepers Jay McCutcheon and Mark Simpson, as well as coaches Joe Brennan, Frank Speth and Dave Hart.

Pre-registration for the clinic has been set at $12 for each player or coach. The cost at the door will be $15. The session will begin at noon and run to 4 p.m.

Additional information or registration materials for the clinic can be obtained by phoning (708) 577-4667.

Squirt White Rangers triumph over Glenview

Led by the high scoring Peter Sikaras (4 goals, 2 assists), and the play-making talents of Brian Gagliano (4 assists), the Squirt White Rangers scored six unanswered goals in route to a 7 to 2 triumph over Glenview No. 1.

After scoring the game's first goal at the three minute mark of period one, the Rangers found themselves trailing 2 to 1 at the start of the second period action.

Sikaras then tied the score at 2:04 while John Drivas scored what proved to be the game winning goal after he was set up beautifully on passes from Sikaras and Gagliano.

Six different Rangers contributed to the scoring during the contest that saw them score three in the second and three in the third period to ice the victory.

Joining Sikaras, Gagliano and Drivas in the scoring parade, was Kevin Switalla with one goal and one assist, Jim Tragos with one goal, and defenseman Dan Frankfort with two assists.

Add to this the standout goal-tending of Nick Hynes who stopped two breakaways, one a two on none, and you have all the ingredients for another fine Ranger performance.

Pee Wee White Rangers tie Glenview

With strong defensive help in front of him, Pee Wee White Ranger goalie Adam Lovekamp gave the Glenview team fits as the teams battled to a 2 to 2 tie at Glenview.

Glenview jumped out ahead with 2:58 remaining in period one.

After a scoreless second period, the Rangers struck back with an unassisted goal by Mike Barrett at the 1:28 mark of the third period, just forty seconds into the only Ranger power play of the game.

Glenview, however, regained the lead two and a half minutes later with another unassisted goal.

The Rangers got the tying goal at the 5:36 mark of the third when Sean Barrett banged home the game's fourth unassisted tally.

The rest of the game belonged to Lovekamp and outstanding defensive plays by Rich Grabowski, Matt Strung, Joe Musso, and the entire Ranger team.

Hawks and Blues tie

Trailing 2 to 1 after the first period and 3 to 1 after two, the Hawks came back with four third-period goals and battled the Blues to a 5 to 5 tie in Mite House League play.

The Blues scored two third-period goals of their own and with six goals being scored in the third period, the action was fast and furious all the way to the final buzzer.

In the Blues scoring column, Joey Patterson scored what has become almost the expected-a three goal hat trick, John Lubinski banged home a goal off a goal mouth scramble and Jeff Pearson also notched a goal with an assist going to Alex Mrowiec.

The Hawks spread out their heroes as Gino Ori had two goals, his second tied the game at five and added an assist. Derek Cwik had one goal and one assist and Anthony Pontillo and Joe Ori also scored for the Hawks.

Nelson students enter human body

Nelson School sixth graders went on a field trip to the Museum of Science and Industry recently to reinforce their studies on major body systems, such as the circulatory and respiratory systems.

Students and teachers walked through a model of the heart and visited many other interesting exhibits in the museum dealing with health and human development.

The exciting displays in the Henry Crown Space Center added another dimension to the visit.

The highlight of the trip was a visit to the Omnimax Theater. The students experienced a trip of a lifetime as they watched, on the edge of their seats, the presentation "To The Limit." They dangled in midair as a rock climber made his ascent. Before they had a chance to catch their breath, they found themselves racing downhill through the eyes of a world champion skier.

The demands on the heart and lungs to pump extra energy to the muscles are necessary to accomplish such strenuous physical feats. A roller-coaster ride through the throat, lungs and heart made possible by special camera equipment, took the students inside the human body to see first how the body responds.

Holy Family names Employees of Quarter

Employees of the Quarter at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, have to be very special people to win this honor.

Des Plaines resident Sister Dulciosa and Wheeling resident Annie Thomas are no exception and are the most recent to be honored for their exemplary performance.

Sr. Dulciosa has touched many hearts during her 27 years at Holy Family. She has worked in radiology, admitting and for the past nine years, in pastoral care.

According to fellow employees, "Sister Dulciosa is one of the greatest employees at Holy Family. She is always giving and loving to everyone. She can be sick and yet she is positive, cheerful and keeps a sense of humor. The love and sincerity she exhibits for people is above and beyond her duty."

Thomas, a nurse's aide, has been at Holy Family for 12 years. She works nights and enjoys taking care of patients and making them more comfortable. According to Thomas, the best part of her job is the people with whom she works.

Her fellow employees state that "Annie always gives 150 percent to her patients and nursing staff. Her bright, cheerful face and kind manner bring comfort to frightened, ailing patients. She is willing to do anything to help others and seems to find those little extras to do that are so important to others."

Employees of the Quarter are awarded four times a year as part of Holy Family's guest relations program. Two employees are chosen each quarter.

Resurrection offers help for troubled revelers

"Asking for help is not a sign of weakness," states Thomas Henschen, Ph.D., medical psychologist working in the Outpatient Counseling Center at Resurrection Medical Center, 7435 W. Talcott Ave., Chicago.

"At some point, people are faced with hurdles which can be surpassed only with outside guidance and counseling."

Winter wonderlands with snow-flocked landscapes, holiday gatherings of festive friends, and warm greeting card wishes typically ring smiles to the faces of the young and old alike.

But for some, the clinking of champagne glasses and aroma of spicy yuletide grog may signal the onslaught of emotional and medical hurdles. Instead of brightly wrapped packages and jolly ol' St. Nick, for some the holidays bring severe depression, highlight alcohol and drug abuse problems or behavioral disorders, and even result in suicidal thoughts and tendencies.

For more than one out of 10 Americans battling drug addiction and alcoholism, the holidays aren't the only "trouble" times, according to experts working with Dr. Henschen in Resurrection's multidisciplinary outpatient substance abuse counseling program.

Grim statistics reflect a grimmer reality. Millions succumb to the process of alcoholism and drug addiction. Productive, vital people undergo changes creating an entirely new person... someone with different values, different morals, and a perversely distorted perspective on life.

While Resurrection's outpatient counseling services tend to focus on short-term treatment of a variety of problems, including substance abuse, Dr. Henschen stresses that the individualized and multidisciplinary approach to treatment does offer success. Psychological and physiological modification, family counseling, skills training and educational programs all are offered.

"Often people don't seek treatment until a specific external motivator triggers the need," Dr. Henschen explained. "That motivator may be a spouse putting pressure on a partner, legal problems, or trouble on the job."

"We're finding that many of our patients are multiple abusers and are fighting simultaneous battles with alcohol, and different prescribed and un-prescribed drugs, such as cocaine, crack, heroin, valium and others," Dr. Henschen admitted.

"Working with Dr. Anastasio Trontoso, our medical consultant, we are able to provide patients with inpatient detoxification stays if needed. But each case is very individualized. Our goal always remains to return that person to the community as quickly as possible."

It is estimated that 10 percent of the work force in America has a problem with alcohol. While the financial cost of job-related alcoholism (both lost employment and reduced productivity) is estimated at $71 billion annually, the cost in human lives is also enormous.

"People abuse drugs and alcohol for a variety of reasons," warns Dr. Henschen. "You can only stop relying on them when you discover better ways to satisfy your needs."

If the holidays leave you feeling depressed, or you recognize a need for help in dealing with substance or alcohol abuse problem, Resurrection Hospital's Outpatient Counseling Center offers intervention, referral, and help.

The center is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and from 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Call (312) 792-5176 for adult, adolescent, and child counseling services, also for information on inpatient and outpatient alcohol and drug abuse counseling programs.

Dietary resolutions require behavior changes

Behavioral changes that last a lifetime are key to keeping a New Year's resolve to eat healthy, says a dietician at Loyola University Medical Center.

"Dieters must establish a certain pattern of eating for permanent lifestyle change," said Patty Morse, who counsels patients at Loyola's Mulcahy Outpatient Center. "Weight-loss maintenance means the rest of your life, not just this year."

"A diet program that does not include real food and involve the dieter in all phases of decision-making, such as food selection and preparation, fails to cultivate eating habits that can be carried over once the weight-loss goal is met," she explained.

"The first step to dieting successfully is going through the contemplation stage," Morse said. Making a list of advantages and disadvantages will help a person decide if it is the proper time to diet.

"There is a right time for everything," she said.

When the benefits of dieting outweigh the sacrifices, a person will be motivated and committed to dieting, she said. Dieters need to set realistic goals for themselves so as not to be discouraged.

"Those goals need to be long-term for a healthy lifestyle," Morse said. "Fitting into an outfit as a goal may be an advantage, but that's a short-term objective. People need to establish goals that will carry them further."

Successful dieting means making lifestyle changes that reinforce the decision to diet.

"Make rules for yourself to eat only at the table and not in front of the televisions. Rid the house of 'danger' foods," Morse commented.

"Look at how you're eating now. A painless way to change your habits is to make the smallest number of changes that will result in the greatest differences," the dietician said.

Simple changes might include using non-fat cooking spray in stead of butter, margarine or oil and switching to low-fat or "light" products that have reduced fat, she explained.

"Additionally, figure out ways to turn down offers of food politely. For example, say, 'Maybe a little later,' or 'I'm not hungry right now.'"

"Changes do not need to be dramatic. What is important is that a person sticks with them," she said.

A log book or journal is a good way for dieters to keep track of their eating habits, Morse said.

"A log book makes you continually aware of what you are doing. By writing down what foods you eat, when you eat, and what you feel when you're eating, you become aware of situations that prompt eating," she explained.

A log book will help dieters "see any gradual drifting away from the diet before it becomes full-blown, thereby, helping people get back to where they were before."

In addition, "The journal serves as a way of letting people feel they have control of what they eat. If a person decides to eat a piece of pie, he or she writes down the serving size in the log before having that dessert."

"Dieters need to accept that they want to eat something and know they can control how much they eat," she explained.

When people "mess up" on their diet, "they should say, 'It's time to get back to work.' People should not be paralyzed by guilt but allow themselves the chance to start over," Morse said.

Focusing on behavioral changes rather than the momentary lapse in diet will help people get back on track, she said.

Dieters should be sure to reward themselves for reaching and maintaining their goals, she added.

"By rewarding oneself for positive behavioral changes, a dieter can hang in for the long run. Just be sure the reward is a non-food one," Morse admonished.

There's no place like home

Resurrection retirement community assisted living residents, Mary Tarabilda and Msgr. Donald Carroll, enjoy newly completed surroundings. "Assisted living" now offers an additional option for retirement community residents desiring independence, yet needing some help in day-to-day activities.

When Resurrection Retirement Community resident Mary Tarabilda moved back to her apartment this fall after recovering from an extended illness, she had no idea how much she had missed her "home."

Despite wanting to recapture her independent lifestyle, Tarabilda recognized her need for additional living assistance with day-to-day activities. And thanks to the retirement community's "assisted living" option, she and others facing similar situations are able to return "home" and continue to enjoy some of their independent lifestyle routines.

"I always considered the retirement community as my home," the former Elmhurst resident said. "I never thought I could have an apartment again after my illness but I heard about the 'assisted living' option now available and I made my reservations!"

The 37 special assisted living accommodations are located on the first floor of the retirement community's newly completed 134,000 square-foot, six-story addition.

The one-room apartments are equipped with full bath and shower facilities, air conditioning and heating, window treatments, wall-to-wall carpeting, smoke alarms and more.

"At times I do reminisce about my former apartment, but for this time in my life the assisted living accommodations are the perfect setup for me," she noted. "I'm still active with my arts and crafts group, do lots of walking, practice my physical therapy exercises, and of course, I keep in touch with my friends. I believe there's no place like home for me!"

"Mary Tarabilda agrees that her new residence suits her living needs and encourages others to recognize the benefits and many amenities available with the assisted living option."

Follow the yellow brick road to Centre East Land of Oz

One of the most beloved stories ever told will come to life on the stage of Centre East in Skokie as the Prince Street Players from Detroit present "The Wizard of Oz."

The show, part of Centre East's family theatre series, will be Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 20 and 21 at 12:30 and 3:30 p.m. both days.

The familiar story is of Dorothy, helped by the Tin Woodsman, the Scarecrow, and the cowardly Lion, and how they succeed against the deliciously nasty plots conjured up by the Wicked Witch of the West. The plot is enhanced by the talented cast of the Prince Street Players' singers, dancers, actors and musicians. The Prince Street Players have developed an original musical adaptation of L. Frank Baum's American classic, complete with imaginatively designed sets, costumes and props.

The Prince Street Players are a part of the Detroit Institute of Arts Youtheatre program. They have performed nationally to critical acclaim for presenting children's shows that also appeal to adults.

Tickets for "The Wizard of Oz" are $7 and $5 and are on sale at the box office, 7701 N. Lincoln Ave., in Skokie.

Tickets may also be ordered by calling the box office at (708) 673-6300 or TicketMaster at (312) 902-1500.

Visa, Mastercard and American Express are accepted and group rates are available.

The June "Pops" concert will include music of favorite Broadway musicals, such as "Les Miserables," "Cats," "Big River," and "Phantom of the Opera."

TNT debuted in October of 1988 with the first cable-exclusive telecast of "Gone With the Wind." TNT schedules as many as 55 classic feature films a week, drawn from their 3,301 MGM, RKO, and pre-1950 Warner Brother film libraries.

Additionally, TNT features original productions, sports, children's shows and dramatic series.

The winter months will bring two new exclusive movies from TNT.

"Treasure Island," starring Charlton Heston, will premiere on Jan. 22 and "Montana," starring Richard Crenna, will premiere on Feb. 19.

Viewers will witness classic motion pictures every evening during prime time, and kids will be entertained seven days a week by Fraggle Rock, The Popeye Hour, and Bugs Bunny and Pals.

Oak Mill owner...

The actual distribution of ownership of shares in the mall is in litigation.

Litigants claiming the proceeds include Schraiber's wife, Betty, an investors group calling themselves the Oak Mill Shopping Center Association, and the trustee named by U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Alexander Knopfner.

The mall, which is not fully leased, currently has about 35 tenants and is anchored on either side by Avondale Federal Savings and Jewel/Osco both of which have long-term leases.

Despite the low occupancy, the mall is plagued with parking problems. As recently as April, 1989, Niles had contacted Schraiber insisting the total lot be paved, citing poor repair and lack of parking facilities. The village suspended its pressure upon learning of Schraiber's bankruptcy.

The auction will bring yet another owner to the often-controversial property.

Development of Oak Mill as it is currently configured began in 1975 when the village Zoning and Plan Commission approved plans for Candlelight Shopping Center, located at the southwest corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Oakton Street. Prior to that, in October of 1966, a petition by applicant Franklin Park Community Hospital to build a proposed seven-story Niles Community Hospital at the site was withdrawn.

The petitioner cited the recommendations of the Hospital Planning Council of Metropolitan Chicago which noted that the area was adequately served by Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge and proposed expansion of existing facilities at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, Skokie Valley Hospital (now Rush North Shore Medical Center) and Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

In November, 1968, Harold A. Feiberger asked the commission to rezone the property from B1 Retail Business District to R2 Single Family Residence and B2 Business Service District.

for $7,500 month in lost income. Malcolm Silverman, owner of Bubbles, which reportedly began catering to a gay clientele in June, 1985, filed the civil rights action that August, claiming police officers' zealous liquor enforcement efforts caused him to lose business. According to Troy, the lease for Bubbles was not renewed after April 1985, a year in advance of its expiration. The bar closed in February, 1986.

In the event the jury award stands, Troy expressed the viewpoint that any judgment would be awarded to Silverman's creditors. According to Troy, Silverman filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy during the summer of 1985. Troy reported Judge Hart expressed the viewpoint any monetary award should go to creditors.

John D. Albaugh

Pvt. John D. Albaugh has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He is the son of Vickie R. and Julius H. Albaugh of Skokie. The private is a 1989 graduate of Niles North High School, Skokie.

Enrollment up...

Attorney Feiberger, representing a trust, requested the change in order to allow construction of a family-operated, 750-seat Candlelight Playhouse Theater enterprise and for a 22-unit single family dwelling development, to be known as Olympia Estates. The 1971 death of the property owner ended these plans.

In August, 1971, Petitioners Sal Balsano, Gilbert Pearson and Edwin Beaulieu requested a R2 PUD re-zoning in order to build 90 condominium units on the 4.5 acre parcel on the western edge, where Feiberger had proposed single family homes.

Plans for the homes had been scrapped when it was determined a low-density residential development on the site would not be profitable.

Beaulieu indicated this 7900 Oriole St. condo project would be a buffer between residences on Oriole Street and adjacent discounter Steinberg Baum.

Residents from Niles and Park Ridge joined forces and obtained nearly 1,000 signatures opposing the project, based on traffic, school overcrowding and continuity considerations. The petition was turned down Sept. 28.

Beaulieu had originally proposed expanding the Steinberg-Baum building on the south but village officials indicated their preference for residential development of the parcel. In 1972, the year Steinberg-Baum went out of business, the three developers, who now had an option to purchase the 2.5 acre Candlelight property, reverted to a commercial plan, proposing what would become the current Oak Mill property to be built at a cost of $7 million. Original proposals were for a five-story professional building.

Development did not proceed until 1975, when Beaulieu et al. submitted plans for the Candlelight Court Project to be situated on 100,000 square feet of land, including that formerly owned by Steinberg-Baum. Ownership has changed hands several times since. The name change also followed.

present their original Medicaid card, and present two forms of identification (one being a picture I.D.) The first month's service will have to be paid in advance, and, in addition, Medicaid discount customers will have to verify their Medicaid status every six months by mailing Cablevision a copy of their current card.

This program is only applicable to residents of Cablevision of Chicago's franchised areas, and for family service only.

"The Medicaid discount was established so that truly needy residents of our communities, who would not ordinarily be able to afford our standard rates, could still benefit from access to the world of information and entertainment cable television provides," said Irene McPhail, Cablevision General Manager.

Thompson's Foods landscape update

Canterbury Landscape Design, Niles, recently completed a landscape update at Thompson's Foods in Park Ridge. The landscape firm utilized the existing planting scheme at Thompson's Foods, 901 W. Canterbury Landscape Design is a member of the Niles Chamber of Commerce.

led to the creation of the Kirk Lane Homeowners Association. Smigiel received only a token payment for his efforts.

Shortly after the Kirk Lane builder's debacle, the local magistrate in Niles, Joseph Jozwiak, was retiring. Smigiel was offered the post and became Niles police magistrate.

In the 1960s, when Nick Blase became village president, the magistrate's posts were being eliminated in Illinois. Blase led the way down to Springfield, and additional circuit court judgeships were created. Smigiel received one of them. Subsequently, he became the head of the Third District Circuit Court.

In the early 1960s Smigiel joined with several local businessmen creating the Bank of Niles (now the First National Bank of Niles). It was Niles first post-war World War II bank. Smigiel became its first president and remained there for two years before becoming a full-time judge.

During his tenure at the bank, Smigiel's first wife was killed in a Northwest Airlines crash. The couple were returning to Niles from Florida after a brief vacation. They decided to fly home in separate planes. His wife was on the ill-fated plane. The ride home was Tony's first airlift.

Tony was president of Niles Chamber of Commerce and was active in the Lions Club. He was instrumental in lowering speed limits on Harlem Avenue where he lived. His efforts in the Chamber resurrected a moribund organization which limped along through its earlier years.

Smigiel was a warm pleasant man who played it down the middle and never made an enemy.

He was a graduate of Kent College law school. And he used to remind us his first job was a copy boy at Chicago Daily News.

At Skaja's Funeral Home Tuesday morning Police and Fire commissioner Sam Bruno said "something should be named for Tony."

He was a nice man, pleasant, gentle, soft-spoken and above the fray. He made important contributions to Niles. He was a man to be remembered.

$12,083,230 billed in 1988. Park Ridge district 64, which includes the western section of Niles, is asking for $17,301,198, a 20.3 percent jump over the previous year's billing of $14,376,116.

crease over the $3,303,566 billed in 1988.

Other Cook County suburban elementary districts are asking for considerably more funds than in the 1988 assessment, with south suburban Sauk Village District 168 signing in with a 1989 request for $2,109,446, a 52.8 percent jump over 1988's $1,380,815.

Northbrook district 30 is asking for $2,682,767, a 35.8 percent increase over 1988's $1,974,694. Schaumburg's district 54 is also in the higher brackets, with its $85,113,241 signifying a 45.8 percent rise over the $57,007,482 billed in 1988.

It is asking $18,480,924, an amount up 21.1 percent over last year's $15,259,928.

insurance cards or similar written verification of coverage.

Offenders face both fines and vehicle license suspensions.

Misconceptions about the law is evident with police departments as well as the public. Most departments surveyed are aware of the law but at least one officer was not aware of the provisions mandating proof of insurance.

One officer surveyed indicated that neither he nor his wife had their insurance cards in the glove compartments of their autos. Upon rereading guidelines from the state, the officer advised his wife where to locate the cards and to keep it in the car thereafter.

"The biggest thing people have to understand is that it's not the officer's obligation to verify that the vehicle has insurance," advised Niles Lt. Vito LoVerde.

LoVerde, who authored enforcement guidelines for his department, indicated that, while the driving public may know that they must carry certain minimum levels of insurance, many motor vehicle operators may be unaware that the law stipulates that, upon request of any police officer, the operator must produce evidence of insurance for that vehicle.

LoVerde said that insurers are issuing cards to be carried in vehicles as well as individual cards for wallets. Information includes the name of the insurer, policy number, effective dates, as well as specific descriptions and serial numbers of the vehicles covered.

Acceptable proof could also consist of a photocopy of the declarations page of the policy (generally the first or second page), certificate of insurance, receipt for premium payment (if it includes the stipulated information) or, in the case of a leased car, a copy of the rental agreement which includes insurance information, according to the lieutenant.

insurance, according to the statute, is a violation," LoVerde said.

"The officer is to assume the motorist doesn't have it and he can be charged with not having insurance." For example, a Des Plaines resident arrested in Niles for a traffic offense could not ask the Niles officer to follow him home in order to produce his insurance card.

"We will not do that," LoVerde asserted, indicating this unnecessary courtesy would tie up an officer's time.

"It (the vehicle insurance card) emulates the requirement of the driver's license," LoVerde explained, noting that motorists must also carry with them their operator's license at all times.

"We have no interest or mechanism of contacting insurance companies (to notify them or verify coverage)," he added.

Niles officers have begun to routinely ask traffic violators to produce both their driver's license and vehicle insurance identification card.

One local agency which had not issued guidelines to its officers contacted LoVerde Jan. 2 to ask how Niles was handling the new law, which went into effect Jan. 1. LoVerde indicated that some departments felt the law was somewhat confusing.

"It's the law, and that's what we're here to enforce," said a Des Plaines officer, who noted that a ticket had already been issued to a motorist in the early morning hours of Jan. 1.

The spokesman was unsure whether the vehicle lacked insurance or if the driver did not have proof that the vehicle was insured.

"It's going to be a headache for everybody," predicted a Skokie police officer who asked not to be identified. The officer added that the Skokie department issued guidelines "with no grace period" for its officers to begin enforcing the law immediately.

"There's a lot of questions,"

Kids can sculpt at Kohl Museum
Children visiting the Kohl Children's Museum can make their own sculpture from self-hardening clay on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 19-20, at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. and at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 21.

Children will be able to sculpt any shape they can think of, including simple "pinch" pots. Household objects like forks, cookie cutters, and clothespins will be on hand to make repeat patterns and indentations on the sculpture.

"Sculpting introduces children to a new art medium and allows them to enjoy an immediate sense of accomplishment," said Sue Sturtevant, museum director.

"It involves manual dexterity, and with their hands so involved, the finished product becomes an extension of themselves and creates a sense of ownership."

Sturtevant noted, "Sculpting is an open-ended activity, meaning that whatever the children create won't be judged. For all its educational qualities, this activity is fun."

The Kohl Children's Museum is located at 165 Green Bay Rd., Wilmette. Hours are Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; Sunday, noon-4 p.m. Admission is $2.50; children under two years of age are free.

the Skokie officer indicated.

A Park Ridge officer indicated that his department's policy was to allow the officer discretion as to whether to ask a motorist involved in a traffic mishap or parking violation to prove that a vehicle is insured.

Advised of the proof provisions of the law, he referred the caller to his superior.

Deputy Chief Robert Colangelo of Park Ridge said, "Anytime a motorist is involved in a traffic accident or violates a law, they will have to show proof of insurance along with their driver's license."

Colangelo asserted, "We will enforce it; they (officers) are told to enforce it," but he allowed that an individual police officer might decide not to ticket an offending motorist in the same way a reprieve might be granted for a minor violation.

According to the law, a licenseholder who does not have proof of insurance will have to post his or her license as well as $1,000 bond prior to a court appearance at the time of the arrest.

The law calls for a first-time violation fine of $500 to $1,000, plus a two month suspension of an auto's registration. A driver who operates a car with a suspended license is subject to a $1,000 to $2,000 fine, plus the auto's plates are suspended an additional four months.

A third law penalizes anyone involved in the use of fictitious proof of insurance, a Class A misdemeanor with penalties including fines, suspensions, and prison terms of up to 364 days.

According to LoVerde, the law will expire Dec. 31, 1993, unless it is extended by the General Assembly, which may decide to amend its provisions.

Minimal coverage required is $20,000 liability for injury or death to an individual, $40,000 for injuries or death to two or more persons, and $15,000 damage to the property of another.
