SIJ pastor outlines factors in school merger decision

by Shellya Hackett
Finances were not the only factor in deciding to merge Niles schools St. Isaac Jogues with St. John Brebeuf (SJB) and Our Lady of Ransom (OLR), but they played a part. Equally important were enrollment figures and school stability, said St. Isaac Jogues pastor, the Rev. John Hennessey.

The pastor said it became evident the parish, at 8101 Golf Road, would not meet the Catholic Archdiocese's financial guidelines requiring a 65/35 ratio of financial support by the 1992-'93 school year. The specified ratio means 65 percent of school expenses must be covered by tuition and fundraising; only 35 percent

Board grants concessions on redistricting plan

by Eileen Hirschfeld
Congratulating each other on achieving their aims, parents of several students in East Maine Elementary District 63 discussed a board vote on school redistricting following Tuesday's meeting. At least one of the most controversial aspects of the proposal was changed following the second of two public hearings and a board vote on school redistricting. Other minor modifications were made. The initial resolution called for relocating 25 Washington

Suspect was driving stolen car

Robbery suspect dies in collision with truck

by Linda A. Burns

A robbery suspect died Feb. 8 after his car crashed head-on into an 18-foot produce truck during a police chase in the 6000 block of Golf Road.

Peter Kopsian, 40, of Oak Park, died at Lutheran General Hospital after being trapped in the stolen car he was driving which had caught fire, according to Niles police. He was suspected of stealing a diamond ring worth over $5,000 from Sterling Jewelers, in Golf Mill, Niles. The driver of the truck, Salvatore Grassano, 23, of Chicago, was treated at Lutheran General for minor injuries and then released.

according to Niles Lt. Stan Sosnowski.

"He had numerous criminal encounters in various jurisdictions," he said adding Kopsian had been arrested for numerous larceny and drug offenses, some having taken place in Niles.

In addition to driving a stolen car taken from Elmhurst, Kopsian was also wanted on a warrant for retail theft in another village, Sosnowski said.

Niles police first received a call of a robbery at Sterling's after Kopsian allegedly entered the store Saturday morning sometime after 10 a.m. and asked to see a one-carat solitaire diamond Buglebits.....

Every time we return from out of town we find out someone from Niles' official family has passed away. This time we read Ben Mankowsky had died in his home in Florida at the age of 76.

Joe Salerno used the right adjective in describing Ben as being very jovial. Ben's good friend June Haase told us Ben portrayed a rather gruff exterior, but underneath "he was just a pussycat."

Ben, who was Niles building commissioner and in 1973 became its director of housing, spearheaded the annual Niles Days programs with June. They helped to raise many thousands of dollars, which were distributed throughout Niles for its many community services.

Twelve years ago Ben moved to the Fort Meyers area along the gulf. He would always stop by The Bugle when he was in town. And every couple of weeks he'd be on the phone with June retaining a friendship, which dated back to those early Niles Days. June thought Ben missed his active life in Niles. She said she thought he should have vacationed in Florida and retained his home here in the middle west where he was so much a part of the community.

In seeking information about Ben we phoned a friend of ours in New York City Monday night and found out Ben was commander of the Naval Legion Post 372. We Taking advantage of lower interest rates, on Feb. 12 Niles trustees authorized issuing $235,000 in bonds to refinance the village's Lawrencewood debt.

They accepted a low bid of 5.7 percent interest from First of America Bank, Golf Mill.

In further business, the board named Niles Comptroller Mark Nannini acting treasurer, replacing village Finance Director

Retired MG police chief recalls 37 years on force

by Sheilya Hackett

Moose hunting near the Arctic Circle is his fond memory. Gun collecting and competitive shooting are his long-time hobbies. But recently retired Morton Grove Police Chief Larry Schey leaves no doubt where he stands on handgun control, stating flat out: "No one should own or possess a handgun except police officers."

The period in 1981 when Morton Grove instituted the nation's first handgun control ordinance was an exciting time for Schey. With Morton Grove the center of handgun. About the same time, two men applied to open a gun shop in Morton Grove and a routine check determined one of them was a convicted felon.

In that atmosphere, Schey said, village Trustee Neil Cashman introduced the ordinance banning possession of handguns in Morton Grove that eventually was passed.

Schey continues as a proponent for some type of national gun control legislation, especially for handguns, but concedes

In those days, Schey recalls, "I only wanted to ride a motorcycle - I could have spent 30 years doing it."

But three years later, he passed an exam and became the youngest sergeant on the force. He began studying law at night, then was made lieutenant in 1968, he received his law degree in '69 and his captaincy in '70. Along the way, he became the first in Morton Grove to attend the F.B.I. Academy, in Virginia, graduating in 1976, then was picked to be police chief in 1981.

Retired Morton Grove Police Chief Larry Schey looks back on his 37 years in law enforcement. During his watch, Morton Grove became the first village, nationally, to ban handgun possession.

Growing up the son of Lincolnwood's police chief and having two uncles who were policemen, there was never any doubt of his vocation.

international media attention, Schey became used to picking up phone calls from London, Hong Kong and Australia and, along with other village officials, being the focus of TV cameras.

"The timing was right in Morton Grove," Schey explained. President Ronald Reagan, Pope John Paul II and John Lennon had recently been shot. In Morton Grove, a 22-year-old girl argued on the phone with her boyfriend, then committed suicide with a

what is good in a metropolitan area "might be way off base for Montana."

The media attention came many years into Schey's 37-year career on the Morton Grove force. Growing up the son of Lincolnwood's police chief and having two uncles who were policemen, there was never any doubt of his vocation. He put in a stint with U.S. Army military police, then signed up with the Morton Grove force in '55.

Schey was served as president of the North Suburban Association of Chiefs of Police, the Northwest Police Academy and the Greater Cook County Police Captains' Association.

His successor as Morton Grove chief, George Incedon, praised Schey's supportiveness of the staff, "his open door policy, his ability to encourage all levels of the department to be part of the decision-making process."

Incedon reflected, "He believed, as I do, the (officers) out there have to deal with enough negatives. (So he would try) to do away with the negatives inside the department."

When Niles and Morton Grove forces had joint operations, Niles Police Chief Ray Giovannelli said Schey "was always there to offer his resources, no matter how busy (he was), 'no' was not in his vocabulary. I never had a moment with Larry when he wasn't cordial and eager to cooperate."

Fifteen years ago, Giovannelli was catcher and Schey played short stop on a North Shore police baseball team. But over the years, the team dissolved and these days, Schey engages in racquetball and organized hockey.

Schey's son, Patrick, a Morton Grove Fire Department lieutenant, often joins in. His other son, Tim, a Los Angeles policeman, plays when he is in town.

days before leaving office Dec. 31, Schey's brown eyes turned serious as he considered his ten years as chief and the department he is leaving behind.

His record is bolstered by most recent crime statistics showing Morton Grove's crime rate is down in eight out of nine categories. During his watch, the department installed mobile data terminals in squad cars, thereby putting computerized records at officers' fingertips; Neighborhood Watch and crime prevention programs were initiated. In local schools, police officers show kids the danger of narcotics through Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.); the department loans out infant car seats; police recruits train at the Chicago Police Academy or at similar classes in Springfield or Champaign, Illinois.

Underlining the importance of continued police schooling, he said "If we don't stay abreast, tomorrow we'll be stagnant; a week from then, behind the times." He credits village officials for supporting police programs.

As Schey puts aside his badge, his pride in the department shows. He said "I'd like to feel I'm a small part of it. I couldn't do it alone. Good staff; good personnel. We've got a good department. I'm very proud of it. I don't have an ego. The crime rate is satisfying....I'm so fortunate to have been able to do what I enjoy all these years."

"If we don't stay abreast, tomorrow we'll be stagnant; a week from then, behind."

Niles Events board hosts appreciation dinner

The Niles Events' board of directors recognized five special individuals at an appreciation dinner in their honor. Myrna Breitzman, George Walters and Terry Shevelonko were presented with a plaque for their many years as an officer or director on the Niles Events committee. John Krupa and Don Steinke were given a special thank you for their extra help at last year's festival.

Northwest Niles residents to be surveyed on zip code

After nearly 20 years, there is now an opportunity for all residents to have a Niles mailing address.

Niles residents living in the northwest area of the village with Des Plaines 60016 addresses will have a chance to collectively vote to change to a Niles address.

On Feb. 14, the post office will deliver surveys to all Niles residents with a Des Plaines address and zip code of 60016. The survey will give these residents a chance to vote for a Niles mailing address.

Surveys must be mailed back to the post office by Feb. 20. At least 75 percent of the residents must respond in favor of the change to have the area become part of the new unified Village of Niles unified suburban zip code.

The Village of Niles has been working towards a single zip code for the entire village including the Des Plaines area for over 20 years.

In an effort to maximize an affirmative response, village employees had been calling Niles residents with the Des Plaines address and 60016 zip code this week encouraging them to vote "yes."

If survey results are favorable, Niles could have its own zip code by this July, according to Trustee Bart Murphy. The trustee told the Jan. 28 Village Board meeting a unique zip code for Niles would mean "an identity for Niles...lower insurance rates" for residents living under Chicago zip code status.

He said the flow of sales tax revenues to Niles from the Des Plaines zip code areas would then be correct.

Youth admits battering store employee

A 17-year-old Des Plaines youth was charged with battery after he admitted to police he struck an employee of a convenience store in the 5900 block of Lincoln Avenue, Morton Grove, the night of Feb. 6 because the employee implied he was stupid.

Reports said the youth returned to the store a few minutes after he made a purchase, argued

Employee admits to theft at eatery

An employee of Taco Bell, 7535 Harlem Ave., Niles, was charged with the theft of $978.69 from the store.

The 26-year-old Chicago woman surrendered herself at the Niles Police Department on Feb. 7.

The woman confessed to the theft to an agent of a security services firm hired by Taco Bell's owner to conduct interviews with several of the restaurant's employees.

She posted 10 percent of a $1,000 bond and has a March 1 court date.

A volley of charges from a Penny Pullen supporter Feb. 4 shook life into the relative quiet of the race for the Republican nomination in the 55th State Representative district.

Thomas F. Roeser, Pullen backer and former chairman of Project LEAF (Legal Elections in All Precincts) last week accused Des Plaines candidate Rosemary Mulligan's election committee with "apparent campaign financial disclosure violations." He asked the State Board of Elections to investigate.

Roeser said Mulligan's committee omitted reporting a $100 contribution from State Rep.

Grace Mary Stern (D-58) and what he said had to be "scores of thousands of dollars" in pro bono or in-kind legal work from two law firms.

Mulligan and Pullen engaged in a prolonged legal battle over the outcome of the March, 1990 primary election. In September, 1990, the Illinois Supreme court decided the election in favor of Pullen.

Pullen declared nearly $150,000 in legal costs, Roeser said, but Mulligan's committee cited only about one-third of that amount was owed the firm of Odelson and Sterk, of Evergreen.

Pullen challenges Mulligan to Kiwanis Club debate

State Representative Penny Pullen this week chose the Park Ridge Kiwanis Club Feb. 25 meeting as the forum for a debate with political adversary Rosemary Mulligan. It was a debate Mulligan had sought.

Pullen, Mulligan and Des Plaines resident Mike O'Malley are contesting for the GOP nomination in the 55th State Representative district.

Pullen also agreed to debate Mulligan before the League of Women Voters, but only after the Kiwanis appearance. Feb. 11 Mulligan aide Sue Bell told The Bugle Mulligan had a conflicting date Feb. 25 and although communications continued, nothing had been decided. Contestant O'Malley said he would participate.

In her note to Mulligan, Pullen said the Kiwanis appearance was one that "would give more voters an opportunity to learn of the concrete views and proposals you would put forth if you were to take on the responsibility of being their state representative. And it would give more of them an opportunity to learn the truth about my voting record."

Pullen aide Mary Schurder said the Kiwanis organization was chosen because it is made up primarily of community business men and women with diverse backgrounds.

Special delivery for food pantry

Don Conn, Morton Grove resident and Niles businessman, delivers $1,800 worth of food to help restock Maine Township's emergency food pantry. Accepting the supplies are Township Trustee Carol Teschky of Glenview (center) and General Assistance Director Marsha Warnick of Niles. Due to increased need, the pantry was forced to close briefly last fall. The pantry is now open again thanks to generous donations from Conn and other individuals and community groups. Maine Township's pantry supplies emergency food to residents in crisis situations. For information call 297-2510, ext. 236.

Vaudeville show at The Benchmark

Residents at The Benchmark of Hoffman Estates retirement community will be kicking up their heels and dragging out their feather boas and canes for the Valentine's Day Amateur Vaudeville Show.

Seniors will be sporting the look of their favorite vaudeville characters and performing their version of old time songs, stage acts and dance numbers. Rumor has it that famous greats such as W. C. Fields, Laurel and Hardy and the Can Can Girls may be stopping by the Benchmark for a song or two.

The vaudeville show will be held at 2 p.m., Friday, Feb. 14 at

The Benchmark retirement community, 1515 Barrington Road, Hoffman Estates.

Residents and staff will be reciting poems, performing comedy routines and doing the ol' soft shoe. Executive Director Robert Rados will serve as Master of Ceremonies and will use his barker's cane in true vaudeville fashion to clear the stage, if necessary.

"Being married for over 50 years is truly remarkable and we wanted to do something special for all our sweethearts on Valentine's Day," said Rados. The public is welcome to attend. For more information, call 490-5800.

MEDICARE SUPPLEMENT STANDARDIZATION

Medicare Supplement policies sold after 1/2/92 will have to comply with the new model policies established by the national Association of Insurance Commissioners. All insurers must offer the basic policy (sometimes referred to as the "core" policy or plan); this plan is entitled Plan A. Insurers may, but are not required to, sell nine additional policies, Plans B through J. Each standardized policy will be identical from insurer to insurer; however, prices may differ. All new standardized Medigap policies sold after 1/2/92 must be guaranteed renewable. The new law will not affect policies already in force, i.e., they do not have to come into compliance with one of the new plans. Seniors who already have a Medicare Supplement policy will not be required to purchase one of the new policies.

HYPOTHERMIA

Hypothermia is a condition marked by an abnormally low internal body temperature, typically 95°F or below. A simple drop in skin temperature is not hypothermia. While hypothermia can sometimes develop slowly, it usually occurs fairly quickly, over a period of a few days. With advancing age, many people become less able to resist and recover from stresses such as prolonged exposure to cold. Senior citizens often may not sense that they are becoming cold as readily as younger people, and their bodies may not adjust to changes in temperature as well. Specific measures to be taken that will prevent accidental hypothermia include: heating living and sleeping areas to 65°F, dressing warmly during the day and during sleep, eating enough food, staying active during winter months, and avoiding cigarette smoking.

February gardening tips

Even though the groundhog predicted six more weeks of winter, February is a good time to be busy in the garden. According to the Plant Information Service at the Chicago Botanic Garden, there are a number of things which can be done. When it comes to outdoor gardening, the Botanic Garden says February is a good time to:

- Begin planning garden and order seeds and garden plants early so they will arrive in time for spring planting.
- Develop schedule for starting transplants indoors.
- Prepare hot beds and cold frames to be ready to receive spring transplants.
- Prune ornamental trees and shrubs if necessary.
- Prepare trellises for cane fruits and grapes.
- Run germination tests on stored seeds.

Letters to the Editor

Student questions village manager on closing of Ruesch Garage

Dear Editor:

The following is a letter written as a class assignment by my son. He is a sixth grade student at St. Matthew's Lutheran School, in Niles. He is twelve. The reason I am sending it to you is because it is on a subject you have covered quite often in your paper, Ruesch Garage. To date he has not received a response.

This may have been a class assignment, but it is a subject he has a personal interest in and he is concerned for the family not just the business and a man's career, which is an aspect that has not been mentioned.

Thank you for your time. Sincerely,
Linda (Ruesch) Van de Motter

Dear Village Manager:

I feel that kicking three senior citizens, my grandpa, grandma and great grandma Ruesch, out into the street is cold and heartless, mostly because they have been there from almost the beginning of the century. Making a 90-year-old woman move from her lifelong home just isn't right. My uncle, Jim Ruesch, inherited the business, Ruesch Garage, from my great grandfather, and that's all my uncle has ever wanted to do. You're not just closing a business, you're taking away a man's job and separating four generations of a family. And for what? A parking lot and a few more condos. Let me ask you this, is it worth it?

Please write back and tell me why you are doing this to my family. I have enclosed a self-addressed stamped envelope for you. Respectfully,
Scott D. Van de Motter

When Does Ballard Become the Best Place to Live?

I think you might be interested in how Rose made one of the most difficult of all decisions: to place her widowed mother with us at Ballard.

She told me that after her dad died eight years ago, her mother came to live with her. "At first, she was quite independent, asking only that I balance her checkbook and help her pay her bills on time," Rose told me. "Then her eyesight made it impossible for her to drive and I became her transportation. I loved doing things for my mother, but as time went on, her care demanded more and more time and energy. It began to place a strain on our

Executive Director

"One day, I just sat down with a piece of paper - and thought about it. This is what I wrote: "Do we wait until Mom falls and breaks a hip? Or until I have to feed her, or dress and undress her?" All of those things had become distinct possibilities, Rose told me.

"My husband and I agreed it was in the best interest of the three of us that she make her home apart from us - but just a few minutes away at Ballard.

"I felt guilty for a long time, but I'm sure my decision was right. I visit Mom regularly. We go out for lunch or shopping, and then she goes home to Ballard where she has new friends, new activities, and a new-found peace of mind.

"Best of all, I know that the people at Ballard are giving my mother the care that I can't."

Understanding Social Security benefits

by Jeffrey Cardella
Edward D. Jones & Co.

Most people associate Social Security with retirement income, but it's much more than that. Social Security also provides income for the disabled and to eligible individuals who have lost a spouse or parent. In addition, Social Security provides health benefits for those age 65 and over.

When it comes to retirement dreams, many people believe Social Security will be enough to make their older years golden years. Although Social Security is an important retirement supplement, it is not enough for most people to sustain their pre-retirement standard of living.

In 1935, when Social Security began, the number of retirees eligible for benefits was much smaller than today. The number of workers who paid taxes to supplement Social Security was much larger than the group those taxes helped support. At the time, more than 40 workers contributed to one individual's Social Security pension. Today, only 3.4 workers contribute to one person's Social Security pension. By 2020, that ratio is expected to decrease to approximately 2-to-1.

How much you receive depends on a number of factors, including time in the work force and age. Each year that you work, you earn credits. To receive retirement benefits, workers reaching age 62 in 1991 needed 40 credits. Full retirement benefits, though are only available at age 65. By the year 2000, that age will begin to gradually increase. By 2022, full benefits will be available at age 67.

The maximum monthly benefits a married couple could have received in 1991 would have been $1,533 if they retired at age 65 after a lifetime of working. Although that figure is adjusted annually for cost-of-living increases, many people cannot rely on Social Security for maintaining their standard of living. That's why additional savings strategies, such as individual retirement accounts, are important.

To determine the amount of retirement benefits you can expect to receive, request a copy of the Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement (Form SSA-7004-PC) from your local Social Security office.

In addition to retirement benefits, Social Security provides for disability at any age. Although none of us like to think about the possibility of becoming disabled, studies show that one out of every four workers will become disabled some time during their life. Fortunately, Social Security pays monthly benefits to people who are unable to work due to a disability that leaves them incapacitated for at least 12 months. The benefits continue as long as the person is disabled. As with retirement benefits, you must have credit for a certain amount of work under Social Security to be eligible for disability benefits. On average, a disabled worker received $587 per month in 1991.

Another benefit of Social Security is the survivor benefit, which entitles your family to receive benefits in the event of your death, at any age. Today, 98 out of every 100 children would receive these benefits if a working parent were to die. The amount your family will receive is based on the amount of retirement benefits you would have received had you reached age 65.

Finally, Social Security also provides Medicare coverage, a broad hospital and medical insurance program for Americans aged 65 and over. Nearly everyone is eligible to receive this benefit, regardless of their income or whether or not they continue working after age 65.

In the case of Social Security, particularly in regards to retirement benefits, what you don't know CAN hurt you. Take the time to find out what benefits you're entitled to and what level of benefits you'll qualify for. Then take steps to supplement those benefits with your own savings plan.

Maine East stages 'The Good Doctor'

For years the fine arts department at Maine East has scheduled productions that are both entertaining and spectacular. This year's winter play, performed Friday and Saturday, Feb. 14 and 15, will keep this tradition alive with Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor."

"The Good Doctor" is a hilarious comedy accompanied by some music. Unlike plays and skits performed in the past, it is a series of different stories, scenes, and situations involving the same characters. Usually in Maine East productions the scenery, plot, and theme remain constant throughout the show. This time the changing environment is sure to produce a festive occasion.

Due to the various skits being performed, "The Good Doctor" will allow many more student actors to participate. Also, this play does not focus on one individual star; rather it lets many students share the spotlight.

"This year's winter play will allow a lot of people to be involved because of its short parts. I'm also excited because the comedy is funny, and we should have a lot of fun with it, states David Jeffers, Maine East fine arts department chairman.

Tickets cost $3 per person.

After School Series planned

Have you ever wondered what happens behind the scenes at an animal hospital, a theater, or even the Kohl Children's Museum? What about a crystal store, a recording studio or a LensCrafters? The Kohl Children's Museum continues the very popular "Behind the Scenes" Series for 2nd through 5th graders where they will see first hand what really happens. Children will not only be observing, but will participate in hands-on activities.

Youngsters will also be learning about different careers and how businesses work. Each class is held on Thursdays, 4-5 p.m., at a business in the area described as follows:

Feb. 13, Crystal Cave, 1141 Central St., Wilmotte - What is crystal? How are designs made on crystal? Find out the answers to these questions and more. Learn how crystal and glass are cut and etched to create lines, spirals or even animal pictures. Watch a master engraver at work and even try the craft yourself as you work on a souvenir to take home.

Feb. 20, Woodside Avenue Music Productions, 1618 Orrington St. Evanston - Are you the next Whitney Houston or M.C. Hammer? See if you're up to the challenge at a real recording studio. Experiment with a mixing board that produces layers of many different musical instruments and hear yourself sing, speak or rap to the music you produce. Don't be shy!

Feb. 27, LensCrafters, Northbrook Court Mall, Northbrook - Did you ever wonder how eyeglasses are shaped, cut and fit, or how the glass magnifies to help us see better? See the process in the lab from beginning to end and learn how different types of glasses are used for different needs. Test your eyesight and try on your favorite frames to take on a new image.

All "Behind the Scenes" workshops are one hour in length and meet at the locations listed above. The fee is $10 per class and reservations are limited. To register call Tamyala at the Kohl Children's Museum (708) 251-6950.

Car with stolen plates stopped

A Niles police officer noticed a car pull into Oak Mill Mall with stolen license plates on Feb. 7.

A check also revealed the driver, a Chicago man, had no license. He was also charged with having no insurance, no valid registration, no seat belts and no bumper.

The owner of the stolen plates and the car owner could not be reached. The Chicagoan, given a $2,000 bond, was released on his own recognizance. He has a March 6 court date.

Found gym shoes discounted as a clue

Police discounted a citizen report that gym shoes found in the brush at Shalin Park, Morton and South Park Avenues, Morton Grove, Feb. 9 belonged to a recent Skokie teen-aged murder victim because they were of the wrong size and color.

Attempted theft of purse

When a Chicago woman, shopping in a grocery store in the 6900 block of Dempster Street, Morton Grove, the night of Feb. 3, saw the purse she had left in her cart in a nearby male's shopping cart, she asked "Since when does a man carry a woman's purse?" She retrieved the purse and asked for help. Three store employees apprehended the male as he left the store. Police charged the man with attempted theft of the $80 purse containing $130, gave him a March 11 court date and released him on a $1,000 personal recognizance bond.

Retail theft

An unidentified man escaped after taking socks and a jacket, valued at $128 from Kohl's, in Golf Mill.

A security agent watched a black man about 25, 6'1", 175 pounds, come into the store with a bag, which he used to put the stolen merchandise in. He then walked out the east side doors of the store and got into a Buick Skylark driven by another black male.

The vehicle was registered to a Hazelcrest, Illinois, man.

Driver in accident charged with DUI

A Lincolnwood driver, who admitted to a police officer she had been drinking, suffered a head injury in an accident she was involved in Feb. 8, which occurred in the 6800 block of Oakton Street, in Niles.

The officer was unable to conduct field sobriety tests on the woman because of her injuries, however, at Lutheran General Hospital, where she was taken for treatment, the woman agreed to have blood drawn to determine the alcohol concentration in her blood. The blood was sent to the crime lab for analysis.

Police teach 'P.R.I.D.E.' at Nelson

When Niles Police officers appear at Nelson School in January each year, the students know that the annual P.R.I.D.E. program is to begin. Each year, a number of officers come to the school to teach the children about decision-making, peer pressure, and how to resist using drugs as they grow older.

The program involves all students from grades 1 to 5. Officers visit each class as few as three times or every day for a week depending on the particular grade level. They lecture, conduct discussions with the students, show videos, talk about their experiences with older children, and work to raise the children's consciousness about substance abuse.

Sixth grade students do not participate in this program because they take part in D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) a national program that lasts for one entire semester. This program is currently being taught by officers from the Cook County Sheriff's Department.

Niles officers conducting the P.R.I.D.E. program this year are Sgt. Roger Wilson, Sgt. John Fryksdale and Officer Deno Panousiers.

Nelson School is one of six elementary schools in East Maine School District 63 and is located in Niles.

Lady Raiders score first cage win

Talk about winning the hard way.

The Oakton Community College women's basketball team overcame having three of its six players foul out on Jan. 21 to record its first win of the season with a 50-49 overtime win at Morton College.

Trailing by nine at halftime, the Lady Raiders fought back behind Kelly Roby (16 points), Kelly Parich (11) and Lori Yetter (9). Roby, Yetter and Susie Dimitric all fouled out, but Parich, Maggie Kleinhubert and Karyn Schlect were able to pull out the win, despite playing three against five for the final minutes.

Oakton fell 1-4 in the Skyway Conference (Jan. 23) with a 76-32 loss to McHenry. Roby's eight points was a beam-best for the Lady Raiders.

SJB board head saddened by Senate vote

The School Board of St. John Brebeuf had an open meeting on Monday, Feb. 3.

Eileen Klemmundt, vice-chairman reported on the defeat in the U.S. Senate of the Low Income School Choice Demonstration Act of 1991.

She stated: "Parents and taxpayers should be outraged by the vote in the U. S. Senate and Jan. 23, which excluded non-public schools from a proposed demonstration project on parental choice in education."

"Whether the Senate wants to acknowledge it or not, Catholic and other non-public schools are a vital part of the educational mix in our society and their educational excellence has been well-documented. It is therefore, incomprehensible that the federal government plans to fund a project to discover and demonstrate the full benefits of parental choice in education and yet intends to exclude Catholic and other non-public schools from the options available to parents."

From Dec. 21 to Dec. 23, over 70 BBYOers from Chicago and Illinois Regions bonded together for Winter Convention 1991, "Won't You Be My Neighbor?" Chicago Region, all 20 of us, home-housed the members of Illinois Region.

The fun began Saturday night with mixer games and Israeli singing. A very talented singer named Craig Loffel came with his guitar, and we sang assorted Jewish songs for over an hour. Sunday morning began with an interesting AIDS discussion. We then wrote letters to the Secretary of State, James Baker, concerning the Syrian Jews being held captive in their country. After a PB & J lunch, a speaker talked about the need for community service. He stressed the importance of volunteering our time to those less fortunate than ourselves.

The speaker was followed by a movie about a homeless family, which was followed by an emotionally touching community service project. Half of the group stayed at Niles Township Jewish Congregation and made sandwiches while the other half went to a soup kitchen/school in Chicago to wrap gifts for poor and underprivileged children.

The "sandwich makers" later brought the sandwiches to the soup kitchen where they were distributed to the number of homeless people who come for a meal each day. As we were leaving the soup kitchen, people began to arrive for the meal. The community service projects of the day were definitely learning experiences.

After dinner at Lou Malnati's Pizza, we went to Second City Comedy Club downtown. The show was hilarious, and we all had a terrific time. Throughout the day, everyone met new people from both regions; everyone seemed especially friendly during the entire convention, making it a comfortable atmosphere for all participants.

On Monday morning, we had a choice of six or seven elective ranging from the ever popular "Steal-a-Kiss" to a discussion group entitled "Hanukkah vs. Christmas." After a delicious deli lunch, Chicago region bid their last good-byes, while Illinois Region stayed for a Regional meeting. This convention proved what BBYO is all about: life long friendships.

St. Francis Minister's seminar

Evelyn Eaton Whitehead, Ph.D., developmental psychologist and associate faculty member of Loyola University's Institute of Pastoral Studies, will be the featured speaker for the 14th Annual Community Clergy and Ministers of Care Appreciation Seminar to be held at St. Francis Hospital of Evanston Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Entitled "Moving Beyond Midlife: Exploring Our Resources for the Journey", Whitehead's talk is designed to help ministers and clergy of all faiths develop a richer understanding of the aging process. Together with husband Dr. James D. Whitehead, she has co-authored several books, including "The Promise of Partnership: Leadership and Ministry in an Adult Church". The morning-long seminar is offered free of charge to anyone involved in pastoral ministry to the sick.

According to St. Francis Director of Pastoral Care Art Metallo, a Catholic deacon, St. Francis receives over 5,000 visits a year from those delivering spiritual solace to patients.

"Without question, the healing process—both emotional and physical—has a spiritual dimension," Metallo states. "The caring presence these individuals bring to our patients has a tremendous positive impact on our healing environment. The Appreciation Seminar is our way of saying 'Thanks'.

In our aging society, those who visit hospitals to offer pastoral care are more and more confronted with the unique problem of the older adult," Metallo continues. "This seminar is intended to provide a new perspective and stimulate fresh insights, including theological themes that apply to these situations."

Over 300 attended last year's seminar. To register or obtain further information, please contact the St. Francis Pastoral Care Department at (708) 492-6293.

The way you sleep, can lead to rude awakening

A person 30 years of age has already spent approximately ten years in sleep. And the position in which he has spent that third of his life has probably had a great effect upon the condition of his health.

Sleep is important - there is no other way in which we can regenerate our bodies. Therefore, it would be wise to consider what constitutes proper sleeping posture. You wouldn't consider spending an eight hour day sitting or standing in an awkward position, yet many people spend their important sleeping hours in poor posture positions.

These sleep habits are difficult to break, as you are not always aware of them. You wake up with aches and pains without any knowledge of how you got them. As a result of ignorance, you establish a pattern of postural stress that can lead to spinal health problems.

A good night's sleep requires thoughtful preparation. Dr. Robert L. Richart, a local chiropractor suggests following these guidelines to attain and maintain a good sleep posture.

Pick out a good mattress. It should be comfortable, but firm enough to give well-balanced support.

Do not sleep on your stomach. Low back problems are compounded by sleeping in this position. The best way to sleep is on your side, with one or both knees drawn up.

Select a good pillow. Sleeping without a pillow is a sure way to develop neck discomfort. Too thick pillows are as harmful as pillows that are too thin.

Do not use your arm for a pillow. People who sleep in the prone position (on their abdomens) have a tendency to use their arms for head support. This habit not only cuts off circulation, but places stress on the arms, shoulders and upper back.

Have periodic spinal examinations. Check-ups of the spine and nervous system are most important in order to maintain the structural integrity of your body. Doctors of Chiropractic are among the strongest advocates of correct posture. They have made an intense study of those conditions related to the spine and nervous system, and recognize the value of the correct placement of the body's structural components for functional ability and health.

If you have trouble getting a good night's sleep, if you wake up in the morning tired, stiff or which pain in your back or one of your limbs, you may be the victim of poor sleeping posture.

If so, you owe it to yourself to find out the specific cause of your problem and then correct it. With determination, concentration, and health-care assistance, this can usually be accomplished.

For more information, call or write: Dr. Robert L. Richart, 8933 West Golf Road, Des Plaines, IL 60016, (708) 827-8686.

Summer camp helps children grow creatively

The goals of summer camping haven't changed much since the American camping movement began more than a hundred years ago. Even back then, when fresh air and sunshine were considered the most important benefits of letting children live in the outdoors, other less obvious benefits were also recognized.

Early camping leaders also felt summer camp was a place where children are "given a chance for creative activity, self-expression and spontaneity in play and the use of their imagination." Recently, a study was conducted at a summer camp to determine whether camps do in fact promote an increase in creativity, and what factors influence this creative growth.

Creativity tests were administered to some 70 campers at the beginning of their summer camp session, and again at the end of the session. The tests were designed to detect a change in a child's creative attitudes and thinking skills, as well as in more tangible creativity in the products made at camp.

The results showed there was significant and positive change in the creative thinking and attitudes of campers.

The researchers also tested to see if the counselors, a racially and culturally mixed group, had in any way caused the change in the creative levels of the campers.

Previous studies had indicated that such leaders were a major influence on camper growth. However, this study indicated it was the collective creativity of the counselors and the creative activities fostered by the camp that was likely to be the strongest influence.

The specific findings of this study suggest that creativity can be nurtured at any camp by the types of activities conducted and the creative atmosphere of the camp. But while it does actually happen, the exact reasons it happens are not known.

A written creative philosophy incorporated into goals of a camp, and the creative behavior of the camp directors, are among the signs that the camp is striving to provide the environment in which creativity flourishes. That's why the American Camping Association, the national accrediting body for camps, advises parents to meet and talk with the directors of prospective summer programs before making a final decision.

If you are looking for a camp to help your child grow creatively, here is what you should be looking for:

1. A written or verbally expressed philosophy about nurturing creative expression in the camper.
2. Creative behavior on the part of the director, such as making up games and stories, trying new things and sharing ideas.
3. A policy of including creative behavior and creative attitudes among the criteria for camper counselors.
4. A policy of having a cultural and ethnic mix in counselors.
5. Staff training that focuses on counselor creativity and experimentation, as well as on camper creativity.
6. A camp environment that demonstrates attention to aesthetics -- simple buildings, natural materials, minimal or no radio, TV, records or other artificial noise.
7. Program time for personal solitude and quiet reflection.
8. A history of structuring diverse groups of campers and counselors for various and unusual projects.
9. A program of daily activities that allows of creative expression. This is probably the most obvious indication of a camp's commitment to creative development in campers.
10. Special events or weekly specials that encourage the use of imagination in dress, activities and behavior. These might be such simple techniques as asking for participants in mystery programs to encourage spontaneity or making up poems about the day's events, to more complicated activities like dramas and song fests or unique crafts and athletics.

Nursery School registration

Our unique concept in preschool education is incorporated in our new slogan - "We are concerned about your child as an individual."

We believe that in today's world, children have to be prepared to enter school, as we are geared toward developing their skills and abilities through play, fun and learning at their own pace. One of our aims is to teach the child a love for learning. Our children learn to share, to get along with their peers, to listen and follow directions, to respect the rights of others, and to like themselves.

Northwest Suburban Nursery School is accepting registrations for the 1992-93 school year. Programs are available for children 2 1/2 through 5 years.

We invite you to visit the children's world at Northwest Suburban Jewish Congregation. To arrange a visit or for further information, call Roz Perper, Director, at 965-0900.

McTighe responds to State of Union address

Pullen opposes graduated state income tax

"There's no way I'll support a graduated income tax," was State Rep. Penny Pullen's reaction to the Democratic Party introduction of a constitutional amendment to impose one. "Illinois has high enough taxes already," Pullen stated. "If we are to encourage corporate decision-makers to move to Illinois, we must keep our individual and corporate income taxes relatively low."

"Illinois has two major assets: location and a relatively low income tax rate. We must not lose this relative advantage to Democratic Party election year posturing," Pullen said.

Mulligan ...

Park. He claims two other contributing law firms, Miller, Forest and Downing, of Glenview, and Sonnenschein Nath and Rosenthal, of Chicago, are "not shown as having been paid by the committee, nor has her committee reported an in-kind contribution of these legal services."

Roeser said "...law firms quite often are the clearinghouses of special interests." Roeser granted Mulligan's declaration that most of her legal work was pro bono, or without charge, but struck out at her failing to declare which firms were involved.

In a statement, Mulligan said her committee handled countless checks and if an error was made with the Stern check, it would be corrected, since "the state provides for such instances."

She said a cross check of the report of a political action committee that supports her, Personal PAC, would have shown Sonnenschein's services were listed. She added "It is clearly listed on our report, Jan. 1 to June 30, 1991, as an in-kind from Personal PAC, page one of in-kind. The balance is also listed as a $1,000 debt on Personal PAC's current D-2 report."

Mulligan described retired Appellate Court Judge Robert H. Downing, who is listed as counsel, as an adviser and friend and maintained "It is my advisers' interpretation of the State Board's financial reporting rules that personal services of a volunteer are

The State Board of Elections' Assistant Director of Campaign Disclosures, Tony Morgando, noted it would have to be clarified as to when volunteer work was done, on a person's own or company time. He said you "can't attach a cost (to volunteer work)."

And Dan White, executive director of the State Board of Elections, said Monday that he had been referred to the department's division of campaign disclosures for a thorough review. That division will contact Mulligan and determine if the complaints are accurate, if she has a response and if an amendment to the financial disclosure should be filed, he said.

White indicated it would be premature to say whether Roeser's charges will gain a board-level hearing since that requires a formalized complaint form and involves both closed and public hearings.

Although Mulligan equated Roeser with Pullen in her statement, Pullen aide Mary Schurder said Roeser acted on his own in complaining about the alleged financial disclosure irregularities. She agreed Roeser has been a supporter, but insisted "you don't put words in Roeser's mouth."

Roeser, a retired executive of the Quaker Oats Company now involved in his own business, Roeser and Associates, was founder of Project LEAP and its chairman for seven years. He lives in Park Ridge.

Landscaping with native plants seminar

A symposium, Incorporating Native Plants into the Midwestern landscape, is scheduled from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 20 at the Chicago Botanic Garden in Glencoe.

The Botanic Garden and the Department of Horticulture at The University of Illinois are co-sponsoring this symposium for landscape managers and designers, golf course superintendents, and interested home gardeners to focus on native Midwestern shrubs, trees, wildflowers, and grasses. Typical Midwestern landscapes often feature non-native plants that require high maintenance to remain at an aesthetic peak. Speakers will focus on native plants that can be combined to produce landscapes that are singularly unique, spectacularly beautiful, and tolerant of local pests and weather conditions.

Presenters include Darrel Morrison, from the School of Environmental Design at the University of Georgia, Gary Hightshoe, from Iowa State University, Roy Diblik of Northwind Perennial Farm, and P. Clifford Miller of P. Clifford Miller, Inc. Natural Areas will be presented by Lori Lyman of The Brickman Group, Mike Nass of Cantigny Golf and Tennis Club, and Ed Sagan of the McDonald's Corporation.

For more information about this program, or to register, call (708) 835-8261. The Chicago Botanic Garden is located on Lake Cook Road in Glencoe.

were told Ben was a Seabee during World War II.

While we were out west visiting our kids, Congress told the local communities they will be overseeing the cable television companies in their communities. In Niles the basic cost of the service has gone from $2.50 and $4.50 to over $20 per month since its inception. And in Morton Grove the basic cost has past the $20 monthly figure. It is obvious the initial low cost was used to lure residents into buying the services. And it was inevitable the price would go up. But enough is enough. Hopefully, local officials can put a cap on these high fees.

Last weekend Nilesite Jim Les missed one 20-foot shot at the NBA All-Star festivities, which cost him $10,000. Had he made his final shot in the three-point exhibition on Saturday night he would have defeated the eventual winner, the Bulls' Craig Hodges. Hodges received $20,000 for his victory and Les finished second, which was worth $10,000. It is likely winning the contest would have increased his value as a pro basketball player and the possibility of added bucks from sports endorsements might have gone with a first place finish.

Les is a very gutsy player who was in the minor league of professional basketball until this year. One of the smaller players in pro basketball, he was called up to the NBA in 1991 and quickly has made a name for himself among the taller trees. Had he won the three point roundabout his salary might have inched up among those same tall trees. Les played high school ball at Notre Dame, the school which also gave us baseball's Greg Luzinski. Other local schools, which helped develop famous athletes, include

Maine South where football's Dave Butz played and at Niles West where Olympic gymnast Bart Connors furthered his career.

Another local news item reported the past month is Niles Director of Public Service (Public Works), Keith Peck, will be retiring this year. Keith has a history in Niles of service and dedication to the community which few can match. In addition to heading the P.W. Department, Keith served on a state legislative committee for the Illinois Municipal League, which resulted in thousands of dollars of savings to local residents. Niles has 48 state highway intersections which have traffic signals which have to be maintained. The state wanted the village to maintain the lights at a cost which mounted into many thousands of dollars per intersection. But rather than use all its Motor Fuel Tax monies for this maintenance, Keith's committee convinced the state to pay for the maintenance. If more than 35,000 cars pass an intersection daily the state would pay. Since so many of Niles intersections fall in this category the tax savings to the village enabled it to use MFT monies for other projects, which helped improve the village's roads.

Keith, who was active in his Kirk Lane homeowners' group more than 30 years ago, was one of the early supporters of Nick Blase, which led to his first election in 1961. Subsequently, Keith served on the Niles park board, its police board and its village board before being appointed to head the public works department.

In our 35 years of Bugling we'd have to say Keith was one of three or four of its most important Niles citizens who have made a significant difference to this community during the past three decades.

Other local schools, which helped develop famous athletes, include

Maine South where football's Dave Butz played and at Niles West where Olympic gymnast Bart Connors furthered his career.

Another local news item reported the past month is Niles Director of Public Service (Public Works), Keith Peck, will be retiring this year. Keith has a history in Niles of service and dedication to the community which few can match. In addition to heading the P.W. Department, Keith served on a state legislative committee for the Illinois Municipal League, which resulted in thousands of dollars of savings to local residents. Niles has 48 state highway intersections which have traffic signals which have to be maintained. The state wanted the village to maintain the lights at a cost which mounted into many thousands of dollars per intersection. But rather than use all its Motor Fuel Tax monies for this maintenance, Keith's committee convinced the state to pay for the maintenance. If more than 35,000 cars pass an intersection daily the state would pay. Since so many of Niles intersections fall in this category the tax savings to the village enabled it to use MFT monies for other projects, which helped improve the village's roads.

Keith, who was active in his Kirk Lane homeowners' group more than 30 years ago, was one of the early supporters of Nick Blase, which led to his first election in 1961. Subsequently, Keith served on the Niles park board, its police board and its village board before being appointed to head the public works department.

In our 35 years of Bugling we'd have to say Keith was one of three or four of its most important Niles citizens who have made a significant difference to this community during the past three decades.

While we were out west visiting our kids, Congress told the local communities they will be overseeing the cable television companies in their communities. In Niles the basic cost of the service has gone from $2.50 and $4.50 to over $20 per month since its inception. And in Morton Grove the basic cost has past the $20 monthly figure. It is obvious the initial low cost was used to lure residents into buying the services. And it was inevitable the price would go up. But enough is enough. Hopefully, local officials can put a cap on these high fees.

Last weekend Nilesite Jim Les missed one 20-foot shot at the NBA All-Star festivities, which cost him $10,000. Had he made his final shot in the three-point exhibition on Saturday night he would have defeated the eventual winner, the Bulls' Craig Hodges. Hodges received $20,000 for his victory and Les finished second, which was worth $10,000. It is likely winning the contest would have increased his value as a pro basketball player and the possibility of added bucks from sports endorsements might have gone with a first place finish.

Les is a very gutsy player who was in the minor league of professional basketball until this year. One of the smaller players in pro basketball, he was called up to the NBA in 1991 and quickly has made a name for himself among the taller trees. Had he won the three point roundabout his salary might have inched up among those same tall trees. Les played high school ball at Notre Dame, the school which also gave us baseball's Greg Luzinski.
