Zoners delay decision on bank parking lot

By Tracey Labovitz

Many residents attended the Niles Zoning Board meeting Monday night in order to protest two motions that were subsequently continued by the Board until next month's meeting.

The first request came from Alan J. Emerick, president of First National Bank of Niles, regarding a new parking lot for the bank, located at 7100 Oakton Street, that would front further west on Oakton Street.

"Numerous residents came to the hearing to object because the lot would invade their privacy," said Niles Director of Code Enforcement Todd Bavaro.

Bavaro said most of the residents who attended the meeting live on Nora Avenue and Oakton Court. The Board voted to continue the motion while bank officials and local residents meet to discuss an agreement acceptable to all parties.

The other request was presented by Marek Maka and Alina Piesicka of 5321 W. Belmont Avenue in Chicago. The couple purchased property at 9250 Washington Street with hopes of Primary elections on Tuesday

By Tracey Labovitz

Primary elections are Tuesday, March 15. Besides state, congressional and judicial ballots, here is a look into local candidates.

Niles Township, Republican ticket

This year, three Morton Grove residents are vying to become the Niles Township Republican committeeman.

Incumbent Sheldon Marcus was appointed by Cook County Republican Central Committee Chairman James Dvorak in 1989 to succeed Pat Handzel.

Handzel had defeated Les Brownstein in the 1982 election, then was reelected in 1986 after defeating Joe Hedrick. Brownstein and Hedrick are the two running against Marcus for the post.

Brownstein disagreed with Handzel's endorsement of Marcus as her successor and launched an unsuccessful campaign to try and unseat Marcus in 1990.

Marcus, 55, owns his own marketing firm, Original Concepts, located in Morton Grove. He has served on the Niles Township

Fire destroys townhomes under construction

On Wednesday morning, March 9, more than 50 pieces of fire equipment from suburbs as far away as Wilmette and Mount Prospect aided the Niles Fire Department in fighting a fire in townhomes under construction behind the Builders Square store on Golf Road in Niles.

Destroyed in a tremendous blaze were four buildings, each of which contained eight townhome units. According to workmen

Photos by Jerry Arshem, Edd Kost and Steve Diete on the scene, two newly built garages located in the center of the building complexes burst into flames and spread so quickly that within 30 minutes, the four buildings were leveled to the ground. Nothing was salvaged according to witnesses on the scene. Fortunately, no one was injured in the blaze. The townhome units were set to sell at $160,000 each.

Ballard receives Joint Commission accreditation

Ballard, a healthcare residence in Des Plaines, has again achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

Formed in 1951, the Joint Commission is dedicated to improving the quality of the nation's healthcare through voluntary accreditation.

Ballard received Joint Commission accreditation after an on-site review which found Ballard had demonstrated compliance with the Joint Commission's national standards for long term care. Ballard has been accredited by the Joint Commission since 1987.

Ballard is also one of 25 participants to higher, national level standards and tougher inspections than those required for insurance of a license by the Illinois Department of Public Health. According to Mary Tellis-Nayak of the Joint Commission, the same survey, set of objective criteria, and methods for scoring and decision making are used consistently in each state. The inspection is so thorough and demanding that the state will accept the Joint Commission's inspection recommendations in lieu of its own for those organizations selected to participate.

"Accreditation standards exceed federal and state requirements," said Kenneth Hermann, Pharm. D., vice president for accreditation surveys at the Joint Commission. "Further, because this is a voluntary program, accreditation represents Ballard's decision to be recognized for its effort to provide quality care." Approximately 1,000 long term care facilities nationwide have received accreditation.

"Highly trained healthcare professionals reviewed every aspect of our operation," explained Elrick Pick, Ballard's executive director. "The scrutiny included the quality of care provided by our professional staff, as well as our specialized programs, like rehabilitation and respite care. But, more importantly, the Joint Commission carefully examined us from the resident's point of view."

Adams Elevator signs major lease in Niles

Michael Rose, Principal of The Rose Group, and Martin Jablonski of CB Commercial Real Estate Services, have announced one of the largest industrial leases completed in Chicago's near north suburbs in recent years. Adams Elevator Equipment Company has signed a long-term lease for 134,500 square feet of manufacturing, distribution and industrial space at 6300 Howard Street in Niles.

Adams Elevator specializes in the manufacture of elevator replacement parts and signal fixtures, including push button panels. The firm is a subsidiary of Ohio-based Millar Elevator Service Company, which in turn is a subsidiary of New Jersey-based Schindler Elevator Company, the second largest elevator company in the world.

According to Lewis Delin, Adams Project Manager, the company has experienced tremendous growth in both national sales and exports, prompting a need for additional space to accommodate increased demand for its various product lines. "A primary consideration regarding this expansion was relocating within the area in order to retain our employees," he said. "We have always been very concerned about providing a quality environment for our people."

Commenting on Niles' newest business resident, Abe Selman, Village Manager, said, "We are very pleased to have Adams Elevator relocating into our community. We view this as an exciting opportunity to welcome a company with a very progressive management style and the highest standard for quality. We will certainly do all we can to help them grow with us into the next century."

Selman added that throughout the process, Village Officials have examined the space and worked closely with The Rose Group to ensure building code compliance in a cost-effective manner. "We have tried to make the process move painlessly and expeditiously," he stated.

Park Ridge approves Maine Township addition

Plans for an addition to the Maine Township Town Hall at 1700 Ballard Road in Park Ridge won a recommendation for City Council approval Monday from the Park Ridge Planning and Zoning Commission.

The proposal is expected to go to the City Council for a vote on March 21.

"We're very pleased our plan has won the commission's approval," said Supervisor Mark Thompson. "This means we're one step closer to getting this project under way, which will allow us to maintain and improve services for the needy, the disabled, seniors, youths and the Maine Township community as a whole."

Presenting the plans for Maine Township were Thompson, architect Dennis Arthur Stevens of Architectural Enterprises Ltd. and traffic engineer Richard Richard Beebe.

The commissioners asked for two changes before agreeing to the proposal: a reduction in the number of parking spaces at the site from 93 to 79 and relocation of a trash container originally to be located on the north end of the property.

The proposed $1.2 million project would add 13,263 square feet to the Town Hall. The plans include a 3,055-square-foot assembly room, 5,319 square feet for the Youth Drop-in Center (now at Stevenson School), 3,321 square feet for MaineStay Youth Services (now at 838 Busse Highway in Park Ridge) and additional space for Senior Services, Disabled Services, General Assistance and the Emergency Management Agency.

The plan approved Monday includes a number of changes from the proposal originally presented to the commission late last year. Based on concerns raised by commissioners, the township reduced the height of the addition, moved it south away from nearby homes, eliminated a garage for emergency equipment, reduced the height of the office portion from two stories to one and channeled all vehicle traffic into and off of Ballard Road rather than side streets.

Thompson said he expects the revised plan will win the City Council's approval later this month. Shortly after that, the township plans to go out for bids on the project. Construction could begin late this spring, Thompson said.

The CCSPD Bomb Squad was notified and the building was evacuated. The bomb squad x-rayed the case and found no explosive device.

Workshop offers support to parents

Is your teen-ager's behavior pushing your patience to the limit? Are you unsure about how to handle problems such as drinking, smoking, sex, poor grades, late hours, dangerous driving, loud music and more?

Find the help you're looking for in "Surviving Your Adolescents," a program developed by registered Ph.D. clinical child psychologist Thomas W. Phelan.

Sponsored by MaineStay Youth Services, "Surviving Your Adolescents" will be presented from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, March 16, in the auditorium at Maine East High School, 2601 Dempster St., Park Ridge. Phelan will lead the discussion.

Co-sponsoring the program are the Maine Area "Together We Can" Community Partnership and Maine Township High School District 207.

"Surviving Your Adolescents" is designed to let parents know they are not alone or powerless in the challenges they face.

Phelan also will lead a program titled "1-2-3: Magic!" from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, March 14, also at Maine East. The workshop is aimed at parents of 2-through 12-year-olds. Among the topics that will be discussed during "1-2-3: Magic!" are how to control obnoxious behavior in less than two weeks without yelling or spanking, how to deal with testing and manipulation, and what to do about chores, homework, messy rooms, lying and other problems.

Tickets for both "Surviving Your Adolescents" and "1-2-3: Magic!" are available at the MaineStay office at 838 Busse Highway, Park Ridge. The cost is $2 for Maine Township residents and $5 for non-residents. Tickets also may be purchased at the door for $8. Scholarships are available and will be granted based on need.

For more information about "Surviving Your Adolescents," "1-2-3: Magic!" or other MaineStay programs, call MaineStay at 823-0650.

Blind father denied unsupervised visitation

Charles Stolzenbach's request to have unsupervised access to his son was just denied by a Cook County Judge.

Stolzenbach, who is represented by the Chicago Law Offices of Jeffrey M. Leving, Ltd., is legally blind and has helped raise his son since birth. Although the Judge specifically found that no "serious endangerment" exists, the Judge limited Stolzenbach's visitation to six hours per week, all to be supervised by his ailing father.

Leving's office pointed out to the Judge that in Illinois, the party requesting restricted visitation must show through a preponderance of evidence that a serious endangerment to the child exists before a father's right to visitation can be restricted. The simple fact that Stolzenbach is legally blind should not limit his unfettered contact with his son. A further hearing date was set for this matter.

However, Stolzenbach has not visited his son since last December. Leving, well known as a father's advocate, points out that this case is a prime example not only of bias against the handicapped but bias against men in custody and visitation disputes. Leving asked rhetorically, "Would a judge limit the time a blind mother could spend with her child just because she is blind?"

Colorectal cancer screening offered

To heighten awareness of Colorectal cancer, America's second most common cause of cancer deaths in men and women, F&M Distributors and the University of Illinois at Chicago Medical Center will offer free in-home Colorectal test kits.

Through Monday, March 28, all Chicago area F&M stores will distribute the free kits as part of the largest and most comprehensive Colorectal screening program in the state.

An estimated 149,000 new cases of Colorectal cancer are expected to develop in 1994, with an estimated 56,000 deaths. While these statistics are significant, the American Cancer Society explains that Colorectal cancer is curable and thousands of lives may be saved by early detection.

The Hemoccult II test distributed by F&M is used in the privacy of the home. It detects occult or "hidden" blood in the stool, an early first warning sign of possible Colorectal cancer, as well as other digestive disorders.

"The Hemoccult test offers an easy, painless way to screen for hidden blood in the stool. As an early sign of Colorectal cancer, finding hidden blood allows early and successful treatment of Colorectal cancer," explained Jay L. Goldstein, M.D. Associate Professor of Medicine and Member of the Digestive Disease and Liver Center at the University of Illinois at Chicago Medical Center.

The test packet contains clear step-by-step instructions and illustrations. The University of Illinois at Chicago Medical Center has set up a special phone line for people to call with questions. The number is 1-800-245-8595.

After completing the test, users take the kit back to F&M. The stores will deliver the test to the University of Illinois at Chicago Medical Center where the samples will be processed at no charge. The Confidential Laboratory results will be mailed back to the participant in approximately four to six weeks. Individuals whose test shows the presence of occult blood will be urged to see their family physician. If they do not have a family physician, they are able to make an appointment with one of the University's gastroenterologists in its Chicago-Land physician network or at the Medical Center.

Local F&M Distributor stores are located at 8251 Golf Rd. in Niles and 4222 W. Touhy Ave., Skokie.

March designated Rosacea Awareness Month

March has been designated as Rosacea Awareness Month by the National Rosacea Society to increase public understanding of this conspicuous and embarrassing skin disease that is afflicting an increasing percentage of Americans as the baby boom generation enters the most susceptible age.

"Misconceptions and ignorance about rosacea can be as damaging as the disease itself," said Dr. Jonathan Wilkin, director of dermatology at Ohio State University and a leading authority on the disease. "Early diagnosis and treatment are essential to prevent rosacea's advance to its most severe stages."

Although rosacea strikes an estimated one in 20 adults, a national Gallup survey indicates nearly 75 percent of the population has never heard of the condition. Because of its alarming, acne-like effects on personal appearance, however, it can cause devastating psychological and social problems and, when untreated, can result in permanent facial damage.

As part of Rosacea Awareness Month, the National Rosacea Society has established an information hotline. Rosacea sufferers or people who suspect they may have the condition can call (708) 382-8971 to receive a public service brochure and copies of Rosacea Review, a publication for rosacea patients. Beginning in March, the Society also plans to begin a physician referral service to provide people with the names of dermatologists in their areas.

Rosacea usually first appears when people reach their 30s and 40s, when they are typically approaching the peak of their capabilities and may expect to be done with the embarrassments of adolescence. But unlike teenage acne, rosacea grows progressively worse if left untreated.

Often called "adult acne," the disease typically starts as a flushing or subtle redness on the cheeks, nose, chin or forehead that comes and goes. As rosacea progresses over time, the redness becomes more prominent, pimples called papules and pustules may appear, and small dilated blood vessels may become visible. In some cases, the eyes may also grow irritated and bloodshot. In the most advanced stages of rosacea, the nose may become red and swollen from excess tissue.

Education and early intervention are the best defenses against rosacea," Dr. Wilkin said. "In most cases, the progression of the disease can be arrested and the symptoms reversed through medical treatment and lifestyle modifications."

Prostate cancer

Bill Bixby, Don Ameche, Frank Zappa, within the past several months, all three famous men died of prostate cancer. They were among the more than 28,000 American men who die from prostate cancer each year.

"In the very early stages of prostate cancer, there usually are no symptoms," says Jack Gerstbrein, a physician assistant in urology at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. "That's what's so bad about this disease."

The prostate is a male sex gland, about the size of a walnut, located below the bladder and above the rectum. It encircles the base of the urethra, the tube that carries urine from the bladder.

As prostate cancer develops, you may have problems urinating; a weak or interrupted urine flow; pain or burning when urinating; blood in the urine; painful ejaculation; constant pain in your lower back, hips or thighs, Gerstbrein says.

"The stage of the cancer and the man's age will affect the treatment your physician recommends," Gerstbrein says. "Because prostate cancer is the second most common cancer among American men and the third leading cause of cancer deaths, you should make a New Year's resolution now to have a yearly prostate exam."

If you have any questions about prostate cancer, talk to your physician and schedule an exam now.

Parents advised of new timetable for Polio vaccine

Chicago Department of Health (CDOH) officials announced that all babies in the city should receive their third dose of polio vaccine at six months of age.

"Until now, it was recommended that babies receive their third dose of oral polio vaccine when they turn 15 months of age," stated Sheila Lyne, RSM, Commissioner of Health. "Altering our recommendation will mean that babies will be protected sooner against this potentially deadly disease, and that hopefully we are moving closer to the day when polio is declared eradicated in the U.S."

The new timetable is consistent with recommendations made recently by the U.S. Public Health Service's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices and the American Academy of Pediatrics' Committee on Infectious Diseases.

All CDOH clinics now follow the updated immunization schedule, a change meaning earlier immunity for thousands of infants. In all, CDOH and other health authorities recommend four doses of oral polio vaccine for every child. They are administered at two, four and six months of age, and once again before entry into preschool or kindergarten.

Polio is an acute viral disease marked by inflammation of the gray matter of the spinal cord. It is characterized by fever, sore throat, headache, vomiting and often stiffness of the neck and back. In severe cases, polio results in permanent paralysis and even death.

"In addition to the four polio vaccinations, there are 14 other recommended vaccinations children should receive - starting at age two months and ending before entry into preschool or kindergarten," added Dr. John Wilhelm, CDH Deputy Commissioner for Medical Affairs. "Parents must check with their child's doctor to make sure that all vaccines are administered in a timely and effective manner."

Childhood immunization has been a top priority of the Daley Administration over the past five years. City officials have devised and deployed a number of innovative interventions to make vaccinations more accessible than ever to children in at-risk communities. The result of this heightened commitment has resulted in a nearly threefold increase in the number of doses of vaccine administered by the Chicago Department of Health - from 119,000 in 1990 to more than 338,000 in 1993.

Chicago parents who have no doctor for their children and do not know where to find child immunization services are encouraged to call CDH at (312) 746-6181 (TT/TDD (312) 744-2960). Outside the city, parents are encouraged to phone the statewide Help Me Grow hotline, 1-800-323-GROW.

Holy Family Hospital seeks volunteers to help during evening and weekend shifts at the hospital's lobby information desk, gift shop, one day surgery and wheelchair transportation department.

For more information or to volunteer, call Mary Bremer in Holy Family Hospital's volunteer office at (708) 297-1800, ext. 1160.

Women's guide to Social Security

"There is virtually no woman in American today whose life isn't or won't be affected by the Social Security system," according to Gwendolyn S. King, Commissioner of Social Security. In focusing on the relationship between women and Social Security, the Commissioner noted that among all beneficiaries today, about 60 percent are women; among all workers today, more than 50 percent are women.

As these numbers continue to grow, it is more important than ever that women be aware of their rights under Social Security's programs. They need to know what protection is available to them today and what benefits will be available in the future. This brief review of the program provisions is designed to provide an overview of what women, young and old alike, should know about Social Security.

As a working woman, you can retire with full benefits as early as age 62. (In the year 2000, the age for full retirement benefits will begin to increase gradually until it reaches age 66 in 2009 and age 67 in 2027.) If you reach age 62 after 1990, you'll need to have worked for at least 10 years to qualify for retirement benefits.

It's important to remember that while you're working, you (and your family) are covered by Social Security disability and survivors' insurance. To qualify for disability benefits if you're age 31 or older, you'll need to have worked and paid Social Security taxes at least 5 of the last 10 years. Younger disabled workers need fewer years of covered work. For example, if you become disabled before age 24, you may need as few as 1-1/2 years of work during the 3 years immediately preceding the disability. At any age, you must be unable to work for at least 1 year. Your unmarried, minor be, based on the earnings reported for you by your employers, call Social Security and ask for Request for Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement. From the time you complete this form and mail it to Social Security, it takes 3-6 weeks for you to receive a statement that shows estimates of your future benefits and the earnings that have been reported by your employers. And remember, all services from Social Security are free.

1. If you change your name (for marriage, divorce, or any other reason), report the change to Social Security so that your wages will continue to be credited properly to your Social Security record.

2. If you are in business with your husband, make sure your name is on the business so that you can get Social Security credit for your earnings.

3. If you'd like to find out what your Social Security benefits will benefits during this period.

As a wife, you may receive benefits at any age if you're caring for the child of a retired, disabled, or deceased worker if that child is under age 16 or disabled. If you have no children or they are grown, you'll be eligible for 50 percent of your husband's benefit at age 65 or for a reduced benefit at age 62.

As a widow, you may receive a survivor's benefit at any age if you're caring for a child who is under age 16 or disabled. Otherwise, you may receive a widow's benefit at age 60. If you are disabled, you may receive benefits at age 50. Widow's benefits range from 71-1/2 percent of a deceased husband's benefit amount (if they begin at age 60) to 100 percent (if you wait until age 65).

As a divorcee, you're entitled to the same benefits you would have received as a wife or widow if your marriage lasted 10 years or more. (Length of marriage rules do not apply to widows with minor children.) You may lose your right to these benefits if you remarry.

All of these rules also apply to men. However, women as a group have traditionally been more likely than men to qualify for dependents' and survivors' benefits.

More information is available from Social Security. Call the toll-free number - 1-800-772-1213 - any business day from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., or call or visit your local Social Security office. Ask for the free booklet Understanding Social Security. Another resource is "The Social Security Book, What Every Woman Absolutely Needs to Know," published by the American Association of Retired Persons. Single copies are available through the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, CO 81009. Specify either the title or Item No. 600Y when requesting this booklet.

Ladies' Faire arts, crafts show set

The 1994 Annual Ladies' Faire Arts and Crafts Show will be held March 24 through March 26 at the Radisson Suite Hotel, 1400 Milwaukee Ave., Glenview.

Ladies' Faire, while striving for quality, has kept in mind that variety and uniqueness is what today's shoppers really desire. They seek unusual and one-of-a-kind hand-crafted items not found in traditional stores. This year Ladies' Faire has carefully selected 125 of the Midwest's best artisans and craftsmen to display their wares. The range of merchandise covers everything from wearable art to cedar decks. There will also be a gourmet/bake shop with a large selection of culinary delights.

The entire second floor of the Radisson Hotel, including the Atrium, will be turned into a shopping court where each Suite, set up as a boutique, reflects its own style and flair.

Ladies' Faire has also arranged for promotional exhibits and demonstrations by two local merchants, Vermillion located in Deerfield and Point of Origin in Glenview.

Vermillion specializes in customizing furniture and accessories to specific needs. They can custom coordinate furniture or accessories to suit one's personal taste. Owner, Kathy Barinholtz will be demonstrating her knack and hand-painting an old piece of furniture, creating a work of art. Demonstrations will be on Thursday and Friday at 1, 3 and 5 p.m., and on Saturday at 1 and 3 p.m.

David Homer calls his Point of Origin a lifestyle store. Rather than only selling furniture, they look at the whole picture and try to individualize to one's personality and way of life.

Show hours are 12 to 9 p.m. on March 24, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on March 25 and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on March 26. Per visit admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children. No strollers. For further information, call (708) 729-8876.

Solutions to wet attic, rotting roof

Got moisture problems in your attic? Is your roof rotting from underneath? The problem, strangely enough, is deep-rooted, very deep. It's in the foundation, says a University of Illinois researcher.

In the case of moisture problems, "the attic is nothing but an annex of the basement or foundation crawl space," says Bill Rose, a research architect with the university's Small Homes Council/Building Research Council. Rose has studied attics and the conditions that affect them.

When excess moisture is found in an attic, it usually is not from the main living space, but from excess moisture in the space below it, Rose said. The relationship is "that direct - it couldn't be clearer." Moist air travels up within the walls themselves, through holes made in the framing for plumbing, electrical and heating systems, he said.

And contrary to common wisdom and current building codes, attic venting has little effect if there's a major moisture problem, Rose said. "You can blow cold air across a wet attic surface forever and it won't dry it out," he said.

These findings, along with others gathered through two years of research in a special test facility, could bring several changes to the residential housing industry, Rose said.

"Building codes are going to change and they're going to change significantly," he said. Instead of focusing on attic vents as the cure-all for moisture problems, codes might be written and enforced with more attention to the moisture coming from basements and crawl spaces, Rose said.

Measures for keeping water away from the ground surrounding the foundation will become more important. And since moisture is the principal cause of house deterioration over time, measures to reduce such moisture could bring savings in housing costs.

Rose's findings also have implications for the placement of attic insulation, specifically for moving it from the floor of the attic to the underside of the roof. The idea has been suggested before but never went very far because of the moisture issue. Now his research, combined with that of others, makes it more of a possibility, he said. As a result, Rose is testing what happens when the insulation is moved, and with different levels of ventilation between the roof sheathing and the insulation.

Among the advantages in moving the insulation to the attic ceiling, Rose said, would be the saving of energy lost from leaks in heating and cooling ducts atop the attic floor. Those ducts no longer would be leaking into air vented in from the outside. The move also would allow for the installation of sprinkler systems, not possible now because water pipes in the attic would be subject to freezing.

Outdoor lighting adds safety and security

If you enjoy country living, the addition of outdoor lighting equipment to your property can enhance that enjoyment year-round, while also increasing your property's safety and security.

On any rural property or small farm, there are always a few after-hour chores to be done "in the dark." Good outdoor lighting will reduce both time and effort, and add safety, especially during those long and dark winter nights.

To maximize your investment, the right light bulb in the right location is what counts most. For outdoor lighting, those golden-colored high pressure sodium bulbs are the most energy efficient of the high-intensity discharge (HID) bulbs. The white-colored mercury vapor bulbs, although not as energy efficient, cost less initially, and are the most readily available HID bulbs.

Comparing the light output from different lighting products using the same amount of electricity shows that mercury vapor bulbs produce 2.5 times as much light as standard incandescent bulbs, and high pressure sodium bulbs produce 4- to 5-times as much light as incandescent. This means more light for you at a lower cost of operation.

The average life of an incandescent bulb is from 750 to 1000 hours of operation. A high pressure sodium bulb has a life of 24,000 hours. This means an extended period of time between bulb changes, particularly if the bulb is controlled by a photo-electric cell allowing only night-time operation.

In addition to its security aspect, outdoor lighting can also be used to enhance the beauty and safety of your farm's surroundings. All of these lighting applications will increase the value of your property as well.

For more information on the relative efficiency of outdoor light sources, contact your electric utility or send $1 for Farmstead (outdoor) Lighting to the non-profit National Food & Energy Council, 409 Vandiver West, Suite 202, Columbia, MO 65202.

Field testing is currently underway for a natural gas appliance that will both heat and cool homes, according to the American Gas Association.

"Initial testing indicates that the new natural gas heat pump is efficient, clean and very economical, compared with electric heating and cooling units," says A.G.A. President Michael Baly III.

"Most consumers are already familiar with the benefits of natural gas heating equipment, so they'll be pleased to learn that nat-

Homeowners anxious to slice energy bills

According to Professional Builder and Remodeler's annual consumer survey, more than 82 percent of consumers said they would spend an extra $1,500 for energy-efficient products to save $250 per year on heating and cooling.

Joining other "investments" like energy-saving appliances and increased insulation are replacement windows, according to Rick Hides, Sales Manager, Pella Windows And Doors Inc.

Homeowners are realizing the significant effect outdated windows have on energy bills," said Hides. "Energy-efficient units now have numerous high-tech components to save energy, but three key ratings continue to provide the evaluation basis." Hides offered definitions for those areas - R-values, U-values and air infiltration.

"R-values measure a window's rate of resistance to the flow of energy. Higher R-values are better," said Hides. Single pane windows carry an R-value on one, double panes two, and so on. Hides said technologies like films, coatings and gas-filled panes are aimed at raising the R-value without adding more panes.

How well a unit conducts heat is measured in U-values. The lower the U-value the more energy-efficient the window. While U-value and R-value are both commonly used, experts agree the U-value is preferred because it directly measures the heat-flow rate.

Air infiltration measures cubic feet of air leakage per minute per linear foot (cfm/ft)," said Hides. "The industry standard for a Grade of 40 window is .25 cfm/ft, but higher quality are below .20 cfm/ft."

Sump pump helps assure dry basements

Spring flooding conditions in the Midwest cause homeowners to take special care in making sure sump pumps are maintained properly. The Sump and Sewage Pump Manufacturers Association (SSPMA) offers homeowners information on proper selection, sizing, installation and maintenance of their sump pumps. Sump pumps relieve water pressure around the home's foundation. They are not intended for water build-up but to eliminate water before it comes through the walls of a home.

Winter months are a good time to inspect or consider replacing sump pumps. Snow and ice thaws in spring often give pumps their first new year's test. Since frozen ground won't absorb melted snow and ice, water tends to build up around the home's foundation and run into basements.

SSPMA recommends periodic maintenance during the year, including checking the pump every three or four months. Make sure the pump is disconnected from the power source before handling or cleaning it. Make sure the sump pit is free of debris and the pump screen is clean. After cleaning and replacing the pump, plug it in again and pour enough water into the pit to make sure the pump functions properly. Never operate the pump without water. And finally, always refer to the manufacturer's manual for specific maintenance and performance requirements as well as safety information.

For more information on sump pumps, including the Homeowner's Guide to the Domestic Sump Pump, installation and troubleshooting guides and a list of SSPMA-Certified pumps, mail $5 to SSPMA, Home Sump Pump Packet, Box 647, Northbrook, IL 60065-0647.

Natural gas heat pump test underway

Field testing is currently underway for a natural gas appliance that will both heat and cool homes, according to the American Gas Association.

"Initial testing indicates that the new natural gas heat pump is efficient, clean and very economical, compared with electric heating and cooling units," says A.G.A. President Michael Baly III.

"Most consumers are already familiar with the benefits of natural gas heating equipment, so they'll be pleased to learn that natural gas cooling has many of the same advantages. In addition, the greater use of natural gas cooling can reduce demands, on electric utilities in hot summer months, thus reducing the likelihood of brown-outs and the need for construction of expensive new electric generation facilities that are paid for by customers," Baly says.

Field-testing of the natural gas heat pump will be completed in 1993 and production of 50,000 units is planned in 1994.

Using energy wisely saves money

Consumers who take a few simple steps to use energy wisely can reduce household energy consumption and save money on utility bills, according to the American Gas Association.

The following are some energy-saving ideas:

1. To reduce heating bills, seal leaks around doors, windows and other openings, such as pipes or ducts, with caulking or weather stripping or by stuffing insulation into open areas that are letting in outside air.

2. Set the thermostat between 65 and 70 degrees in the winter, at least 5 degrees lower when sleeping and at 58 degrees when away from home for more than a few hours. (Warmer temperatures are recommended for homes with ill or elderly people and/or infants).

3. Set your water heater temperature at 140 degrees and install water flow restrictors in showerheads and faucets. The restrictors are inexpensive and can cut hot water use without affecting comfort.

New bath design

Caribbean and Barbados - images of a vacation on a tropical isle? No - brand names of Kohler bathroom products designed for in-home relaxation and enjoyment - at-home getaways.

"As millions of baby boomers settle into comfortable lifestyles, they continue to remodel their homes, adding large, stylishly designed bathrooms geared toward stay-home leisure and recreation," says Jim Sutter, vice president and general merchandise manager of Handy Andy Home Improvement Centers, Inc. Bathroom-fixture manufacturers increasingly tailor entire product lines to meet this growing demand, he said, noting that even minimal additions, such as a finely crafted bathtub, a whirlpool, or a specialty shower can bring new life to a bathroom.

Additional such as saunas, showers that double as steam rooms, and whirlpools, bathtubs with built-in hydromassage, also increase enjoyment and your home's value. Some larger master baths even feature lounge areas for exercising, recreation and watching television.

4. Change filters or clean the filters in heating and cooling units at least twice a year. Close vents and doors in unused rooms. If pipes or ducts run through unheated areas, insulate them.

5. Use drapes, shutters, awnings, shade trees, glass with reflective film or solar screens to keep sunlight out in the summer and let it in during the winter.

6. Check to see if your attic and basement (or crawl space) have the recommended level of insulation for the area where you live.

7. If you have a woodburning fireplace, consider installing a natural gas fireplace insert, which can save up to 50 percent in energy costs, compared with firewood. A gas fireplace also will dramatically reduce the air pollution created from burning wood.

8. Consider storm or thermal windows and doors or double-paned glass. A less expensive alternative is plastic sheeting, which can be fastened over doors and windows to retain heat or air conditioning.

9. Be sure that dishwashers, washing machines and clothes dryers are fully loaded before running.

10. When buying new appliances, compare energy efficiency ratings and annual operating costs. A slightly higher initial cost for a high-efficiency appliance could pay itself back in a very short time through energy savings that mean lower utility bills.

Many natural gas utilities offer assistance and special programs designed to help consumers reduce their energy bills. Contact your local gas utility for more information.

Governor funds budget request

Governor Jim Edgar announced recently he will fully fund the Illinois Board of Higher Education's request of an $86.4 million increase to operate state universities and colleges during the next fiscal year.

"This is the first time in anyone's memory that a Governor has fully funded the board's request. It provides a $37 million increase - believed to be the largest ever - in financial aid to those who otherwise could not afford to pursue their degrees and their dreams," the Governor said.

The Governor also announced a 50 percent increase for higher education building projects financed from capital funds.

Included in the capital budget is another $15 million for the statewide telecommunications venture that was launched last year to link colleges and universities - and potentially businesses and elementary and secondary schools - in a long-distance learning network.

General Revenue Funds totaling $1.734 billion will be provided for operations and grants at the state universities and colleges. Included are: • A $30 million increase for the Monetary Award Program, which will boost the new maximum award to $3,800 from $3,500, fully fund the scholarships for her future plans as well for all the years she has devoted to her legal career.

• A $6 million - or 50 percent - increase in the Illinois Veteran's Scholarship Program. • A $1.5 million appropriation to provide as many as 300 grants to minority students studying to become elementary or secondary school teachers in Illinois so they can become role models.

• A $39.6 million increase for the 12 public universities. • An $8.7 million increase for the 49 community colleges.

Appropriations from all funds will total $2.425 billion.

Rhoda Davis Sweeney

Rhoda Davis Sweeney

Lauded by her many supporters as an accomplished criminal lawyer, and promoter of justice and women's issues, Rhoda Davis Sweeney is taking her career to new heights as she gears up to run for a Cook County Circuit Court Judgeship in the March 15 primary.

"Based on my legal ability and my experiences with now sitting judges I feel I can add a great deal to the judiciary," said Sweeney from her downtown law offices. "I am qualified and ready to become a Circuit Court judge."

As Sweeney speaks of her desire to become a judge, she exudes confidence and enthusiasm for her future plans as well for all the years she has devoted to her legal career. "I have seen all sides of the criminal and civil law practice," said Sweeney. "I am positive that I can dispense even-handed intelligent judgments in both simple and complex matters."

In 1979, Sweeney decided to enter the legal profession and became a full-time law student at the Illinois Institute of Technology (IIT)-Kent School of Law. Once again, her efforts paid off as she graduated from Kent with honors in 1981. Shortly thereafter, she became an Assistant Cook County State's Attorney where she had the opportunity to gain valuable legal experience including daily court experience in the first municipal district and then in the Narcotics and Forfeiture units. Sweeney was also assigned to Criminal Appeals where she had the opportunity to present oral arguments before the Illinois Supreme Court. Sweeney also has an impressive record of being assigned to more than 1,000 cases in the court referral system and never having a complaint. In 1987, Sweeney decided to expand her legal expertise by going into private practice where she continues to focus her attention on criminal and family law. Throughout her career as prosecutor and now as a criminal defense attorney, she has exhibited a keen insight for the law and an outstanding capacity to deal with people and their problems.

Dudycz bill adds community services to criminal sentences

Assistant Senate Majority Leader Walter Dudycz (R-7th, Chicago) is sponsoring legislation proposed by the Northwest Neighborhood Federation to require anyone convicted of certain misdemeanor crimes to perform community service, in addition to their other penalties.

"This is a new approach to fighting the graffiti and damage related to gang activity in our neighborhoods. Instead of just putting misdemeanor offenders behind bars or fining them, we are also asking that they be required to put some of their time back into the community," Dudycz said. "Several weeks of cleaning up graffiti or repairing damaged property may offer them a new perspective."

Senate Bill 1154 requires, in addition to any other sentence that may be imposed, the court to order any person convicted of or placed on supervision for certain misdemeanor crimes to perform community service for not less than 30 and not more than 120 hours. Those crimes include assault, criminal damage to property, certain weapons violations, mob action, or disorderly conduct.

Kustra details budget cuts

For the fourth year in a row, Lieutenant Governor Bob Kustra has proposed a reduction in this office's General Revenue Fund appropriation.

Kustra's Fiscal Year 1995 GRF request is $2,523,600, a sharp decline from the $4.1 million GRF appropriation in FY 1991.

At the same time that Kustra has kept state spending down, he has secured new federal funding to distribute as grants statewide.

While accomplishing the budget cuts, Kustra also has assumed increased responsibility, including chairing the Task Force on School-to-Work Transition.

Assistant Senate Majority Leader Walter Dudydz (R-7th, Chicago) says the residents of Niles are the winners in a new economic development project being financed by the Illinois Development Finance Authority (IDFA).

IDFA officials have announced that they are issuing $9.8 million in tax-exempt Industrial Revenue Bonds to help Rich Products Corporation open a manufacturing and distribution facility in Niles.

The bonds will be used to finance the acquisition of 111,000 square feet of land, the renovation of a 50,000-square-foot facility, the construction of two additions to existing buildings and the purchase of equipment.

The Illinois Development Finance Authority is a self-supporting state agency created to stimulate economic growth in Illinois.

McGury bids for Circuit Court

With a proven track record as an accomplished attorney, Kathleen McGury is taking her career to new heights as she campaigns to become Circuit Court Judge in the primaries this March 15, 1994.

Kathleen McGury

"I have been a criminal prosecutor and a civil defense attorney," explains McGury. "My experience has exposed me to all kinds of courtrooms. I know what it takes to be a competent judge."

After working in criminal law for 9 years, McGury took her legal career in yet a different direction. She transferred to the Workmen's Compensation Unit of the Civil Division of the State's Attorney's office where she worked for two years.

Then in 1989, McGury looked to gain even more civil experience in the Real Estate Tax Unit in the Civil Division of the State's Attorney's office, where she currently works.

Phelan presents North Shore resident with a kiss

Richard Phelan, a candidate for governor of Illinois and current president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, gives a kiss and a hug to Marie Derken, a resident of The North Shore Retirement Hotel and mother of an old college friend.

Phelan recently spoke at The North Shore, a premiere senior community located in the heart of downtown Evanston.

Edgar announces grants to help homeless shelters

Gov. Jim Edgar announced today that 21 homeless shelters have been awarded $327,500 to improve the energy efficiency of their facilities and reduce heating costs.

This is the second year we've been able to help locally operated homeless shelters reduce their energy expenses so they can put more of their dollars into direct services for homeless families and individuals.

The state of Illinois is able to make these grants to local communities because of the generosity of citizens who contributed last year to the Homeless Assistance Fund on their individual income tax returns.

The Homeless Assistance Fund, administered by the Department of Public Aid, accounted for $175,500 of the total grant money.

Homeless shelters will be retrofitted with new energy efficient heating systems, building insulation and energy-saving storm doors and windows.

Public Aid Director Robert W. Wright said, "Two state agencies have demonstrated again how pooling their expertise and resources can benefit homeless shelters, which serve more than 51,000 people each year."

"We've been working aggressively to update our buildings, which house up to 500 homeless persons on any given night," said Terri Long of the Chicago Christian Industrial League, which has been awarded a $30,000 grant.

"We will be replacing outdated windows with energy-efficient ones in our buildings, some of which were built in 1909."

Illinois taxpayers can help the homeless for the fifth consecutive year by writing in a donation of $1 or more to the Homeless Assistance Fund on line 15d of their 1993 individual income tax return.

Gardner proposes federal anti-crime legislation

Frank Edward Gardner, candidate in the 9th U. S. Congressional District Democratic primary, recently proposed far-reaching anti-crime legislation.

At the heart of the proposal is legislation which would provide for a national network for the reporting of arrest warrants for all felonies throughout the 50 states.

The proposal was made in response to the recent arrest and subsequent release by the Matteson police of a man wanted by Spokane, Washington prosecutors for molesting two girls, ages 4 and 5.

PRAYER TO ST. JUDE
Most holy apostle, St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus; the name of the traitor who delivered your beloved Master into the hands of His enemies has caused you to be forgotten by many, but the Church honors and invokes you through out the world as patron of hopeless cases, of things despised of. Pray for me, make us, I implore you, of that particular privilege accorded to you to bring visible and speedy help where help is most despised of. Come to my assistance in this great need, that I may receive the consolation and comfort of Heaven in all my needs, tribulations and sufferings, and that I may praise God with you and all the elect forever. Primary elections ... Continued from Page 1

High School District 219 Board of Education and the Golf District 67 School Board.

Brownstein, 72, is the assistant manager of the Illinois Secretary of State's driver's license facility located in Niles.

He is the chairman of the Elephant Clubs of Niles Township and a member of the Morton Grove Traffic Safety Commission. Brownstein was recently appointed Niles Township Collector.

Hedrick, 58, is a computer consultant and real estate broker. He is a member of American Legion Post 34.

Hedrick ran unsuccessfully in 1984 for what was then the 1st Senate District.

Niles Township, Democratic ticket

Three candidates will appear on the Niles Township Democratic ticket.

The incumbent Calvin R. Suter is a former State Representative, Democratic State Party Chairman and three-term State Representative for what was then the 56th district.

Suter, an attorney who resides in Skokie, has been Niles Township's Democratic Committeeman since 1973 and has successfully run every four years since.

Suter, who describes himself as a vibrant and enthusiastic 70-year-old, received the Best Legislator award from the Independent Voters of Illinois in 1986 and the Ethel Parker award, the highest honor a legislator can receive, for excellence in 1988. He is also currently running for the County Board seat in the 13th district.

Vera Tikva Paktor and Jeff Smith will challenge Suter in the primaries.

Paktor was appointed Director of Federal Maritime Commission while Jimmy Carter was president and is basically a newcomer in the elections.

Smith is a former State Central Committeeman for the Democratic party who was defeated running for a second term.

Maine Township The candidates for the Maine Township Republican and Democratic posts are running unopposed in the primaries.

The Democratic candidate, Andrew T. Przybylo, was recently appointed the Maine Township Regular Democratic Committeeman when Mayor Nicholas Blase resigned.

LEGAL NOTICE FOR: CAB ENCLOSED SELF-CONTAINED SPRAYER

Notice is hereby given that the Niles Park District shall receive and open sealed bids for a Cab Enclosed Self-Contained Sprayer with Operator Enclosure and Air Filtering System until 12:00 (noon) on Thursday, March 24, 1994. The bid opening shall be held at 3:00 p.m. on March 24th, at the Park District's Recreation Center, 7877 N. Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, Illinois 60714. Bid specifications and further information may be obtained by contacting Golf Operations Manager Greg Genz at 965-2344, or Greenskeeper Dan Vargas at 965-3311.

All bids shall exclude sales tax and shall be submitted in a sealed envelope clearly marked "Proposal, Sprayer Bid, March 24, 1994". The Board of Commissioners reserves the right to accept or reject any and all bids or to waive technicalities deemed to be in the District's best interest in awarding a contract.

s/Greg Genz Golf Operations Manager Niles Park District.

Przybylo, 42, a Niles resident, has been a Niles Village Board trustee for four years and is running uncontested in the primaries.

The Republican ticket goes to State Senator Martin J. Butler who also will run uncontested.

Butler, 68, the incumbent from Park Ridge, was the long time mayor of Park Ridge until his appointment to fill Lt. Gov. Robert Kustra's senate seat in January, 1991.

Illinois House of Representatives, 13th District

Two candidates are running for the 13th Illinois House District's Republican ticket. The 13th District includes Morton Grove, Golf, and portions of Niles, Park Ridge, Glenview, Skokie, Lincolnwood and Chicago's 41st and 45th wards.

Dan Staackmann, of Morton Grove, has been endorsed by the Maine and Niles Township organizations. He is making his second bid for election to the General Assembly after being defeated in the March 1990 primary for what was then the 1st District.

His opponent, Thomas Frawley, of Norwood Park, is being endorsed by city factions. He is a newcomer in the elections.

Frawley, 29, has been active for years in Chicago Democratic politics. He is an account executive for AT&T Atlantic and once worked as a legislative aide to the Chicago City Council.

His anti-crime program would have gang members tried as adults, regardless of their age, and parole would be prohibited for second-time offenders. Frawley supports a school voucher system but does not favor riverboat gambling in Cook County.

Staackmann, 38, has been a Morton Grove Park District Board Commissioner since 1987. He is a real estate salesman, president of the LiPoni Foundation, president of the Maine-Niles Association of Special Recreation Board and a member of the Illinois Association of the Park District's legislative committee.

He believes the focus should be on resources for education and jobs for youths in order to make a dent in criminal activity.

Staackmann favors a school voucher system, as well as riverboat gambling in Cook County. Revenue from riverboat gambling, he said, should be controlled by the state and casino licensing through a lottery.

Both candidates favor reducing property taxes and raising funding for education. Both propose extending a 5 percent cap in property tax hikes to Cook County and a readjustment of taxes in Illinois so property owners aren't handling most of the bill for local school districts.

The primary winner will face the incumbent Democratic State Representative Ralph Capparelli, of Edison Park, who is seeking his 13th term for the post he has held since 1971.

U.S. House of Representatives, 9th District

Two candidates are in the race for Democratic Congressman in the 9th District. The 9th District covers parts of Niles, Morton Grove, Skokie, Lincolnwood, Evanston and Chicago's north-side lakefront areas.

After 45 years in office, Sidney R. Yates, 84, is still an important figure in Congress. He has accomplished 22 terms as U.S. Representative for the 9th District, he is a member of the Chairman of the House Interior Appropriations Subcommittee and the House Foreign Operations Subcommittee, and he chairs the Subcommittee for the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies. Yates says he has knowledge of the district and feels because of his seniority, he can get things done.

Yates' goals relate to urban violence and community development. He is pro-choice.

Yates' opponent, Frank E. Gardner, is Democratic vice president of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago. He is a director and former president and finance chairman for the New Horizon Center, an organization for the developmentally disabled.

Gardner's platform includes a proposed anti-crime legislation in which felons could not be released for one crime while being wanted for another elsewhere.

He sees the Deep Tunnel Project, lakefront preservation and sewer renovation as the most important issues to local voters.

Gardner, 41, allegedly sought to debate Yates on several occasions, however, Yates did not accept the challenge.

Yates' long-time Republican opponent, Herb Sohn, has decided not to run for the 9th District again, but George Larney and Larry Joyce will fight for the opportunity to face Yates in the November elections.

Larney, 51, of Evanston, lost the last GOP primary to Sohn. He is an economist and labor mediator and he opposes President Clinton's health plan. Larney is seeking support from Independents and moderate Democrats.

Joyce, 39, a newcomer from Chicago, is a pharmacist and attorney. He is a traditionalist who is pro-life and has participated in pro-life legal battles across the country.

Both Republican candidates criticize Yates' outmoded ideas on spending and deficit reduction and say he has lost touch with district voters.

Referendums

Voters can expect to see two referendums on this year's primary election ballot.

The first asks whether possession of handguns by people under the age of 21 should be prohibited by the State of Illinois.

The other involves felons and questions whether the General Assembly and the Government should enact truth-in-sentencing to ensure that the state's most serious offenders, like murderers and rapists, serve a greater percentage of their sentences.

The Park Board interviewed candidates in a closed session on February 15 and voted on Selzer's appointment February 17.

Selzer, a retired accountant, said he hopes to focus on finances as a special area of expertise and has already been given that opportunity.

The Board held a special community meeting March 5 to discuss a recently proposed five-year, $4.6 million improvement plan.

At its March 17 Board meeting, the commissioners will discuss and vote on the upcoming year's proposed operating budget, which is also $4.6 million. Those figures are 3.4 percent higher than the current fiscal year's budget which could mean a hike in annual property taxes of about $9 for the owner of a home assessed at $150,000.

The budget also includes a proposed three-year, $2.6 million bond as part of the improvement project. About $1.75 million of those funds will be used to remodel the 17-year-old Prairie View Community Center, 6834 Dempster.

was a cab company he worked for.

Both parties were informed that the sizing of the signs is a civil matter. After Gutman was told of his options of action against the sign company, the manager asked Gutman to leave, but he refused and had to be escorted out by Niles police.

Upon exiting the store, one of the officers noticed that Gutman's vehicle, which was in front of the store, had no front license plate. The rear plate was a taxiplate and the vehicle had a taximeter, but the car had no other identifiers other than the plate to show that it was a taxi.

Gutman told police that he was an independent driver and did not need any other identification. The vehicle is registered in his Niles home, however, and Gutman did not have a Niles taxi license.

According to police, Gutman then changed his story and said that he worked for a cab company in Bolingbrook.

The other officer was aware that Gutman had been previously charged several other times by the Village of Niles for taxi violations. The officer asked Gutman to produce verification of the business licensing on the vehicle and on the company he worked for, but the subject could not.

Gutman, and his vehicle, were taken into custody for investigation.

It was then learned that the Village had received numerous complaints against Gutman for overpricing patrons. Although the incidents did not occur in Niles, the vehicle is registered in Niles and that is apparently the only way to find the taxi driver.

The arrestee was charged and released, but the Niles Code Enforcement will do a follow-up to determine if there will be business violations or criminal charges pending.

be located there.

The first cleanup phase, expected to last two weeks, involves removing a sample from each of the storage crates and approximately 1,500 drums to determine contents. Leaking drums also will be resealed, and all will be stacked and numbered.

The next phase is expected to begin in April. Once the contents of the containers are determined, the barrels and crates will be organized according to substance and removed from the site.

Maine Township Supervisor Mark Thompson received a briefing about cleanup plans. Cook County Sheriff's Police and Des Plaines Fire Department representatives also were present, as was Bob Cohen, assistant coordinator of Maine Township's Emergency Management Agency.

NSJC programs

Northwest Suburban Jewish Congregation, 7800 W. Lyons, Morton Grove, will hold its Sunday Morning Breakfast Programs on March 13 and March 20.

On Sunday, March 13 Elaine Pomper Snyderman and Margaret Thomas Witkovsky will discuss their new book, "Line 5, The Internal Passport... Jewish Family Odysseys from the USSR to the USA."

Then, on Sunday, March 20, Matzo Brei, Richard Zelin, Associate Director of the Jewish Community Relations Council, will speak on "The Jewish People of Bosnia."

The Breakfasts begin around 9:30 a.m. following the 9 a.m. Minyon. Everyone is welcome.

constructing eight townhouse condominium units.

Single family home residents of Washington Street came to the meeting to protest construction.

"(Maka and Piseicka) brought no drawings; no information about the structure or parking arrangement," Bavaro said. "The Board continued the request in order to get more definite answers."

The Board gave the couple a month extension to gather more information and will hear the request, along with the First National Bank of Niles bank's request, at the April 4 Zoning Board meeting.

The Board approved a request from Joan Dahlberg for a change in zoning to permit living quarters in the rear of a business on Waukegan Road.

According to Bavaro, Dahlberg, owner of Roseland Business Publishing, Inc., 7333 Waukegan Road, bought the property in September and was granted permission to live in the rear of the business until this Zoning Board hearing.

At Monday's meeting, the Board approved the changes in zoning to special use in order to make her living arrangements permanent.
