Gunmen terrorize pharmacy employees in Morton Grove

Two armed robbers terrorized a team of employees at the Dempster/Menard Pharmacy, 5744 Dempster St., Morton Grove, the afternoon of Nov. 5.

In a hurried strike, one gunman straddled the back of a 68-year-old female employee, held a gun to her head and warned "Show me the narcotics or say goodbye. I'll blow her away!"

His companion forced two other employees from a rear office and ordered all the employees to the floor except for a 61-year-old man, who, while a gun was held at his head, turned out supplies of narcotics. One of the men filled a

Water plant redesigned to ease residents' ire

Niles trustees change plans for reservoir

by Sheila Hackett

Niles trustees radically altered plans for a new village water facility after neighbors vehemently protested.

The first design for the $6 million facility, scheduled to be built north of the Cumberland Avenue, Ballard Road intersection, drew ire from single family homeowners whose properties lie north and east of the site. The owners, many of whom have half-acre lots, feared the 15-foot, above ground water reservoir would depress property values.

No. 14 trustees met again on the project and Village Manager Abe Selman said trustees considered residents' comments from the Nov. 7 meeting on the subject, reevaluated the cost implications and came up with a plan for a lower reservoir, a change in its configuration and the type of building material to be used.

Project consultant Donohue and Associates' engineer, Claus Dunkelberg stated, as now designed, the top of the five million gallon water reservoir will be three feet-or at the most, five feet-above the existing grade and will be rectangular in shape. It will extend 80 feet north and south and 230 feet east and west. It will be no closer than 30 feet to any property line and plans for berming and landscaping the surrounding land continue.

Walter Krause, 9039 Maryland Ave., questioned whether the pump and generator would be housed. He was assured they would be enclosed. Trustee Louella Preston noted the 15 foot high, L-shaped, windowed and brick veneered pumping station would blend with surrounding buildings and also be landscaped.

Far from mollified, residents continued to pepper officials with questions on the plan. Thomas Barto, 9004 Maryland Ave., asked why, if the school district could not get rezoning of the site in the past, the village could act without rezoning.

Attorney Richard Troy advised him it was the village's right to build without rezoning. Barto gave Bart Murphy, board presi-

Armed robbers sought in Niles home invasion

"An arrest is imminent" relative to a Nov. 13 Niles home invasion where two men, one brandishing a semiautomatic gun, terrorized a woman and two children. According to investigator Sam Fucarino of the Niles police "evidence suggests the suspects may have known the victims."

According to reports, a 16-year-old girl living in a residence in the 8100 block of Susan Court responded to a knock on the front door and opened it up to reveal two men in their twenties, one with a mustache and military fatigues and the second wearing a purple wig and green mask.

The first suspect forced his way into the living room and told the girl to cooperate. The girl's mother heard the scuffle at the front door and saw the first suspect with a black semiautomatic handgun. He told the mother not to look at him.

The men asked the woman if there was anyone else at home and the masked intruder went upstairs and kicked open a bedroom door, surprising a 12-year-old boy. All three occupants were herded into the basement and told to lie face down on the floor.

The men apparently searched the other rooms and unsuccessfully attempted to open a safe on the premises, according to Fucarino. They left via the kitchen door, with the first suspect leaving his cap behind. Some collector's coins were reportedly stolen and some recovered near a back yard fence. The homeowner is reportedly a coin dealer who has coins on the premises.

The mother and two children were unharmed.

Rift between toddler moms, seniors resolved

The Niles Park District announced this week that a compromise has been reached between the Senior Men's Exercise Class & Mothers of the Toddler Time Program.

The Senior Men's Exercise Class and the Toddler Time mothers both made some concessions that will allow the existence of both programs in the Grennan Heights Gym next session.

The seniors will relinquish 15 minutes of their entire gym time on Tuesdays, and one hour of half the gym space during their Thursday classes.

The Toddler Time program participants will be offered two of their Thursday classes one hour and 15 minutes later in the morning, and one of their Thursday classes has been moved to Tuesdays at the same time as originally scheduled.

KNOW YOUR NUMBER

When is a cholesterol level too high? A desirable cholesterol level is less than 200 mg/dl. Maintaining a prudent diet and having a cholesterol measurement every five years should sustain a low cholesterol level. If you have a borderline high cholesterol level of 200-239 mg/dl, consult a physician for diet advice and additional cholesterol check-ups. In addition to dietary concerns, genetics may also factor into raising blood cholesterol levels. Some people inherit a tendency to produce more cholesterol than their bodies can utilize. Cholesterol screenings are available to Morton Grove residents from 9 to 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 27 in the Flickinger Senior Center. For Morton Grove seniors (age 65+) who have never been screened before, there is no charge for the screening. There is a discounted fee of $3 for seniors desiring follow-up screenings and $4 for all others.

"Tom" the turkey is one gobbler who didn't have to worry about ending up on someone's Thanksgiving dinner table. "Tom" is the charge of Julia Anchor, a naturalist, at the River Trail Nature Center, 3120 Milwaukee Ave., in Northbrook, which is a part of the Cook County Forest Preserve District.

County Board OKs tax accountability protection

The Cook County Board recently passed the main provision of the Tax Accountability Amendment.

The board adopted a rule which will require a 60% vote of all Commissioners present and voting for passage of any additional revenue measure. Sixty percent of the County Board is equal to 11 commissioners.

The measure was sponsored by Commissioners Carl R. Hansen, Herbert T. Schumann, Jr., and Richard A. Siebel.

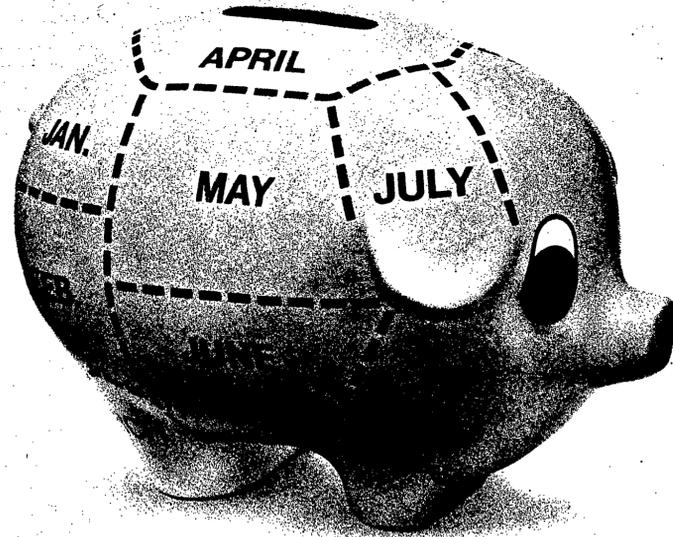

"Cook County property taxpayers, and especially those in the suburbs, now enjoy the protection offered by the Tax Accountability Amendment. This issue is the critical difference between Republicans and Democrats in the 1990 election," Hansen said.

The Tax Accountability Amendment was stopped once in the General Assembly by House Speaker Michael Madigan and once in the Illinois courts by a Madigan-backed lawsuit by the Chicago Bar Association.

"The tax issue is the number one concern of voters across Cook County. Most of that concern focuses on skyrocketing property tax rates. Today's vote shows that the Republican Party continues to emphasize enactment of meaningful property tax reform. Today's vote shows that we will give real relief while the Democrats will spend until there is nothing left," Siebel said.

The Suburban Republican Commissioner candidates have all signed a Tax Accountability Pledge which requires them to vote only for a tax proposal which has been presented to the County Board for debate for a period of at least two weeks prior to the vote. Because the newly adopted Tax Accountability Rule requires at least one Republican vote for passage of any new revenue measure, the Republican pledge brings the Tax Accountability Amendment public hearing requirement to hear on all County revenue measures.

"All voters want Tax Accountability. By enacting a 60% requirement and fourteen day notice, my fellow Commissioners candidates have delivered what the Democrats in the General Assembly tried to stop," State Senator Aldo DeAngelis (R-Olympia Fields), Republican County Board President candidate said.

Loyola introduces theology program

Citing the "remarkably few" Ph.D. programs in Christian ethics with a Catholic perspective or in early Christianity, Loyola University Chicago has established a theology Ph.D. program in those areas.

During the fall 1990 semester, Loyola's existing M.A. program will be modified to all accommodate current graduate students. The Ph.D. program will formally begin in fall 1991.

The Loyola theology Ph.D. program is designed specifically for those interested in pursuing careers in teaching and research. According to James J. Walter, Ph.D., theology professor and graduate director in the department, the program is unique in the United States and will draw on Loyola's strength in early Christianity and Christian ethics.

For further information about Loyola's M.A. or Ph.D. programs in theology, call Dr. Walter, (312) 508-2353.

Preschoolers send letters to soldiers

The preschool children at Edison Park Lutheran Church, 6626 N. Oliphant Ave., Chicago, worked on a special project for Veterans' Day.

This group of 4-year-olds, with the help of their teachers, Beverly Petzold and Carolyn Wangrow, wrote letters to our U.S. service men and women stationed in Saudi Arabia. They told the soldiers something about themselves and drew pictures of the things they felt the soldiers would miss; such as, trees and flowers and water.

When the U.S. people were asked to write to our servicemen and women, Mrs. Petzold was one of the first, and for Veterans' Day she sent the preschoolers letters to the two members of the U.S. Army who have responded to her letters. She knows from their correspondence that there are many men and women who do not receive any mail.

The preschool program at Edison Park Lutheran Church is specially designed to help 4-year-olds develop self-confidence in an early group experience. The children are educated in Christian beliefs through Bible stories, songs and chapel services.

Program deals with children's behavior problems

A new three-part program designed to help parents, educators and social service agencies better respond to non-compliant behavior in children and adolescents is now offered through the Forest Health Systems and the Barrington Family Institute.

The Powerstruggling Education Program Series, a multi-systemic approach to education, is one of the first behavioral educational series of its kind. It is comprised of a computer program, guidebook and training seminar, and each component can be ordered separately.

The program provides the adult with a set of specific strategies for identifying and coping with children and adolescent powerstruggling behaviors. For the child or adolescent, it provides the means of identifying a power struggling situation, recognizing the impact of their responses and strategies for coping with authority figures.

Designed for the child or adolescent, the IBM-compatible Powerstruggling computer program contains vignettes depicting typical situations in which children or adolescents challenge their parents, teachers or other adults in authority. Each vignette is followed by choices for the child or adolescent to make.

Powerstruggling training seminars are available to school districts, parent groups and community groups. They are designed to teach the user how to best utilize the other components.

For more information on the Powerstruggling Educational Program Series, call the Fox Valley Counseling and Diagnostic Center at (708) 426-5544.

LGH provides hope for troubled families

Are you at your wits end when it comes to dealing with your child or adolescent? If nothing you do seems to make a difference, Lutheran General Hospital (L.G.H.) Outpatient Mental Health Services offers a Diagnostic Assessment Clinic for children or adolescents who are experiencing emotional or behavioral problems.

The clinic meets from 7:30 a.m. to noon each Tuesday at 360 Parkside Center, Park Ridge.

Patients and their families meet privately with a diagnostic team which includes a psychiatrist, a psychologist and a social worker who complete both personal and family evaluations. One week following initial screening, the family will meet with a member of the diagnostic team to discuss the team's findings and make recommendations for future care or further testing. Educational testing and evaluations of speech and language, chemical dependency and eating disorders are some of the tests which the clinic may recommend and provide. Most health insurance policies will cover the costs of the program.

To register for the clinic, or to get more information, contact Alice Wyatt, L.C.S.W., coordinator of children and adolescent outpatient programs, at (708) 696-5880.

Appointments are necessary and professional referrals are accepted. Copies of the evaluations and recommendations will be sent to the referral source.

Simple cure for stress incontinence

Women used to be told that wetting their pants, a condition called stress incontinence, was just an inevitable byproduct of having babies and growing older.

Many who initially rebelled against a life of stress incontinence were told by doctors that nothing could be done. Others were referred for abdominal surgery requiring months of recovery.

Today, Dr. Sam Lipshitz, Chief of Urology and president of the Hospital Medical Staff at Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center in Chicago, has perfected a procedure called No-Incision Bladder Suspension.

With a cure rate well over 90 percent, the No-Incision Bladder Suspension takes about a half-hour under regional anesthesia and leaves no scar. The procedure requires only two days in the hospital and the patient leaves the hospital with two small Band-Aids. After a week to 10 days the patient can return to work.

According to Dr. Lipshitz, most women experience a temporary loss of bladder control after giving birth. But, for many, the problem does not go away. In fact, at least one out of every eight women will develop a permanent bladder control problem related to childbirth or aging.

Stress incontinence is caused by weakening of muscles and support tissues around the urethra and bladder, allowing the bladder to drop out of proper position. In the corrective procedure, Dr. Lipshitz makes two openings the size of a grain of rice at the pubic hair line, then takes two stitches that pull the vaginal wall snug against the muscles around the urethra and bladder. This repositions the bladder and cures the incontinence.

The procedure costs only about half as much as the major abdominal surgery and is covered by insurance plans. Mount Sinai Hospital provides a private room and, if desired, a limousine ride to and from the hospital.

Lipshitz received his medical training at the Chicago Medical School, where he is now an adjunct professor.

For information, call Dr. Lipshitz at (312) 202-0613 or toll free at 1 (800) 848-8846.

NILES POLICE REPORT

Niles Police Department

Tracking system helps beat auto thefts

If you happened to be listening to your radio (Q101 FM) on the morning of November 8, you probably are now aware that "LOJACK" is here. On that day the Niles Police went through a little exercise, akin the fox and hounds. A radio personality in a vehicle equipped with a LOJACK transmitter attempted to evade Niles Police Units outfitted with a LOJACK tracker. The police locked on to the radio personality vehicle and in 10-15 minutes were able to locate it at the Tam Golf Course on Howard St. This was part of the introduction kickoff of the LOJACK system which is being touted as state-of-the-art technology that will be used in our area to combat auto theft.

How bad of a problem is auto theft? The FBI defines motor-vehicle theft as the theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle to include cars, trucks, motorcycles and motor scooters. In 1989, approximately 1.5 million motor vehicles were stolen in the U.S. This may not seem like alot when spread nationwide but if the average dollar cost of each vehicle were $10,000, it becomes a $15,000,000,000 a year criminal enterprise. Motor vehicle thefts rose 9% from 1988 to 1989 and have gone up 42% since 1985. Illinois had approximately 70,000 motor vehicle thefts in 1989, Chicago 46,000 and Niles 158. New York City is by far the leader with 133,000 motor vehicles stolen in 1989.

What does the LOJACK do? LOJACK is the name of an east coast company founded in 1978 which began marketing their vehicle recovery system in 1986 in Massachusetts and has since expanded to New Jersey, Florida, California, Michigan, and now Illinois. The LOJACK system is comprised of a radio transmitter that is hidden in a customer's vehicle and a network of computers and trackers used by the police. When a car with a LOJACK Recovery System is stolen, the VIN (Vehicle Identification Number) is entered into the police computer system (LEADS) and the stolen auto's LOJACK transmitter begins sending a signal that can be picked up by any police unit with a LOJACK tracker within a 12-25 mile radius of the stolen auto.

In the Chicago Metropolitan area there are approximately 80 police departments including the State Police, Chicago PD and various County Sheriff's Depts. that have units equipped with LOJACK tracking devices. The recovery times have been very impressive in LOJACK training exercises that our department has run. The LOJACK company itself boasts a 95% recovery rate amongst vehicles stolen with LOJACK systems and in an average time of 2 hours. Approximately 20-25% of these recoveries result in arrests. The LOJACK guarantees that if your vehicle is not recovered within 24 hours after it is stolen, they will refund to you the cost of the system. These systems are now available through selected retailers and new car dealerships in the Chicago area.

The Niles Police Dept. has set up its satellite station outside Entrance #2 (Food Court) at the Golf Mill Shopping Center which will assist the public with any police related matters they may have while shopping. This satellite station will be open Monday - Friday, 5 to 10 p.m.; Saturday, 12 to 10 p.m.; and Sunday, 12 to 6 p.m., starting the day after Thanksgiving.

We hope you all have safe and very uneventful but successful shopping trips to the stores in our town this holiday season. Statistically speaking, the stores and malls in Niles are some of the very safest in the Chicagoland area and our officers will again be working very hard to keep them that way!

Traffic Safety Hints

More than 515,000 motor vehicle accidents were reported to the Illinois Department of Transportation in 1988. If you are involved in an accident, do the following things:

1. Stop your vehicle in a safe place.
2. Use your four-way emergency flashers or flares to warn approaching motorists.
3. Help any injured person if necessary or requested. Protect the victim from traffic, and cover him with a blanket for comfort and to avoid shock. Then call for a doctor or an ambulance. Do not move the victim unless there is a risk of fire or further injury. Guard against fire by turning off the ignition or disconnecting the battery cable. Do not attempt first aid unless you have received proper training.
4. Exchange names, addresses, telephone numbers, drivers license numbers and license plate numbers with the other drivers. You can use the form in the back of the Rules of the Road booklet to record the information. The Rules of the Road is available at any driver services facility.
5. Notify the police as quickly as possible.
6. Send an accident report to the Department of Transportation within 10 days if the accident results in death or bodily injury, or more than $250 in property damage. Accident report forms usually can be obtained from police departments and insurance companies.

Tips on dealing with car breakdowns

A car breakdown at night when driving alone can cause a dangerous situation. If your car breaks down, follow these steps to prevent an accident and protect yourself.

First, try to coast off the road onto the shoulder. Turn on your emergency flashers and dome light to alert other drivers of your presence. Keep the windows up and doors locked until the police arrive.

If there is a CB radio in the car, call channel 9 or 19, which are monitored by the police. When you get a response, give your location and describe your vehicle.

If another motorist arrives before the police, talk through a barely open window and ask that he or she call the police or a service station for you. Remember, do not leave the car until a uniformed police officer or an authorized service truck arrives.

The same safety advice applies if you have a flat tire. Do not change it by yourself at night. Although driving on a flat will probably damage the tire beyond repair, you may have no other choice if you feel the situation is threatening. If you must drive on a damaged tire, reduce the hazard to other motorists by using your emergency flashers and keeping as far as possible to the right of the road.

Nilesite sees action on college football team

Paul Weinman

Paul Weinman of Niles, (Notre Dame) is seeing considerable action as a backup defensive tackle for the Grand Valley State University football team this season. Weinman, a 6-3, 236-pound freshman, has appeared in each of the Lakers' six games this season. The Lakers, under Head Coach Tom Beck, have compiled a 6-0 record this season, 5-0 in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference.

Hockey night in Niles

The Niles Park District Rangers kicked off the 1990-91 season with the fourth annual Hockey Night in Niles. There were raffle prizes supplied by the Chicago Blackhawks, a bake sale and plenty of thrilling hockey action as all four levels of Ranger teams saw action.

After a wild first period in the Mite House League game which found the Hawks leading 4 to 3 the Hawks' defense stiffened and they beat the Capitals by a final score of 7 to 4. Ricky Lipinski led the Capitals in scoring with 2 goals while Tony Leifel and Danny Switalla scored 1 goal each. Switalla's goal came on his very first shift as a Mite. The Hawks got a pair of goals from Alex Mrowiec and Derek Cwik while Mike Kalas scored the game winner. Sean Flanagan and Carmon Colad closed out the scoring for the victorious Hawks.

The night's second game saw the Squirt red team jump out to an early 3 to 0 lead and they continued on to defeat a battling Squirt white team by a final score of 5 to 0. Squirt white team goalie Thad Mrowiec played very well in the loss as he faced 20 shots on goal, some from point blank range. Squirt red was led by Joey Wagner with 2 goals including the game winner, Brian Carra with 2 goals and Tedd Markos with 1 goal and 2 assists.

The Pee Wee game ended in a 1 to 1 tie as both teams applied plenty of pressure and Pee Wee red outshot Pee Wee white 20 to 15 for the game. Pee Wee white scored the game's first goal as Jimmy Sikaras banged a beautiful centering pass from linemate Pat Cline. The game remained tied 1 to 0 going into the third period when with just 25 seconds remaining Squirt red tied the score. Defenseman Rich Grabowski fired home the game's tying goal off a pass from Sean Barrett. Goalies Adam Lovekamp from the red team and Mike Durand of the white team deserve much of the credit for keeping their teams in the game as they both came up with one outstanding save after another.

In the night's final game the Bantam Rangers carried a 5 to 4 lead into the third period only to suffer through 4 unanswered Flames goals and a stunning 8 to 5 loss. The Rangers were led by Jim Murray's 2 goals and 1 assist, Jason Jafari, 2 goals, Steve Bosco, 1 goal and 1 assist, while Chad Weiner had 2 assists and Greg Brand 1 assist. The Rangers outshot the Flames 35 to 28.

Help for anxiety attack sufferers

A young woman feels dizzy, experiences mild chest pains and has difficulty breathing as she enters her new office following a promotion. A new dad contemplating his child's financial future begins to sweat and feel as if he is being suffocated. A single mother with two young children feels suddenly "out of control" and experiences abdominal pains following a visit with her elderly mother in a nursing home.

When no physical ailments can be found, psychologists say these people all share something in common: they are experiencing an anxiety attack. Panic attacks, the most profoundly disturbing form of anxiety, can come on suddenly with no warning and last for an indefinite period of time. Those affected say they experience a fear of imminent death or "going crazy." Others experience difficulty breathing, chest pains and profuse sweating, a clammy feeling, trembling, faintness or hot and cold flashes. Many say the attacks aren't brought on by anything in particular and simply "arise out of the blue."

"Tensions and stress from a variety of sources are usually at the root of a panic attack," explains medical psychologist Thomas Henschen, Ph.D., director of the Outpatient Counseling Service at Resurrection Medical Center, Chicago.

The good news for those suffering from this explained, sudden illness is that help is available and modern treatment techniques encompassing biofeedback, hypnosis, desensitization training and other behavior modification skills work.

"The initial interview with a patient consists of a careful diagnostic assessment," explains Ronald Watson, Psy.D., a medical psychologist also in general practice and working with Outpatient Counseling Service patients. "Following a physical exam to rule out organic problems, patients are reassured that the physical signs are manifestations of anxiety which they can learn to control."

Our goal is to bring about change as quickly and realistically as possible," Dr. Henschen adds. "We require lots of 'homework,' and practice on the part of our patients." This "homework" can range from relaxation training and deep breathing to physical exercise and even socialization. Others may be taught to practice muscle relaxation and to alter breathing patterns.

"Anxiety and depression run a wide continuum from normalcy to extremes. Our role involves working with patients and their primary care physicians to coordinate intervention, training, and medication if needed," says Dr. Watson.

A phobic disorder is a continuous and irrational fear of a specific object, situation or activity which results in a strong desire to avoid that phobic stimulus," Dr. Henschen explains. The person is usually aware that the fear is out of proportion to the reality of the situation. Phobias tend to run in families and roughly two to four percent of the population has suffered a phobic disorder. "Fears only become bona fide phobias when somehow our lives become altered. When this fear begins to inhibit your lifestyle, you should begin seeking help."

Resurrection's Outpatient Counseling Service is open from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and some evenings. Call (312) 792-5176 for information and appointments.

Techniques available for many vision problems

Our bodies undergo changes as we age. Our eyes are not exempt from the body's normal aging process. In fact, loss of vision becomes a formidable possibility after we reach the age of forty.

Fortunately, new surgical and medical techniques often make it possible for people to enjoy excellent or useful vision as they grow older.

These alterations of the eye brought about by advancing age often needlessly limit normal activities. Some people neglect seeking medical attention because they think that their reduced eyesight cannot be corrected. Of the estimated 457,000 legally blind persons in the United States, approximately half of those cases could have been prevented. This is unfortunate since the leading causes of blindness in people 55 and older - glaucoma, macular degeneration and cataracts can be treated or corrected if detected early.

Cataracts, the clouding of lens in the eye, can be removed in patients of all ages with excellent results. When the clouded lens is removed, the focusing power of the eye can be replaced with an intra-ocular lens implant. The implant allows the eyes to focus clearly once again, and thus restore vision.

Done on an outpatient basis, most patients are up and about on the day of cataract removal. For free brochures on these treatable conditions, please call Dr. Mark Rosanova, Advanced Eye Care Association, (312) 594-0000.

Children's Unit gets new program director

A licensed psychologist and Certified Senior Addictions Counselor, Dr. Schuler also is a partner with Lindquist, Giennapp, Strauss, Schuler & Associates, a firm offering comprehensive psychological services for children, adolescents and adults.

Dr. Schuler specializes in working with children, adolescents and their families, as well as conducting short- and long-term psychotherapy for adults with a variety of emotional and/or behavioral problems. In addition, he supervises psychology students and interns at Forest Hospital.

What does a 6-year old who doesn't listen, an 8-year-old that's already a school problem, and a child who's "impossible" at 12 have in common?

AN ATTENTION DEFICIT HYPERACTIVITY DISORDER SEMINAR TUESDAY DEC. 4; 7-8:30PM.

Too often, parents think the problem with their 3 to 16-year-old child is poor attitude, a personality type, or inferior intelligence. They don't understand that what's possible is something called Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, or ADHD. While the causes of ADHD aren't really understood, the ability to recognize these children and treatment of their problem is. Dr. John Costigan will present a free, one-night seminar about ADHD and what parents can do to help their child. Enrollment is limited. Call 708/635-4100 Ext. 224 to register.

Advance placement exam scores up

District 207 Advanced Placement Exam results for 1990 show that scores are up over last year.

This year 350 students in the Maine high schools took a total of 697 exams; 141 of those exams received a score of five. Last year 375 students took 768 exams; 130 of those exams received a score of five.

At Maine East, 131 students took 266 exams; 46 received a score of five on one or more exam. At Maine South, 150 students took 307 exams; 41 received a score of five on one or more exam. At Maine West, 69 students took 124 exams; 13 received a score of five on one or more exam.

The Advanced Placement program allows the most able and ambitious students from across the nation to take college level courses while they are still enrolled in high school. District 207 offers advanced placement classes in science, math, English, social science, and foreign language.

At the end of the course, a three-hour examination, consisting primarily of essay questions, is graded on a five-point college-level scale. Colleges generally grant credit to candidates with grades of three, four, and five, and review candidates with grades of two individually.

According to Joel W. Morris, assistant superintendent for instruction, District 207's performance clearly exceeds expectations based on national performance standards.

Asian American students issues discussed

The Loyola Academy Guidance Department invited guidance counselors from nine local area high schools to participate in an in-service program on Asian American counseling issues on Nov. 8 at the Academy.

According to Loyola Director of Guidance Mim Sullivan, "We find many Asian American students rebelling against traditional family values as well as the increased and sometimes undue pressure put on these students to achieve."

In an effort to address the special needs of Asian students in American schools, Stanley Luke, Ph.D., of Evanston gave a presentation entitled "Asian American Mental Health Issues." Dr. Luke is a clinical psychologist and has had extensive experience working with adolescents in treatment centers and in his private practice.

Some of the acculturation issues discussed were: conflict between traditional values and American society; bi-cultural identity—students become Americanized in school, yet are expected to remain Asian at home; parental (especially immigrant parents) pressure to succeed; students' self-esteem; controlling family influence.

Dr. Luke believes that solutions to these problems facing the rapidly growing Asian American population can be found through traditional counseling, clergy, youth clubs and parent discussion groups.

The nearly 100 first grade students at Nelson School recently visited the Green Meadow Farm in Elmhurst.

Guided by their teachers Joan Butzen, Fran Getzoff, Karen Hillman and Bonnie Watson, these suburban children had the opportunity to see, touch, and learn about various farm animals. Living in the metropolitan area, the children know about such animals, but have few opportunities to see them in a farm-like setting.

As the students visited the farm, guides told them about each animal, how it was raised and cared for, and the products it represented. The youngsters were thrilled to be able to milk a cow and take a pony ride. They saw and learned about pigs, goats, chickens, ponies, and cows.

Harvesting Season begins for Christmas tree growers

For some, it's not too early to be planning for Christmas. While most American families have yet to begin thinking about the holidays, there is one group of people who can't delay their Christmas plans. . . Christmas tree farmers.

According to Steve Sturgeon of Ashmore, Illinois, over 36 million trees will be harvested this year for the American Christmas tree market. Sturgeon produces 60,000 trees on 50 acres in central Illinois.

"Trees are harvested in November for several reasons," Sturgeon says. "If cutting is delayed until December, heavy snowfalls may make harvesting and transporting the trees extremely difficult. Cutting in November also prevents some species of Christmas trees from losing their green coloring -- constant temperatures below 10 degrees F can cause branches to become brittle and easily damaged during harvest."

Sturgeon pointed out that November cutting does not mean the tree won't be fresh when it reaches the consumer. "Growers have developed methods of storing trees so that they retain their moisture and are still fresh when purchased by the consumer," he said. To maintain freshness, many trees are stacked in shaded storage with their stump ends in wet sand or sawdust until the time of sale.

Before the actual harvesting begins, Sturgeon will have surveyed his plantation to determine which trees are to be harvested. After trees have been tagged, they're ready for harvest.

"Most trees are harvested with some type of saw," Sturgeon explained. "The pointed bow saw is a favorite among growers who harvest several thousand trees a year. Power tools are used by the larger Christmas tree producers."

After trees have been cut, they're usually wrapped in twine or plastic netting. This compacts the trees to make transporting them easier and helps prevent damage to the branches. "Trees that are harvested this year," says Sturgeon, "will be replaced on a two or three-to-one basis. The new trees won't be ready for harvest for at least 4 to 12 years from now."

Christmas tree growing takes a great deal of time and planning. "Even now," says Sturgeon, "we're preparing for the Christmas tree harvest of the year 2000!"

Holidays are trying times for eating disorder sufferers

The holiday season can be joyous and loving for most, but for those suffering from an eating disorder it can be devastating. Beginning in October with Halloween candy to Thanksgiving dinner and then on to the Christmas feast, "food becomes synonymous with love," says Dr. William C. Rader, founder and clinical director for The Rader Institute.

"Think about it, how does your mother show you she loves you at this time of the year? She makes you favorite dish and plenty of it. How do you show her that you love and appreciate her? You eat everything on your plate and then ask for seconds. For a person who is obsessed with food these holiday celebrations can be emotionally stressful. What needs to be understood is that it makes as much sense to push alcohol on the alcoholic at holiday time as it does to present a typical holiday meal to someone who has an eating disorder," he said.

The person suffering from anorexia nervosa (self-starvation) may avoid these stressful situations by not eating and then keep themselves busy by serving food or cleaning the kitchen. These functions can give the illusion, to family and friends, that they are eating when in fact they haven't taken a bite.

The bulimic (binge/purger) will often eat normally and then disappear immediately after the meal to vomit and/or ingest large amounts of laxatives and diuretics. To make up for eating normally the bulimic usually binges late at night, on large quantities of leftover food and once again completes the cycle by vomiting, laxatives, diuretics or at times compulsively exercising.

The holiday season can be the most difficult for the compulsive overeater. Not only by the temptations of everything surrounding them, but also because of angry feelings. These feelings are generated by watching everyone else able to eat as much and whatever they want without being judged.

For the compulsive overeater the holidays can be a time of loneliness and hopelessness. Their only joy being the false hope they will start and stick to a new diet after the New Year.

"Diets do not work for the compulsive overeater" adds Dr. Rader. "Weight is only a symptom of their disease. It makes as much sense to treat a person with pneumonia by giving them aspirin to lower their fever (a symptom) and then never deal with the pneumonia. 96% of compulsive overeaters who diet lose weight, and then gain back the weight plus additional pounds because only their symptom (weight) not their disease (compulsive overeating) was dealt with. With eating disorders, you need to treat the underlying physiological, psychological and sociological problem and the symptom or weight, will no longer be an issue."

Dr. Rader offers some tips for surviving the holiday season:

1) Recognize the dangers: Because food becomes the central focus of the holiday celebration,

Interfaith calendar

"Making an America safe for differences" is the ideal upon which the National Conference of Christians and Jews - Chicago Region (NCCJ) was founded in 1935. World news headlines reveal daily the needs of knowledge about various religious and cultural traditions.

The NCCJ (Chicago and northern Illinois region) continues to provide that vital information about "differences" when it released the 1991 version of its award-winning InterFaith Calendar.

The calendar - first of its kind nationally - focuses on a different cultural/religious community each month. All the information for each community has been prepared by representatives from that community.

Each month the InterFaith Calendar explains the community's tenets and practices in everyday language. The following tradition is highlighted: Ba'hai, Buddhism, several forms of Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism and Sikhism. For the first time, Zoroastrianism, (the religion of Zuhin and Zarin Meh-ta) and Native American Indian traditions will also be included.

The calendar comes in a convenient 11x14 inch size which folds out to 14x22. It makes a perfect gift for the holidays and all year around. It is appropriate for all settings, the classroom, personnel offices, in military and government offices, and more.

To receive a calendar send a $10 donation (plus $2 for shipping and handling) to the organization. All donations support the NCCJ. Make your check or money order payable to the National Conference of Christians and Jews, 203 N. Wabash, Suite 918, Chicago 60601. Call (312) 236-9272 for more information.

Radio team kicks off Holiday Giving Tree

Peter Dean and The New Mix 102 (FM 102 Radio) morning team will kick off the 8th Holiday Giving Tree at Harlem Irving Plaza on Friday, Nov. 23 at 10:30 a.m.

Peter Dean and Beth Kaye, from The New Mix 102 (FM 102 Radio) morning team, will kick off the 8th Holiday Giving Tree at Harlem Irving Plaza on Friday, November 23. The opening ceremony will occur at 10:30 a.m. at the Center, located at Harlem Avenue, Irving Park Road and Forest Preserve Drive.

Participants choose a card, purchase a gift and return the wrapped present to the tree, located near Fannie May in the south mall of the plaza. Gifts need to be returned by December 19. They are delivered to the less fortunate on Christmas Eve.

The Holiday Giving Tree took in over 10,000 gifts last year for the needy in over twenty-five area institutions. This earned the tree the Governor's Home Town Award this past June.

Peter Dean and The New Mix 102 have worked with HIP on other projects. "I'm very thrilled to be a part of the opening ceremony for the Giving Tree. We hope to bring tremendous attention to it," Dean explained. Peter and Beth will promote the tree on their morning radio program throughout December. They will also choose the first card from the tree this year!

"It's such a busy day for Santa," said Max Adams, director of sales for the Blackstone Hotel, "but he and all his giant furry friends are looking forward to having breakfast with the kids prior to the parade."

Joining Santa at the breakfast will be Mrs. Claus and a host of other children's favorite characters—including world famous celebrity Ronald McDonald, Mootown Cow, Ernie Keebler, Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer, Bugs Bunny and many others. The Blackstone Hotel will offer a special continental breakfast holiday buffet in the grand ballroom for $7 with $1 going to Ronald McDonald Children's Charities (RMCC).

World's longest bike featured at parade

Parking is just one of the many problems you face when riding a 97-foot-long bike. Fortunately, the World's Longest Bicycle will have little need for a curb when it appears in the Chicago Ronald McDonald Children's Charities Christmas Parade on Saturday, Nov. 24.

Sponsored by Sargento Cheese Company of Plymouth, Wis., the serpentine vehicle will snake its way up Michigan Avenue with the help of three dozen riders from Tripoli Temple, a fraternal organization of Masons from Milwaukee, Wis.

The nationally televised parade also will feature a battalion of authentic, old-time Big Wheel Bicycles complete with knickers-clad riders that harken back to the early days of cycling. Chicago's Northwest Suburban Shrine Club will provide the pedal power and horn tooting to the delight of children and adults alike.

The noon to 2 p.m. event will travel north on Michigan Avenue between Balbo and Wacker drives.

Exhibit areas open to the public will include Children's Zoo, Bear Grotto, The Fragile Kingdom, Small Mammal House, Reptile House, and Seven Seas Panorama underwater viewing area. Discovery Center will also be open.

Hot chocolate, hot cider, holiday cookies and a complete selection of food items will be available each evening. Shoppers will also want to visit the Brookfield Zoo Shop, SEVEN SEAS SHOP, Brookfield Zoo Bookstore, Elephant's Trunk Gift Shop, and souvenir stands at Discovery Center and Children's Zoo.

Recyclable Christmas cards gaining in popularity

Americans are expected to buy 2.3 billion Christmas cards this year, according to the Greeting Card Association. Laid end to end, those cards would stretch 200,000 miles, weigh 24,000 tons and fill 14 cubic miles of landfill space when discarded.

If every one of those Christmas cards was made from recycled paper, Americans could save more than:

- 420,000 trees
- 1,000,000 kwh (enough to power the homes in Boston, Miami and Denver for a month)
- 170,000,000 gallons of water (enough to supply the drinking water needs of the city of Chicago for 3 months)
- Almost 1,500,000 lbs. of air polluting effluents
- Almost 70,000 cubic yards of landfill space

"Why On Earth Would You Send Anything Else is our company slogan," said Ray Neufeld, president of Recycled Paper Products (RPP), headquartered in Chicago. "It is a question we should all ask ourselves not only at Christmas, the top season for greeting card sales, but all year long."

"Hallmark, American Greetings and Gibson Greetings are the Big Three card manufacturers," said Neufeld, whose company ranks number four. In 1971, RPP started its business with 19 designs of boxed Christmas cards printed on recycled paper. Today, as the fourth largest greeting card company, RPP remains the only major company that offers a complete line of Christmas cards printed on recycled paper.

"We're seeing a movement in the '90s toward a more concerned and caring customer," said Kristin Jungles, product manager for RPP's seasonal lines. "That translates into consumers wanting to buy environmentally-sensitive products. Individually, they're making small choices that will have a big impact over time. This year we're seeing an increase in our Christmas card sales. We feel that this is due, at least in part, to the fact that our cards are printed on recycled paper."

"In 1971, our commitment was to offer an alternative in the greeting card industry - an alternative to traditional designs and an alternative to virgin stock paper," said Mike Keiser, one of the company's two founders. "For years, people have bought our cards because of the humor and art. Now, they're buying them because it's the right thing for the environment."

'The Nutcracker' attracts national, international dancers

The 24th annual production of Chicago Tribune Charities Fund's "The Nutcracker" will feature nationally and internationally renowned ballet stars when it opens at Chicago's Aric Crown Theatre, McCormick Place on the Lake, Friday, Dec. 7, at 7 p.m.

The performances will highlight Yoko Ichino and David Nixon, both principal dancers with the Munich Ballet. Petra Adelfang and Marnard Stewart of Ballet Chicago; Michael Bjerknes, formerly of the Washington Ballet and Janet Shibata of the Washington Ballet; and Lee Cunxin and Janie Parker of the Houston Ballet are just a few of the other featured performers who will join some 87 Chicago-area children on stage this year for the world's largest production of the holiday classic.

The Chicago Tribune Charities Fund, a funding of the Robert R. McCormick Tribune Foundation, is sponsoring the 1990 production of "The Nutcracker." "The Nutcracker" has been presented for over two decades, and the proceeds have been distributed for charitable purposes. Proceeds from this year's performance of "The Nutcracker" will benefit literacy programs throughout Chicagoland to help adults and youths learn to read, and programs in Chicago's neighborhoods focusing on jobs, economic, housing and community development.

"The Nutcracker" runs from Dec. 7 through Dec. 30 at the Aric Crown Theatre. All evening performances are at 7 p.m., and all matinee performances are at 2 p.m. Evening performances are Wednesday through Sunday (except Sunday, Dec. 23, and Sunday, Dec. 30) with a special Tuesday, Dec. 18 performance. Matinee performances are scheduled for Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Tickets, priced for the family, are $28, $25, $22, $20, $18, $16, $12, and $11. They are available at the Aric Crown box office, all Ticketron outlets or by calling (312) 390-1919. Groups of 20 or more receive a 10 percent discount Tuesday through Friday. For group sales, call (312) 791-6190.

Women in management plan holiday benefit

The North Shore and Chicago Loop Chapters of Women in Management will celebrate the Christmas holidays with a party combined with a benefit for the St. Martin de Porres House of Hope, a private non-profit shelter for homeless women and children in the city of Chicago.

Sister Connie Driscoll, director of St. Martin de Porres, will be the main speaker at the benefit. This special event will be held on Dec. 12, at 5:30 p.m., at the Hotel Nikko, 320 N. Dearborn, Chicago. Cost of the event is $35. For reservations call (312) 419-0171.

St. Martin de Porres is one of only two completely private shelters for the homeless in the city of Chicago. Programs at the home include drug and alcohol abuse counseling, life-skills training, stress counseling, literacy training, among others.

Women in Management has shown their support by sponsoring a holiday benefit for St. Martin de Porres for the last several years.

Factors to consider before buying pets

If the purchase of a new pet made it onto your Holiday list, here are some alternatives to consider first, according to the Chicago Veterinary Medical Association.

The environment should rank high in your considerations, according to Dr. Emil Baukert, president of CVMA. "Consider any restrictions within the household. If grandma and baby are part of the homelife, a St. Bernard puppy may be too large for the family to live with happily."

Allergy considerations, if they trouble a family member, are also an important matter. Ascertain the tolerance levels of the members with allergies is prudent before selecting any particular breed of dog or cat, says Dr. Baukert.

"If you live in an apartment with limited yard space, you may want to consider a smaller pet or one able to be paper-trained," says that doctor of 13 years. Researching different breeds can play an important part in the success of the proposed pet-owner relationship. Talking to local veterinarians can answer questions or personality and health characteristics of various breeds. Deciding on whether you want a male or female should be part of the "breed" decision, as well.

Finding out where to purchase the pet can pose problems, according to Dr. Baukert. Researching germane publications, asking for recommendations from the American Kennel Club and your local veterinarian all are good sources for finding a purebred animal. Locations to find mixed breeds include the Pound and animal shelters, but "you need to know that allergies, yard space and purebredness are not concerns of your particular family environment," says Dr. Baukert.

"With a mixed breed you may not know the breeds involved and the adult size to anticipate until too late."

Dr. Cairo advises one more step - to decide beforehand that the animal will be trained to behave perfectly at home. "If you set the standard at perfection, that's what you'll get. If the standard is anything less, you'll live with an animal whose behavior is less than what you desire."

Popularity of board games on the rise

In the past, board games were designed to promote virtue and values, but in recent years, they have focused more on promoting licensed characters and television shows, says a Loyola University Chicago game researcher.

However, the toy industry forecasts for Christmas 1990 may be signalling a change in the priorities of the American game-playing public.

According to "The Toy Book", a monthly trade publication, game sales are continuing their steady four year climb, and this year, favorites like Monopoly, Scrabble and Bingo will be the big sellers. In 1986, game sales dropped to $624 million after a high of $1.43 billion in 1985. By last year, sales had made a steady climb back up to $832 million.

The Director of Loyola's Center for Instructional Design, Victor Edmonds, Ph.D., has studied the structure of numerous old games looking for patterns and methods that could be adapted and applied to the Center's innovative computerized teaching technology.

In Colonial days, board games were considered an evil and sinful waste of time, said Edmonds. But after the Civil War, games that promoted Christian values came into fashion.

"Games like Mansion of Happiness and The New Game of Virtue Rewarded and Vice Punished, were purchased by parents who hoped to instill strong values and high morality in their children," he said. Mansion of Happiness, for example, was invented by the daughter of a cler-gyman, and the game was thought to be morally instructive. The players' goal was to reach moral happiness.

"Around the turn of the century, games began to focus more on teaching economic theory," said Edmonds. The Landlord's Game was one of these. Different versions existed for different cities, including Chicago, and eventually, it evolved into Monopoly, the most popular commercial board game ever.

"Monopoly taught that capitalism works, and that was something people really needed to hear during the Depression. In Scrabble (which came a little later) winning depended on making the most of what fate brought your way - sort of a microcosm of life," said Edmonds.

"One of the big appeals of games is that they are by their very definition concerned with success. A game sets a goal and defines steps to the achievement of this goal," said Edmonds. "In the world of a game, a player knows just what he's after. Good games create a small world in which success and the means to attain it are crystal clear."

"It's not surprising that board games like Monopoly and Scrabble are big sellers this Christmas," he said. "I think they remind us of simpler days, even if those days were the Depression. People want to be assured again that capitalism works - even in the face of oil wars and savings and loan scandals. They give us a definition of success, and it's something we can achieve in a few hours in the company of friends."

Animal Rescue group sells Christmas cards

Community Animal Rescue Effort (C.A.R.E.), the volunteer group for the Evanston Animal Shelter, is selling special holiday greeting cards to benefit the dogs and cats at their shelter.

Designed especially for C.A.R.E. by talented midwest artist Brent Veysey, the two-color cards show a puppy and kitten looking longingly at a wrapped present. The greeting inside the card says, "Warmest holiday wishes to all creatures great and small." On the bottom of the facing page, in smaller type, a message states "This card represents a contribution to Community Animal Rescue Effort/C.A.R.E. for the Evanston Animal Shelter."

C.A.R.E.'s marketing coordinator Dee Pannier said that the organization felt that offering special cards during the holiday season would give animal lovers a chance to spread the word about C.A.R.E. and the Shelter and, at the same time, benefit the hundreds of dogs and cats rescued and rehabilitated there each year. Pannier said that the cards sell for $6 per package (10 cards/10 envelopes) and that $5.50 from every package sold would go directly for the care of Shelter animals.

C.A.R.E. greeting cards are being sold at the Evanston Animal Shelter during regular adoption hours (M-Th, 6-8 p.m., Sat-Sun, noon-5 p.m.). Or, interested parties may call the C.A.R.E. 24-hour hotline (708) 614-2138 to receive a mail-order form.

Skokie man scopes out track in Scotland

Marine Corps Corporal Eric Fliszar relaxes at Edzell castle in Scotland. Fliszar, the son of Gladys Fliszar of Skokie, has worked at the Security Group here since 1988 and has been actively involved in Scottish National track events. Fliszar is a 1988 graduate of Niles North High School.

by Cherrie Beatty

Marine Corps Corporal Eric Fliszar says his life's on track both personally and professionally but that should come as no surprise to the people who knew him in Niles and his hometown of Skokie.

Fliszar, the son of Gladys Fliszar of Skokie was a familiar face in the track and field winners circle in Illinois, placing third in the state finals in pole vaulting, and holding conference records as well as being named the sectional champion in track in 1988. But after graduating in 1988 from Niles North High School, Fliszar took a job off the cinders, turning down a college scholarship to join an outfit with a track record of a different sort.

"Right after high school I joined the Marines," says Fliszar. "I was recruited by the University of Illinois but I didn't want to go to college. I was sick of school. I liked the thought of adventure and doing crazy stuff like rappelling and enlisted."

Fliszar found that in addition to "crazy stuff" the Marines planned to teach him a special skill and that is how he came to be stationed in a small, remote village, Edzell, Scotland.

"This (Edzell) was my first duty station after I graduated from school at Fort Devins, Mass. I'm a trained communications operator and manual Morse code interceptor. I've been working at the security group since 1988," he says. "When my mother came over here last July she really liked Scotland, maybe because she's from a small town too."

Although Fliszar describes his work schedule as interesting but tiring, working as he does on rotational shifts, he's found time to

Social Security depends on current addresses

Social Security beneficiaries risk suspension of their benefits if they fail to inform the Social Security Administration when they move, Thomas A. Curin, Social Security manager in Des Plaines, said recently.

Every year Social Security Benefit Statements (SSA-1099's) are sent to beneficiaries by first class mail. If the post office returns the form as undeliverable mail, benefits may be suspended, Curin said.

In 1989, over 100,000 SSA-1099's were returned by the post continue his love of track and field.

"My watch schedule doesn't always go well with my training," Fliszar admits, "but the command supports me very good."

"The track and field competition here isn't quite up to the levels you would find in the states but being on a track team is a great way to meet people and experience a different way of life. I get to travel a lot with the team and I've made quite a few Scottish friends."

Fliszar placed third in the 1989 Scottish Nationals in his specialty of the pole vault and has taken quite a number of firsts in Scottish Athletic Association competition. He trains and competes with the Dundee Hawkhill Harriers, but also has ambitions to win one for the corps.

"I've sent in my application for the all-Marine team. That would really be great if I could get on it," says Fliszar who has taken the Marine motto "Semper Paratus" to heart.

Although the 21-year-old leatherneck will be returning to the states this November he's started to do some long-range planning, rather like career map reading, another "crazy thing" he learned to do while in Marine Corps camouflage uniform.

"In 1993 I have to make a decision about whether to stay in the Corps. I think I'm ready to get an education now. I think I'd like to teach art and maybe coach track. Right now though I'm still undecided. I've had a great time in Scotland. The Corps gave me an opportunity to do something many people will never have the chance to do."

Most of the people whose 1099's were returned receive benefits through direct deposit. Social Security was able to locate most of the beneficiaries through contacts with financial institutions, post offices, and additional mailings. About 8,000 people could not be located and had their benefits suspended.

To report a change of address or direct deposit information, contact Social Security. The telephone number is 1(800)234-5554. Call Monday-Friday, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Letters To The Editor

Consequences of leaving leaves on village streets

Dear Editor:

What a few short years ago might have been considered an unsightly clutter of our village streets is now being hailed as an ecological break-through! Because of the choked conditions of the area landfills, Niles residents are being asked to LEAVE their LEAVES by the street curbs instead of bagging them for pickup on designated garbage removal days. The theory is that leaves picked up loosely will biologically decay faster than those in bags, even the composting bags used for other lawn and garden refuse. This idea is no doubt quite correct, but every change has its side-effects, and the overall effect of this plan may turn out worse than the problems it is intended to cure.

If not done with a certain amount of care, piling large amounts of leaves curbside could (and is) tending to impede the flow of orderly traffic on some village thoroughfares. Perhaps in protest to the policy changes, some residents have even been piling leaves in the middle of the street! Simply pushing the leaves off of the lawn and onto the curb area can also have other negative side-effects; if we were to have a particularly heavy downpour, what would happen to a goodly number of these leaves? Would we then have to spend thousands of dollars to have our sewer systems cleaned up? Assuming the leaves make it thru the sewer system, where would they end up, in the rivers or perhaps the lake? Has anyone in power addressed these issues competently? We've also been warned to avoid parking over dry leaves along the curbside in order to quell possible fires from the very high temperatures generated by the catalytic converters used on today's cars

(the catalytic converter will actually glow red in the dark of night), but how is that possible with so many leaves raked off the curb by homeowners only doing what they are told they should do? If the leaves are raked into piles on the street itself, isn't this what the attorney's call "an attractive nuisance" to our youngsters to play in and place themselves in the line of street traffic in many instances?

Obviously these are difficult questions that defy any easy solution, but perhaps they should be addressed BEFORE they become tragedies. Quite honestly, this is the reason that we hire "experts" to manage our village's affairs. They have the time, resources and the power to effect changes for the better, not just for a new set of problems!

New management at Tower Garden

The Tower Garden Restaurant and Banquet Pavilion has been the choice of millions of patrons, and their friends, families, business associates, celebrities and even a President of the United States for nearly six decades.

Founded in 1934, by Mr. Roy Getchow, the new ownership continues the tradition, as Lee Getchow, the grandson of our founder retains a seat on the board of directors.

In 1975, a modern banquet facility, which accommodates up to 200 guests was added. Our garden theme is continued in our banquet pavilion by the use of natural brick, skylights, and hanging foliage, which gives the room an open airy feeling so important when entertaining large groups.

The Rathauskeller, with its huge stone fireplace and solid wood paneling has a warm, intimate atmosphere, perfect for smaller parties, business lunches or dinner.

Unique to the North Shore is our secluded outdoor patio which offers dining al fresco.

The Tower Gardens excellence has been consistently recognized by the Holiday Awards. Working with Chef Herbert, we have created an exciting new menu, incorporating many of the award winning favorites that have been so successful with our patrons in the past and innovate new recipes emphasizing lighter sauces and a more colorful presentation in the preparation of more healthful American offerings to tempt even the most discriminating palate.

To enhance your dining experience our wine cruvinet, one of the largest in the country, contains a variety of wine by the glass, specifically selected to compliment our new menu and offer our guests a wide range of choice.

The new management of Tower Garden is committed to remaining an integral part of the North Shore community, planning many special events, promotions and fund raisers for the coming year.

Oakton professor has cure for 'Creative Blues'

As Denis Berkson took the podium at Northwestern University's Morris Center McCormick Auditorium, he saw a capacity-filled crowd of professionals in business suits stare at him. He asked himself, "How can I make them think rubber duckies?" Have you ever seen 350 shift brain modes at the same time?

The presenter is a professor of communications and chairman of the Performing Arts Department at Oakton Community College. The scene is the 44th annual Northwestern University Invitational Personnel Conference attended by high-ranking business executives from companies throughout the country, including fortune 500 companies.

Berkson's challenge is to convey to these trend-setters of tomorrow how creativity can change business as usual to unusually creative business, and how to relieve those "I'm not Creative Blues." Settings like this are stumping ground to this after hours professor to demonstrate his game plan: "Wordplay and Associates," a new creative venture Berkson started two years ago. This Mt. Prospect-based private company founded by him specializes in only one area of communication: "The way you talk to yourself... or how to get your 'out of' what you have within you," explains Berkson, who is often referred to as "The Creative Crusader."

In simple terms, the name of the game is creativity, the ultimate contact sport, as Berkson calls it. His "no-assembly required" Creative Survival Kit includes techniques and strategies for enhancing imagination, sharpening sensory skills and establishing the freedom to play. This, Berkson says, brings increased creativity into personal and professional life. "People already have the imagination. But their thinking process usually takes a set pattern and they tend to weave a web and like the fly, they usually get stuck," says Berkson, a Wilmette resident, who commands over 20 years of experience in the art of public speaking. "He does not just give a seminar, but creates an entire experience," said Adie Zuckerman, Berkson's Wordplay associate. Wordplay evolved out of Berkson's own experience in working with people, and his "tested and proven" formulas.

Some of Berkson's concepts were derived from the Creative Mind, a literary book written by his great grandfather, Andre Bergson, who won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1927.

Berkson has presented his "game plan" to audiences ranging from school and college students to civic organizations and corporate executives with overwhelming success and raving reviews.

Preparing homes for winter sales

Traditionally, home sales have taken a downward turn during the harsh, winter months. Dirty snow and slush, lack of sunlight and cold temperatures can cause a beautiful home to look less appealing.

By taking a few simple steps you can make your home stand out from the crowd and prime it for a quick winter sale, according to several of the leading sales Associates from RE/MAX of Northern Illinois.

Dec DeVillie, with RE/MAX Suburban in Arlington Heights, says that a well-groomed and attractive home can provide that essential contrast to the barren winter weather.

"The seller has to make the front of the home as attractive as possible because it's the first thing a potential buyer sees," adds DeVillie. "The walkways should be shoveled, with no icy patches, debris should be removed from trees and bushes, and a colorful welcome sign placed near the front door adds brightness."

Also recommending brightness is Patty Ancona, with RE/MAX Crossroads in Rolling Meadows.

"I set the house ablaze with light during the winter," says Ancona. "Lighting the fireplace, turning on the outdoor and the indoor lamps and opening curtains and drapes help combat the effect of dreary, overcast days."

If possible, Ancona advises sellers to lighten up on decorating the interior of their homes.

"Lighter colors and carpeting make rooms look larger and provide a soothing, comfortable atmosphere," she says. "You can do this on a large scale with new furniture or carpeting, or on a smaller scale with new lamp shades, a pale rug or light-colored accessories."

Of course, keeping lighter colors clean is especially difficult in the winter, so occasional touch-ups and spot cleaning may be necessary.

With the inside and outside of your home looking its winter best, don't forget to check the "practical" items in your home which may need maintenance or repair.

"While buyers may like the look and feel of the home, they want to be assured that it has been adequately maintained," says Doti Ellis, with RE/MAX Properties Northwest in Park Ridge. "I recommend making a checklist and inspecting the home thoroughly."

According to Ellis, that checklist should include:

- Plug drafts coming from windows or doors;
- Remove window air conditioners, or covering non-removal window units;
- Inspect electrical outlets, switches and pipes;
- Examine heaters, sump pumps, water softeners and electric garage openers;
- Clean and lubricate hinges and locks.

Designers complete cabinetry school

Edmund L. Zielinski, C.K.D. and Alan W. Zielinski of Better Kitchens, Inc. at 7640 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Niles have just completed the Wood-Mode Advanced School for custom cabinetry specialists held at the company training center. It was conducted by the training director, Don O'Connor.

Enrollment in this course is restricted to experienced designers, and according to Edmund Zielinski, is one of the more comprehensive in the industry. It covers not only specialty kitchen design, but also areas such as color coordination, lighting and period styling. Additional time is spent on techniques for designing custom cabinetry in other rooms of the house, e.g. family rooms and bedrooms. Students are expected to solve both on-the-spot layout problems and a complex homework assignment.

The Zielinskis are qualified to design and coordinate the installation of custom cabinetry throughout the entire home.

Skokie company helps reduce pollution

Ohmite Manufacturing Company has introduced a new degreaser unit that helped Ohmite Manufacturing Company to reduce toxic air emissions by more than 50 percent.

Illinois Governor James Thompson has recognized Ohmite Manufacturing Company of Skokie as one of the top ten Illinois companies and organizations who have made outstanding efforts in the reduction of hazardous waste, it was announced recently by Max Sanders, president of Ohmite.

Ohmite, the first company to introduce surface mount power resistors to the passive electronic components industry, was presented the Governor's Pollution Award during the Earth Week 1990 ceremonies.

Ohmite's new, low-hazard degreasing operation, which uses a special degreasing unit installed in 1989, has reduced toxic air emissions, conserved energy, reduced water usage and lowered employee exposure to fumes. In addition, the new degreaser guards against potentially hazardous decomposition of solvent by protecting against low liquid levels.

Sanders said the degreaser is just one of Ohmite's planned environment improvements. The company has traditionally worked to secure safe manufacturing practices.

Ohmite Manufacturing Company is located at 3601 Heward St., Skokie. The awards were administered by the Hazardous Waste Research and Information Center, a division of the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

Sewer line...

sewer system into separate storm and sanitary components of which storm water is fed into the Chicago River.

Both Harter Park and residents in the Parkview neighborhood plagued by flooding problems should benefit from the changes.

There will be at least two points where the park drainage system will be tied into the new storm sewer and the necessary drainage will be provided for the new North Parking area proposed for the park.

Park officials hope to coincide the Harter Park renovation project with the sewer work.

In other business, the board voted to issue $990,000 of general obligation bonds and to impose a levy on taxpayers over the next two years to cover the principal and interest on the bonds.

The board agreed to issue the two-year maturity bonds to the First National Bank of Morton Grove in October at a 6.25 percent interest rate on $325,000 worth of bonds due December, 1991 and a 6.30 percent interest rate on bonds worth $665,000

Taxpayers will be levied $387,207.50 for the 1990 tax year and $706,895 for 1991.

Ken Swan, finance director for the park district, said the levy should have only a minimal impact on taxpayers' bills. Swan estimates the levy will only add two or three cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The Equalized Assessed Valuation figures will not be known until August, 1991.

The bonds will help finance improvements including the $765,000 redevelopment of Harter Park, playground equipment replacement, resurfacing basketball courts, a new park squad car, a new activity bus and tree replacements.

In another matter, park board members agreed to annex the Mobil Oil gas station at 7951 W. Golf Road. This action brings the property to the park district tax rolls.

The property is adjacent to the Highland Square shopping center and was annexed by the village earlier this year.

sponse to the 12,000 surveys mailed to residents asking, among other things, for their input on programming. Several programs have been cancelled because of low registration.

Commissioner Elaine Heinen suggested a way to be found to lower program fees for non-residents. Because non-resident fees are so high, many who would join park programs are turned off and the low registration rates cause cancellations. Commissioner Carol Panek objected, saying the park district's only concern is the Niles taxpaying body, not non-residents. Commissioner Heinen suggested the district re-evaluate its programs and later said program fees might be lowered all-around.

President Walter Beusse noted the district sometimes subsidizes a popular program threatened with cancellation because of low registration. Commissioner Heinen responded "We'd have to do it a lot" and pointed to a "Wellness" program as an example. Commissioners agreed another survey could better gauge residents' likes.

Turning to other subjects, Commissioner Heinen praised the compromise solution worked out by the park staff, the Tiny Toddlers' mothers and the Senior Men's Fitness group for the use of Grennen Heights gym.

The commissioner read a letter of resignation from Maggie Deutsch, long-time adult fitness instructor. Effective Dec. 6, Deutsch concludes 14 and-one-half years with the district. She cited "expanding private work" as her reason for leaving.

President Beusse reported Niles participation in M-NASR activities has dwindled in the spring and summer period. He had asked about Niles partici-ipates a loss of $69 million if it must close, rather than sell, centers located outside the Chicagoland area. Add to that figure a reported $17 million loss from the shuttering of Lutheran General Hospital/Lincoln Park, last year. Stevens said officials are "predicting the worst," but hoping it will be better.

As the parent organization, LGHCS includes Parkside Medical Services, Senior Services and Lutheran General Hospital, Stevens explained. Since the health system's inception 30 years ago, it has grown to be the country's largest non-profit supplier of treatment for substance abuse. Parkside facilities in the Chicagoland record a 60 percent occupancy.

Typically, substance abuse patients undergo primary treatment at Parkside Lutheran Hospital or at a Parkside lodge in Mundelein or DuPage County. After a 28-day program and a sobriety period, patients usually graduate to a residential center such as the Parkside lodges or the Youth Center in Park Ridge. Occasion-

A traffic sign was also damaged in the accident and a court date of Dec. 28 has been set with the charges of disobeying a red light and damage to village property.

The initial clean-up operation caused some serious traffic delays on both Oakton Street and on Waukegan Road for sometime following the accident.

Social security furnishes helpful information

The Social Security Administration has revised the earnings and benefits statement that they send to workers who request an earnings history, advises tax accountant Joan C. LeValley. The statement will contain:

- A yearly breakdown of wages you've earned and payments you've made in to Social Security.
- An estimate of your disability and survivors' benefits.
- An estimate of your retirement benefit at ages 62 and 65 using your projection of future earnings.
- A calculation of the number of credits you'll need for retirement, disability and survivor benefits.

LeValley recommends that you keep track of your earnings over the years by double-checking with Social Security periodically and using their "Request for Statement of Earnings" form.

A tax accountant can help you with any Social Security problems you might have. Contact him or her or LeValley at (708) 825-3857. She is a member of the Independent Accountants Association of Illinois and has offices at 841 Touhy Ave., Park Ridge.

Wells' risked having its IEPA operating permits revoked if it continued emitting organic and particulate emissions at levels which reportedly were harmful as well as foul-smelling, according to sampling reports.

The company has agreed to install various scrubbers, dust collectors and diverters to trap and reduce the emissions. Air quality will be monitored by the IEPA via tests which will be undertaken at least annually.

Tips for safe fall driving

by Jim Edgar

The return to Central Standard Time means that many motorists are driving home from work in the dark for the first time in months. Driving habits should be adjusted and safety precautions reviewed to compensate for reduced visibility.

First, be sure other drivers can see you. Clean your headlights, taillights, turn signals and brake lights and make sure they are working properly. Headlights should be aligned correctly to help identify potential hazards.

Illinois law requires headlights to be lighted from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise. They also must be lighted at any time when insufficient light or bad weather make it impossible to see vehicles and pedestrians clearly from 1,000 feet.

A good traffic safety idea this time of year is to turn your headlights on as soon as it starts to get dark. You should also slow down and increase your following distance at dusk. Be sure to dim your headlights both for oncoming vehicles and for the car ahead of you. Do not drive at dusk with parking lights only.

In residential areas, watch for children playing near the street who may not realize that your visibility has been reduced. The earlier darkness also makes it important for parents to dress children in light-colored clothing. For increased safety, coats and jackets can be decorated with reflector tape.

box with unknown quantities of the drugs and kept asking for dilaudid and demerol (pain relievers).

His companion kept saying, "That's enough, Harry, let's go, Harry. The guys are waiting for us outside." They warned the employees to keep their heads down, not to call police and count to 1,000. One woman stole a look from a window and got a partial description and license number of a car outside, but it is uncertain if it was the getaway car.

Both men wore denim jackets and jeans and wore of medium height, one had short brown hair, the other's was shaggy brown and he wore a mustache. One man's face was pock-marked and both spoke with a slight southern accent.

dent pro tem, a petition containing 97 signatures opposing the location of the facility.

Several residents spoke of alternate sites. Jay Wolff, who lives immediately north of the site on Cumberland Avenue, suggested the ice rink property, west of Cumberland Avenue. Manager Selman reported he had contacted the district school board and had been turned down. A suggestion for an area north of Builders Square, 9000 Gold Road, turned out to be unusable because it's designated a water retention area by the state.

One of two suggestions by a resident that politics influenced the choice of the site drew a sharp rejoinder from attorney Troy and Trustee James Mahoney joined in. Troy warned "You come very close to slander...I, for one, (will not) put up with this."

Shirley Nicolai, 9091 Cumberland Ave., complained she gets three feet of water near the back easement and asked whether the new facility would have a worsening effect. Trustees agreed the facility would neither lessen nor worsen the problem of flooding in the area.

Dunkelberg noted the water that currently ponds on the site is a concern and said the engineers may decide to collect water behind the Ballard Center and drain it by pipe to Cumberland Avenue. The IEPA requires guarantees the storm water won't leach into the drinking water system. Officials agreed there was a flooding problem in the area, but it should be handled as a separate issue.

Resident George Zachary, 9061 Cumberland Ave., worried about damage to his home if pilings are driven.

Zachary inquired if the village would "fund the impact on property owners." President Murphy said the project is "adding to the attractiveness" of the area.

Keith Peck, director of Public Works, summed up the village perspective when he called the facility a "quiet neighbor, open space and no extra traffic."

On a motion by Trustee Jeffrey Arnold, the board unanimously voted to continue plans for the water facility as re-designed.
