Northwest Municipal mayors vote to dismantle Nortran

by Nancy Keraminas

Nortran will cease to exist as an independent agency following a Nov. 26 vote by 25 suburban mayors and presidents to allow PACE to take over administration of mass transit matters.

The vote formalized a phasing out trend since the beginning of the year but will have little impact on users, according to Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, one of the members of the Nortran board.

"The agency will be mothballed, so to speak, as of the end of December," Blase explained. "Basically, there's no change that the average bus rider will notice."

Initial funds approved for 9-1-1 system

by Sheilya Hackett

The Niles Board of Trustees on Nov. 27 approved spending $300,000 to proceed on the village's new 9-1-1 emergency dispatch system. Trustee James Mahoney gained permission to have a working design created and to go out to bid on construction of the center by February, 1991.

The action came after President Nicholas Blase complained the village was misled by several telephone companies who understated the cost of 9-1-1. He said, "We were misled about what this would cost... We're talking $100,000 a year for maintenance." He added, "We're in it, but we're bugged about what we're hearing about costs." Art Yefsky, consulting engineer on the project, said most communities have established a $1.25 a line surcharge and Kenilworth, anticipating rising costs, went to $5. Niles bills a $1 surcharge for 9-1-1.

Trustee Mahoney said costs have risen $900,000 more since the 9-1-1 referendum in 1986. Current estimates put the cost of the entire project at slightly over one million dollars, with projections of $300,000 for construction; $800,000 for equipment and $100,000 for maintenance, Mahoney indicated. Niles is expected to be hearing about what

Signs of Christmas ...

Perhaps when you pass the 60 year old mark you get out of step with the passing parade. Or perhaps you lose your sense of balance or your sense of humor.

A couple of weeks ago when we were in Madrid, we were in the downtown shopping center surrounded by all the decorations of Christmas. It was Saturday afternoon, and shoppers were jamming the stores, just as they were here at home. Christmas music could be heard as you wandered from store to store. But, as we walked into the center of a mall, we heard a trumpet and a drum in loud syncopation as we approached an intersection. Near the corner a 40 year old man was playing crystal clear notes on his trumpet. Some 20 feet away, a rather bored-looking blond lady was alternately banging on two drums, one atop the other. And between the musicians was a four foot step-ladder, with an eight inch wide diameter cylinder atop the ladder and a goat balancing his four feet on the cylinder. As the musicians played their cacophony, the goat slowly turned on the cylinder. And below the goat, in front of the ladder, two terribly forlorn three and four year old ragamuffins had tambourines in their hands, using them for collection plates to capture the pesetas which were dropped into them.

Four Flags store receives bomb threat

Service Merchandise stores in two north suburban locations received bomb threats last weekend.

Niles police were summoned to the Niles store at 8303 Golf Road, after a receptionist reportedly received a call from an adult male who said a bomb would go off in the store at 12:15 p.m. Nov. 24.

When asked the location of the device the caller reportedly responded, "It's a surprise."

Police discussed various options with the store manager who contacted his district manager for authorization. Because the chain's Skokie store had received a similar threat, the Niles store was evacuated and the area sealed

Childhood memories spur woodcarver's creations

by Sheilya Hackett

The horses leap, nostrils flared. A frog sits crouched and a gangling giraffe chases a pig. The lifelike figures, frozen in action, circle a colorful, wooden carousel. They are the artistry of Morton Grove resident Joe Veracka who carves as a hobby and teaches others his skills. Look back to his childhood and you'll find the lights and sounds of a small town merry-go-round.

Sitting and whittling around a campfire as the sun sets behind the trees sounds like a scene from Tom Sawyer. But when Veracka was a kid, he lived on a Massachusetts farm. Most evenings he, his brother, uncle and grandad could be found at their "hobo club" campfire, whittling, roasting hot dogs or just fooling around.

Perhaps three times a summer, he'd go to nearby Avon for the chance to ride a carousel. It was a memory he kept in the back of his mind.

Daytimes, for nearly 15 years, Veracka hustled, pumping the bellows for his grandad's fire as the older man worked as a blacksmith. He learned, second hand, while his grandad fixed plows or repaired harnesses. He grew to appreciate hands-on skills and craftsmanship. His boyhood on the farm laid the foundation for his current avocation of wood carving, but it was a skill put aside for many years.

As an adult and after navy service in World War II and Korea, Veracka tried restoring old furniture and antiques as a hobby, but found the objects too big and bulky for his frequent travels.

His fascination with wood continued and he gradually drifted back to whittling and honing his carving skills. He tried a few duck decoys and human figures. He recalls a full-bodied sea captain was his hardest effort, but when he finished, he thought it "the ugliest thing I ever saw."

In his effort to find his own niche and find subjects he enjoyed carving, he came upon a hand-worked carousel. In his words, he was "hit like a ton of bricks," and today, carving miniature carousels is his passion.

In a typical project, nine animals—not to scale—circle the three foot bed of the lighted merry-go-rounds while a concealed tape recorder plays carnival tunes. Each figure is painstakingly hand painted, whether a pony, rooster or hippocampus—a mythical creature, half horse, half fish, with a double-ended tail.

Pursuing his hobby, he's turned his Morton Grove garage into "Veracka's Carousel Barn" and occasionally takes assignments on commission. He's worked a series of four Tahitian gods for a Chicago supply house.

Drop-off points for Armed Forces gifts

The Chicago Chapter of the Third Marine Division is continuing to collect items needed by service personnel stationed in Saudi Arabia, which are in short supply. The items will be distributed to service personnel who are currently unable to procure them because of their military position near the Kuwaiti border.

All items that have been donated to date will be distributed to the troops in time for the holidays. The collections will continue indefinitely and these donations will continue to be distributed to the service personnel.

Required items listed by the Marine Corps consist of toothpaste, toilet paper, lip balm; hard candy, books, magazines, AA batteries for transistor radios; cassette players, shampoo, disposable razors, foot powder, tea bags, Kool Aid and Gatorade. The last three items are used to flavor the drinking water.

Drop-off points in Niles continue to be Minelli Bros., 7780 Milwaukee Ave.; The Bugle Newspapers, 8746 N. Shermer Road; Village of Niles Administration Building, 7601 Milwaukee Ave.; Niles Trident Senior Center, 8060 N. Oakton St.; and the Niles Police Department, 7200 Waukegan Road.

Special boxes will be provided at all these locations and the items will be picked up periodically by Marine Corps personnel.

MG trustees refuse to vacate right-of-way

by Nancy Keraminas

Morton Grove will not abandon its 30-year claim to a dedicated right-of-way area running through former District 70 school property now owned and operated by the Muslim Community Center (MCC) at 8601 N. Menard Ave. despite an MCC claim that the dedication was improperly executed.

Neither will the village remove signs stipulating that right-of-way, according to the village's corporation counsel Jordan Kaplan. Kaplan cited historical, financial and public works considerations as factors.

"The signs were put up there to clarify the situation," Kaplan asserted. "The right-of-way could

Niles Park District studies program fees

by Sheilya Hackett

Are high non-resident fees tied into a low registration for Niles Park District programs? To find out, park officials are studying neighboring districts and organizations to see if Niles is offering similar programs on a competitive level.

At a recent park board meeting, Commissioner Elaine Heinen suggested an evaluation of programs to determine if the cost of non-resident fees is a factor. She explained if non-residents they don't apply because of high fees, Niles residents suffer when classes are cancelled.

Shortening sessions from 15 to seven weeks or lowered fees, all around, were also alternatives, Heinen said.

Non-resident fees are one-and-a-half times those paid by residents, according to Superintendent of Recreation Nancie Bolland. Park Director Tom Lippert said the park staff recommends fees to the park board after determining what competitions are charging and whether revenues cover the cost of the program.

The park district sometimes subsidizes programs, noted Board President Walter Beusse, but "it's the exception to the rule," and usually applies to recreation programs. He said if a starting program "doesn't take off" the first year and the staff gets strong feedback of resident interest, the course might be given more promotion and subsidized for another year. Basically, Beusse said, the board "looks forward to having programs break even."

Burglars strike MG homes on Thanksgiving

Burglars hit four and possibly five Morton Grove homes on Thanksgiving day. A small German Shepherd dog may have been the only witness when an unknown offender smashed an 8" x 10" door window to gain entry to a house in the 9100 block of Mason Avenue.

The homeowner told police, although her dog was present, she lost a necklace and pendant valued at $300. She estimated damage to the window at $25.

In the 9000 block, burglars kicked in a kitchen door to enter a house and steal a pearl ring and earrings valued at $200.

A witness heard a loud noise near the kitchen door late that night, but thought the door had slammed. Damage to the door was estimated at $300.

In the 9000 block of Meade Avenue, an unknown offender pryed open a door knob lock in a house and searched two upstairs bedrooms. The owner must still inventory his losses.

The Illinois Department of Insurance has added two new service units to its Senior Health Insurance Program (SHIP) in Cook County: Edgewater Medical Center in Chicago, (312) 334-3095 and St. Francis Hospital of Evanston in Evanston, (708) 492-2255.

The units are staffed by community volunteers trained to provide free counseling service to senior citizens who have problems or questions about Medicare and other health insurance. "SHIP volunteers receive 25 hours of initial training in all aspects of health insurance pertaining to the senior population, as well as additional training on a bimonthly basis," said SHIP Program Director Bernadette Nolan.

"Rising health care costs, coupled with frequent changes in Medicare benefits, the variety of insurance products being marketed and the paperwork involved with filing claims, can make decisions about health insurance overwhelming," said Insurance Director Zack Stamp. "SHIP provides seniors a unique opportunity to discuss their insurance problems on a personalized level without the concern that someone will take advantage of them or try to sell them something."

Park Ridge gets storm water grant

Kustra announced approval, by Governor Thompson, of $200,000 in state funding for the improvement project.

Funding of two Park Ridge storm water projects for a total of $200,000 has been approved by the Governor's Office, according to State Sen. Bob Kustra (R-28, Park Ridge).

Kustra said the money comes from the Build Illinois Program and will be used to improve the storm water and sewer retention systems in Mayfield Estates and the Carol Street-Crain Street neighborhoods to prevent flooding.

For the Mayfield subdivision, a small sewer collection system with catchbasins is planned to allow pumping out of the Lundergan right-of-way after heavy rains. The project is expected to cost $15,000 and is designed to ease flooding at the low end of the subdivision.

Kustra said $185,000 will be spent to install a 60-inch sewer in Crain Street and Carol Street to slow water flow during heavy rainfalls and then release it at a controlled rate into the existing storm sewer. This project will help to prevent severe on-street ponding that can send water into the first floors of homes in the area.

Social Security disability benefits

If you are applying for Social Security disability benefits, the decision as to whether you are disabled under the law is made by the Disability Determination Services office in Illinois.

The decision is made by a team of trained people that includes a physician (or psychologist in the case of mental impairments) and a disability evaluation specialist.

In reaching a decision, every reasonable effort is made to get medical evidence from your own doctor and from hospitals or other facilities where you have been treated. The Government can pay a reasonable fee for any medical reports requested.

The doctors and facilities contacted for this purpose are asked for a summary of your medical history.

If the medical information available from these sources is not enough to permit an evaluation of your condition, a special examination or test may be needed. Social Security will pay for this examination or test, including certain travel expenses that may be required.

Once a decision is reached on your claim, Social Security will send you a written notice advising you of the decision. If your claim is not approved, the notice will tell you the basis for the decision. It will also tell you how you can appeal if you disagree with the decision. If your claim is approved, the notice will tell you when benefits will start and how much you will receive.

More information about Social Security disability benefits can be obtained by calling Social Security's toll-free telephone number, 1 (800) 234-5581 (1 (800) 234-5772). For best service, call early in the morning or early in the evening weekdays.

AN ATTENTION DEFICIT HYPERACTIVITY DISORDER SEMINAR TUESDAY DEC. 4; 7-8:30PM.

Driving precautions during holiday season

The Illinois State Police know that during this time of the year as we're preparing for holiday festivities, no one wants to think about unpleasant matters, especially those as unpleasant as drunk and drugged driving - often a natural outgrowth of our holiday partying and festivities.

But, think about drunk and drugged driving we must, if only to insure that we and those we love don't engage in it inadvertently precipitate a disaster in our community.

In honor of National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week, which is observed this year from Dec. 9-15, let's agree that when we party this season, we're going to adopt the popular idea of electing a designated driver before we go out for the evening. After we're out there, it's too late. This is a sure-fire method for keeping everyone out of trouble, including the innocent driver of the car coming at us from the opposite direction.

But, suppose someone who's already driving comes to your house for holiday celebrating and has a bit too much. Do you get into a fight with them to take away their keys? What do you do? There are the three basic techniques anyone can practice to save an impaired driver: drive your friend home yourself; call a taxi; or let your friend sleep at your house for the night. These lessons are so elementary for the holiday season - and so vital.

They can help save some of those 23,000 lives lost in 1989 to drunk drivers. They can help save some of the 500,000 injured who in 1989 fell victim to drunk drivers.

Trailer safety hints

Vacationing in a travel trailer can be fun and inexpensive. If you pull a travel trailer, use a trailer and hitch that are compatible with your vehicle.

The weight of the trailer must not exceed the maximum load the hitch can pull. For example, Class A hitches can pull a maximum of 2,000 pounds. If that weight is increased, your car's body could buckle and the roof could collapse.

For small cars, check the owner's manual concerning the maximum tow load of your car. The trailer's weight should not exceed the maximum weight your car can pull safely.

Wallets stolen

Someone took a wallet containing $60 cash from an unattended purse while a 38-year-old Niles woman shopped at the Jewel store, 7900 Milwaukee Ave., Nov. 24.

An 87-year-old Chicago woman reported the theft of her wallet, containing $50 cash while she shopped at Terry's Garden Center, 7901 Milwaukee Ave. Her purse was unattended in a cart and she found the zipper closure open and the wallet missing Nov. 24.

Someone reportedly stole a wallet containing $125 cash, while the owner shopped at Jewel at 7900 Milwaukee Avenue, Nov. 20.

Cash stolen in townhouse burglary

Someone with knowledge of the location of $900 cash, broke into a residence in the 7100 block of Greenleaf Avenue by sliding open a door and forcing a locked drawer Nov. 22.

Baby bag missing

The night of Nov. 24, a Chicago woman, 32, left a baby bag in the parking lot in the 6900 block of Dempster Street, Morton Grove.

When she discovered her loss, she returned, but the bag, valued at $30 and containing business checks, credit cards, identification and $40, was gone.

Inexperienced drivers should practice driving with the trailer before a long trip. Adding the trailer's size and weight will increase the time needed for accelerating, stopping, turning and lane changing. Backing up the trailer is difficult for many. Realizing these factors can make a trip with your trailer more enjoyable and less dangerous.

Library launches tutorials in computer catalog usage

The Niles Public Library is offering tutorial instruction in the use of their new "Electronic Card File" system which has totally replaced the older Dewey Decimal System card files.

Valerie Clark, head of reference services at the library, shows Niles resident Charles Sanno how to use the new computer catalog system.

During December the Niles Public Library will be offering its monthly computer catalog classes on Friday, Dec. 7 and Saturday, Dec. 8 at 10:30 a.m. and on Tuesday, Dec. 4 at 7 p.m.

We now have a new computer catalog system that should ease the search for titles, authors and subjects. So, even if you have been to a computer class before, you might want to come back to learn about our much improved system. The classes introduce library users to the computer catalog and demonstrate how it works. A reference librarian will show you how to search the catalog for materials you are interested in finding.

Pee Wee White Rangers

Led by the Drivas brothers the Pee Wee White Rangers bombed Northbrook by the final score of 9 to 1.

John Drivas (3 goals) and Gus Drivas (2 goals) spear headed the victory. They also received plenty of help as six Ranger teammates also scored and nine of the fifteen players registered at least one point.

Pat Cline, Matt Papish and Anthony Colletta each scored 1 goal and 1 assist while Lambros Tragos scored a goal. Jimmy Sikaras and David Christie had a pair of assists each while Peter Sikaras added a solo assist. Ranger goalie Mike Durand turned in a solid performance as he allowed just the one goal late in the first period.

Bantam Rangers beat Winnetka 8-3

Defenseman Jason Jafari led the way with 3 goals and 2 assists as the Bantam Rangers used a 6 goal second period to defeat Winnetka #2 by a final score of 8 to 3.

John Sikaras, 1 goal and 1 assist, scored what proved to be the game winner at the 2:18 mark of the second period. The Rangers scored 2 goals in 14 seconds and 3 goals in a 1 minute and 22 second span that helped blow the second period and the game wide open. Selection and care of Christmas trees

"Buying it fresh and keeping it fresh are the most important things to remember about selecting and caring for your Christmas tree," says Lloyd Vander Street, president of the National Christmas Tree Association. He suggests a few simple tests for checking a tree's freshness.

First gently grasp a branch between your thumb and forefinger and pull it gently toward you. Few needles should come off in your hand if the tree is fresh.

Second, take a look at the ground around the tree. You shouldn't see an excessive amount of green needles on the ground. Some loss of brown needles is normal.

Once you've chosen your tree, keep it in a sheltered, unheated area, such as a porch or garage until you are ready to decorate it.

Before you set up your tree, make a fresh, straight cut across the base of the trunk (about a quarter of an inch up from the original cut) and place the tree in a water-bearing stand. A tree will absorb as much as a gallon of water in the first 24 hours and one or more quarts a day thereafter. Water will prevent the needles from drooping and the boughs from

New marketing technique geared to Christmas tree sales

Somewhere between the ideal and peaceful countryside in Starke County Indiana and the fast moving, not so peaceful, Chicago metropolitan area, a new concept in Christmas tree marketing has been hatched up.

Don Grey of Greydon tree farms in Starke County Indiana is bringing in his very first crop of Christmas trees this year. Being new in the market, Don wasn't at all certain to whom, or how he would bring his trees to market, that is until he received a phone call from an innovative Chicago entrepreneur, Reggie Still. Reggie has convinced Don to stake his entire crop on the success or failure of his very unusual marketing plan.

Presently Reggie is finishing up two elaborate computer programs. One in which a map of the entire Chicago and suburban area has been programmed, with every town and major street and highway—the other, a map of Don's Christmas tree farm, with every row, every tree and the size and grade of each tree.

This year Don and Reggie hope to arrange over 3,000 visits to homes in the Chicago area by Santa Claus. Since Santa is definitely going to be hard pressed to make so many visits in the planned two or three weeks, and since he will also be toting along

Reggie Still met with a group of "Santas" on Nov. 20 to discuss Christmas tree delivery strategy. The Santas are committed to giving personal attention to children at the homes where they will be delivery trees.

Men who showed up at the meeting interested in delivery trees ranged from executives to truck drivers and college students. Some of the costumed Santas pictured above posed under a 30-foot banner with the motto "Santa Claus Dressed to a 'T' - Will Come Deliver Your Christmas Tree."

a Christmas tree on each visit, the computer programs will be used to logistically plan his visits with the greatest efficiency as well as keep track of what tree goes to which household.

In reality there will probably be more like 10 to 20 Santas, each one driving a small truck loaded with Christmas trees that have been pre-ordered by the households they are going to.

"Santa Sales," operating out of Oak Park will be glad to answer any questions about this service. Call 524-9967.

Survey lists Americans' favorite collectors items

The survey showed that one of the primary reasons people collect is to pass along their cherished collections to future generations. Seventy-eight percent of those polled said they collect so that their children and grandchildren can enjoy the fruits of the efforts for years to come.

However, for some collectors, there's more to the hobby than meets the eye. While an affinity for collecting a particular item may be the primary purchase motivation for most collectors, there are those who collect for profit. Thirty percent of those surveyed agreed that investment plays an important role in their collecting decisions.

Although much of the resale of collectibles takes place through informal channels, such as want ads, limited-edition plates may be bought and sold through a computerized trading floor at The Bradford Exchange, the only exchange of its kind. By using the exchange, collectors can buy and sell limited-edition plates by telephone.

The hobby of collecting stands in stark contrast to today's "disposable age" where little value is placed on longevity. But given that the number of collectors and the variety of items collected continues to grow, people will continue to amass for posterity, for profit and for fun.

From baskets to baseball cards, steins to stamps, Americans never seem to lose their desire to acquire.

According to a recent survey of collectors commissioned by The Bradford Exchange, the world's largest trading center for limited-edition plates, collecting is even more popular today than it was a decade ago.

Collecting appears to be an innate human trait, one that can be traced back to man's early days when things like animal horns and hides were coveted. Today's collectors, however, are much more varied in their collection selections.

The top three items they collect, according to the survey, are figurines (22 percent), limited-edition plates (21 percent) and coins/medallions (15 percent).

Experts point out that the reasons people collect are as varied as the items they seek. "For some people, collecting gives special meaning and value to certain objects, helping them to retain a part of their past and preserve it for generations to come," said Dr. Jerrold Pollak, a clinical psychologist who studies collecting habits and trends. "For others, collecting presents a challenge where seeking out and finding objects that are available in limited numbers is the ultimate reward."

Toys can help children develop

The right kinds of toys can affect the way a child develops and help nurture social skills, says John Paolella, Ph.D., director of clinical training in psychology at the Charles I. Doyle, S.J. Center of Loyola University Chicago.

"From infancy to about two years of age, children should be introduced to the experience of playfulness, encourage their ability to interact with significant people and the environment," says Paolella. "This is often accomplished with sensory motor skill toys: items having a visual tracking component like the brightly colored animals of a mobile or a rattle with a sound that can be followed.

"As your child gets a little older, you'll want to develop his or her perceptual motor skills with toys that fit together, simple puzzles or interlocking blocks," he said.

"From ages three to seven, parents should encourage free play with such toys as doll houses, human or animal figures, colored pencils or crayons, and modeling clay," said Paolella. By encouraging this "fantasy" play, parents help children to develop their own self-identity and begin organizing relationships with people.

These types of toys, he says, can be used by children to represent external reality, allowing kids to work out real life situations.

"By working out issues symbolically, children can develop, in effect, teaching themselves problem-solving strategies and stimulating the creative process," said Paolella.

From ages seven to eleven, toys should teach children about rules in society and social interaction skills. He suggests simple board games to provide lessons in turntaking, waiting, leadership, "followship," and power and control issues.

"Children will often learn to deal with the consequences of their behavior in a relational context through game play," says Paolella. "In addition, playing a game of chance, rather than a game of skill, provides some real world experience." Such board games as Sorry, Candyland and Chutes & Ladders begin to teach children to respond to issues that are outside of their control, (losing a turn, for example) skills that generalize into other areas of life, he said.

As for popular videogames, Paolella doesn't condemn them if the games are used to develop specific learning skills or to foster socialization. For instance, a video game can be played by family members as a team, developing attention, visual-motor and cooperation skills.

Homemade gifts for the holidays

Who can deny the special feeling that's occasioned by the gift that's been made by the hands of the giver? And "kitchen gifts," festive foods and flavorings, are enjoyed all the more because they can be shared.

Flavored vinegars have just this appeal. They are easy to make, beautiful to receive and particularly delicious to serve.

The Consumer Test Kitchens of Heinz U.S.A., world's largest maker of vinegars, has put together a special collection of recipes for flavored vinegars that anyone would be pleased and proud to make and give. With the simple addition of herbs, spices and/or fruit and vegetables, Heinz vinegars become your vinegars.

Eight recipes for making your own flavored vinegars at home are included in a free folder entitled "Making Flavored Vinegars." The information includes guidelines to ensure success, as well as directions for the vinegars and some suggestions for their use.

Some of the guidelines included in the folder are:

- Fresh herbs are preferable to dried, but dried may be substituted successfully.
- Lemon or orange peels, strawberries, raspberries and pears are particularly good fruit flavors to use.

- Flavors develop in 2-4 weeks, depending on the recipe, but the process can be speeded up by bruising or coarsely chopping the herbs and fruits.
- Flavored vinegars add a new dimension to vinaigrettes and salad dressings, marinades and seasoned mayonnaise.
- Sterilized glass or crockery containers should be used.

Single copies of "Making Flavored Vinegars" are available at no charge. Send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Making Flavored Vinegars, c/o Heinz U.S.A., P.O. Box 57, Pittsburgh, PA 15230-0057.

Card games make great gifts for seniors

The saying that life begins at 50 has more truth to it today than ever before. As the fastest-growing segment of the population, older Americans are looking for ways to be more social and more active than ever - so how can you choose a fun holiday gift to fit their lifestyles?

"When people work hard they want to spend their recreation time enjoying themselves comfortably with friends," says Jeff Conrad, corporate games designer for International Games, Inc., the makers of the card game UNO. "Card games are great gifts because they allow people to relax and be sociable."

Conrad offers this advice for selecting a fun game for the empty-nester or senior on your Christmas list: "First choose a game that has a good 'look' to it - games have to be of a professional quality and be well-crafted. The demand for high standards of quality comes from experiences of youth."

"Second, select a game that is legible. There's nothing more frustrating to a social group of people than struggling over hard-to-differentiate numbers, letters, and colors."

"Third, games that have their roots in tradition are very popular among older game players," according to Conrad. "New twists on familiar themes are very appealing."

"Above all, look for games that are easily enjoyable and promote lively conversation and some friendly competition," says Conrad. "People want to socialize and play at the same time."

Be cautious with holiday spending, warns credit expert

Just as Americans begin to tighten their financial belts with the country entering a recession, the biggest spending season arrives - Christmas. This conflict will create some major cash flow problems for many consumers, warns a financial expert.

"Even in good times, millions of U.S. holiday shoppers spend more on gifts than they can afford," says Les Kirschbaum, president of Mid-Continent Agencies, Inc., a leading national collection agency based in Glenview. "Abuse of the convenience of credit cards and their extended credit levels, plus the nature of people to be generous this time of year, make consumers spend beyond their means."

"Another factor is the new traditional marketing hype of the holiday season," he adds. "And, this year, retailers will be even more aggressive to generate sales to combat the long-range impact of a recession. This means emphasizing lures such as no payments for six months, extended credit and other 'affordable' arrangements." "Particularly in this uncertain economy, consumers must closely monitor holiday gift expenditures to prevent a shortage of funds in the first quarter of 1991," Kirschbaum says.

According to Kirschbaum, the best approach to control holiday spending is to follow this four-step plan:

- Set a budget. "Most consumers holiday shop with no overall budget," he says. "Establish an appropriate spending level and stick to it."
- List gift recipients. Develop a list of all persons who will receive gifts and, staying within the budget ceiling, estimate the gift price range for each.
- Pre-select gifts. Whenever possible, determine the gift category for each person, such as a book, a sweater or a doll. This helps prevent overspending and impulse buying and may enable shoppers to search for the lowest price on an item.

• Use cash or checks and reduce use of credit cards. "We expect some consumers will reduce the frequency of credit card charges this year, but far too many will have difficulty breaking this habit," Kirschbaum says. "Yet, misuse of credit cards during the holidays often creates significant financial burdens long after the parties are over."

"The key is to adhere to the established budget and use the plastic only when cash or a check is not convenient."

vance registration is required by calling the Health Promotion and Wellness office at (312) 792-5022. Free parking is available in the visitors parking lot with direct access to Marian Hall.

In addition, suggestions will be made for ways to incorporate less sodium, fat, cholesterol and calories overall in holiday cooking. Samples of some of the recipes include turkey stir-fry, pound cake and chocolate meringue drops.

Light refreshments for holiday get-togethers

This year when it's time to trim your Christmas tree, plan to invite a few close friends over and turn the evening into a festive occasion. Since it's a hectic time of year, think "easy" though, and just serve light but oh-so-satisfying refreshments.

A traditional favorite is a spicy mulled punch, with a high quality "name brand" tea as the base. It is the ideal holiday beverage, especially if the weather is chilly. Give everyone a choice by making two batches and adding red port wine to one of them.

To accompany your winsome warmer, make a slew of Sausage Nuggets ahead of time, then freeze them until ready for use. This combination of Italian sausage, cheese, chives, dry mustard and biscuit baking mix, serves up a hot and hearty hors d'oeuvre. Then, on the day of your little get-together, you can really embrace the spirit of the season.

Mulled Ruby Tea Punch
(Makes about 8 cups or 10 servings)

4 cups boiling water
6 teabags
4 cups cranberry-apricot drink
Half small lemon with 6 whole cloves inserted
1/3 cup packed light brown sugar or to taste

1 3/4-inch cinnamon stick
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Pour boiling water over tea-bags. Cover and let stand 5 min-

Museum presents 'Christmas Around the World'

The traditions and customs of 40 nations and ethnic groups will be celebrated with a forest of sparkling trees, seasonal exhibits and lively performances during the Museum of Science and Industry's 49th annual "Christmas Around the World" Festival, through Jan. 1.

With shiny herald trumpets hung high and giant glittering snowflakes floating magically above the store, the Museum's Main and East courts will be decked in holiday splendor. Laden with elaborate old-world ornaments, a spectacular 30-foot tree will stand in the center of 36 twinkling trees, each trimmed with hand-crafted ornaments reflecting the culture of a different ethnic group. In addition, three nativity scenes, also arranged by participating ethnic groups, will be displayed alongside the trees. A special featured exhibit comes to the Festival this season from Coca-Cola USA and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Chicago. For the first time ever in Chicago, a series of 15 original oil paintings of Santa Claus by the late Chicago artist Haddon Sundblom will be on display. Credited as the modern vision of St. Nick, the "Sundblom Santa" - a totally human, merry gentleman with rosy red cheeks and a handsome white beard - was first depicted by Sundblom in 1931, beginning a series of holiday advertisements for the Coca-Cola Company.

Attractions back this year by popular demand include four animated Christmas windows from Marshall Field's State Street store and the Museum's own 24-foot indoor skating rink featuring dazzling daily performances by amateur skaters.

Factors to consider before purchasing pets

Giving a pet for the holidays may seem to be a time-honored tradition, if one follows popular children's lore such as Lady and the Tramp.

But several conditions urge caution before giving such a lively present, says one authority at the Chicago Veterinary Medical Association.

According to Dr. Emil Baukert, president of CVMA, preparing the family to accept a pet - whether a fish, hamster or St. Bernard - is key to the success of owning one.

"Maintenance and care must be the primary considerations," says Dr. Baukert, who has been involved in his north suburban-based practice for 13 years. "With larger pets, training - requiring a generous amount of hands on attention around the clock - can make or break the successful integration of the pet into family life."

"Our organization recommends against the surprise element of pet ownership," says Dr. Baukert. "Better to surprise the family with the idea at the holiday. Then discuss the various concerns and responsibilities to see if there is uniform willingness to make the pet part of the family."

"For example," says Dr. Baukert, "consider where the various members of your family will be in ten years. Because even if little Joe, who is seven now, wants a pet, who'll be taking care of the animal when Joe is a teenager? It's probably not going to be Joe."

Dr. Baukert warns that the real responsibility for pet care generally falls on the parents, and if it's a household where there is only one working parent, then the parent at home - generally Mom - takes primary care of the pet. That includes the training, the housebreaking, and the feeding.

"So if Mom is not happy with the decision, then everybody needs to sit down and rethink it," says Dr. Baukert. "If Mom's not happy, it will be more difficult for everyone else because pet care is a substantial and shared responsibility."

He is quick to soften the generalization. "Many single people make wonderful pet owners. But first they should consider their lifestyles. If they typically attend evening functions and would prefer not to or cannot return home before, perhaps they should consider another alternative, such as cat ownership instead of dog ownership."

Dr. Baukert, himself an owner of several dogs and cats, supports pet ownership in a dual-career family. But he advises that each family member should commit to his or her responsibility before the pet comes home.

"If the eight-year-old agrees to walk the dog each morning, and everyone is comfortable with that level of responsibility, that's great. Dual-parent working situations can be handled successfully when the responsibility is shared."

He recommends consideration of the following guidelines when purchasing the animal:

- Housing constraints
- Animal's training needs and capabilities of prospective owner
- Maintenance costs
- Environmental/neighborhood constraints

• Local veterinary care

• Choosing a healthy and lively-looking environment

• Bringing pet home to quiet, loving environment

• Consultation with local veterinarian within 48 hours of purchase for a thorough examination.

"Immediate consultation with the local veterinarian is imperative," says Dr. Baukert, "because it tells the new owner about the health status of the pet. The examination in most instances will bring to light any serious problems so that the animal may be returned (without financial penalty) to the original home or shelter, if the new owner so desires."

Costs for companion pets can be as low as $35-$40 for a mixed breed to anywhere from $200 to $1,500 for a pedigree dog.

Heritage Club plans party

Edgar awards grant for school program

Secretary of State Jim Edgar is using fines paid by securities law violators to finance a new program to teach high school seniors how to invest in the stock market.

Edgar recently awarded a $10,000 grant to the Illinois Council on Economic Education to give Illinois teachers and students course materials for simulating real-life stock market trading.

"A complete education should include information about how to guard one's savings from fraud and how to invest wisely," Edgar said. "Programs like this encourage smart management of personal finances. They also increase the amount of capital available for business growth and economic development."

residents' likes when it included a survey in its fall brochure. As an incentive to those who would fill out and return the postage-paid survey, the district offered, on a complimentary basis, a bucket of balls at Tam golf course; a one day pass at the ice skating rink or a one day pass to Grennan Heights fitness room, orientation. (Of the 11,500 residents who received brochures, less than one percent replied.)

November 26, Lippert called for a more comprehensive type of survey to get more response. He said "We need to get a real handle on what the community wants," and stressed the need for constant communication with the community.

Programs always need evaluation, he said, adding staff and instructors benefit from residents' input. He suggested the input is best done in writing because "too much is lost" when it's given verbally.

While woodcarving is primarily a hobby—he sells industrial tools for a living—he spends hours each week guiding beginners in the craft. At one time he taught at Lee Ward's craft shop, for MONNACEP at Oakton College, Discovery in Chicago and at various YMCAs.

Currently he's teaching at Skokie's Smith center and at the Glenview Park District. Two nights a week he works in his shop. Veracka began the North Suburban Carvers Club with six members and has grown to 150.

Swim classes set to begin

Morton Grove Park District's Learn to Swim program will be starting up again on Saturday, Dec. 1 at the Niles West High School pool.

Preschool swim classes for ages 3 to 5 are offered as well as youth classes for ages 5 thru 12. All classes are 45 minutes long and run from Dec. 1 through Feb. 23. Registration will be taken at the Morton Grove Park District, 6834 Dempster St.

of the property. Four MCC representatives presented a letter from Kaiserendin to Mayor Richard Hohns and village board Nov. 26 congratulating the village for the defeat of the referendum, asking for a return of the disputed strip to MCC and saying, "as you know, attorneys of both the former owner (school board) and our's have determined that such a claim by the village is not supported by documents.... Vacating the claim is not only the right thing to do, but is also in accordance with the will of the people."

"As a village board, they have an obligation to protect the rights of all the residents of Morton Grove," countered Kaplan. "They can't just give it away. Where we have vacated rights-of-way, we've been paid for the land or received some compensation."

Kaplan indicated the Capulina Street sewer might be extended through the right-of-way, but the current use as a playground "would be more beneficial to the community" than a continuation of the street.

"The sign looks ugly," commented Syed Ikramullah, one of the MCC representatives. "They make us feel non-welcome."

President Nicholas J. Melas and Commissioner Gloria Alioto Majewski, chairman of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District's Finance Committee, announced that the District sold $120 million of Capital Improvement and working Cash Bonds, Series of November 1990, at a bond sale held recently.

Proceeds of the Capital Improvement bond sale will be used to fund construction of the Deep Tunnel project in the western and southern suburbs as well as other District capital improvement projects.

The Working Cash Bond proceeds will apply to the revolving fund for general corporate fund expenditures.

Merrill Lynch Capital Markets was the successful bidder for the $100 million capital improvement bonds. They purchased the bonds for $83,168,708.33, a net effective interest rate of 6.974372 percent.

The low bidder of the $20 million corporate working cash bonds was Donaldson Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corporation of New York. They purchased them for $16,103,970.83, at an interest rate of 6.981570 percent.

Volunteers needed for various positions

Volunteer Services of Skokie Valley, a non-profit independent agency, serves as a clearing-house for matching the interests, skills and talents of prospective volunteers with the needs of non-profit organizations serving the community.

Listed below are a few of the currently available volunteer positions.

To volunteer your services, or for more information, please contact Volunteer Services of Skokie Valley at (708) 675-7995.

Clerical Volunteers - there are on-going needs from various organizations--assist with mailings, typing, data entry, phone calls, etc.

School Assistants - Men and women needed to assist elementary school age children: tutoring, teachers aides, recording of books for special needs' students, library assistants, classroom speakers, translators, and other opportunities.

Theatre - If you enjoy the theatre you might find it interesting and fulfilling to volunteer for ushering, typing, press room aide, receptionist or even backstage maintenance.

Victims of Violence - Several agencies which work with victims of violence, are seeking volunteers to staff hotlines and to work with the victims and their families offering support and informal counseling. Training is provided.

Drop-In Center - Assist the homeless men and women in our area in a variety of volunteer positions. Some week-end hours are available.

Books-To-Go - Men or women are needed to deliver orders of library books to homebound or temporarily incapacitated individuals. No training necessary.

Travelers Aid/Immigrants - Help is needed at the airports, train and bus stations to provide travelers and immigrants with general information and information concerning protective, escort, referral and advocate services. Training will be provided.

Parental Stress Hotline - Answer hotline calls in your home from parents under stress. Volunteers are also needed to facilitate parent support groups, parent training classes and children's groups. Experience in a related field is preferred.

Specialized Feeding Program - Volunteers will be fully trained to feed children who are mentally and physically handicapped. In some cases the children need to be fed, and in other cases they are learning to feed themselves.

Safety tips for winter driving

The ability to drive safely on ice and snow depends on your vehicle's mechanical condition as well as your driving skill. October was National Car Care Month and a good time to prepare your car for safe winter driving.

Changing the oil and filter is the most important procedure, according to the AAA-Chicago Motor Club. The club also suggests lubricating the chassis and replacing the air and fuel filters.

When you "winterize" your vehicle, ask for a tune-up (inspecting and replacing or adjusting engine parts). Some experts recommend annual tune-ups.

Be sure the battery and alternator are working properly. Remove corrosion from the battery terminals with a solution of water and baking soda. Inspect cables for secure connections and replace any damaged cables. Driver belts should be adjusted to the proper tension and not racked, frayed or worn.

Check the level and freezing point of the radiator fluid. If the fluid is low, add a 50/50 mixture of antifreeze and water. Check hoses for leaks or cracks, and make sure they are attached securely. Flush the cooling system every two years.

Finally, inspect your wiper blades and check the windshield washer fluid level. Check your tires for wear and proper inflation and rotate if necessary. Lights and turn signals should also be working properly.

These were the sights and sounds of Christmas. The trumpet player repeated a thirty-two bar melody over and over again. The blond lady banged the bottom drum, then the top one, in a staccato-like rhythm which you couldn't get away from if you were within two blocks of the music. And there were those sad-faced children, completely immune to all the activity surrounding them, hanging on to their tambourines, while the shoppers filled up their collection plates. It was a money-maker. We estimated the effort was worth at least $50 an hour.

The following weekend we were at the Lighthouse Shopping Center in Michigan City. Again, it was Saturday afternoon and there was a Pooh Bear and Ronald McDonald and a sleigh-rider buggy entertaining the children.

It was a pretty nippy thirty degrees in the mall. And while shoppers were bundled in warmth, poor old Elvis was gyrating in his thin white cowboy outfit, ignored by passers-by.

We thought those two little ragamuffins we'd seen in Madrid the week before looked forlorn and pathetically sad. But standing at a distance watching the over-weight Elvis gyrate and bounce around without anyone watching him, seemed even sadder. He'd dance. The video cameraman would run his tape and the shoppers ignored the white-duded cowboy.

Diane Miller reminisced about a Santa Claus she saw in Puerto Rico some years ago. Walking down the street in central San Juan, she saw Santa walking toward her. He was dressed in his best ho-ho outfit...red coat, red touselled-hat, white beard and boots. But it was Puerto Rico and it was warm. Santa was wearing red matching pants. Except they were red velvet shorts.

ed to go on-line with 9-1-1 in May, 1992 and the system is expected to handle five times the current number of calls which now average 135,000 a year.

Turning to another major village project, trustees approved a water supply contract with the City of Chicago. According to Trustee Tom Bondi, it gives Niles water for current needs, future needs and for selling to the unincorporated area of Maine Township.

The trustees awarded the engineering firm of Donohue and Associates a contract to consult and give an overview of the water transmission line construction in the northern section of Niles.

The actual construction contract was awarded to the lowest of 14 bidders, Abbot Construction, Inc., for $1,688,534. Work on Niles' lines is expected to begin in early January.

Commissioner Bondi addressed water matters again and said the village had to raise the unit cost of water it received from Chicago from $.18 per 1,000 gallons to $.40 per 1,000 gallons, because in seeking an EPA grant to do sewer work, it must consider the cost of maintaining sewers. He emphasized the village would absorb the higher cost and residents' rates would not be affected.

At the request of village attorney Richard Troy, trustees agreed to sign off on the final payment of industrial revenue bonds Niles issued to Temple Steel, 5990 Touhy Ave., in 1983. The company plans to refinance. Troy stressed Temple is not moving from Niles.

Zoning became the topic when Tim Conroy, director of construction for H-C Sportmart Plaza developers, outlined the company's plans to build a 5,100 sq. ft. outlet building, renovate the existing buildings and establish landscaped islands in the parking lot of the mall located at Harlem Avenue and Dempster Street. According to Zoning Board stipulation, the outlet building must have a proposed tenant before the building is constructed.

Conroy asked to have fewer parking spaces than required because of the mixed use of the mall which includes a restaurant, office and retail space.

He said the facilities have varying peak parking periods which would justify the parking space shortfall of 30 spaces. Joe Salerno, director of code enforcement, said he had checked three other area shopping centers and found parking adequate in similar situations. The board gave its approval.

In other zoning matters, trustees gave permission for two plats of subdivision. At 8425 Western Ave., two lots are being combined and converted to three lots; at 8348, 8349, 8352 and 8353 Newland Ave., 11 lots will be combined and resubdivided into four single-family home lots.

At Trustee Przybylo's instigation, the board went on record, urging the State of Illinois to prohibit the building of a new runway at O'Hare field.

addition, Mike Johann, coordinator of special education, serves as principal of Melzer Kindergarten Center in Morton Grove.

In other business, board members agreed to per pupil costs for instruction materials during the 1991-1992 school year. Sums for students in kindergarten through sixth grades each will be $68 and those in seventh and eighth grades will be $87.

These amounts reflect a slight increase over the past four years when the costs of educating those students were $65 and $83, respectively.

In other action, board member Steve Rivenson declined to vote for a substitute teacher rate which would establish a pay schedule of $60 a day for a regular substitute and $135 per day for a substitute teaching 11 or more days.

He said documentation provided by administration in an attempt to prove the district is being competitive did not convince him of a need for such a large salary hike.

Associate Superintendent Dr. Donald Stetina said a substitute provided for a longer length of time would fall under all the contractual obligations of a regular teacher. The motion was approved.

Students who fall one or more years behind their class level will take part in a remedial program, mandated by the State of Illinois.

Again, board members agreed to enter into agreements for the purchase of a software maintenance contract, registration forms, natural gas and with vendors of Pepsi-Cola General Bottlers, Inc. for services at Melzer Kindergarten Center.

Blase indicated the communities would also realize an "insignificant" reduction in their share of costs to one third. In the case of Niles, the savings is approximately $10,000 according to Blase.

There are nearly 180,000 weekly bus riders in the 27 communities served by Nortran/PACE communities. PACE also administers RTA funds for a six-county area. Tax filing preparations for daycare expenses

The Internal Revenue Service encourages parents to get ready for the upcoming tax filing season early by obtaining taxpayer identification numbers (TIN's) from their daycare providers and making sure their dependents have social security numbers.

Anyone claiming the credit for child and dependent care expenses must include on their return the name, address, and TIN of each care provider. If the provider is a nonprofit charitable, religious, or educational organization, only the name and address are required.

A TIN is a social security number if the provider is an individual. It's an employer identification number if the provider is a partnership or corporation. The same requirement applies to a person who receives benefits through their employer's dependent care assistance program.

Form W-10 can be used to request this information from the provider. To get a free copy of this form, call the IRS toll free at 1-(800) TAX-FORM (829-3676).

To be sure their children receive social security numbers before the tax filing season, the IRS urges parents to apply for them now. For help getting a number, call the Social Security Administration toll free at 1-(800)-234-5772.

linked him to a Nov. 23 Golf Mill auto burglary and another burglary in Sportmart's parking lot.

According to Zimmerman, he and a 16-year-old juvenile were arrested by Rosemont police as they committed an auto burglary in the community and a car phone and pair of athletic shoes taken from two earlier Niles auto burglaries were in their possession.

The 17-year-old gave full oral and written statements to Stankowicz admitting to the thefts, and came to the Niles police station after he posted bond for the Rosemont burglary.

Both the minor and the 17-year-old, a Maine South student, implicated two fellow students, one from Niles and the other from Park Ridge. When the officers went to the Niles youth's home to interview him, he agreed to a search of his car, where they found a hunting knife and loaded pellet gun. He also admitted to being present during a number of northwest suburban auto burglaries, mostly in Schaumburg but none in Niles.

The officers also went to the home of the second Park Ridge youth and, after speaking with his mother and stepfather, went to the teen's bedroom. Four stereos and a .38 caliber bullet were found in the room. The adults told police the articles did not belong in the room, according to reports, and the officers were allowed to remove them from the home.

Zimmerman and Stankowicz contacted the youth at his father's home in Rolling Meadows and were told he would come to the station to be interviewed. However, an attorney was later retained by the youth's father in his youth's behalf and he has not yet submitted to questioning.

The arrested Park Ridge youth posted 10 percent of a $20,000 bond. After juvenile charges were filed, the 16-year-old was released to his father's custody.
