Spring safety tips from Commonwealth Edison

March is commonly known as the month of spring, a time following the icy cold of winter and the onset of warm weather. March is also a time when the winds can be strong and the sun can be bright, which can lead to increased kite flying. Kite flying can be a fun pastime, but it is important to remember that power lines can be a danger if not handled properly.

Spring safety tips from Commonwealth Edison:

- Use caution when kite flying: Kite flying can be a fun activity, but it's important to remember that power lines can be a danger if not handled properly. When flying a kite, always stay at least 100 feet away from power lines to avoid any potential danger.
- Be aware of wind conditions: Strong winds can cause kites to become airborne, increasing the risk of contact with power lines. If the wind is too strong, it's best to avoid kite flying altogether.
- Keep power lines in mind: Power lines are often found in open areas where you can avoid flying kites. To avoid such a hazard, it is important to keep power lines in mind when planning your kite flight.
- Follow some basic safety guidelines: Following some basic safety guidelines can help prevent accidents when flying kites. These guidelines include staying at least 100 feet away from power lines, avoiding strong winds, and being aware of your surroundings.

By following these tips, you can ensure a safe and enjoyable kite flying experience while avoiding any potential hazards associated with power lines.

Jewel begins "Red Barrel" food donation program

In her capacity as new manager of Jewel Food Stores at 7536 N. Western Ave., Chicago, Kimberly O'Shea has joined the Chicago Food Depository and Sean Musial, Service Manager of the Jewel Food Store at 7536 N. Western Ave., Chicago, to announce the launch of a new program designed to help neighborhood food retailers in the Chicago area.

The program, known as the "Red Barrel Program," is designed to help retailers by providing a means for them to donate perishable food items at the end of their shelf life. The program will allow retailers to donate food items that are not suitable for sale, thus helping to prevent waste and promote food security.

The "Red Barrel Program" will involve retailers collecting food items that are no longer suitable for sale and donating them to the Chicago Food Depository, where they will be distributed to local food pantries and other organizations that help feed hungry people.

Kimberly O'Shea, new manager of Jewel Food Stores at 7536 N. Western Ave., Chicago, said, "We are excited to be able to offer this program to our customers and help support local food pantries. The program is a win-win for everyone involved, as it helps to prevent waste and provide food to those in need."

Sean Musial, Service Manager of the Jewel Food Store at 7536 N. Western Ave., Chicago, added, "This program is a great way to give back to the community. We are grateful for the support of the Chicago Food Depository and look forward to working with them to make this program a success."

The "Red Barrel Program" is one of several initiatives that Jewel Food Stores has launched in recent years to support local communities. The company is committed to giving back to the communities it serves and is always looking for new ways to help those in need.

For more information about the "Red Barrel Program" or other Jewel Food Stores initiatives, please visit jewelfoodstores.com.
