

Niles traffic accident shows need to carry identification

by Nancy Keraminas

Visitors to the Niles Police Department's May 20 Open House were given a first-hand glimpse of the more tragic aspects of police work.

"We have a problem that you can maybe help us with," explained Officer James Zimmerman as he displayed a composite drawing of a teenage traffic victim. The blue-eyed, brown-haired girl was struck by an eastbound Dempster Street motorist shortly after 9 p.m. Saturday and remained unidentified for nearly 22 hours because she was not carrying any emergency information. Continued on Page 34

Like the three-pronged implement it's named for, Niles Trident Center will not only serve three groups, it will have one boss handling its duties. The new agent will not have an advisory board for the time being, however.

Niles has merged its senior and family and youth services departments into one Department. Continued on Page 34

Niles OKs surcharge for 9-1-1 service

by Sheilya Hackett

Village Manager Abe Selman presented the benefits of an enhanced 9-1-1 emergency phone system to the monthly meeting of the Niles Village Board of Trustees May 22 and gained approval of a $1 surcharge, per line, effective June 1.

The amount would defray the cost of construction and installation. With the surcharge in effect, the village could expect service by April, 1992.

Trustee Louella Preston noted the village had sought the service for two years but was prohibited until recently because Illinois Bell would not allow the housing of both basic 9-1-1, which Skokie has, and enhanced 9-1-1, which Niles wants, in one exchange.

Selman said Niles would try to join with Morton Grove, Lincolnwood and Glenview in collective investigation of the various types of equipment available. The village must buy its own equipment since Illinois Bell Telephone and Centel are only responsible for installation and maintenance.

The manager underscored the advantages of the enhanced system which flashes a caller's name, address and pertinent data on a screen when he requests an ambulance or help from the police or fire departments. The data on a screen will be available to both departments. Continued on Page 34

"He was a great guy backstage. He treated us very nicely."

Niles police captain Bill Terpinas was reminiscing about the times he spent with Sammy Davis, Jr. when the entertainer was performing at the Mill Run theatre in the Golf Mill Shopping Center back in the 70's.

Terpinas was working at the theatre watching the performer's private dressing room. He said Sammy was just a good guy, never difficult or hokey like many others who performed at the theatre.

Captain Terpinas, never one to pull his punches, said entertainers Tom Jones and Engelbert Humperdink were prima donnas who had little rapport with the policemen. He said they'd rush from the theatre into their limousines and be off while their fans were left behind.

We recalled when Davis' limousine was stopped by Niles police. Terpinas told us it was Officer George Balek who had the driver stop the car for speeding. Sammy was in the back seat and was heading north to Villa Venice on north Milwaukee Avenue where Allgauer's restaurant and hotel are now located just south of Wheeling. Dean Martin, Frank Sinatra and Davis were at the club for a three-night stand. It was alleged the owner of the club had some financial

Controversy surrounds Nelson's park job status

Some Niles Park District administration and board members are not agreeing with other park sources and friends of Superintendent of Recreation Deborah Nelson that she is no longer serving in that capacity.

An employee answering Nelson's office phone told a caller, "Debbie Nelson is no longer an employee of the Niles Park District." Another employee earlier said Nelson was not in and was not expected.

However, two board members, Elaine Heinen and Vice President Bud Skaja said on May 22, to their knowledge, Nelson was still on the payroll. They referred additional information requests to new Park Director Thomas Lippert.

Commissioner Jim Pierski said, "I don't know all the circumstances but I do know a change was wanted by Director Tom Lippert. A replacement for the superintendent of recreation is being sought." Pierski said, describing Nelson's role as being a "high-profile" staff member.

The call to Nelson was precipitated by an anonymous caller to The Bugle who said Nelson, a 17-year veteran, had been let go May 17. The caller did not offer any additional information. Nelson was in attendance at the

The Niles Park District Board of Commissioners held their annual officer elections May 15, at the regular board meeting. The board elected Walter M. Bousse as Board President and Bernard S. Skaja as vice president for fiscal year 1990-'91. Newly elected President Bousse expressed his sincere gratitude on behalf of the board and staff to former President Elaine E. Gemini's 'biggest cheerleader' Principal Donald Huebner retires

The youthful man spiking a volleyball at the team of seventh graders does not look like someone who's close to retirement. The energetic volleyball player is the same man who was supervising departing school buses an hour earlier and before that, doing one of the myriad of tasks that keeps Gemini Junior High School purring.

Donald Huebner, Gemini's principal for the past 19 years, says, "it's better to leave while you're still in the saddle rather than to be shot off or fall off." Huebner's last school bell will ring June 12, when the 60-year-old educator will have completed 21 years with East Maine School District 63.

His colleagues know him as an enthusiastic leader. Gemini language art teacher Bill Gibson says the principal goes to every extracurricular activity at the school and describes Huebner as the school's "biggest cheerleader... he enjoys being with the kids."

Gibson says Huebner plays center on the faculty basketball team and only Huebner's two-handed set shot gives a hint of when he learned the game.

overall fairness, saying "He doesn't show favorites." Busiel also notes his fondness for faculty get-togethers. Huebner and his wife Doris host an annual party for his staff in their Glenview home. "He's like a leader of a flock," Gibson interjects, "he sermonizes occasionally but he's willing to listen."

The pastoral inclination may come from Huebner's own childhood roots. He was born in Argentina, the son of Lutheran missionaries. The family returned to the U.S. when young Donald was eleven, just before Pearl Harbor was attacked. His father decided to accept his own parish stateside so his children could be educated here.

Huebner spoke only German and Spanish when he began his American education in rural Wisconsin. "I felt so isolated at first," he relates, telling how he walked to elementary classes in a one-room school with an outdoor privy. There were 28 stu-

ents at his school. As was the custom for a child of a Lutheran minister, he was sent away to Concordia College for prep school and college. Away from his parents, two brothers and three sisters, Huebner made a crucial career choice, departing from a longstanding tradition of male family members joining the clergy and entering what he terms "the ministry

His second assignment, two years later, allowed him to develop the repertoire of skills he uses so ably at Gemini. The young educator faced the ambitious task of literally building his own student body and school.

"I went to Bethany Church in northeast Chicago to start a school from scratch," Huebner says. "It took PR to sell the congregation on the school, a lot of work to develop curriculum and equip a science room, art center

Huebner was both principal and teacher at the Bethany school for seven years before moving on to a Glenview junior high school, where he taught language arts and social studies for seven years.

"I was getting restless and I wanted to get into administration," Huebner said, describing his almost meteoric path to becoming Gemini's principal. He first was hired by District 63 in 1969, as an assistant principal at what was then called East Maine Junior High School. He became principal at Mark Twain Elementary School shortly thereafter and returned to the junior high in 1971 as principal.

Ironically, his father showed no interest in his maverick son's secular career until just recently. Now 94 and nearly blind, Rev. Huebner queried his son's lay responsibilities during a family car outing. "It was just delightful," the younger Huebner smiles, recalling the drive through the Colorado mountains. "Dad asked, 'How do you keep yourself busy?'"

Finding something to do at Gemini has never been a problem for Huebner, who seems to find the myriad of administrative tasks a labor of love. In addition, he has been a member of the Lutheran church school in Lake-

Judge agrees to hear Pullen suit

by Sheilya Hackett

Circuit Court Judge Francis Barth on May 15 agreed to hear a suit by legislator Penny Pullen (R-55th) requesting Pullen be named the victor in the March 20 primary election on the basis of a discovery recount of nearly half the district precincts.

Barth denied two motions to dismiss the suit by attorneys for Pullen's opponent in the primary, Des Plaines paralegal Rosemary Mulligan, on the grounds the motions were not substantive. He set the trial for the week of June 12-15, with a prior status hearing June 5.

Clarification

In a story in The Bugle on Thursday, May 15, it was reported that Elaine Heinen relinquished her post as president of the Niles Park Board and was honored for her services by the board with a plaque and flowers. While Heinen stepped down from her post as president, she still remains on the Niles Park Board as a commissioner.

In a surprise move, both the most recently appointed trustee of the Niles Library board and senior trustee resigned at last week's meeting following the naming of a new administrator.

Margaret Rajski, board president and 11-year-board member, said her resignation was due to personal commitments. Richard Weaver, a Niles veterinarian recently appointed to the board, is moving from the district to obtain a job in Milwaukee. Appointed as new board president is Carol Levey. Ted Przybylo was named to Levey's former job as secretary.

Succeeding former administrator D.J. McKenzie will be Dan Macken, the library's chief of operations since 1984 and acting administrators. He will earn $45,000 a year.

McKenzie was dismissed in November due to alleged tensions between him and employees. He was hired in 1983.

Two other trustees also resigned during the library's fiscal year. Walter Chmielowski left due to "personal reasons" and Charlene Wagner moved from the district along with her husband, Frank, former village clerk.

Macken being named to the position was not a surprise considering specifications requiring the administrator to have a degree in library science were charged so Macken could apply for the position. He has a degree in business. Continued on Page 35

by Nancy Keraminas

An attorney and traffic engineer representing Jaylon, Inc. developer of Lonore Plaza shopping center at Dempster and Harlem Avenues has requested a rescission of the Morton Grove ordinance banning left turns into and out of the shopping center.

Brian W. Blaesser, of the law firm Rudnick and Wolfe and Vitas Maciukevicius of Metra Transportation Group appeared before the village board May 14. "We're having real trouble leasing up because of these left turn restrictions," Blaesser said of the center, which is approximately 40 percent leased. "We believe this new study supports the ability to make left turns."

Maciukevicius also referred to a traffic study undertaken by his firm and said he himself had counted traffic on both roadways. He noted many motorists disregard the prohibitions without hazard, adding "One of our finest turned left out of that shopping center. It can be done. Continued on Page 35

HYDROPLANING

Every year, spring brings rain showers, slippery road surfaces and the danger of skidding or hydroplaning. During showers, oil and grease form a slick film on the road surface, which is not washed away until after 20 or 30 minutes of hard rain. Hydroplaning occurs when tires lose contact with the road surface and actually ride on top of a thin film of water like a set of water skis. Partial hydroplaning begins at 35 mph and increases with speed up to about 55 mph when tires may be completely up on water causing difficulty with braking and handling curves. If a vehicle begins hydroplaning, control can be regained by removing the foot from the accelerator and letting the vehicle slow down. Remember, if a skid occurs, let up on the accelerator and steer in the direction the front of the car should proceed. Stay calm and maintain control of the vehicle.

Officers recognized for drug education work

On Monday, May 14 I attended a program sponsored by the Illinois Network to Organize the Understanding of Community Health, also known as "In Touch". This program was set up to recognize the contributions of community groups, hospitals, school districts, governmental bodies, and police departments for their efforts in drug prevention.

In our case Sgt. John Fryksdale, Sgt. Dennis McEnerney, Sgt. Dean Strzelecki, and Sgt. Roger Wilson were being recognized for their efforts on behalf of the Niles Police Department in their drug prevention programs at the local schools. John, Dennis, Dean and Roger worked very hard at making the program a success and received great cooperation from the schools, teachers, administrators and students.

This program began back in August 1989 with a drug school at St. Louis Police Department, development of a curriculum to fit the needs of the schools in our area, and implementation in November. For the last seven months these four officers have been in and out of 10 grammar and junior high schools, talking to all of the students K-8, 10 pre-schools, and also PTA and other parent meetings talking about the problems of substance abuse and associated issues. During this seven month period they taught over 3,000 students subjects ranging from drug and alcohol abuse, self esteem, peer pressure, officer friendly, and highlighting the concept "you are somebody".

The program seems to have been well received, the children seemed to enjoy the officers presence, and the response from teachers, administrators and parents has so far been very positive. Follow up visits to the schools by the officers are anticipated to keep in touch with the kids they taught and to continue the friendships they made. Is there more to do?

Last September President Bush announced his war on drugs and pledged federal money and manpower to combat the nations growing drug problem. Since then we have read of numerous drug seizures in the U.S. and South America, numerous arrests of drug kingpins, and important drug trials. Last week in one edition of the Trib there were articles dealing with alleged long time drug abuse of the Mayor of the capital of the U.S., a federal judge declaring a mis-trial on a large cocaine seizure because of a juror's lack of understanding about the state's conspiracy case, a man on trial for murdering two drug case witnesses and most distressingly a Senate Judiciary study estimating the number of cocaine addicts in the U.S. at 2.2 million, 1 out of every 10 people and the state of Illinois ranked 4th among the states in the number of cocaine addicts!

FBI Director William Sessions commented that drugs are an important factor behind crime but there is no precise gauge to measure the link between drugs and crime. The National Institute of Justice published a survey indicating that between October and December 1988 between 54% and 88% of the men arrested in the largest cities in the U.S. for violent and felonious crimes tested positive for drugs. Chicago's figure was 78%. Nationwide the number of drug arrests has been rising each year since 1984 from 708,000 to 1.1 million in 1988. The FBI's crime clock which tracks the crime rate in the U.S. indicates that there is one violent crime committed every 22 seconds and a property crime every 3 seconds in the U.S. in 1988.

Linda Yu, Channel 7 News, spoke at the "In Touch" program and commented on her experience as a newscaster over the years reporting on crimes linked to drug use and how she had recently spoke to a children's physician about the anticipated problems that could be expected from the large number of cocaine addicted babies that are being born every year. Ms. Yu expressed gratitude to all and was very happy to see the varied agencies, schools, community groups, hospitals, government and police that were putting forth an effort to combat the drug problem.

Next school year Sgt. Strzelecki, Sgt. Fryksdale, Sgt. McEnerney, and Sgt. Wilson will begin working the schools preaching the message of prevention, self esteem, etc. to the school kids, the schools will continue their drug education efforts and the other community and governmental agencies will also again be committing energies towards a successful culmination to this problem. Parental effort is also needed since the parent is the first in most cases to recognize a problem and can be instrumental in an early cure to a problem.

Last week two Chicago police officers were murdered answering a domestic disturbance on the north side by a 22-year-old assailant who was later described by his grandmother as having a history of drug problems. This tragedy struck close by and could have just as easily happened here, or in Des Plaines or Park Ridge, and is vivid testimony to what society is facing. The drug problem is a problem that concerns us all and can impact us all sooner or later if it is not continued to be addressed vigorously.

City of Hope 'Tag Days' set for May-June

Local City of Hope volunteers will be collecting donations in their neighborhoods and at busy intersections in several Chicago-land communities in May and June as part of City of Hope's annual "Tag Days."

Parkside Services sponsor aging presentations

Older Adult Services, a division of Parkside Senior Services, a member of Lutheran General Health Care System, is sponsoring two presentations dealing with aging and the process of aging.

"What to Expect of Aging" will address the physiological and psychological changes that can be expected as part of the aging process. Examine how losses, behavioral changes and illness can affect family relationships.

"What to Expect of Aging" will be presented by Thelma Wagner, A.C.S.W., geriatric specialist, Older Adult Services. Thelma has provided individual counseling to older adults and family members for the past 15 years. She also conducts family education series and offers sessions on memory loss, coping with grief and caregiver stress.

The aging presentation will be held at the Parkside Adult Day Health Services Center on Tuesday, May 29 at 7 p.m. at the Thunderbird Officer, 832 E. Rand Road, Suites 20 and 21, Mt. Prospect.

"Living with Alzheimer's" will look at Alzheimer's disease and related disorders from a non-medical perspective. The information offered will provide strategies and techniques for "living with memory loss" if you are watching it happen to someone close to you. Although there is no known cure for the disease at the present time...there are ways to make life more livable for all affected by it.

The Alzheimer's presentation will be held at Parkside Adult Day Health Services Center on Thursday, May 31 at 7 p.m. at 315 Waukegan Road, Northfield. Refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. To register or for more information about either presentation, please call Older Adult Services at (708) 696-7770.

Mental illness sufferers can be treated

It's a fact; mental illness can strike anyone at any time. The mentally ill are usually of normal intelligence but have difficulty performing at a normal level because of their illness. Persons suffering from mental illness have a substantial problem dealing with the ordinary demands of everyday life.

Mental illness encompasses a broad range of different disorders which are caused by a social, psychological, genetic, physical, chemical or biological disturbance. Disorders range from schizophrenia or manic depression to alcohol or substance abuse, to eating disorders or phobias.

There is no cure for mental illness at this time. Research dollars have been badly neglected. In 1989, only $18 was spent per patient for schizophrenia and $11 for depression. When compared to research dollars spent per patient for heart disease ($155) or cancer ($400), the figures are inadequate. Yet the mentally ill fill more hospital beds per year than those suffering from heart disease, cancer and lung disease combined. The cost to society, per year, is estimated at $50 billion in lost productivity, social services and medical expenses.

One in four Americans will suffer from some form of mental illness in their lifetime. Studies have shown that if treated, 80-90 percent will improve and lead more productive and self-sufficient lives.

If you, a member of your family, or a friend is in need of mental health counseling services, contact the Maine Center for Mental Health at (708) 696-1570.

Swedish Covenant blood service

The transfusion service of Swedish Covenant Hospital, 5145 N. California, has been granted renewal of accreditation by the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB), according to Dr. James B. McCormick, hospital president.

Accreditation follows an intensive on-site inspection by specially trained representatives of the association and establishes that the level of medical, technical and administrative performance with the facility meets or exceeds the rigorous standards set by the AABB. By successfully meeting those requirements, Swedish Covenant Hospital can join more than 2,200 similar facilities across the United States and abroad that have earned the accreditation rating and recognition.

Dr. McCormick explained: "The AABB's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a blood bank or transfusion service to be accredited, but like many others, our facility has sought accreditation because it represents a level of professional and medical expertise that meets and exceeds government regulations. The primary goal of the program is to assist facilities like ours to achieve excellence, and thus provide higher quality blood, blood components and other services to patients."

Children's Museum plans June activities

The arrival of June is certainly something to jump about -- summer's here and school's out. The Kohl Children's Museum is going to make a jamboree out of it. Tuesday, May 29, through Sunday, June 3, join the "Jump into June Jamboree."

Kicking off this gala event on Tuesday, May 29, is "Jackstraws." Make your own version of pick-up-sticks to take home with straws donated by Clear Shield National Inc. of Wheeling. Wednesday, May 30, hear Amelia Bedelia stories by Peggy Parish and compilations by other authors then use your imagination to make-up new tales just because it's fun to "Joke and Jest."

"Jingle, Jangle" with a bang on Thursday, May 31, by making noisemakers to welcome in June -- only a day away. Have double the fun by using recyclables to compose the noise. Find out what sounds different containers make -- metal, plastic, cardboard or whatever else is at hand.

It's June! Jump for joy. Friday, June 1, try your feet at "Jumping Jacks." Learn how to do jumping jacks; jump to music; see how many jumping jacks you can do; or just plain jump. There's no halftier way to start off another glorious summer.

Now that you're healthy from jumping jacks, give your mind a workout at "Junior Jeopardy," Saturday and Sunday, June 2-3. Play our trivia game and win a prize. Questions will be about the Museum -- "What color is Waldo's hat?" or "What's your favorite exhibit?" Everyone's a winner at the Kohl Children's Museum "Junior Jeopardy."

All activities are at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday unless otherwise noted. The Kohl Children's Museum is located at 165 Green Bay Rd., Wilmette. The Centel Western Open announced today that Mark McCumber, Greg Norman, Seve Ballesteros, and Nick Faldo have committed to play in the upcoming Centel Western Open to be held June 7-10, 1990 at Butler National Golf Club in Oak Brook.

Defending champion, Mark McCumber will try to duplicate his 1983 and 1989 wins and become the sixth person in the history of the Western Open to win the title more than twice. If he is successful he will join the ranks of golfing greats, Willie Anderson, Walter Hagen, Ralph Guldahl, Billy Casper and Tom Watson. Greg Norman, one of the tournaments most popular entrants, returns again this year. Norman competed in the Centel Western Open five of the last seven years, finishing tied for second in 1987, and in sole possession of second in 1984. Williamsburg reminds Americans of their heritage

Two hundred years ago, this small Tidewater city nurtured the men and ideals that led the American colonies to declare their independence and create a new nation.

It was here that George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and George Mason reached political maturity. It was here that they and other Virginia leaders initiated the call of the Declaration of Independence. It was here that Mason's Declaration of Rights was approved.

Today, the colonial capital has been restored to its era of greatness. It appears much as it did when Patrick Henry thundered his defiance of King George III, and the Virginia burgesses voted their historic resolution for independence.

In 1926, John D. Rockefeller Jr., inspired by the foresight and enthusiasm of the Rev. W.A.R. Goodwin, then rector of Burton Parish Church, became interested in the preservation and restoration of 18th-century Williamsburg. Until his death in 1960, Mr. Rockefeller devoted his personal attention and resources to the development of Colonial Williamsburg.

The Historic Area encompasses 173 acres and, within this portion of the city or its immediate surroundings, are 88 original 18th- or early 19th-century houses, shops, taverns, public buildings and dependencies. Another 50 major buildings and scores of smaller structures have been rebuilt on original sites after extensive archaeological, architectural and documentary research. Approximately 90 acres of gardens and public greens provide an authentic setting for the restored 18th-century capital.

Exhibition buildings include the Governor's Palace, Capitol, Public Hospital, Raleigh and Wetherburn's taverns, Powder Magazine and Guardhouse, Public Gaol, Brush-Everard House, the Courthouse of 1770, the homes of American patriots Peyton Randolph and George Wythe, the James Anderson House and Forges, and Bassett Hall, the 18th-century residence that was the local home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. during the restoration of the colonial city.

In craft shops the blacksmith, bootmaker, gunsmith, printer, musical instrumentmaker, wig-maker, cooper and wheelwright work at their trades using the tools and methods used 200 years ago. Costumed historical interpreters, guardsmen, gaolers, craftsmen and character interpreters bring to life the restored cityscape.

available. The Patriot's Pass, which provides unlimited admission to all major exhibits (except Bassett Hall), is good for one year from the date of purchase.

The Royal Governor's Pass which provides admission to all of the exhibits in the Historic Area and includes the Governor's Palace, DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Gallery, and the Patriots Tour.

A Museum ticket especially for the DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Gallery, the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center and Bassett Hall is available and separate tickets are required for special activities such as concerts, carriage rides, escorted tours and other educational programs.

A short distance away via the Country Road is Carter's Grove plantation, called "the most beautiful house in America," and the Wolstenholme Towne archaeological site.

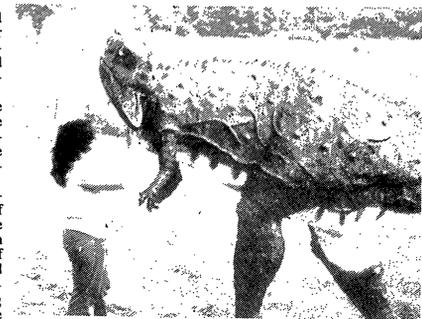

Another of Colonial Williamsburg's attractions is the variety of shopping opportunities available within the Historic Area and on its periphery. Along Duke of Gloucester Street visitors will find several recreated 18th-century mercantile shops offering goods similar to those sold in the city over 200 years ago. Those looking for more contemporary gifts and quality souvenirs will find the specialty shops -- Craft House at the Williamsburg Inn, Craft House on Merchants Square and The Sign of the Rooster -- to be fine retail stores.

Merchants Square at the foot of Duke of Gloucester Street encompasses a mix of shops selling everything from edibles to wearables and fine quality gift items. Other historic attractions in or near Williamsburg include the Wren Building on the campus of the College of William and Mary, Burton Parish Church, Jamestown Island and Festival Park and the Yorktown Battlefield and Victory Center.

Colonial Williamsburg operates four hotel properties including the 5-Star Williamsburg Inn, the Williamsburg Lodge, The Motor House and The Governor's Inn. In addition, guests can opt to stay in a restored or reconstructed private home or tavern in the heart of the restored area. The Williamsburg area also offers more than 9,000 hotel and motel rooms. Accommodations may be made by calling 1-800-HISTORY.

problems and the three singers were donating their services to help bail out an old friend. It was estimated they left $250,000 in receipts for the club owner after their three-night stint.

After the police officer flagged the car down, Davis invited Balek and about half a dozen other policemen and their wives to come to the club and see the show as his guests.

Our next door editor-in-residence, Diane Miller, paid the $20 entrance fee to see the show. She reported the long tables were sardine-like packed in the pit. If you required to make a pit stop, you had to be a contortionist to get up and over the tables.

But despite the $20 entrance fee, which allowed you a fifth of booze, some ginger ale and soda on your table, everyone who saw the show said it was well worth the high fee and the crammed-in ambiance. Sinatra was at his laid-back best, Martin stumpled around the stage and Davis, as always, was the consummate artist.

The tragic event of this past weekend on Dempster Street, where a Skokie teenager was critically injured by a driver while crossing Dempster Street near the Notre Dame High School carnival, should give pause to everyone about any future carnivals along busy thoroughfares.

Bringing a huge number of young people into any area is a risk which often brings on problems. To locate an event alongside one of the most dangerous streets in the area is inviting a tragedy which occurred Sunday night.

We know Notre Dame needs all the money it can acquire to keep the school alive. But the $10,000 it made last year was probably not matched by this year's receipts due to the inclement weather.

Neighbors were very upset last year when the carnival was located across from their homes. Many of them went to work the next days after having to listen to the noise from the carnival up to midnight. The extra police needed to maintain crowd control also begs the question whether such a carnival is worth it.

If a carnival is necessary, then an area free of danger and away from residents' homes should be a part of any future plans. While no one can be directly faulted for Sunday's tragedy, hopefully all concerned should learn from the past weekend's happenings.

Human services...

ment of Human Services, appointing Senior Director Mary Kay Morrissey as the director of the consolidated agency. Family Services Director John Halversen continues in his post but will report to Morrissey rather than Village Manager Abe Selman. Morrissey will also hold the senior directorship for the time being.

"We're seeing a need for more counseling services in the senior group," explained Selman. "There was a need to meld those two departments because of the emerging commonality between the groups they serve."

Morrissey was appointed in February to her new post but the resulting department has two budgets for fiscal year 1990, with a family service budget of $245,000 and a senior citizen budget of $204,000. By next May Selman indicated human services would have a single, consolidated budget.

Both Morrissey and Halversen heralded the change, saying the plan will improve services to both groups.

"It's such a good idea that it should be one," said Halversen. "It should have been done from the day I started (four years ago)."

"We can better serve the community this way," Morrissey said, referring to a "slow, developing process" that will result in a department that will also be more efficient administratively. Morrissey has been senior director for 15 years, since the department was first started.

Both agencies have had their own advisory commissions, whose members served through this month. The commissioners were honored by the village board at a banquet at the House of White Eagle. Robert Goldberg, who served on the Niles senior commission for twelve years, including a 9-year stint as chairman, also has been part of a four-man task force appointed by Selman and Mayor Nick Blase to make recommendations for a human services board.

Agreeing with Morrissey and Halversen about the positive aspects of a combined agency, Goldberg expressed his personal hope that the board would create a human services board that would not be "powerless and meaningless" and would be comprised of "experiential people within the work force", such as attorneys, accountants and social workers as well as retirees and homemakers.

The task force will hand their final draft report to Selman this week.

"The board and mayor have always been unique," said Morrissey. "They've really looked out for the people who live in town. I see (the new agency) as being positive."

Nelson Park...

May 15 board meeting. Lippert had not returned several phone calls by press deadline late Tuesday afternoon.

Nelson has been involved in planning the district's 4th of July parade and festivities and played an energetic, visible role at annual Halloween parties and holiday breakfasts with Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny, among other public duties. She also has been actively working on plans for a renovated Rec Center Pool.

A friend who is not a park employee and declined to be identified, said Nelson "devoted heart and soul" to her park duties. The friend also confirmed Nelson was no longer a park employee.

screen would be kept on file by the village. Selman explained installation costs have risen since initial surcharge discussion considered a 50 cent cost per line.

Trustees moved from the numbers 9-1-1 to the discussion of zip code 60648. Trustee Bart Murphy registered residents' complaints about individual health insurance policies being charged higher rates because of a Chicago constituency in the zip code area.

He said through the help of the Illinois Insurance Department, Niles representatives will present their case to insurance company delegates soon. Murphy indicated Niles auto insurance is already being separated from the Chicago section of the zip code area. President Nicholas Blase called the zip code situation "a horrible problem."

Referring to the real estate transfer tax to the buyer of $3 per $1,000 approved in the April meeting, Trustee Jeffrey Arnold gained board approval of an ordinance adding the tax to Chapter 29 1/2 of the Niles Municipal Code. Arnold said the ordinance in effect codifies and sets forth the various specifications as to what types of property are subject to the tax.

Trustee Murphy gained board approval of the village joining with the North Suburban Public Utility Company in installation of water service to the unincorporated areas northwest of the village. With the approval of the city of Chicago, Niles will sell Lake Michigan water to the 30,000 people who reside in the unincorporated area. The installation will coincide with some of the capital improvements Niles has already begun, but now some of the costs can be shared with the utility company.

President Blase explained the action would shorten the time the unincorporated area had anticipated receiving Lake Michigan water from five to two years.

Addressing the June 1 deadline for separation of yard waste from household waste, the board heard Trustee Andrew Przybylo complain some apartment building scavengers had said they could not separate the wastes. He gained approval of a motion requiring all village scavengers to separate the yard and household wastes as mandated by state law.

Zoning considerations came to the fore when Code Enforcement Director Joe Salerno gained board approval of a modification of a zoning law regarding the maximum variation in front and rear yards. Salerno suggested the Planning Commission have the final authority on any variation up to 50 percent. For a variation beyond 50 percent, the petitioner would have to apply to the Planning Commission first and then to the Village Board for final approval. The change would apply to all village zoning districts.

Before approval, Trustee Przybylo questioned the problem of water runoff if too many variations are allowed, but President Blase expressed his confidence in the planning commissioners as people of "intelligence and discretion." Salerno said neighbors within 250 feet of a property seeking a variation are routinely notified of a hearing on the variation.

In another zoning matter, the board outlined requirements for erecting billboards in village manufacturing districts. Previously, no billboards were allowed at all in the village.

Representatives from Tire America, a Sears company, requested and received rezoning from B-1 and B-2 to B-1 Special Use for their property at 9003-9007 Milwaukee Ave. They were one space short in their parking space requirements.

The company also received a variation for a 6 ft. x 18 ft. pylon sign because they have an 86 ft. rather than a 100 ft. frontage. The board stipulated the firm must keep a rear exit door closed except when in use and not construct a fence in the back of the property after a resident who lives behind the proposed facility requested the changes.

Continuing on zoning matters, Trustee Arnold moved to allow resubdivision of property at 8325 Cumberland Ave. formerly the Henry Joem Construction company, into six lots by George Sanfratello, a developer. Director Salerno noted the lots exceed the size required for an R-2 district.

A request by Skaja brothers for a change in zoning from B-1 to B-2 Special Use for a second floor addition to the funeral home at 7812 Milwaukee Ave. was referred to the Planning Commission.

The Niles Director of Public Works Keith Peck described the department's need for allocation of motor fuel tax funds of $250,000 to complete the 1990 village resurfacing program. In connection with public works, President Blase proclaimed May 20 through May 26 National Public Works Week. Earlier in the meeting, the president honored retiring village employee Sharon Wade for her service in several village departments, but especially for her coordination of the village blood program.

A priest and a community representative from Niles College told of the school's plans for a free summer performing arts festival to be held on their grounds on several Sunday afternoons in July. Presentations will include a production of Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen From Verona" and concerts by the Niles Symphony Orchestra.

Need for ID...

tion. Even though none of the visitors recognized the girl, the message was clear that police were looking for future help as well.

"Every child should carry some kind of ID," Zimmerman said, showing the identikit picture to a tour group of parents and children. Niles authorities also contacted local TV broadcasters, after queries to police agencies failed to produce any leads.

The four-foot-ten-inch, 105-pound girl had no purse and carried a dollar bill in her shoe, leaving investigators with little information to go on. Unconscious and on a respirator, she could not be interviewed. She wore gold rings and necklaces as well as a gold Seiko watch. She also wore two chairs, a Star of David and one with the words "best friend."

According to Commander William Reid, the girl, who was totally clad in black, was crossing Dempster Street in the 7600 block near Notre Dame High School at approximately 9:08 p.m. "According to witnesses, she stepped in front of him (a 65-year-old driver in the inside lane) after being narrowly missed by another eastbound car. The driver, Erwin B. Swidler of Skokie was later charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Police began interviewing groups of teens at the nearby Notre Dame Springfest carnival immediately, without result. Estimates varied as to her age, where between 14 and 25 years old. With a very petite female, you have a tendency to judge them at a younger age," Reid explained before the teen was identified.

Shortly after the 5 p.m. news Sunday, friends of 15-year-old Lia Luskin told her family in Skokie that an unidentified girl fitting Lia's description was in critical condition with severe head injuries. The family then called Niles police. Sgt. Sam Fucarino brought the girl's mother to the hospital to identify her and stay at her bedside.

The Niles North freshman was supposed to stay overnight at a girlfriend's following Springfest, reportedly the reason her family did not contact police regarding her whereabouts. Her father had dropped her off across the street from the carnival moments before the tragedy. She crossed once, going to the carnival and 15 minutes later crossed north bound where she was hit.

"Please, make sure your child's name and address and other information is with him or her at all times," Zimmerman urged parents on the tour, suggesting, "Put it in a pocket or somewhere on their person so this situation doesn't happen."

Commander Reid expressed the hope that school ID cards could be modified to incorporate emergency information.

with ease." Agreeing with the representatives that left turn bans create a unfair hardship when neighboring retailer's traffics are permitted to leave left turns, Trustee Robert Leavitt said, "I would like to see this shopping center flourish. Let's refer this back to the traffic safety commission."

Lee Tamraz, chairman of the Traffic Safety Commission agreed to review the restrictions at the commission's June meeting. "We'll be happy to expedite this thing."

Mankivsky and Mike Lavelle, as Pullen attorneys, have been reviewing a planned suit against Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper. The suit is expected to charge the clerk violated Pullen's constitutional rights by not following election code procedures in the March 20 primary election.

It is also expected to ask for $100,000 in compensation and an award of attorney's fees under #42 United States Code, Section 1983.
