Niles Park Board confusion stalls funding for ice rink, pool

By Shelly Hackett

The Niles Park Board on July 15 postponed a decision to fund an ice rink at Golf Mill Park. The board is considering buying a used ice rink, but no public discussion has been made on the proposal. According to advance press reports, a full-scale ice rink would cost $1.8 million.

The public discussion has been limited to a short meeting held in the City Council chambers. The board is considering buying a used ice rink, but no public discussion has been made on the proposal.

Niles All American Fest planned for all ages

The Abington's first resident happy with her lifestyle

Two years ago when The Abington, a new concept in retirement living opened doors to its first residents, Betty Haas, 90, a widow who was married to an NYPD cop for 67 years, moved in.

"The Abington is a community that understands the needs of senior citizens," Haas said. "It's a place to call home.

Her daughter-in-law, Mary Jane Newcorn, who lives in White Plains, N.Y., said that her mother has never been happier. "She's made friends and lives a happy life, all thanks to The Abington.

Mary Jane has been impressed with the care her mother receives at The Abington, especially the attention to health and safety issues.

Social Security continues battle against misleading advertisers

The Social Security Administration is fighting a battle to protect the public from misleading advertisements and telemarketing scams.
