Adler, Gramza gain school trustee positions

In Maine and Niles Townships, three member school boards of trustees hold the titles for all school properties and also appoint a treasurer for the schools.

School treasurer in Niles Township is Sy Nagorsky, a certified public accountant; in Maine Township, Tom Ahlbeck fills the treasurer's post. The treasurers are responsible for investing all the school revenues received, with the guidance of the trustees.

In Niles Township, two persons vied for the one, six-year term opening. Skokie lawyer and Certified Public Accountant Steve Fritzhall, an incumbent, was edged out by Morton Grove resident Angie Adler. Adler received 1,744 votes to Fritzhall's 1,309 votes.

In recognition of his extraordinary efforts and personal commitment to education, Niles West High School principal Donald Ring had been selected to receive the Illinois Distinguished Educator Award and a $25,000 cash award.

Most incumbents retain seats in school board elections

Kosiba joins incumbents in Dist. 71

First-time candidate Carolyn Kosiba joined with incumbents Barbara Hedrich and Vincent Bugarin in becoming elected to Niles school district 71's school board Tuesday.

Current board president, Barbara Hedrich topped all vote-getters with 157 votes. Newcomer Kosiba received 152 votes while 22-year veteran Vince Bugarin garnered 137 votes.

Tallies for other candidates were: Charles Schertzing, 128; Nadia Krynski, 116; and Linda Vigneri, 93.

Niles Elementary School District 71 includes Niles Elementary, South and Culver Junior High. The district recently concluded a new teachers' contract and raised its 1991 tax levy 14 percent.

In campaigning for the three, four-year posts open on the school board, candidates spoke of the need for parent/community involvement in the schools and some stressed the need to improve the science and technology programs.

In Niles Township High School District 219, four four-year terms were at stake. Unofficial tallies indicate newcomer Laura Schwartz was top vote getter with 2,082 votes, incumbents Sanford Alper, of Lincolnwood, garnered 2,080 votes, and Saul Voters in the state of Washington went to the polls Tuesday. Among the referenda was a ballot for Initiative 553 to restrict the terms of office of elected officials.

Here in our areas such a restriction might be considered. We have had representatives on all sorts of boards who have retained their seats for too many years.

We spoke to Nick Blase Tuesday morning about such a restriction. Nick, who is now in his fourth decade as Niles' village president, might be considered the prime example of a public figure who has outstayed his political welcome.

Ironically, Nick told us when he first became mayor in 1961 he was at a meeting with Mayors Sabonjian and Dumke, who held the top posts in Waukegan and Oak Lawn. When he heard one of the men refer to his town as "My town" he jokingly told them such a proprietary interest in their towns might some day come back to haunt them. Nick used a bit more graphic language to make his point but the observation was right on target when the Waukegan mayor got his comeuppance in later years.

Nick is an interesting enigma. He has done a good job heading Niles government. But it would have been in the better interest of the community if more people had gotten

Dist. 71 teachers receive 25% pay hike over 3 years

by Nancy Keraminas

Board members and teachers of Niles Elementary School district ratified a new three-year employment contract last week, keeping intact a no-strike record in the district's two schools.

The new contract, which expires in 1994 calls for seven percent annually as a result of a two-day increase in the school year and teachers paying a greater insurance deductible.

"I'm glad that we averted a strike. A strike is devastating to a district," said Board President Barbara Hedrich. "I believe we came away with the best package we possibly could have."

"It's a terrible job (negotiating), but boy are we glad it's done," commented Leonard Palicki, the Culver faculty member who represented the district's 39 teachers during the seven months of contract negotiations. "We didn't get everything we were trying to get because of the econo-

Cause of motel fire linked to cigarette

Second floor tenants were evacuated from a south building in the Admiral Oasis Motel at 9353 Waukegan Road, Morton Grove, the night of Oct. 31.

Working in heavy smoke, from one room, firefighters from Morton Grove, Niles, Glenview and Skokie confined the flames to the room and there were no injuries.

Fire department investigation determined improper cigarette disposal caused the fire and a Morton Grove man, 37, renting the room, later told police he had smoked several cigarettes while waiting for someone to meet him in the room, but then left when

Flu shots for North Suburban residents

Influenza, commonly known as the flu, is a viral infection of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs. The flu can be life-threatening for older people or for anyone with a chronic illness. The flu is particularly common in this area December through April.

To prevent serious cases of the flu or other flu-related illnesses, the Cook County Department of Public Health is offering free flu vaccines to seniors aged 65 and older and to chronically ill individuals 12 years and older.

North suburbs locations are: Friday, Nov. 8, 9 a.m.-noon at the Des Plaines Senior Center, 1040 Thacker, Des Plaines and Friday, Nov. 15, 9 a.m.-noon at the Park Ridge Senior Center, 100 South Western, Park Ridge.

The viruses which cause the flu differ from year to year, making it necessary to change the vaccine every year. Because of the changes in the virus and vaccine, it is highly recommended that people in groups at risk be reimmunized every year. Dr. Karen Scott, Medical Director for the Cook County Department of Public Health urges seniors and the chronically ill to be immunized: "Those who received flu shots last year need to be reimmunized again this year in order to be protected."

If you have any questions about the flu or flu shots, call the Cook County Department of Public Health's Communicable Disease Division at (708) 865-6308.

Please note: Persons allergic to eggs or who have a fever on the day of the clinic will not be immunized.

Nursing homes show Halloween spirit

Estelle Maloney, a 19-year resident of Elston Home, displayed some of the wares featured in that facility's Witches Walk Bargain Sale on Oct. 31. Neighborhood trick or treaters were also invited to the home, located at 4340 N. Keystone, Chicago.

The four nursing care facilities owned by Health and Home Management have kept the festive Halloween spirit alive every year, but in 1991 the emphasis was on increasing intergenerational activities on Oct. 31.

The focus was consistent with Health and Home's commitment to "provide the best possible quality care to the elderly and chronically ill."

GlenBridge Nursing Centre, a six-star facility, at 8333 Golf Road, in Niles, opened its doors to trick or treaters of all ages at its Halloween Witches Walk.

At Elston Home's "Witches Bargain Sale" on Halloween toys, crafts and rummage items were featured. Costumed Elston Home residents wanted to provide safe trick or treating for area children.

Glen Crest Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, located at 2451 W. Touhy Ave., in Rogers Park, featured its annual haunted house for Glen Crest residents and staff, complete with DJ. Pre-schoolers from HiRidge YMCA serenaded at the home Oct. 25 and 40 children from St. Margaret Mary's will travel to Glen Crest on Halloween to visit costumed residents.

Northbrook's Glen Oaks Nursing Center used its award-winning artistry to decorate pumpkins. The Northbrook Women's Club gave its annual party for costumed residents and staff. Children of family members also made Glen Oaks one of their favorite trick or treating stops. Glen Oaks is located at 270 Skokie Boulevard.

Today's Lemonade Stand Could Be Tomorrow's Apple.

It's amazing how many successful companies start as backyard ventures. Sometimes all it takes is a good idea and old fashioned hard work. But more often that not, a little seed money is needed. And that's where we come in. Small businesses are the life blood of our community. So whether you're an established business and want to expand, or you're an entrepreneur with a dream, we might be able to help.

Tot starts fire with nail polish

An unattended 2-year-old boy started a bedroom fire in a Maine Township apartment complex Oct. 31 while playing with nail polish near a lit candle, according to North Maine Fire Protection District Fire Marshall Wayne Parthun.

Firefighters arrived shortly after the 1:17 p.m. alarm was sounded finding the three adult and two child occupants safely outside the two-bedroom, second floor unit at the Carlisle Apartments, 9128 Kennedy Drive.

Parthun indicated that Diana Dubelsa, her husband and their 3-year-old granddaughter were in the living room at the time fire broke out on the bed in the bedroom. Dubelsa's adult daughter Diana Ramirez was in the bathroom while her youngest child played on the bed near the open flame with the nail laquer.

"Nail polish is extremely flammable," Parthun warned, crediting the proper functioning of building and apartment smoke detectors with averting a further tragedy. About $5,000 damage.

MG Historical Society honors Dilg landmark

The former site of the Dilg Tavern became the fifth Morton Grove landmark to be honored by a plaque Oct. 25. Members of the Morton Grove Historical Society, village board and about 30 spectators braved Saturday's rain in order to dedicate the stone and bronze marker placed at 6330 Lincoln Avenue, where the Landmark Condominiums are now, according to Joseph Moll a member of the society and Edward Weiner, president of the Landmark Homeowners Association.

Tom down in 1971, the Dilg Tavern, also known as the Exchange Building was built in 1904 as a post office and became the telephone exchange building seven years later. In later years the building on the corner of Lincoln and Ferris Avenue was a general store and then a restaurant/pub.

Catering hall gets OK from Niles Zoning Board

A petition of 91 signatures failed to sway Niles Zoning Board members and commissioners voted to allow a catering hall, at 7730 Milwaukee Ave., Niles, subject to Village Board approval.

Zoning for the 112-seat catering hall was requested by Niles attorney Paul Kolpak. The banquet hall is to be installed in the brick building formerly occupied by the Apex Amusement Company, adjacent to the Lone Tree Inn, 7710 Milwaukee Ave.

Marisa Salvador, of the 7700 block of Oketo Avenue, presented the petition and six other speakers argued against the hall.

Dist. 71 report card shows improvement

Niles Elementary School District 71 received a state academic report card showing that Illinois Goal Achievement Program (IGAP) scores showed an overall improvement over last year's and the 329 students in the district tested higher than the average state student.

"Half of our kids scored in the top quarter, which is extremely good," said Supt. Eugene Zalewski, referring to third grade reading scores at Niles South Elementary School. Fifty-two percent of those children were in the top quarter with a total of 85 percent scoring in the top as compared to the state average of 27 percent.

In math, 79 percent of South's third graders were in the top quarter, compared to 40 percent of the state third graders. In language arts, those children fared better still, with 89 percent in the top quarter, compared to 32 percent of the state youngsters. In some instances, more than twice as many children were in the top quartile compared to last year.

Sixth graders at Culver did slightly better than the state average in reading with 28 percent in the top quarter, 31 percent in the next quarter, 28 percent in the lowest quarter, compared to a 27 percent, 27 percent, 28 percent and 18 percent state split in reading.

Bethany Terrace employee recognized

Twenty-six years ago, a young woman by the name of Annie Penczak joined the Bethany Terrace Nursing Center staff as a part-time aide in physical therapy. She went to work at that time, she remembers, to help send her two daughters to college.

Annie, whose daughters are now adults, (one a Bethany Terrace nurse for some 20 years and the other, a teacher in Louisiana), recalls that the Terrace "was so small" back then that there were only 10 or 15 residents.

Annie's workday begins when she picks up supply orders. She then spends her time filling orders, and finally, delivering supplies to the individual departments and nursing stations. She is also responsible for placing supply orders with the vendors.

A resident of Niles (just four blocks from the Terrace), Annie gives of her time and energies as a volunteer in the evening to go on bus excursions with Terrace residents. She also heads the bakery division of the annual Fall Festival at the Terrace.

THANKSGIVING DINNER
We cordially invite you to... our first "village family" Thanksgiving Dinner. We have discovered over the past few years that there are many folks, who, for one reason or another, are alone on this holiday. We have arranged to have a traditional Thanksgiving Dinner at the Prairie View Community Center at 3 p.m. on Thanksgiving day (Nov. 28). The dinner will be catered and festive. Park district staff, administration and commissioners have indicated total support for this endeavor and many will even be on hand to guarantee a wonderful celebration. Through the extraordinary generosity of the Niles/Morton Grove Rotary Club, all of our participants will be guests, free of charge, as it would be at any "family" celebration. We are grateful to this wonderful group of caring and giving Rotarians, who will make this possible by providing their support. Dinner will be limited to the first 100 people who RSVP to Ronee Brenner or Sue Dawson, Morton Grove Park District, 965-7447. Guests can include singles, or couples, or any two other family members regardless of age or economic status.

TAX-AID VOLUNTEERS
Just like the U.S. Marines, the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) is looking for a few good men and women to do income tax returns for senior citizens. AARP is now accepting applications from adult volunteers of all ages interested in helping senior citizens with their income tax returns. AARP membership is not required. The AARP Tax-Aide program is co-sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service. Starting in January, there will be a five-day training course for the Tax-Aide counselors, under IRS supervision. The volunteers are required to pass an exam before they are authorized to be counselors. Volunteers are reimbursed for necessary out-of-pocket expenses such as mileage, parking, meals, postage and basic supplies. Persons living in the Morton Grove community, who are interested in helping the elderly prepare their income tax returns can do so by telephoning the Morton Grove Senior Hot Line at 470-5223. In return for the training and after being certified by the IRS, volunteers spend four hours (or more if you choose) each week from Feb. 1 through April 15 assisting senior taxpayers at an assigned convenient site. There is no charge or gratuity for preparing tax returns. Last year, more than 1.5 million persons were aided with their income tax returns by more than 30,000 tax-aid volunteers in the U.S.

URINARY INCONTINENCE
Loss of urine control, or urinary incontinence, is especially common in elderly women, but occurs in men as well. At least one in ten persons age 65 or older has a problem of this nature. People who are incontinent often withdraw from social life and try to hide the problem from their family, friends, and even their doctor. These reactions are unfortunate, because in many cases, incontinence is not an inevitable result of aging. Rather, it is caused by specific changes in body functions, which often result from diseases or medications. Incontinence may be brought on by an illness that is accompanied by fatigue, confusion, or hospital admission.

Treatments for incontinence include, medications, behavioral management techniques, exercises, and surgery. Specially-designed absorbent under-clothing is available. Many of these garments are no more bulky than normal underwear, can be worn easily under everyday clothing, and free a person from the discomfort and embarrassment of incontinence. People having problems controlling urine should seek prompt medical attention to determine the cause and lessen the chance of complications. For further assistance feel free to call the Morton Grove's visiting nurse, Laurel Letwat, at the Flickinger Senior Center, 470-5246.

VILLAGE OF SKOKIE
The Smith Activities Center, located at 5120 Galitz, Skokie, will be having a panel discussion on "Values and Ethics" on Monday, Nov. 11, at 1:30 p.m.
The panelists will include Stanley Franklin, Rose Adelman, Aline Aronica and Haskell Lurie.
All are welcome to join us for a very interesting afternoon.

Letters To The Editor

Limiting speakers at park board meeting called undemocratic

Dear Editor,

I believe what we have here is a failure to communicate. To borrow a line from an old movie, "I'm outraged!" I sat in an open session of the Niles Park board meeting Tuesday Oct. 15 and I couldn't believe what was happening.

First of all, let me state this. I am an observer. I never get involved with politics, I never sit in judgment of one group or another...until last Tuesday night.

For those of you who don't know what transpired over the last few years, let me try to briefly explain what happened. The "Board" hired Tom Lippert as director of the Niles Park District by a narrow margin. Tom proceeded to change his staff in order to get new and fresh ideas to help him achieve one of the best part districts in the country.

Some people didn't like this or him. Rumor has it that these people decided to form a group in order to change the vote on the park board and eventually the director, by voting in a new commissioner who would swing the vote against him (sounds down-right American, don't it?).

Enter Marlene Baczek, exit Walt Beusse (who, in my opinion, was one of the best commissioners the Niles Park District ever had. He was for the people). But the people of Niles voted and I hope they know now who they voted for. The board now voted (by a narrow margin) not to re-tain Tom. No reason was given.

Now, back to the present and the night of Oct. 15th. I like Tom, there's no denying it. If he stays as director, I would be pleased. If he leaves, I feel we would have lost a good director, but the park district would not collapse.

Thanks for successful voter registration night

Dear Editor:

On Sept. 26, my office, along with Jewel and Dominick's, sponsored a very successful voter registration night in all of their suburban Cook County stores. In only four hours, 2,366 new voters registered for the upcoming school board election.

I want to thank all the volunteers who sat at registration tables, as well as the grocery chains who provided sites and publicity. Our experiment cost next to nothing because of their hard work. It was so successful that we expect

Mayor responsible for getting work on Tam fence implemented

Dear Editor:

In regards to the work done on the fence along the 8th fairway of Tam Golf Course, my thanks to Mayor Blase was not because he picked up a shovel and did the manual labor.

Incidentally it was not a hole in the fence, but an open space between the fence and the ground along the 8th fairway. This allowed many golf balls that should have been stopped by the fence, to pass under and be lost to the golfer.

This situation existed from the beginning of the 1991 season and nothing was done to alleviate it. Two days after I presented a letter to Mayor Blase the work began to correct the problem.

So let me re-phrase: Thanks to the Park District for the labor; and thanks to the mayor for lighting the blaze (fire that is) under someone.

Sincerely N.J. Lery
Pres of K.O.C.
Niles Golf League

Pioneer in carpet industry dies

Irv Lieberman, of Skokie, died Oct. 27 at Hinsdale Hospital. He had a 42-year career in the floor covering industry; roughly the same length of time the U.S. carpet industry as we know it has been around.

He was the founder of Georgia Carpets, a family-run floor covering store in Westmont, Ill. The store is one of the nation's largest volume single store outlets.

For each of the past nine years, he achieved Master Dealer status with Monsanto Fibers and was similarly awarded Vanguard Top Echelon Dealer Status by DuPont Fibers.

Mr. Lieberman was born in Chicago and grew up on the west side of the city where he attended Marshall High School. He graduated from Roosevelt University with both a bachelor's degree (1949) and master's degree in marketing.

Survivors include his beloved wife Milly; he was the devoted father of Joel (Cindy), Robert, Richard (Barbara) and Howard (Laura); dear brother of Jean and the late Martin and loving grandfather of Steven and Jerica.

Services for Mr. Lieberman were held Wednesday, Oct. 30 at Weinstein Brothers Wilmette Chapel, Wilmette. Interment was at Waldheim Cemetery; Sons and Daughters of Joseph.

Arthur W. Brown, Jr., noted attorney and communal leader, was named president of the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago and its sister organization, the Jewish United Fund, at the Federation 91st Annual Meeting held Monday, Sept. 16 at the Hyatt Regency Chicago. Jack Kemp, Secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, was the featured speaker.

Agencies supported by the Federation provide resettlement, social welfare, education, medical care, and community relations services for tens of thousands of poor, aged and disabled people of all faiths and races in Chicago. This fiscal year Federation will allocate over $36 million to Chicago-area programs.

One of Brown's major goals is to expand Federation's relationships with other Jewish organizations, among them area congregations.

Among the Federation board members elected at the meeting was Lawrence M. Friedman, of Skokie.

Outgoing board member David Koschitzky of Lincolnwood, received Federation's Young Leadership Awards for his outstanding volunteer service.

In 1974, he founded Georgia Carpets and was a principal shareholder. The store is operated by three of his four sons.

"Irv Lieberman's legacy to his children -- a veritable treasury filled with floor covering information -- is the key to the family-owned store's success," said Janet Morgan Daly, editor of Floor Covering Weekly.

For each of the past nine years, he achieved Master Dealer status with Monsanto Fibers and was similarly awarded Vanguard Top Echelon Dealer Status by DuPont Fibers.

Niles realtor reports record September sales

Niles-based realtor, ERA Callero & Catino, reported an all time real estate sales record for the month of September. This is the third record-breaking month reported by the local real estate office as they earlier set new sales records for both February and June. For the first nine months of 1991 they are 12 percent ahead of last year and are expecting a relatively busy fall.

The real estate success record is running counter to area home sales in general. Due to the sluggish economy, the average house is taking longer to sell and prices have remained stagnant compared to last year. Many families, who would normally be trading up to a newer or larger home, have decided to ride out the recession where they are presently.

The good side of the real estate market has been the low mortgage interest rates, the lowest since 1978. In an effort to stimulate the economy, the government has brought down interest rates to a level below anything in the 1980s. Families who can afford to buy a home now are seeing both great mortgage rates and a good supply of houses to choose from.

First time home buyers are having the additional advantage of gaining major tax deductions. Tax reform has left the deductions of both home mortgage interest and real estate taxes as the only major income tax deductions that are available to most families today.

Red hots turn red hot for Irving's

Irving's For Red Hot Lovers, a fast-growing Chicago-area fast-food operation, is moving into an aggressive expansion mode. Franchising inquiries have come from as far afield as Japan, where three months ago, a Japanese marketing and advertising company purchased the licensing agreement to embark on its own franchise division and has a highly aggressive growth plan. They have already obtained two pieces of real estate and have plans to develop nine stores by the end of 1992 of both franchised and company operations.

The license agreement includes the Irving's name and trademarks, training program, continued technical assistance including new concepts and products, and the ongoing purchasing of food products and equipment packages. Irving's will assist in store development and marketing support, and will ship the hot dog, polish sausage, Italian beef, Italian sausage and other items to be come part of the Japanese menu. Irving's will be visiting with their licensee at least once every six months to establish plans and goals to accomplish for continued growth of this program. Irving's will be part of any sublicensing and growth program within the territory of Japan.

In addition to the two Irving's stores, a training center is being constructed in Nagano Ken, Japan, home of the upcoming Winter Olympics.

Within this country, however, Andrew Greenspan and his father Irving Greenspan, chairman, want to avoid rushing headlong into over-rapid expansion nationally, and take it step by step instead. The 16-year-old hot dog chain, which presently has company-owned stores and six franchise locations, is in the process of adding five more franchises, in or around Chicago. There is currently an Irving's at 7057 W. Dempster in Niles.

Illinois Bell doubles 9-1-1 lines

On National 9-1-1 Day, Sept. 11, Illinois Bell doubled the number of telephone lines served by Enhanced 9-1-1 emergency systems.

In a single historic day, the company brought seven separate Enhanced 9-1-1 systems to life, including countrywide systems in DuPage and Kane counties, plus others in Barrington Hills, Oak Forest, Gurness, Streamwood and "Quad County"—an area covering Carpentersville, East Dundee, West Dundee, and Sleepy Hollow.

There are two types of 9-1-1 service, basic and enhanced. Basic is the least complex system, in that all numbers in a given telephone exchange are routed to a single emergency answering point.

Enhanced systems provide immediate identification of the caller's location by displaying his or her address and phone number. They also automatically route callers to their predetermined emergency agency.

"Enhanced 9-1-1 saves time and it saves lives," said Ron Bloom, Illinois Bell senior manager for 9-1-1 systems.

Each system activated required months of extensive planning, installation and testing to bring on line, Bloom said. DuPage County's system is the

Three rules of investing

by Jeffrey Cardella
Edward D. Jones & Co.

There's no simple formula for successful investing, but if there were, it would include these three basic elements: (1) understand what you buy, (2) buy value at a reasonable price, and (3) be patient.

Understanding your investment is so basic, it's often neglected. Too often an investment is made with no idea of what is being bought. We've all chuckled at the remark, "Don't confuse me with the facts," but facts, or more accurately how they're presented, may confuse even a seasoned investor and totally mystify a new investor. This shouldn't be. It's vital you understand your investment - the good and bad, the risks and rewards.

If the investment is unduly complicated, ask questions until you're satisfied with the answers. Fully understand what an investment is designed to do and whether that goal is the same as your goal. The more you understand your investments, the more comfortable you'll be with them. If you're not comfortable with an investment you own, that's a good indication you shouldn't own it. Ask questions and get answers.

I recently had the opportunity to visit with a group of professional money managers responsible for more than $9 billion of investment assets. Their prudent search for value is documented by 51 years of consistently superior results. Of course, they boast of no magic formula; it's dedicated research by a team of knowledgeable professionals that makes them successful. One-fourth, however, when asked to sum up their combined philosophies, agreed their success depends on recognizing and buying value at reasonable prices.

Value buying demands both research and discipline. A stock may be judged undervalued for various reasons. For example, if it and its industry are out of favor, the market value of the stock might go lower and become an even better value. If this is the case and the fundamentals are still positive, it's an opportunity for more selective buying by the value investor.

Hand in hand with value investing goes patience. Generally, the key to buying value is to recognize it early. It could take several years for the value of your investment to materialize. This waiting period demands both patience and confidence. The most successful investors know it requires time for their investment to double, triple or more.

Although no specific time period can be identified as ideal, professional managers generally agree that five years is a sufficient period. It allows for the normal fluctuations of the stock market, adjustments in the economy, and it allows time for the value of your investment to mature and be recognized in the market place. In five years, your original investment could double at a reasonable 15 percent annual compounding.

With investing there are few guarantees, but understanding your investments, seeking value, and waiting for them to develop will generally put you ahead in the race for financial security.

"Understand what you buy, buy value at a reasonable price, and be patient."

Oakton East campus renamed for founder

Oakton Community College's Skokie campus was renamed The Ray Hartstein Campus by the Board of Trustees at its Sept. 30 meeting.

More recently known as Oakton East, the Skokie campus is located at 7701 N. Lincoln Avenue. Longtime Skokie resident Ray Hartstein is current chairman of the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees and was also founding chairman in 1969.

Introduced by Board member Jody Wadhwa, the Sept. 30 resolution to rename the campus recognized Hartstein for his 22 years of dedication to Oakton. During this time, the college grew from classrooms in rented warehouses to a multi-campus institution with more than 11,000 credit students and some 14,000 non-credit students.

The resolution also noted Hartstein's leadership at the state and national levels of the community college movement. He has served as president of the Illinois Community College Trustees Association and on numerous committees of the Illinois Community College Board, as well as the national Association of Community College Trustees.

Hartstein is a retired Brunswick Corporation executive and former administrator of the Brunswick Foundation. He previously served at the United States Embassy in Israel where he worked with local businesses and universities in establishing industrial relations and personnel programs.

Long-recognized as an indefatigable community volunteer, Hartstein has served such local groups as the Literacy Commission, Orchard Association for the Retarded, Skokie Valley United Way, the Metropolitan Coalition on Aging and the Citizens Board of Loyola University, among others. In 1986, he was recognized as one of the Top Ten Volunteers of the Year by North Shore Magazine.

"One of Ray Hartstein's primary goals (in the development of Oakton) was to provide district residents with easy access to higher education," Mary Miller, dean of the Skokie campus, said. "For that reason, he was one of the primary advocates of the College purchasing the Skokie site."

The Skokie building was Niles East High School until 1980 when District 219 closed the school and rented portions of it to Oakton and other community agencies. The College purchased the entire property in 1989 and plans are underway to renovate for more extensive academic use.

"We have always been proud of the extent of credit and non-credit offerings available at the Skokie campus," she continued. "As the Oakton/Hartstein campus, we will continue to maintain our high standards in a way that Ray Hartstein would applaud."

Customer refunds coming from Edison in November

Commonwealth Edison will refund approximately $80 to customers during the November billing cycle, the company has announced. The refunds will be made by credit to the customer's monthly electric bill.

Edison has already refunded about $400 million to customers after an Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) rate settlement order was overturned by the courts. The company has been holding about $87 million to pay the claims of customers who had been charged the higher rate, and were no longer Edison customers during the six-month payback period that ended in December 1990 or were otherwise entitled to additional refunds.

However, since the end of September, less than $2 million in valid claims were made. With the fund due to expire in June 1992, Edison and the Commission agreed that substantial additional refunds could be made without jeopardizing the status of any future claims. Edison will retain $5.4 million in the fund to pay any claims that are made by June 30. Any money remaining at that time also will be refunded.

NA'AMAT USA convenes in Israel

Local NA'AMAT USA delegates are attending their 32nd National Biennial Convention in Jerusalem, Israel through Nov. 13.

The Morton Grove delegate will be among hundreds of women representing NA'AMAT USA clubs from throughout the United States. She is Barbara Novick, Suburban Chicago Council president and executive director.

According to Novick an expected highlight of the convention is the opportunity to be in Israel during the Mideast Peace Talks. Additionally the ten-day session will feature addresses and briefings by top Israeli leaders and with new Russian and Ethiopian immigrants. The delegates will gather at the Western Wall in a "Salute to Israel" upon their arrival.

Novick states that the convention will mark the close of a year of celebration marking NA'AMAT USA's 65th year of providing services to Israel's families. "The year," she said, "has been a particularly stressful one because of Iraq's missile attacks. We, in cooperation with NA'AMAT Israel's 750,000 members, were able to minister to the emergency needs of the 4000 Israelis left homeless just as we have done in emergency situations in other difficult years."

NA'AMAT USA (formerly Pioneer Women), in cooperation with its sister NA'AMAT organization in Israel, supports a broad network of education, vocational and child care services that reach more than half of Israel's citizenry. NA'AMAT is the largest Jewish women's organizations in the world with 800,000 members in 14 countries.

Oakton runner comes of age

His Oakton Community College cross country teammates still find it hard to believe that Jeff Briggs will be 40 years old when he celebrates his birthday next April.

The 1970 Maine East High School Graduate is not the only person who has returned to college at the age of 39, but he does carry the distinction of being the oldest person ever to be a member of the Raiders' cross country team.

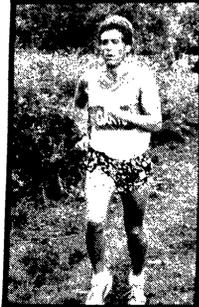

"In a good way, he's like a kid," said Oakton cross country coach Pat Savage. "He relates very well to the other guys on the team and does a great job of motivating them. Everyone seems to really enjoy having Jeff on our team."

Briggs is taking classes at Oakton because he plans to enroll in a chiropractic school.

"I worked 12 years in the sales department of hotels," Briggs says. "I was good at it, but got about as far as I could. I had always been interested in health, so in 1988 I left the hotel business and enrolled in the Chicago School of Massage Therapy. Being a chiropractor interests me because I have been going to one since (1982). I need about 1 1/2 years of science classes before I start a chiropractic school, so I decided to take those classes at Oakton."

Briggs, who currently is taking chemistry, biology and physics classes at Oakton, started running in 1978.

"I was involved in wrestling, football and golf in high school," he says, "but I always hated running. I started running to keep my six-year-old dog in shape."

Jeff Briggs

The initial connection to the Oakton cross country team came this past summer when Briggs participated in the Niles West/Oakton Running Club, of which Raider coach Pat Savage is in charge.

"(Savage) told me that I would be eligible to run for Oakton if I was a full-time student, so I decided to give it a try," Briggs says. "It's really been a great experience for me because it's not just going back to school. I feel more a part of the whole school and have more of a sense of belonging."

"I'm extremely proud of what my teammates are doing, and that's what keeps me going. I also get a lot of support from my wife (Ann). She was a runner in high school, so she understands it, which makes it much more enjoyable for me."

Diabetics detection week set for Nov. 10-16

Two hundred thousand people in metro Chicago have diabetes...and don't know it.

The week of Nov. 10-16 has been declared "Diabetes Detection Week" by the American Diabetes Association (ADA), as part of National Diabetes Month across the nation.

During this week, the ADA is urging Americans to take a Diabetes Risk Test and attend free local screenings to determine if they may be at risk for having diabetes.

Through various treatment methods, including combinations of diet, exercise and medication, diabetes is a disease that can be well controlled. In fact, many people with diabetes, including a number of television personalities, professional athletes and captains of industry, manage to lead full, productive lives.

People who are more likely to develop diabetes include:

Those with a family history of diabetes.

Anyone over age 30, and overweight.

Minorities, including Blacks, Hispanics, and Native American Indians (black adults, for example, are 60 percent more likely than white adults to have diabetes).

Diabetes is a disease that affects the way the body uses food. It causes sugar levels in the blood to be abnormally high. The resulting high blood sugar can cause severe damage to the heart, circulatory and nervous systems, and bodily organs such as the eyes and kidneys.

The symptoms of diabetes include frequent urination, unusual thirst and hunger, rapid weight loss, fatigue and irritability, blurred vision, and tingling or numbness in the hands or feet.

"Many people in the early stages of diabetes may show no symptoms at all," explains Robert Winter, M.D., President of the ADA. "So, it's important that everyone make an effort to be tested."

For a free copy of the "Diabetes Risk Test," call Northern Illinois Affiliate of the American Diabetes Association at (312) 346-1805 or (800) 433-4966.

Holy Family offers substance abuse treatment program

Most of us feel a great deal of relief when we are able to share our problems with people who really understand what we're going through. For someone who has an alcohol or drug abuse problem, another abuser is that someone. Being supported by someone who is recovering, who has had similar experiences, benefits both the abuser and the recovering abuser.

The discovery of this fact is the reason Alcoholics Anonymous was formed more than 55 years ago by two men who were referred to only as Bill W. and Dr. Bob. The 12-step program they devised for staying sober is now the basis behind substance abuse treatment programs throughout the world.

"Only three percent of all substance abusers are able to stay sober without accepting and applying the 12-step program," says Ruthann Lenard, RN, CAC, program director of the Holy Family Substance Abuse Center. "Most abusers who have not accepted the 12 steps do not realize the rewards of recovery and are struggling. They suffer a great deal and are highly prone to relapse."

The steps take an individual from admitting they are powerless over alcohol or a substance, to experiencing a willingness to turn their lives over to a higher power, who can help them with the problem. Then, the individual must carry this message to other abusers in order to help them on the road to recovery.

Along the way, recovering individuals go through several soul searching steps including a search for character defects and admitting these defects to a higher power and one other person. In the course of working through the program they will ask the higher power to remove these shortcomings. They must also make a list of all persons they have harmed and be willing to make amends.

For patients, accomplishing the first step is a hard and scary process. It takes courage to enter a treatment program. Holy Family's substance abuse center has taken precautions to make the admitting process confidential and as smooth as possible.

"If individuals feel the need to seek help," says George Lagorio, MD, medical director, Holy Family Substance Abuse Center, "they simply come to the hospital admitting department (between 6 a.m. and midnight) or the emergency department (24 hours a day). Either of these departments will refer them to our unit for assessment." Another way to receive help is to call (708) 298-9355 and set up an appointment for an assessment or to call the center's 24-hour crisis line at (708) 298-4422 for emergency situations.

Control teens' eating habits

If parents want to help prevent their adolescents from becoming full-time "junk food junkies," they can establish household eating rules and control the types of food coming into the home, says a dietitian at Loyola University Medical Center.

"Eating habits are a family issue," said Patty Morse, who works with adolescents in Loyola's special weight loss program, called Shapedown.

"A parent cannot say 'Look at all that junk food my child is eating' when the parent is the one in charge of shopping and bringing the food into the house," she explained.

Parents can set good eating patterns by buying nutritious foods and preparing healthy meals, she said.

A parental "eat-dinner-at-home" rule can insure that children obtain some of the daily nutrients they need to stay healthy, Morse said.

"One study showed 82 percent of high-school-age children eat an evening meal five to seven days a week. When that meal is prepared at home, sources of vitamins A and C and calcium can be included. These nutrients are often provided in low amounts in fast food fare."

Limiting the places where and times when food can be eaten at home also goes a long way toward curbing "junk food" habits, Morse said.

"Many people consume a large portion of calories and junk food sitting in front of the television. Household rules can include no eating in front of the television or in the bedroom."

A certain degree of a teen's eating habits is a reflection of that age group and its developing independence, Morse said.

"Parents have the hardest time dealing with a child's eating habits during the early adolescent years. Teenagers are struggling for independence and food is a way to express that," Morse said.

New outpatient group on managing medications

A new outpatient group for individuals interested in learning how to use medications more effectively is being formed at Forest Hospital.

The Medication Management group will be led by Renato De Los Santos, M.D., a psychiatrist on the medical staff at Forest Hospital. Dr. De Los Santos said he decided to organize the group following inquiries from patients on the ramifications of taking medications.

"Over the last few years, I have found that many people don't have a basic understanding of the medications they are taking, especially if they are prescribed more than one at the same time," he said. "Participants in this group will be able to share their experiences and support one another while learning more about how medications will affect them individually."

The group is open to families and individuals, and up to 15 members can participate. Meetings will be held at Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines. The meeting day and time will be determined after the group is formed.

For more information on the Medication Management group, call the Forest Hospital Outpatient Department at (708) 635-4100, ext. 224 or 225.

Diet, exercise can burn up calories

You're at a restaurant with a friend who devours everything on her plate and then orders a hot fudge sundae. You look at her with disgust and think to yourself, how can she eat so much and be so thin. You reason with yourself that you will never be able to eat as she does because your metabolism rate is not as high as hers.

Wrong! Your metabolism rate is not something you are destined to just accept, says Linda Snetelaar, assistant research scientist in internal medicine at the university of Iowa College of Medicine. Metabolism is the amount of calories your body needs to function properly. Although metabolism is the same function in everyone, it varies among individuals.

Metabolism rates differ, but a change in diet and an exercise program can help you increase your ability to burn up calories. "The more exercise a person gets, the more calories the body needs to function - which, with the proper diet, can lead to a more fit and trim body," Snetelaar says. Children are usually more active than adults, which explains why people tend to put on weight as they age.

As a dietician, Snetelaar develops dietary plans and an exercise program that will suit the individual. She does this by examining the diet and exercise program the person is following, when he or she first comes into the office.

Each person is put on a gradual diet which focuses on healthful eating that eventually reduces all fats. "If you cut down on fats, you are cutting out a lot of calories," she says.

The gradual plan teaches you to slowly give up whatever it is you crave. "This helps to keep you from getting discouraged," Snetelaar explains. Once you're eating right and exercising, your body will be much healthier.

Even though you're eating right and exercising, the scale may not show any change. But don't panic.

"Muscle mass weighs more than fat mass, so while a new diet and exercise program can make you look better and help your clothes fit better, your weight may stay the same," she explains.

Don't blame a little excess weight on your metabolism. Most excess calories can be used for energy with improved eating habits and a regular exercise program.

It takes a little motivation to achieve these two things, but it is something that anyone can do if they're willing to give it a try, Snetelaar says.

Organized sports and children

Team sports can be a valuable developmental activity for your child throughout his or her youth.

Generally fun and rewarding, organized sports can become a difficult activity if your child's skills or interests do not match parental or peer expectations.

Bryn Jessup, PhD, a clinical psychologist at The Children's Memorial Medical Center, suggests following these rules of thumb:

Examine your own goals and expectations for your child. "If 'sports mania' and good grades do not mix for your child, know your own priorities and expectations for grades and sports involvement. Share these with your child, making clear that his or her feelings are important, but that you have the right to decide the bottom line."

"Take an active interest in organized sports programs, but follow your child's lead when it comes to encouraging him or her to do well in sports. Take care not to push too hard."

If sports are mandatory at school, talk to the coach, organizers, or school personnel and ask about their goals for your child and the team.

Make decisions according to your child's changing needs. "In early elementary school, organized sports activities meet primary developmental needs such as socialization and affiliation with peers. At this age, competition from the standpoint of winning is not as important, nor do children feel as much need to demonstrate high skills. Sports that allow equal participation for all children regardless of their skill level, such as soccer, are most desirable."

"When a child reaches upper elementary school and individual skills become better developed, it is important for the child to have an outlet for demonstrating his or her skills and gaining recognition from others. The need to win or dominate still is less important than demonstrating developmental improvement."

"Team sports are an arena for excellent, and can provide favorable opportunities for emotional and physical development. For adolescents who show athletic promise, skill becomes an increasingly important part of self-concept. A child who repeatedly finds disappointment in a sport should be given help in finding something different in which he or she will excel."

Provide the necessary positive reinforcement. "For adolescents, peer feedback becomes critical. In a competitive sports environment, parents should realize that they cannot provide foolproof inoculation against hurt feelings and stinging criticism. Provide a sympathetic ear, and don't be too quick to reassure. If you offer blanket praise your child might sense that you are discounting his or her feelings and opinions."

"Keep an open channel for communication. Encouragement should take the form of a willingness to talk about any problems. Make joint decisions with your child about his or her participation in organized sports. Emphasize good sportsmanship and consideration of others."

Maine East soccer star

Hernan Campuzano, who resides in Niles, first thought about soccer when he was in the fourth grade. His initial official introduction to soccer was playing in the Niles Park District soccer program for several years, making progress with each year.

His next move was not until three years ago when he began to play in soccer clubs. The first club he played in was called Green and White. He then moved to a club called Stars and Stripes. This club travels during the summer months to Brazil, Europe, and Australia.

The first place he went to was Humbleback, Denmark, where the team stayed for three days. They stayed in the homes of people who lived in Denmark.

"The next step was Gothenburg, Sweden, where they stayed for eight days. While they were there, Hernan and his team competed in the biggest youth tournament the Gothic Cup. They won one match against Brazil.

From there they went to Hjoring, Denmark, and played in another big tournament, the Dana Cup where 750 teams competed. Hernan scored two goals. Their next destination was Enchede, Holland, where they stayed four days. They played one friendly match and the rest was relaxation.

For the three years that Hernan has attended Maine East, he has played on the soccer team. He has scored a total of twelve goals so far this year, twenty his sophomore year, and nine his freshman year. Hernan was in last month's "Chicago Tribune" for being the 15th in the Chicago area for scoring assists.

After all his soccer experience, the question arises, "Will soccer be a career possibility?" Hernan's coach believes that if he works at it, soccer could get him into a good college.

Avoiding saturated fats can lower cholesterol

Consumers looking for low-fat, cholesterol-free products may not know the whole story when it comes to fats.

Many fast food chains now offer frozen yogurts and lower-fat ice creams to keep cholesterol-conscious consumers happy. But are the ingredients in low-fat or "light" products truly as low in cholesterol or fat as they claim to be?

"There is a lot of confusion about what foods affect your blood cholesterol level," says Phyllis Stumbo, research nutritionist at the University of Iowa College of Medicine Clinical Research Center.

Research has shown that saturated fats increase blood cholesterol levels. Eating polyunsaturated fats tends to decrease blood cholesterol levels, Stumbo says.

Most of the saturated fat in our diet comes from animal fat, present in products such as butter, cheese, lard and whole milk. Polyunsaturated fats come from vegetable sources, and are found in many food products, including margarine and salad dressing.

Lowering cholesterol levels may not be as simple as sticking to a diet low in animal fats. Many "light" products also contain tropical oils - vegetable oils which, although low in cholesterol, are saturated fats. Tropical oils include palm oil, palm kernel oil and coconut oil and are used in dairy products, snacks, crackers and sweets such as soft cookies,

Howard Area Health Center expands

St. Francis Hospital of Evanston dedicated a new, enlarged Howard Area Health Center to serve low income families.

The Center has been relocated to 7464 North Clark St., Chicago, to accommodate nearly 10,000 annual patient visits. Housed since 1986 in the Howard Area Community Center (7648 N. Paulina Ave.), the facility will be enlarged from 1,000 square feet to 5,000 square feet in its new location.

The Center offers pediatric, obstetric and gynecologic, and adult medical services. More than 8,000 families are currently registered at the Center. In 1990, the Center provided 9,277 patient visits compared with 4,860 visits during the first full year of operation in 1987.

The hospital pediatric program is being moved to the Center in order to coordinate the two care programs. An estimated 200 additional children will be cared for monthly at the Center.

The Howard Area Health Center seeks to make health care more accessible to families by offering services on a sliding scale payment system according to family income and family size; most patients lack medical insurance and are hispanic immigrants.

The Center serves Chicago residents living in an area bounded by Bryn Mawr (south), Howard Street (north), Lake Michigan (east), Kedzie Avenue (west), and residents of Evanston.

Located in a former tool factory, the new facility houses nine examining rooms, pharmacy, laboratory, classrooms, reception and waiting area, and children's playroom.

New methods for treating artery blockage

There is good news for the two million Americans who have a common, yet potentially serious condition known as peripheral vascular disease (PVD), or hardening of the arteries. Physicians such as Dr. Richard Messersmith at Lutheran General Hospital have developed new methods for treating this disease without surgery.

Until recently, surgery was the only treatment available for some forms of PVD, which is caused by the formation of plaque (atherosclerosis) and/or blood clots in the arteries. This blockage can result in severe disability or sometimes even amputation.

Dr. Messersmith is one of only 2,000 interventional radiologists nationwide; these physicians are specialists in the nonsurgical treatment of diseased arteries. One of the most frequently used techniques they employ in the treatment of PVD is angioplasty, which blocked arteries are opened up with a balloon catheter. Other techniques include stents and thrombolytic therapy.

"Thrombolytic therapy involves the use of special drugs to dissolve blood clots," reports Dr. Messersmith. "Use of this therapy in conjunction with angioplasty may replace the need for surgery."

For more information on peripheral vascular disease or interventional radiology, contact Dr. Messersmith or call the Society for Cardiovascular and Interventional Radiology (SCVIR) at 1 (800) 488-SCVIR.

Although the causes of atherosclerosis are still uncertain, physicians do recognize specific risk factors that contribute to the disease process. These include smoking, high blood pressure (hypertension), diabetes, obesity and a family history of heart or vascular disease.

"If a person with any of these risk factors experiences pain in the calves, thighs, hips or buttocks when walking or at night, if they have numbness and tingling in one of their legs, they may have a blocked artery that supplies blood to that limb. These people should consult their family physician to determine if they have PVD and what treatment might be appropriate for them," said Dr. Messersmith.

Dr. Messersmith, a graduate of Northwestern University Medical School, has practiced in the Skokie area since 1989. He and his wife Elizabeth have two children.

For more information on peripheral vascular disease or interventional radiology, contact Dr. Messersmith or call the Society for Cardiovascular and Interventional Radiology (SCVIR) at 1 (800) 488-SCVIR.

Is Mom taking care of herself?

Over six million elderly Americans need help with such basic activities as getting out of bed and going to the bathroom. Several million more can no longer manage their finances, meals and transportation. Most of these dependent adults are cared for by their families.

Determining whether an older family member might need additional care has become a particular concern of many people in their late 30's and 40's. These aging baby-boomers are often busy with careers or young children, and yet must also continually assess the changing healthcare needs of their parents.

Here are some key questions that can help people with aging parents decide whether additional care is needed.

1. Does your relative "forget" to eat, or eat only one type of food?
2. Does she forget her medication? Take too much or too little?
3. Does she have increasing trouble keeping track of finances, days of the week?
4. Does she have trouble maintaining personal cleanliness? Do you see her in the same clothes day after day?
5. Do you think she might accidentally injure herself? For example, does she sometimes leave the stove on?
6. Do you, the caregiver, have other responsibilities (a job, looking after other family members) that make it impossible to continue to provide the level of attention your relative needs?

Clare Hendrick, vice president of Nursing for Beverly Enterprises, notes that many people with elderly parents are uncertain about the answers to such questions. "In these cases, the best way to get a sense of whether an adult needs additional care is simply to visit with her as frequently as possible."

"After these visits, if you answer 'yes' to two or more of the questions above, you should seriously consider some additional professional care for your relative."

Ms. Hendrick notes that in-home nursing care services are available in almost every community. In many cases, people should also consider the services offered by nursing centers that specialize in geriatric care.

"It is vitally important," says Ms. Hendrick, "to get your relative involved as much as possible in discussing any change that might take place. The more the relative can participate in the decision, the more likely it is that she will maintain a sense of dignity, self-respect and independence."

For more information on services for the elderly or for what to consider in looking for a nursing center, call toll-free: 1-800-666-9996.

Preventive care promoted by parish nurses

Granger Westberg, D.D., founder of the national parish nurse movement, has called the nation's parish nurses "America's secret health care weapon."

There are currently parish nurses in 1,000 congregations of all faiths in approximately 35 states.

Westberg's remarks came at the conclusion of the fifth annual Granger Westberg Symposium, a national conference for parish nurses. This annual symposium is hosted by Lutheran General Health Care System (LGHCS), which implemented the first institutionally-based parish nurse program in the nation in 1985.

"Almost two-thirds of the people in the United States have some tangible relationship to a local congregation," according to Westberg. "Before these people ever think about going to see a doctor in the early stages of a health problem, the parish nurse, with her unique sensitivity to early cries for help, and her familiar face as part of the church staff, can quickly respond. She is a personal health counselor and health educator. She helps people access increasingly complex health-care resources, coordinates volunteers in developing preventive health education programs and helps people integrate faith and health."

In short, a parish nurse is a much-needed "high touch" component in the increasingly "high-tech" world of health care. In fact, insurers and government agencies should be singing the praises of parish nursing because it promotes preventive medicine, which is the least expensive form of health care."

Ann Solari-Twadell, director, National Parish Nurse Resource Center, LGHCS, says, "Conventional science has always been the primary source for medical cures. People traditionally have felt that more discoveries, more research, would take care of our problems. Now scientists and researchers are recognizing that human illness can be related to what else is going on in a person's life, their relationships, their outlook on life and the world around them. At LGHCS we sum it up in the term Human Ecology. It's our core philosophy at LGHCS."

Holy Family Hospital hosts skin care program

A panel discussion focusing on skin care, treatment, and family concerns will highlight an educational program sponsored by the Scleroderma Foundation of Greater Chicago on Nov. 10, at Holy Family Hospital, 100 N. River Road, Des Plaines.

Cole Lundquist, M.D., a dermatologist, Ira Melnicoff, D.O., a rheumatologist, and George Lagorio, M.D., a family practitioner will be the speakers.

Scleroderma literally means "hard skin." Nearly 300,000 persons, mostly women (3 to 1 ratio) of child bearing years are affected by this chronic and debilitating disease. Scleroderma is a connective-tissue disease and a disorder of the blood vessels. Scleroderma is characterized by an overproduction of a protein called collagen by the connective tissue cells of the body. When deposited in the skin or in body organs, the excess collagen causes thickening and hardening.

Scleroderma can attack the skin and/or internal organs. Its effects can range from very mild to life-threatening. The many different symptoms presented by the various forms of scleroderma often make diagnosis difficult. The cause of scleroderma is still unknown and a proven cure is yet to be discovered.

The Scleroderma Foundation of Greater Chicago is a non-profit organization committed to patient care, education, and finding a cure for scleroderma. For information phone the Scleroderma Foundation of Greater Chicago, 175 West Jackson Blvd., Room 917, Chicago, IL 60604, or phone (312) 922-3532.

Dudycz offers health-care forms

Seventh District residents who want to make sure their health-care wishes are carried out can now obtain forms for living wills and health-care powers of attorney at the office of State Sen. Walter Dudycz (R-7th, Chicago).

"Modern technology has developed to a point where life can be sustained far beyond the point where there is any mental function or quality of life," Dudycz said. "A living will and a power of attorney are as important as a conventional will because they express the signer's attitude about life-sustaining treatment. Signing them is something we do for our family's peace of mind and our own."

Dudycz said any adult can fill out and sign the documents, have them witnessed and give copies to physicians, families, or friends. The living will specifies if the signer would want life-sustaining treatment in case of terminal illness or irreversible coma. The health-care power of attorney designates one or more persons to make health-care decisions if the signer should become too ill to do so.

The forms are available without charge by contacting Dudycz's office, 6143 N. Northwest Highway, Chicago 60631, (312) 774-7717.

Local expert explains tooth implant advances

Imagine... never being able to bite into a crisp, juicy red apple again! It's the classic demonstration of ineffective dentures. Now, technology solves the problem with tooth implants.

Tooth implants can turn people who live around. Today's technology can replace a single tooth or a whole mouthful. Both young and old can benefit. The procedure has become very popular in California and on the East coast. Implants are an alternative to conventional dentures for young people who have lost teeth due to auto accidents of sports injuries. Thousands of middle-aged and older Americans are making the switch from dentures to implants with outstanding results.

The improvement in chewing force is incredible. Some long-term denture-wearers have a reduced chewing force of only 10%. No wonder biting into an apple or chewing a steak is a problem. Dental implants are almost like natural teeth—they dramatically increase chewing force to about 90%.

One of the first specialists in the Chicago area to use this technology and newer tooth implant designs is Dr. Lawrence Wallace, D.D.S., a board-certified oral and maxillofacial surgeon. Dr. Wallace has placed over 800 implants since 1975. He maintains a private practice in Des Plaines, and just recently published an article in the Chicago Dental Society Review (April 1990). The paper focuses on a highly specialized tooth implant technique called subperiosteal (on-the-bone) implants. It's a technique that's performed on people whose jawbone is severely deteriorated.

Long term denture-wearers often have the greatest denture problems because their dentures are sitting on a jawbone that has gradually shrunk over the years. According to Wallace, "The overall result is that a person's general health and well-being are compromised, decreasing their ability to have a full, satisfying life."

Dr. Wallace is excited about recent high-tech advances that have made these highly specialized tooth implants a reality for his patients including:

1. Computerized Tomography (CT) and CAD/CAM (Computer Aided Design/Computer Aided Manufacturing) Eliminates Surgery. Previously, subperiosteal implants needed to be done in two separate surgical stages: a preliminary surgery was needed to open the gum tissue to obtain direct impressions of the jawbone, and a second surgery about three weeks later to actually place the implant. Most patients fear surgery, but the prospect of a double surgery intimidated patients from even seriously considering the procedure!

Now, use of advanced computerized tomography and radiographic technology is used to create a three dimensional model of the jawbone contour, thus eliminating the first surgery entirely. This amazing process reduces time, pain and is more precise.

2. Hydroxylapatite (HA). A synthetic substance with "living" properties! This remarkable chemical coating enables the metal implant device to form a biological bond with living bone tissue. It fuses the implant to the bone itself. This biochemical reaction strengthens the deteriorating bone, speeds healing and prevents complications.

When done by a qualified dental implantologist, subperiosteal implants are very successful.

At a recent meeting of the Maine Township Regular Republican Organization, newly-installed president Gary Warner, Park Ridge (center), paid tribute to two long-time members of the group for outstanding service to the GOP.

Mark Thompson (left), retiring president and a Maine Township trustee, received an engraved plaque with gavel, and William G. Grice, Jr. received an American flag, which has been flown on the nation's Capitol, in recognition of his 40 years as a Precinct Captain, in Des Plaines. Congressman Henry Hyde (R-6th) secured the flag for presentation to Grice.

Porter named Taxpayer's Hero

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) president Alan L. Keyes today named Congressman John Porter (R-10th) a "Taxpayer's Hero" for his 1991 votes to cut waste and control spending. This is the second year GACW has given this award and Porter has been recognized in both years by CAGW for his fiscal responsibility.

Congressman Porter was one of only four members of the 59-member House Appropriations Committee and among only 63 members of the 435-member House of Representatives to be designated "heroic" by the CAGW study. The ratings, which are based on 18 key House votes affecting government spending, rank members' votes on a scale ranging from "hostile" to "heroic" in supporting taxpayers' interests.

Citizens Against Government Waste is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization founded to promote taxpayers' interests by advocating reduced government spending and taxes. In addition to President Alan Keyes, its Co-Chairmen are Grace Commission leader J. Peter Grace and syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

Porter, who was cited earlier this year by the National Taxpayers Union and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce for his votes to restrain spending and taxes, said he was "delighted" to have been honored by CAGW. "Fighting for deficit reduction and responsible budgets continues to be my highest priority," Porter said, "and I am proud to have CAGW's recognition of my efforts."

Red Cloud honors Roy Leonard

Orchard Village and the Allstate Helping Hands Committee are pleased to announce that over $2,500 was raised to benefit persons with developmental disabilities at Orchard Village as a result of the first annual "Walk for Winners" Walk-a-Thon.

On Saturday, Sept. 7, 100 walkers participated in the non-competitive walk in southwest Skokie. Congratulations to Lee Krause, of Skokie, for raising the most sponsor money. Lee, a resident of Orchard Village, independently raised $200.

All money raised will be used for the residents' recreational and educational activities, including Special Olympics and vacations.

Botanic Garden offers gardening tips

Even though autumn is in full swing, it's not the end of gardening season. According to the Chicago Botanic Garden, among the things which can be in outdoor gardens include:

- Begin planting hardy spring blooming bulbs. Planting may continue until the ground freezes. Apply water and fertilizer (5-10-5) at planting time.
- Transplant deciduous trees and shrubs once leaves have fallen.
- Fertilize trees and shrubs (if not done in spring).
- Rake and compost fallen leaves.
- Wait until the ground begins to freeze before covering roses and mulching perennials.
- Continue to harvest vegetables until plants are killed by frost.
- Protect tender plants from light freezes by covering them with sheets, plastic, or cardboard boxes. Remove covering in the morning.
- Dig up and pot parsley, chives, rosemary and other herbs for indoor cooking.
- Apply manure or other organic matter and till into the garden soil.
- Put up a bird feeder so birds will find it before cold weather arrives on a steady basis.
- After a killing frost, remove all dead plant debris from the annual and vegetable beds.
- Start a compost pile while leaves and plant debris are abundant.
- Apply a heavy mulch over leeks, Jerusalem artichokes, carrots, beets and turnips so they can be harvested well into the winter.
- Harvest apples and pears and store in a cold (33 to 35 degrees Fahrenheit) location for winter use.
- Clean up rotten fruit and debris around fruit trees and other plantings.
- For answers to specific questions call the Plant Information Service from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily at (708) 835-0972.

Metra weekend ticket pass in effect

Reports of the demise of Metra commuter rail's popular $5 weekend ticket are without basis, officials say.

The special fare, which was originally intended to be available through Labor Day only, is now a permanent ticket choice for weekend travelers. The decision to make it permanent came in August.

The pass entitles the user to unlimited travel all day Saturday and Sunday and is good on all lines that operate weekend service except the South Shore.

The pass, which is non-transferable and non-refundable, is only good on the weekend for which it is purchased. It can be purchased on board the trains or in advance from ticket agents.

Maryville Academy's new Vocational/Technical Center will be the recipient of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce & Industry's "Shop Des Plaines" Coupon Book proceeds.

The new center is a special education/vocational facility available to the disabled students of High School District 214. It will be an addition to the present Nipper School. The funding for this project is being provided by Maryville Academy through private donations. The center will represent collaboration of District 214, Maryville Academy, Private Industry Council and the Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE).

Traditionally, the special education students are unable to maintain employment and end up collecting public funds in order to support themselves and often their offspring.

By teaching these students the lifelong skills that they need to be successful, the center will provide a service to the community and help prepare these young adults to contribute to society rather than drain it.

The "Shop Des Plaines" coupon book is a first of its kind locally. Twenty Des Plaines merchants participated to provide residents and commuters with bargains. It was a learning experience in the true sense of the word because Maryville students were able to produce, print, collate and assemble the books by themselves in the Academy's print shop. Proceeds from the books will be donated to the new Vocational/Technical Center for disabled students.

Coupon books, containing total coupon values of $550, may be purchased at the Des Plaines Chamber office, 1401 Oakton St. for only $10. For more information, contact the Chamber at 824-4200.

Wayne Morris, owner of a service station, at 7701 Milwaukee Ave., said Lone Tree customers parking in his lot had dragged a 600 lb. planter out of his drive.

But Commissioner Angelo Troiani argued Kolpak and architect Chris Dabrowski had attempted to adhere to earlier board suggestions relating to parking, privacy fencing, lighting, landscaping and entry placement and had the right to proceed. He suggested valet parking as a way to control parking.

Commissioner Sydney Mitchell disagreed. He said "Valet parking creates a thorn; doesn't solve anything." He suggested if Lone Tree had allegedly not been a good neighbor in the past, it was not likely to change and parking would probably be worse.

Mitchel dissented when Troiani moved approval of the zoning change from B-1 to B-2 for a catering hall and a parking variation from the required 41 spaces to 35, with a recommendation for valet parking. Troiani added to the motion Commissioner Roger Bernal's suggestion the fencing be raised to six feet to help reduce headlight glare for neighbors.

Earlier, in answer to residents' queries about the hall exceeding its 112-seat capacity, Code Enforcement Director Joe Salerno warned if the amount is exceeded and he is notified there would be that many bodies at the police station. He said "I don't like going out on Saturday evenings."

Zoning Board President John Frick urged the residents to bring their complaints to the Village Board when it is on the agenda since the Zoning Board has certain obligations under the zoning code.

In a second case, the board agreed to allow a resident, of 8307 Ballard Road a zoning variation from a required 40-ft. rear yard to 33-ft. so he could enlarge and enclose his open porch's foundation, frame, windows and siding would conform to Niles Village Code and Commissioner Dorothy Dolack moved approval of the variation.

proved giving them 38 percent in the top quarter and about 79 percent in the top half. In language arts, 94 percent of the Culver students were in the top half.

Eighth grade scores at Culver were generally better in all categories than sixth grade scores, except for language arts where about 93 percent of the students scored in the top half.

Students were also administered the Stanford Achievement Form J test and showed similar high scores in the reading comprehension, mathematics, science and social science tests. More Culver sixth grades scored in the top quarter in reading comprehension and math in the Stanford test.

Other District 71 stats: More than 70 percent of the district's 339 children are white. Those of Asian and Pacific Island descent comprise 23.9 percent of the student body. Black and Hispanic children account for 5.9 percent of the enrollment.

Eighteen percent of the children enrolled at Niles Elementary School South and Culver Middle School are from families receiving public aid or eligible to receive reduced price lunches, compared to a state enrollment of low income children of 29.1 percent.

Almost nine-and-a-half percent of both schools are limited-English proficient, compared to the statewide average of 4.4 percent.

Students tend to be more transient than the state average of 20.6 percent. South's student mobility rate was 24.2 percent and Culver's was 22.1 percent. Those numbers reflect the portion of students entering or leaving school during the school year.

The district's 39 teachers earned an average salary of $40,396 in 1990-91. The state average is $34,709. The average of the superintendent's and two principals' three salaries is $75,149, compared to the state average of $55,535 in the same year.

District 71 also outspent the state average in each of its funds, with more than 80 percent of its budget going to the education fund as compared to the state average of 73.9 percent.

Reynolds also buys aluminum castings including automobile parts, pots and pans, lawn mower housings and barbecue grills. The firm buys copper and brass in this market, also.

Cans need not be crushed to be recycled at a Reynolds center but should be separated from other miscellaneous scrap aluminum, copper and brass.

involved in village government through the years.

When he ran for office in 1961 there were four parties vying for election in Niles. The election involved several hundred people. Not only were they learning a valuable civics lesson, but after the election many of them moved into committees and on public boards in the village. There was a transfusion of new blood, which revitalized the village. Two years later this culminated in new efforts led to Niles being selected an All America village, the first one in the north and northwest suburbs.

Through the years we've seen school board members, library board members and park board commissioners, who have stayed in office far too long. In one local school district one board member was there for more than 40 years. Today, at Oakton College, one board member has been there since the first school board meeting, 22 years ago.

It's been our observation long time board members have that same proprietary interest as those mayors had who called their town, "My town", (emphasis on the "my").

In Niles park district we have long reported long time commissioners there got involved in the day to day operations of the district. It not only demoralized personnel, but it played havoc with the functioning of the district. When the new park board members gained office we thought they would keep their noses out of such matters. Regrettably, we've been told one of the new board members was at a park social function where she was telling parents how badly the people running that very program were handling it.

Down at the Niles Library, past board members operated in a vacuum ignoring the people they represented. When they built the addition on the library building it was done with money, which rightfully should have gone for higher salaries and more books. But rather than ask the voters to approve an addition, they built it without constituent approval, losing many underpaid personnel and shortchanging readers who were forced to use other libraries.

At the school board level, board members become mesmerized by their posts when they stay too long. When new board members first get on the board they're filled with high aspirations. But after the routine and hard work which goes with attending meetings, they lose their quickly-tailed idealism and busily fall under the thumb of the administrator who controls these school boards. Their future years on the boards are generally marked by rubber stamping the superintendent's recommendations.

Should we have restrictions as to the length of terms for our local representatives? We think it's an idea whose time has come.

my, but we feel it's a pretty good contract."

While the state mandates a 185-day school year including five allowed emergency days, the district's teachers have agreed to work 185 days, up from their previous requirement of 183 days. In return they will receive an additional one percent in their salaries, which range from a base of $26,860 for a new graduate to a top of $58,160, which will be paid to the district's one teacher who has a master's degree, 30 hours post graduate work and 34 years' longevity.

"We're not the highest paid teachers in the area, but we stayed in the middle," Palicki said.

By the third year of the contract, a starting teacher without experience will earn around $31,000. The board also agreed to reimburse up to $1,700 of tuition costs to teachers taking additional courses. For the past ten years that tuition reimbursement was $1,000, according to Palicki.

"The most important job anyone could have is to be a teacher," Hedrich emphasized. "Our education system is going to pot and we know historically it's because teachers are going to where jobs pay more. We've got to attract the good people to this profession."

"We got two extra student contract days and that's good," Hedrich continued. "We got a reduction in our insurance costs and that pleased us as well."

"Everyone is just relieved it's all over," Palicki said. "The uncertainty is now gone."

1991 Illinois Distinguished Educator Award," said Ring, who has been principal at West for the past eight years. "I am particularly appreciative for this recognition of an activity that is such an important part of my life, namely helping young adults be successful learners. I hope that my joy is shared by those who have contributed substantially to my activities with these students. Many thanks go to the Illinois State Board of Education, my colleagues and of course the Milken Family Foundation for supporting the IDEA program. I am sincerely grateful to my students, who have taught me so much about being a good educator."

This year's 12 winners will be honored Nov. 20 at a reception, banquet and awards program at the Fairmont Hotel in Chicago. Each winner will receive a commemorative award and will later receive a check for $25,000 to use as he or she wishes.

"These 12 individuals exemplify the best in the education profession in Illinois." They represent the thousands of others just like them in schools all across the state," said State Superintendent Robert Leininger. "Outstanding teachers and principals deserve our gratitude and respect. Through programs like the Illinois Distinguished Educator Awards, we can not only express our thanks, but we can tangibly reward their efforts on behalf of our children."

The recipients were chosen from more than 500 teachers and principals, who have been recognized by their peers, colleagues and communities through other programs.

In September, Ring was presented with a 1991 Those Who Excel Award of Merit through the State Board of Education's annual awards program. The IDEA program specifically investigated each candidate's expertise in the areas of instructional skills, leadership and educational and professional development.

Ring, who will retire in June 1992, began his career as a chemistry teacher in the northwest suburbs. Before reaching Niles West, Ring served as division chairman of mathematics and science at Wheeling High School, instructional coordinator of mathematics and science in District 214, principal of Elk Grove High School and assistant of Highland Park-Deerfield District 113.

At Niles West, Ring has encouraged parental and business involvement from a community that is becoming more ethnically diverse. He has formed several parent groups which transcend the usual athletic boosters to include groups from junior high feeder districts as well as parents representing music and drama students. Ring also helped form and support the Niles West Parent Help Line, a Multi-lingual telephone support program to answer school policy questions for parents who don't speak English.

In the community, Ring is active in the Niles-Morton Grove Rotary, United Way and the Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church.

Ring's leadership skills were commended by visitors from the U.S. Department of Education when they evaluated the school for the 1991 Excellence in Education Award, which the school received in September.

"I found a level of exceptionally effective leadership present at Niles West High School," said evaluator Thomas DeBolt. "The principal, Dr. Ring, has been the guiding force during his tenure which has brought together the people, things, curriculum, skills, motivations and vision which have transformed a divided school into an excellent school."

"In my 17 years at Niles West," says Niles West Director of English and Foreign Language Roger Stein, "no other individual has had a more positive effect on staff morale than Don."

The IDEA Selection Committee was comprised of local school administrators, parents, school board members, the dean of college of education and teachers and principals from among the 1988, 1989 and 1990 IDEA winners. The committee's recommendations were submitted to Leininger, who selected 12 winners from among the group of finalists.

Snowball group promotes drug-free lifestyles

Maine East's Snowball is a group of young people who want to promote healthy lifestyles by keeping healthy kids healthy. Snowball focuses on the ideals of self-esteem, leadership, and positive thinking.

In keeping with Snowball ideals, members recently met to promote Red Ribbon Week and Sober Fun Night. Red Ribbon Week was Oct. 19-26, and the theme was "I can choose not to use."

Every student at Maine East got a red ribbon to wear for the week. This red ribbon shows that to use or not to use alcohol and other drugs is a choice.

Nov. 9-10 some Snowballers will attend a convention having to do with Youth Leadership in the prevention of alcohol and other drug abuse. The theme for this is Growing Together with the Times. It will be held at the Sheraton Naperville.

To join Snowball at Maine East students should attend meetings held every Friday at 7:15 a.m. in Room 142. Co-presidents Michelle Seul and Rachel Kantrovich preside at the meetings; Snowball is coordinated by staff member Joan Lampert.

Fire prevention program presented

On Sept. 30, Lieutenant Pat Schey of the Morton Grove Fire Department was at Melzer School to present a fire prevention program to the kindergarten students.

Lieutenant Schey showed a movie about fire safety, reviewed "stop, drop and roll" procedure with the children and passed out pamphlets to be taken home.

Melzer School is located at 9400 Oriole, in Morton Grove.

The letter pointed out that CTA policy is to evaluate transit routes based on both productivity and availability of service. Yet the CTA proposes to cut Saturday service on both the Skokie Swift and Bus Route #97. Elimination of both routes would take away the only available transportation to the Howard "L" Station for those people dependent on mass transit. Similarly Bus Route #97 is the sole means of mass transit available to Howard Station riders on Sundays.

Bus Route #54A is also a critical route. The route is used by many Skokie and Chicago residents, who depend on the bus to take them to the O'Hare Rapid Transit line and serves as an important link to Old Orchard Shopping Center and other commercial areas.

Mayor Gorelli's letter further states, "All these routes are indispensable, not only to Skokie residents, but to those employees, who depend on the CTA to take them to their workplace, and to those people who depend on the CTA for their basic shopping needs."

Almost nine-and-a-half percent of both schools are limited-English proficient, compared to the statewide average of 4.4 percent.

Students tend to be more transient than the state average of 20.6 percent. South's student mobility rate was 24.2 percent and Culver's was 22.1 percent. Those numbers reflect the portion of students entering or leaving school during the school year.

The district's 39 teachers earned an average salary of $40,396 in 1990-91. The state average is $34,709. The average of the superintendent's and two principals' three salaries is $75,149, compared to the state average of $55,535 in the same year.

District 71 also outperformed the state average in each of its funds, with more than 80 percent of its budget going to the education fund as compared to the state average of 73.9 percent.

Local sales tax rate increases

Retailers in nine Chicago suburban municipalities should be charging higher sales tax rates, the result of new ordinances that took effect Sept. 1st.

Local governments in Bollingbrook, Buffalo Grove, East Hazelcrest, Elk Grove Village, Elmhurst, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Niles and Skokie enacted new home rule sales tax increases ranging from one-quarter percent (.25%) to three-quarters percent (.75%). These increases must be added to the state and county general merchandise rate so that affected retailers will be collecting and paying the correct amount.

Local home rule sales tax rates include: Niles .50% increase to 7.50% and Skokie .75% increase to 7.75%.

involved in village government through the years.

When he ran for office in 1961 there were four parties vying for election in Niles. The election involved several hundred people. Not only were they learning a valuable civics lesson, but after the election many of them moved into committees and on public boards in the village. There was a transfusion of new blood, which revitalized the village. Two years later this culmination of new efforts led to Niles being selected an All America village, the first one in the north and northwest suburbs.

Through the years we've seen school board members, library board members and park board commissioners, who have stayed in office far too long. In one local school district one board member was there for more than 40 years. Today, at Oakton College, one board member has been there since the first school board meeting, 22 years ago.

At the school board level, board members become mesmerized by their posts when they stay too long. When new board members first get on the board they're filled with high aspirations. But after the routine and hard work which goes with attending meetings, they lose their bushy-tailed idealism and quickly fall under the thumb of the administrator who controls these school boards. Their future years on the boards are generally marked by rubber stamping the superintendent's recommendations.

Should we have restrictions as to the length of terms for our local representatives? We think it's an idea whose time has come.

my, but we feel it's a pretty good contract."

While the state mandates a 185-day school year including five allowed emergency days, the district's teachers have agreed to work 185 days, up from their previous requirement of 183 days. In return they will receive an additional one percent in their salaries, which range from a base of $26,860 for a new graduate to a top of $58,160, which will be paid to the district's one teacher who has a master's degree, 30 hours post graduate work and 34 years' longevity.

"We're not the highest paid teachers in the area, but we stayed in the middle," Palicki said.

By the third year of the contract, a starting teacher without experience will earn around $31,000. The board also agreed to reimburse up to $1,700 of tuition costs to teachers taking additional courses. For the past ten years that tuition reimbursement was $1,000, according to Palicki.

"The most important job anyone could have is to be a teacher," Hedrich emphasized. "Our education system is going to pot and we know historically it's because teachers are going to where jobs pay more. We've got to attract the good people to this profession."

"We got two extra student contract days and that is good," Hedrich continued, "We got a reduction in our insurance costs and that pleased us as well."

"Everyone is just relieved it's all over," Palicki said. "The uncertainty is now gone."

Skokie resident Ada Rabinowitz was appointed when JoAnn Stein resigned. Rabinowitz ran unopposed for the unexpired, four-year term. She received 2,773 votes.

In Maine Township, Melissa Gramza, a Park Ridge, registered nurse, earned 2,396 votes to beat out Roy Makela, who received 1,726 votes. Makela, also of Niles, a registered architect and restaurateur, is a former director of the Illinois Association of School Boards and a past member of the District 207 school board.

Another person failed to appear. About the same time as the fire, another motel renter, a 21-year-old man, reported his suitcase, miscellaneous clothes and law books of unknown value were taken from his room.

A motel custodian said, in an attempt to alert tenants to evacuate because of the fire, he had kicked in the 21-year-old's chained door, but did not enter the room.

1991 Illinois Distinguished Educator Award," said Ring, who has been principal at West for the past eight years. "I am particularly appreciative for this recognition of an activity that is such an important part of my life, namely helping young adults be successful learners. I hope that my joy is shared by those who have contributed substantially to my activities with these students. Many thanks go to the Illinois State Board of Education, my colleagues and of course the Milken Family Foundation for supporting the IDEA program. I am sincerely grateful to my students, who have taught me so much about being a good educator."

This year's 12 winners will be honored Nov. 20 at a reception, banquet and awards program at the Fairmont Hotel in Chicago. Each winner will receive a commemorative award and will later receive a check for $25,000 to use as he or she wishes.

"These 12 individuals exemplify the best in the education profession in Illinois." They represent the thousands of others just like them in schools all across the state," said State Superintendent Robert Leininger. "Outstanding teachers and principals deserve our gratitude and respect. Through programs like the Illinois Distinguished Educator Awards, we can not only express our thanks, but we can tangibly reward their efforts on behalf of our children."

The recipients were chosen from more than 500 teachers and principals, who have been recognized by their peers, colleagues and communities through other programs.

In September, Ring was presented with a 1991 Those Who Excel Award of Merit through the State Board of Education's annual awards program. The IDEA program specifically investigated each candidate's expertise in the areas of instructional skills, leadership and educational and professional development.

Ring, who will retire in June 1992, began his career as a chemistry teacher in the northwest suburbs. Before teaching Niles West, Ring served as division chairman of mathematics and science at Wheeling High School, instructional coordinator of mathematics and science in District 214, principal of Elk Grove High School and assistant of Highland Park-Deerfield District 113.

At Niles West, Ring has encouraged parental and business involvement from a community that is becoming more ethnically diverse. He has formed several parent groups which transcend the usual athletic boosters to include groups from junior high feeder districts as well as parents representing music and drama students. Ring also helped form and support the Niles West Parent Help Line, a Multi-lingual telephone support program to answer school policy questions for parents who don't speak English.

In the community, Ring is active in the Niles-Morton Grove Rotary, United Way and the Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church.

Ring's leadership skills were commended by visitors from the U.S. Department of Education when they evaluated the school for the 1991 Excellence in Education Award, which the school received in September.

"I found a level of exceptionally effective leadership present at Niles West High School," said evaluator Thomas DeBolt. "The principal, Dr. Ring, has been the guiding force during his tenure which has brought together the people, things, curriculum, skills, motivations and vision which have transformed a divided school into an excellent school."

"In my 17 years at Niles West," says Niles West Director of English and Foreign Language Roger Stein, "no other individual has had a more positive effect on staff morale than Don."

The IDEA Selection Committee was comprised of local school administrators, parents, school board members, the dean of college of education and teachers and principals from among the 1988, 1989 and 1990 IDEA winners. The committee's recommendations were submitted to Leininger, who selected 12 winners from among the group of finalists.

will serve four-year terms.

In Golf School District 67, newcomers and Morton Grove residents Edward Reynolds, with 276 votes, Susan Pellicano with 267 votes, and Joan Dechert, with 261 votes, succeeded in gaining the three, four-year board chairs left open when veteran board members Joy Fortkos, Judy Kochman and Karen Rowell decided not to run. They edged out Niles Richard Lieber, who had 234 votes.

In pre-election campaigns, candidates stressed frugality, financial planning and better communication between the board, parents and the teachers.

The field of candidates was most crowded in Oakton Community College, District 535, where nine candidates vied for two, six-year terms and one, two-year term as trustees.

Early results indicate incumbents Joan Hall and Marvin Walker beat out opponents for the six-year terms with 9,985 and 4,386 votes respectively.

Unofficial tallies for other contestants included Chien Wu with 4,307 votes, Eugene Fregotto with 3,903, Larry Golberg with 3,864 and Bill Handzel with 3,054.

The two-year term was gained by Amilda Mader, of Morton Grove, with 6,985 votes. Incumbent Ralph Goren gained 4,005 and Chester Hall earned 3,678.

High on the new board members' agenda will be determining a means of financing space restructuring necessitated by enrollment increases at both the Des Plaines and Skokie campuses of the college.

The three Park Ridge residents running for the three, four-year openings on the Park Ridge Elementary District 64 school board were unchallenged.

Incumbent Walter Bransen was reinstated with 991 votes. Irene Jenks received 1,025 votes and William Davies gained 971 votes.

Kosiba... Continued from Page 1

Weiner, of Morton Grove, had 1,862 votes. Newcomer Joe Weiss gained 1,791. Losers were incumbent Howard Dane, who received 1,671 votes and Lincolnwood lawyer Joan Feehan, who received 1,688 votes.

Besides the financial issues that confront most districts, the new District 219 board members will face the task of choosing replacements for retiring Superintendent Dr. John Hinks, Niles North Principal Tom Giles and Niles West Principal Dr. Donald Ring.

In Maine Township District 207, six candidates sought three, four-year terms. Incumbent Ben Herman, of Des Plaines, was re-elected to the post he first gained in 1983 by 2,019 votes. Joining him on the board will be Bruce Nabor with 2,171 votes and Nicholas Duric with 2,006 votes.

Runners up were James Friedlieb with 1,873, Terence Langan with 1,322, and Joseph Johnson with 1,225.

Because of a freeze on property tax assessments, District 207 board members will be faced with a projected $8.6 million budget deficit. The board develops policy for Maine East and South high schools, in Des Plaines, and Maine West, in Des Plaines.

There was no contest in Morton Grove District 70 where three, four-year terms and one, two-year unexpired term was at issue.

All the victors are Morton Grove residents. In the four-year term category, Donald Hobs earned 321 votes, Jack Joseph 311 votes and Mary Malooly 320 votes. Anthony Hefeld gained 276 votes in his quest for the unexpired term.

East Maine District 63 encompasses a kindergarten center, four grade schools and a junior high school. It serves 3,172 pupils. There was no contest for the three school board openings, with incumbents Board President Steve L. Stone, of Morton Grove, and Scott Kreisman, of Des Plaines, winning reelection with 906 and 859 votes, respectively. Newcomer Joel J. Block, of Morton Grove received 872 votes. All

Snowball group promotes drug-free lifestyles

Maine East's Snowball is a group of young people who want to promote healthy lifestyles by keeping healthy kids healthy. Snowball focuses on the ideals of self-esteem, leadership, and positive thinking.

In keeping with Snowball ideals, members recently met to promote Red Ribbon Week and Sober Fun Night. Red Ribbon Week was Oct. 19-26, and the theme was "I can choose not to use."

Every student at Maine East got a red ribbon to wear for the week. This red ribbon shows that to use or not to use alcohol and other drugs is a choice.

Nov. 9-10 some Snowballers will attend a convention held to do with Youth Leadership in the prevention of alcohol and other drug abuse. The theme for this "Growing Together with the Times." It will be held at the Sheraton Naperville.

To join Snowball at Maine East students should attend meetings held every Friday at 7:15 a.m. in Room 142. Co-presidents Michelle Seul and Rachel Kantrovich preside at the meetings; Snowball is coordinated by staff member Joan Lampert.
