Construction of golf course building set to begin in August

New Tam clubhouse bonds signed

by Tracey Labovitz

Niles Park Board President Elaine Heinen handed a blue ball point pen to Ron Mrowiec, Director of Finance, at the Board meeting Tuesday night and told him to guard it with his life.

That pen was used to sign the bond issue for the construction of the new clubhouse at the Tam Golf Course. Following in the footsteps of many other highly-elected officials, Heinen said she plans to place the pen in a plaque when the clubhouse is completed.

"This board is really proud that we could get this bond issue," Heinen said. "And we are really proud of this clubhouse. Tam has needed it for many, many years."

The bond issue, at a cost of $1.3 million, was listed at a 6.6 percent interest rate. Heinen said Mrowiec saved the Park District $300,000 which will go into the clubhouse. Construction will occur at no cost to the residents of Niles and will come out of the fees made at Tam Golf Course.

Park Board attorney Barry Moss said the bond issue is set to close on June 28. Construction can begin as early as August and is scheduled for completion by next June.

"We hope that everyone will bear with us during the construction period," said Commissioner Rick Sheridan. "Anyone with questions can call 967-6633."

From the Left Hand

by Bud Besser

What's so different about this era we're living in is how quickly the picture changes.

We're big on basketball. To hardwood fans, the championship finals in NBA basketball is equivalent to a baseball fan's enthusiasm for the World Series or a football fan's absorption with the Super Bowl game.

Like millions of other fans we were watching the sixth game of the Rockets-Knicks championship series, perhaps only an hour away from the climax of the entire basketball season, when a corner of the T.V. screen split and showed O. J. Simpson's white Bronco heading home down Interstates 5 and the Ventura 405.

It was like flipping off switches in your head. One minute we were intensely involved in the ups and downs of the two basketball teams and then, flip, into our mind's eye is the new bizarre picture of the white Bronco followed by several police cars heading for the exit to O. J.'s Brentwood home.

We've often wondered what this does to your psyche. One minute you're intensely involved in a hotly-contested sporting event and in the flash of a split screen, the basketball images are erased and now you're involved in a car chase with a man who was reported to be in the car with a gun to his head.

District 219 names new principal

A 20-year veteran of Niles West High School will become the school's new principal July 1.

The Niles Township High School Board unanimously approved Roger Stein, Niles West's current English, foreign language and English as a Second Language director, as the replacement for current principal Jean Rutherford who, after two years at the school, is leaving to take a principalship at Highland Park High School in Highland Park, Texas.

School officials, in an effort to hire from within, said Stein was the only one interviewed for the position and was hired within a couple weeks following Rutherford's announcement that she would be leaving Niles West.

Stein earned his bachelor's degree in Spanish teaching education in 1971 and his master's in Spanish literature and linguistics in 1973 at the University of Illinois at Urbana.

In 1985, Stein received his Ph.D. in education administration and public policy analysis from the University of Illinois at Chicago. His dissertation was ti-

Alert witness aids capture of pickpockets

By Tracey Labovitz

A Chicago couple's plan to steal a 53-year-old Skokie man's wallet in the parking lot of Jewel Food Store ended in arrest June 19 as police tracked down the duo via descriptions from witnesses.

According to those witnesses, 24-year-old Rae Norbeck approached the Skokie resident while he was standing near his car at 5667 Touhy Avenue, Niles, around 9:15 a.m. Sunday. The woman proceeded to spray a mace-type substance in the victim's face and eyes while trying to grab the man's wallet from his left rear pocket.

The victim began to struggle, but Norbeck continued to spray the mace as her hand remained in the man's pocket gripped to the wallet.

A witness on the scene noticed the struggle and went to lend assistance. But before he could reach the struggling twosome, 40-year-old George Catchings jumped in and began pushing and shoving the witness, preventing

Niles Police run for Special Olympics

Seniors resource manual updated

A comprehensive resource manual describing benefits and services for seniors has just been updated by its publisher, the Suburban Area Agency on Aging. Titled Benefits and Services for Seniors, the 112-page manual describes over 70 benefit and service programs designed to help seniors continue living independently at home in their own communities. Many of these programs include income eligibility guidelines related to poverty figures which change annually. New poverty figures, announced in February of this year, are now incorporated in the updated pages which have just been distributed to holders of the manual.

Several new programs which have come into being since the last update of the manual are included in the most recent update. These include a recently announced financial assistance program to help defray the cost of telephone installation for low income families. The description for reverse mortgages, an increasingly popular arrangement in which seniors convert the equity in their home into current income, has been extensively revised and incorporates additional reverse mortgage lenders in the state.

The latest updated descriptions of senior benefits and services have been distributed to those who purchased the resource manual with the periodic update option. Those interested in purchasing a resource manual, with or without the update option, can do so by contacting the Suburban Area Agency on Aging. The telephone number is (708) 383-0258. Purchase price of the manual is $30 with updates and $20 without updates.

District 63 awards contracts for school improvements

By Ben Rieck

The East Maine School District 63 Board of Education voted to award three contracts at their last meeting held June 14.

The first two were suggested for passage by the building and grounds committee and the last was unanimously approved despite the objection of board members.

A contract for wheelchair lift installation at Nelson, Twain and Washington Schools was unanimously approved in the amount of $79,870 with DME Access of Naperville.

The board also approved a contract with R. J. Ridolfi of Lake Villa for $297,700. Director of Operations James Reynolds said that the contract is for district-wide exterior door replacement.

Most of the district buildings were built in the 1950s, he said, and many have never had their doors replaced. With their steel frames rusted out, the doors need to be replaced, he said.

The main delay in installing the new doors by the start of school in the fall, which the district would like to have done, is the measurement and construction of the replacements, Reynolds said.

Over 100 doors will have to be custom built for the project, taking a few months in construction time, he said.

The final contract was a Municipal Monitoring connection agreement with Norman Securities to keep Melzer School connected to the Morton Grove fire department in case of emergency. The monthly fee of $15 is included in the open ended contract.

Norman is a company selected by the Village of Morton Grove to monitor the emergency board at the Morton Grove Police Department and notify the fire department when needed. The back of Melzer School is located in Morton Grove.

The choice of Norman was made by the Village of Morton Grove.

Kids can experience culture

Children of all ages are invited to experience "Kids Need Culture Too" on three Fridays this summer at Golf Mill Park. The Niles Park District announces three different performances, each scheduled to begin at noon to spark the interests of young children. The series kicks off this Friday, June 24 as performer Mark Dvorak shares the grass roots music of the past and present with his audience.

On July 15, The Illustrated Theatre Touring Company will tell a story as the actors become everything from typewriters to volcanoes. On August 5, Shantia will delight her audience as she involves them in a story using African instruments as an accompaniment. Call 824-8860 for additional information.

Village honors Normandy Beach Veterans

Attention Niles Residents: June 6, 1994 represented the 50th anniversary of the Normandy Invasion. The Village would like to honor World War II Normandy Beach Invasion Veterans at the fourth of July parade. If you are a World War II Normandy Beach Veteran, and would like to participate in the parade, contact Kathy Barnat, Deputy Village Clerk, (708) 967-6100.

Grove and the district is legally required to provide fire protection for students, so the district exchanged letters with Norman over the terms of the contract.

Reynolds said that the changes the district asked for were over the issue of liability. He said that Norman did not want to be responsible for some provisions that were important to the district.

Board of Education President Scott Kriesman said that the district requests were ignored by Norman.

Our requests, "didn't seem to be outlandish, but they obviously didn't even feel that they should reply to our requests, other than to say 'sign or (we'll) pull the plug,'" he said.

"If we want to continue with a direct line to Morton Grove for monitoring the fire alarm system, we have no alternative," Reynolds said. "We cannot hire another firm to do this service."

The Board of Education also discussed policies concerning how much district administrators can spend without getting bids or competitive quotes.

Board members disagreed with and voted against the policy change that would allow administrators to spend more than they were previously allowed to when making agreements or purchases for the district.

The Policy Committee discussed the issue and had no recommendation, deciding instead to let it be decided by the full board.

Board member Joan Futerman explained that the board would either decide in accordance with the increase proposed by the State of Illinois Code or the board's position.

The previous policy said that anything between $750 and $2,500 required three competitive quotes," Kriesman said. "Anything over $2,500 required a bid."

Niles Parks begin chemical spraying

The Niles Park District will be making chemical applications during the next four weeks in various parks throughout the District for the purpose of weed control on turf areas.

In addition, each park will be posted with signs in the specific application areas. Signs will be posted 24 hours in advance of the applications and will remain up 24 hours after applications.

Niles College to hold Performing Arts Festival

All procedures concerning notification and application of turf management chemicals will strictly adhere to the guidelines outlined in the Niles Park District's Board of Commissioners Statement of Policy.

$10,000 can be three competitive quotes and you don't have to go out for a bid," Stone continued.

"So that's quite a big jump," Kriesman said that the limits available to administrators should be raised.

"I think the limits we have now don't have any bearing in 1994 and should be raised," he said. "Our board policy had not been changed for 15 years, at which time we had a cap of $750."

After the motion to change the policy was defeated by the board, the policy was amended to reflect smaller figures, which was unanimously accepted.

District administrators can engage in financial dealings between $1,250 and $5,000 acquiring only three competitive quotes and need to seek a bid to spend more than $5,000 under the approved board position.

Before the board of education began to consider the agenda for the evening, it approved changing the name of the building which houses the district's administrative offices.

The Educational Service Center will now be known as the Dr. Donald C. Stetina Educational Service Center, in honor of the district's retiring associate superintendent.

"I think we should recognize the fact that for 35 years Dr. Stetina, especially the last 18 years (as associate superintendent), has been able to provide our district with well in excess of 1,400 qualified, capable caring and dedicated teachers," Kriesman said.

Superintendent Dr. Robert Varga surprised Stetina with the announcement that Stetina's picture will appear at the entrance way to the building.

The picture, similar to one at Stetina's retirement party on June 2, will include a copy of the resolution recognizing the dedication, first read at that party.

Pictured above are Director of Programs and Events for Niles College Marie Composto; Village Trustee Bart Murphy; Father Stan Rudcki, Music Conductor of Niles College; and Mayor Nicholas B. Blase. Niles College will hold its Performing Arts Festival on the first three Sundays during the month of July on the campus grounds. Each concert will begin at 3 p.m. and is free of charge. For further information, contact Niles College at (708) 647-8028.

Hot weather tips for seniors

The Chicago Department on Aging is urging older adults to take precautions to "keep cool" this summer, because heat exposure can be hazardous to their health. CDoA has distributed "Stay Cool: Hot Weather Tips for Senior Citizens" brochures to more than 400 senior citizens groups and clubs, area nursing homes and CHA senior housing residences. Also, in light of the extremely hot weather, CDoA's case management units are making calls to at-risk elderly clients to make sure they are coping with the summer heat.

Heat stress can cause many medical problems including heat exhaustion, heat strokes and heart failure. Older adults with weak or damaged hearts, hypertension, problems with circulation, diabetes, previous strokes, or who are overweight are at a higher risk.

Smith warns senior citizens to pay attention to early warning signs of heart-related illnesses such as, physical and mental changes, dizziness, rapid heart-beat, diarrhea, nausea, throbbing headache, dry skin, chest pains, weakness, breathing problems, vomiting and cramps. Older persons with these signs are advised to see their doctor immediately. The brochure advises that during hot weather, air conditioning can save your life, and that older adults should relax in a cool room. If there is no air conditioning in their homes, they are encouraged to visit one of the City of Chicago's five air conditioned senior centers, from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Religious institutions salute healthy babies
As worshippers attend religious services on the weekend of June 24-26, they will receive important information about preventing birth defects and infant mortality. This is the fifth year that many religious institutions and congregations in the area, numbering 92 so far in 1994, have united for the awareness program called Salute to Babies.

Organizing the weekend is the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and a volunteer committee of civic and religious leaders chaired by Rabbi Mordecai Simon of the Chicago Board of Rabbis. Participating institutions will distribute educational information to their congregations in sermons, bulletins and posters. The messages are intended to make expectant parents aware of the benefits of healthy lifestyles before, during and after pregnancy. These messages include: no alcohol, no drugs, no smoking, proper nutrition, adequate rest, exercise and, perhaps the most important advice, regular visits to their health care providers for prenatal care.

Temple Beth-El in Northbrook will be participating in Salute to Babies weekend.

Don't be blinded by the dangers of fireworks

Fireworks are traditionally the way most Americans celebrate their independence Day holidays. But in actuality, often times many Americans suddenly lose their independence because of fireworks and improperly handled fireworks displays that have gotten out of control.

The National Fire Protection Association estimates that 12,600 people across the country suffered injuries from fireworks serious enough to require a visit to a hospital emergency room in 1993.

"Fireworks pose threats year round, but with the Fourth of July holiday approaching, the likelihood of fires, injuries and even deaths related to fireworks misuse is even greater," said State Fire Marshal Thomas L. Armstead.

According to a survey of hospitals conducted by the Office of the State Fire Marshal, more than 250 people were injured by fireworks in Illinois during a four-week period surrounding the July 4th holiday in 1993. Many of these victims were children. Injuries affecting the eyes were most common, accounting for 24 percent of the fireworks-related injuries during the specified time period. Burns were the leading type of injury from fireworks last year.

In Illinois, all fireworks are illegal unless authorized by local jurisdiction permits for supervised public displays. The term fireworks does not include sparklers, smoke devices, snake and glow worm pellets, trick noisemakers and most forms of toy pistols using plastic or paper caps. Even these seemingly harmless devices can be dangerous; misuse of them by children can create dangerous situations.

Sparklers, for example, reach temperatures of up to 1800 degrees Fahrenheit and remain hot enough to cause serious burns even after they are extinguished. Fireworks are also especially dangerous for children because they entice children to play with matches, something they should never do.

"The burns from fireworks can be intense, and they can scar for life. Fireworks can cause injuries other than burns by exploding and affecting the hands, body or eyes," said Armstead.

Injuries and burns are only part of the fireworks problem. These devices also cause numerous property-destroying fires every year. According to the National Fire Incident Reporting System in Illinois, fire departments in the state reported at least 161 fires started by fireworks in Illinois during 1993. These fires resulted in more than three hundred and forty thousand dollars worth of property damage.

The Office of the State Fire Marshal cautions against using fireworks at home. The agency advocates attending public fireworks displays.

State Fire Marshal Armstead says, "Let's make July 4th and the entire year fireworks safe. Observe all fireworks safety rules, and leave fireworks use to the professionals."

Babies born at Ravenswood sought for 'family reunion'

EHS Ravenswood Hospital Medical Center, 4550 N. Winchester Ave. is inviting babies of all ages who were born at the hospital to join in a "family reunion" walk on Saturday, July 16! The non-competitive one-mile walk has been dubbed "Baby Block Walk '94" this year to celebrate the thousands of babies who have been born since the community hospital opened in 1907.

"We expect that there are people of all ages in our community who were born at Ravenswood. This is an opportunity to bring them together with a healthy mid-day walk," said Milli Striegl, Director of Community Relations & Marketing for the hospital. Last year alone, more than 2,300 babies were born at Ravenswood.

"Of course, if you weren't born at Ravenswood Hospital, you can also join in the fun," Striegl added. The third annual walk, once again led by 47th Ward Alderman

Eugene Schuler, will leave the hospital parking lot (Wilson & Damen) at 11:30 a.m. and finish at Welles Park (Montrose & Lincoln) in time to kick off the "Razz-Ma-Tazz" two-day neighborhood festival.

Walkers are encouraged to raise pledges to benefit Maternal & Child Care Services at the hospital. The top pledge raiser will receive a family pass for four to Great America Theme Park. All walkers raising $25 or more in pledges will receive two tickets to Pegasus Players production of the Broadway musical "The Secret Garden" (July 23 - Sept. 10).

The advanced entry fee for the walk is $5 for adults and $3 for kids age 17 and under. Children under 12 may walk free with a paid adult. All registered walkers will receive a free "Baby Block Walk '94" T-shirt, a goody bag and chances to win great prizes. Adults will also receive one chance to win an eleven day trip for two to Greece. Additional raffle tickets for the trip to Greece are available at $2 each or 6 for $10.

"The walk this year is a true celebration for the entire family, and Razz-Ma-Tazz will be a perfect end point for our annual walk," Striegl said. Razz-Ma-Tazz will feature a full day of events and entertainment including a petting zoo, a jumping jack, a children's stage starting at noon and strolling activities. Neighborhood restaurants will be selling food and beverages, and entertainment on the main stage will be non-stop from 4 to 10 p.m. Ravenswood Hospital Medical Center has been providing the first aid for the neighborhood festival for the past several years.

For an entry form or more information about "Baby Block Walk '94" call (312) 776-3453.

Understanding the Major Health Care Proposals

How much do you know about Health Care Reform? Did you have any questions about any of the reform proposals to health care? Perhaps learning more about the Health Care Reform proposals will help you understand what may happen in the near future with your health care.

The most prominent proposals have been placed into one of three general categories: Single Payer, Managed Competition, and Insurance Reform, states Katherine Reuter, Consumer and Family Economics Extension Educator with the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service. The Single Payer System proposes that one organization, such as the government, assume the responsibility for providing health insurance to the public. This organization would collect the consumer's premium money and then, in turn, pay the providers. The major cost savings results from the single payer, the government, replacing the hundreds of private health insurers, along with their paperwork and different regulations. The savings in administrative costs have been estimated to reach $100 billion a year.

A second reform proposal recommends that providers compete more among themselves for patient business, explains Reuter. This type of proposal is called Managed Competition. This competitive reform proposal suggests that government organize large groups to manage the system to encourage lower costs and high quality. The Managed Competition style will require consumers to join a "Health Alliance."

An alliance is an organization of consumers that is responsible for purchasing health insurance as a large group. Families and individuals pay their insurance premiums to the alliance which then pays for a health plan chosen by the consumer. The insurance underwriting will be regulated by the federal government to insure that certain individuals and groups receive fair insurance rates. These consumers are those currently being denied coverage because of pre-existing conditions, high risk health conditions, or those being forced to pay higher rates for the same coverage. With this proposal, it is assumed that insurance costs will go down because the system creates a large, efficient, and competitive private market for health insurance.

Reuter describes Insurance Reform as a third approach to reform. In this proposal, the existing insurance system would be reformed to enable more people to find health insurance within the present system. This proposal tends to emphasize expansion of the current employer-based insurance system and the provision of alternative insurance coverage for those not covered by employer plans. Also, the Insurance Reform proposal includes a required basic benefit package as part of all insurance policies.

A series of related fact sheets on these three main health care reform proposals, including a glossary of health care reform terminology, and two informative newsletter tabloids have been produced by the Extension Service, USDA in Washington, D.C. These six information pieces about the complicated topic of health care reform are available by sending a note of request and self-addressed stamped ($75 postage) large envelope (9 1/2" x 12") to: Health Care Reform Information, Chicago North Cooperative Extension Unit, 4141 W. Belmont, Chicago, IL 60641.

Accompanying the literature you requested, a cover letter will list other organizations where consumers can write or call to obtain additional information and answers to questions on Health Care Reform.

The Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Illinois provides educational programs and unbiased research-based information to help Illinois residents improve their quality of life, develop skills and solve problems, by "helping you put knowledge to work."

Congressman receives Health Care Award

The National Campaign for Health Security has honored Congressman Sidney Yates with the "Health Care Hero" award for pledging to win universal health care for all Americans with comprehensive, affordable health coverage.

"Congressman Yates is an outstanding champion in the fight for genuine health care reform in Congress," said Lester Schlosberg, Legislative Chair for Chicago Typographical Union No. 16/14408, Communications Workers of America.

"Congressman Yates knows that all Americans deserve health coverage just as good as that provided by the taxpayers to Members of Congress," Schlosberg added. "It is gratifying that Yates is unafraid to stand up to the greedy health care industry which is trying to kill meaningful reform."

Yates is a leading voice for health care reform and co-sponsor of H.R. 1200, the American Health Security Act, which will provide universal coverage through state single-payer plans.

The campaign for Health Security is a national coalition representing more than thirty unions, senior citizens and consumer groups, including the CWA, Teamsters Union, the National Council of Senior Citizens, Church Women United, National Education Association and others.

A Rash of Plants: Poison Ivy

by Edward Hsi, M.D.

"Hey Strom! You look like a real woodsman." My friend had just taken a large woody stick and started climbing up the hill. Strom could not contain his desire to wander off the trail and blaze his own path. Unfortunately, his knowledge of wild plants was nowhere near mine. As I came to him, I knew the stringy appearance of the stick only meant one thing, he had grabbed an old poison ivy vine. With some horror, I told him to grab some mud and rub it into his hands in order to try to absorb some of the residual resin that was sure to be present. We then rushed to a sink to wash.

Poison ivy is the common plant causing problems in the Chicago area, but poison oak, and poison sumac also cause a contact dermatitis. These plants all contain urushiol in their juice. This highly allergic chemical annually causes more cases of contact dermatitis than any other agent in the United States. Poison ivy tends to grow in disturbed soils where man has cut down the original forest. It particularly likes the edge of clearings. Growth habits range from five inch plants with few leaves, to small shrubs, to sixty feet jungle-like vines attached to tall trees. The leaf edges are finely notched or smooth, but always grouped in a fan of three leaflets. Each left or right leaflet has two points, and look like a mitten with a thumb pointing outward. The three pointed central leaflet has a longer center point flanked by two equal small points on each side.

Seventy percent of people develop rash after exposure to any plant part including seeds, leaves, roots, and stems. Urushiol evaporates slowly, remaining on objects up to three weeks after contact. Burning dead poison ivy releases particles of urushiol causing horrendous rashes. Absorption of the resin through skin is in ten minutes. My friend rinsed with soap and water as soon as possible, but six hours later poor Strom was an itchy mess of linear red, raised streaks. Contacts with contaminated clothes, objects, or pets make even larger patches but this bit of trivia failed to cheer of Strom. I told him not to scratch, to avoid spread of rash from resin trapped under his fingernails. He truly was sensitive, since most people develop symptoms after one or two days, and only later get blistering and edema (severe tissue swelling). The blister fluid does not cause new lesions, contrary to common knowledge.

Cleaning fluid solvent was used on his bike seat and anything else we thought he had contacted. Then we started applying cool moist compresses to Strom's burning, itchy skin. I stopped off at a local pharmacy and got some over the counter strength 1 percent hydrocortisone cream and told him to apply this twice daily. I kept thinking what an unfortunate end to our wonderful day. When I called a few hours later, he started taking Benadryl tablets every six hours as directed by the packaging to stop itch. He also was painting himself in calamine lotion. I said that was a good idea, but said that he was getting worse to give me a call.

The next day, Strom was at the office. Things had turned from bad to worse as parts of his body were now badly blistered. I wrote him a prescription for a tapering dose of corticosteroids for the next two weeks and gave him strict instructions observing for infection. I told him that the topical anesthetic benzocaine he also got could cause a secondary contact dermatitis by itself.

A few weeks later, Strom was back to his usual self in the woods. This time, I notice he kept looking: on the ground where we stopped for lunch, on the tree he leaned against, and at leaves hanging from low branches. A real woodsman now!

Family stress simmering in summer months

Summer doesn't signal warmer temperatures only at the tennis courts or beach. Families with children often experience changes in the household climate as well, thanks to increased tensions that come with summertime's re-arrangement of schedules and lifestyles.

Often, parents of young children must scramble to arrange suitable full-time child care or other organized diversions. Young teens with jobs may be experiencing the heady independence of a first paycheck, while their home-from-college brothers or sisters may bridle at the renewal of parental reins and rules.

While each of these situations can elevate the collective temperature of a household and set the stage for conflict, the more relaxed pace of summer and increased family time also provides an opportunity to reassess parental strategies and goals, according to Chris E. Stout, Psy.D., Chief psychologist and director of research for Forest Health Systems, Des Plaines.

"The first thing parents must accept is that raising a conflict-free family simply isn't possible - in any season," notes Dr. Stout. "In fact, family conflict is a necessary catalyst for individual growth. It is possible, however, to develop a positive 'family process,' in which family members communicate openly, negotiate disagreements, learn to tolerate each other's differences and respect each other's autonomy."

Dr. Stout offers the following guidelines:

- Try to see things from your child's perspective. Parents often make the mistake of expecting the child to think like an adult, but children can't; it's that simple. With a little effort, parents should be able to remember what it was like to be the child's age, and how monumental problems seem when you're young. Empathizing with -- rather than shrugging off -- the child's feelings builds rapport.
- Teach by doing, not by lecture. For instance, if you think your kids are spoiled or don't respect what they have, encourage them to volunteer with you at a soup kitchen or community pantry. It will communicate far better than words could the comfort and privileges they enjoy.
- Fairness is crucial to constructive family conflict. And being fair may call for compromise or negotiation. Parents should strive to solve problems in a way that everyone gets some of what he or she wants.
- Know when to stop talking. The parent who backs off and is willing to return to the discussion at a later time gives room for the child to calm down and process his or her own feelings.
- Dr. Stout cautions parents not to expect to resolve any issue all at once. "A problem that appears to be settled today may be back tomorrow," he says. "Especially with teenagers, it's often necessary to repeat the same fight, and for parents to stay consistent."

'Business and Personal Security'

Do you feel that you are hearing and seeing more crime-related news stories every day? If so, you are not alone. Whether you are in the city or the suburbs, walking down the street, driving your car, living in your home or working in your office, you could become a statistic. It seems that no matter where you go safety and security are increasingly important issues.

While there is no way to insure safety 100 percent of the time, there are things you can do to lessen your chances of becoming another case report. Find out how you can increase your security in a variety of situations by attending the Women's Professional Sales Network (WPSN) monthly breakfast meeting when Lou Caravelli addresses the topics of "Business and Personal Security."

Caravelli, president of Urban Security Design Specialists, has worked extensively with security operations, including the design and integration of security and life safety systems. He has been a consultant to Chicago area buildings representing nearly two million square feet of commercial space. In addition, he has frequently consulted with building owners and managers on issues of negligent security and hiring/termination practices. As corporate director of security for a major national property owner, he was responsible for the security and life safety in numerous high-rise buildings.

To find out how you can integrate safety and security measures into your everyday lifestyle, join WPSN members and guests on Tuesday, June 28, at the Ambassador East Hotel, 1301 N. State Parkway, Chicago. Registration and breakfast begin at 7 a.m. For information and reservations, call (708) 705-3749 Monday through Friday during standard business hours.

Corporations and government agencies who want to do business with women business owners can increase the opportunities by becoming exhibitors at the Women's Business and Buyers' Mart to be held at Chicago's Navy Pier, 600 E. ## 'Justice and the criminal in Illinois'

Justice and the criminal in Illinois' is the subject of a public, townhall meeting to be held at and co-sponsored by the Mt. Prospect Public Library. The program will be video taped as part of the cable program "Plain Speaking."

The program host, Bill Blaine said, "This show features a panel of three professionals in the legal/judicial system of Illinois. The participants represent different parts of the legal system. The townhall type format will provide an opportunity for local citizens to learn more about "crime and punishment" in Illinois.

"Plain Speaking" appears regularly on the TCI Network Channel 33. It focuses on topics of current interest to provide information and encourages increased participation in government by citizens.

Justice and the criminal in Illinois is scheduled for Monday evening, June 27 at the Mt. Prospect Public Library, 10 S. Emerson St., Mt. Prospect.

Panelists include: Justice Mary McMorro, Supreme Court of Illinois. Justice McMorro is the first woman elected to this position in our state. She will share her experiences and insights derived from her career in our judicial system. It is a rare opportunity for residents of our community to meet and discuss issues related to crime and punishment with a Supreme Court Justice here in our own community.

Dale Coventry, Attorney, and Public Defender. Coventry a former high school teacher has spent most of his career as a Public Defender. An active member of our community, Coventry serves as a Member of the Board of Education, Township High School District 214.

Doug Larsson, Deputy Chief, Rolling Meadows Police Department. Deputy Chief Larsson has worked in various roles within law enforcement. He is a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Academy and an Adjunct professor in police science.

The meeting will open with a discussion focusing on our judicial system: its various parts and how they interrelate, the role of the courts, the public defender, law enforcement agencies, problems, strengths, and how we might improve the system.

Host Bill Blaine said, "Justice and the Criminal in Illinois" will be videotaped as part of the TCI program Plain Speaking. It will appear on TCI beginning in mid-July and will be available on loan from the Mt. Prospect Public Library shortly after it appears on cable. According to Blaine, "the Mt. Prospect Public Library and Plain Speaking are co-sponsoring this program to bring additional information and insights to our community about our justice system."

The public is invited to participate in this program at the Mt. Prospect Public Library on June 27, 7:30 p.m. You must be seated prior to 7:30 when live taping of the program begins.

Rawhide Boys Ranch, located in New London, Wisconsin, received a major donation recently with the arrival of a new IH 4900 series truck, equipped with a two-car flatbed. The $40,000 truck was a gift from Navistar International Truck Corporation. Navistar, whose corporate headquarters is located in Chicago, heard about Rawhide's success in redirecting the lives of court-referred young men.

For nearly 30 years, Rawhide has been helping troubled teens from throughout the midwest. The secret of Rawhide's success is rooted in a strong family structure, modeled by live-in house-parents and big brothers. This family concept is reinforced by a solid, on-grounds academic and vocational training program.

NWMC Model Ordinance holds parents responsible

Recent tragedies involving the deaths of area teens and the growing concern for the health and welfare of area youth prompted the members of the Northwest Municipal Conference (NWMC) to take a closer look at how elected officials can assist parents and guardians of minors to provide a safer environment for everyone.

The NWMC members unanimously passed a Model Parental Responsibility Ordinance at their June 8 Board meeting.

The model ordinance serves as a baseline for municipalities which don't have provisions for parental responsibility within their ordinances. And, it offers communities with existing ordinances to improve them in the areas regarding children, minors and parental responsibility.

It was the intention of the NWMC Parental Responsibility Committee, comprised of seven municipal attorneys, that the ordinance be written in such a way that it could be useful and adopted by both home and non-home rule communities.

The ordinance holds parents responsible and makes them parties to cases involving violations by a minor of the following provisions:

Alcohol - minors cannot consume or possess alcohol, nor can they remain in an area where they know, or reasonably should know, that a minor is in possession of alcoholic beverages, cannabis or other prohibited controlled substances;

Curfew - persons under the age of seventeen cannot be present at a public place, without a parent or parent's approval after the hours set by the municipality;

School Curfew - a person under eighteen who is enrolled in a primary or secondary school cannot be present in a place outside of the school unless adhering to the exceptions provided.

Weapons - a person under eighteen cannot possess any of the weapons outlined in the municipal ordinance.

The NWMC model ordinance is unique, in that it holds parents responsible for the actions of minors for alcohol, curfew, school curfew, and weapons, in one comprehensive ordinance.

Ameritech adds new area code for cellular phones

The Information Superhighway in Chicagoland is adding a new lane: Next year a new area code will be created, initially for cellular phones and pagers.

"The incredible demand for telecommunications services, including fax machines, phone lines, cellular phones and pagers has created a need for more numbers in the Chicago metropolitan area," said Doug Whitley, president of Ameritech Illinois. "To supply more numbers, we're adding a new area code."

Boundaries for the 312 and 708 area codes will not change. The new code, 630, will be an "overlay" area code covering both the 312 and 708 regions.

"An overlay area code is the best choice for the number-hungry Chicago area," Whitley said. "It lets us satisfy the demand for new phone numbers and new technologies without forcing millions of people to change their business and residential phone numbers again, as many had to when 708 was created."

Here's how the new area code will work: Beginning Jan. 7, 1995, customers who order cellular or paging service in the 312 or 708 area codes will be assigned numbers in the 630 area code.

Also, as of Jan. 7, 1995, cellular phones and pagers now in the 708 area code will begin to change to the 630 area code.

Cellular phones with 708 phone numbers will need to be reprogrammed starting Jan. 7, 1995. This will be a gradual process, so affected customers should take no action until notified by their cellular service provider.

Generally pagers will not need to be individually reprogrammed. The new area code 630 will be automatically reprogrammed into their paging units.

Also, starting Aug. 1, 1994, no new 708 area code numbers will be issued for cellular phones: customers will be given numbers in adjacent area codes.

"We'll work with others in the telecommunications industry to conduct an extensive customer information campaign in the coming months," Whitley said.

Area Code 630 will be the second overlay code in the United States used primarily for cellular and paging services. In 1992, area code 917 was stacked on top of New York City's 212 and 718 area codes. Los Angeles will be using an overlay code in 1996, also initially for cellular and paging subscribers.

Ameritech consulted the telecommunications industry and area customers before deciding on an overlay area code.

"Many options were carefully considered, including splitting the 708 area code in half, before this method was chosen," said Bob Hurst, president of Ameritech network services. Hurst has responsibility in the Ameritech region for managing the North American Numbering Plan, which determines call-routing arrangements in the United States, Canada and many Caribbean Basin countries.

"After conducting extensive research, including focus groups and surveys of consumers, businesses, and cellular and paging customers, we chose this method as being the least disruptive to the majority of customers," Hurst said.

The 630 area code is expected to help meet the area's demand for numbers for several years. Eventually, other services, including selected "landline" phone lines, also may be assigned numbers in the 630 code, as needs dictate.

Township offers youth recreation scholarships

The Maine Township Town Board recently approved a pilot program in which needy youths can receive scholarships for area park district programs.

Limited funds are available. Money for the program will come from a $10,000 Youth Recreation Fund, which was established this spring as part of the township's 1994-'95 budget.

Preference for scholarships will be given to day camp and after-school programs. The maximum scholarship amount will be 85 percent of the program's cost. Township staff will determine which applicants are qualified for scholarships, and funds will be paid by the township directly to participating park districts. Applicants will be required to provide verification of their income, including last year's completed income tax forms and paycheck stubs from the past three months.

First Chicago offers loan sweepstakes

The First National Bank of Chicago is giving consumers a chance to win a grand prize of $10,000 in a sweepstakes promoting the bank's summer loan program.

The sweepstakes also will award 50 prizes of $100 each, and consumers need not apply for a loan, equity loan of credit or credit card to enter.

In addition, consumers will have a chance to win an interest-free loan, loan payment amounts of up to $500 or a waiver of the first-year annual fee for lines of credit. Loan payments may be applied to new personal unsecured loans, marine loans, home equity loans, auto loans, lines of credit, mortgages and credit cards.

Gamecards for the summer loan program are now available at all 70-plus First Chicago locations. Gamecards also will be interested in checking, savings, money market and credit card statements during June and in newspapers in late June.

Consumers must scratch off three spaces on the gamecard in front of a personal banker at any First Chicago branch. The three spaces will reveal the prize that the consumer can apply only to a new loan.

The prizes are:
• An interest-free loan: No interest charged on an installment loan of up to $20,000 for 36 months.
• Loan payment amounts of $500, $100, $50 or $25.
• A waiver of first year's annual fee for new First Chicago lines of credit, including the Equity Credit Line, First Line and First Line Plus.

To enter the sweepstakes drawing, the consumer should fill out the bottom section of the gamecard and drop it in boxes provided at every First Chicago location. All entries must be received by a branch by August 1 to qualify for the drawing. Limit is one card per day.

The drawing will be held August 15 and winners will be notified by mail.

ERA Brokers National Marketing Award

The ERA Brokers of Greater Chicagoland, representing nearly 125 ERA Member Brokers, surpassed 2,000 ERA brokers nationwide to win first place in the print and radio promotion categories of a national marketing competition sponsored by ERA Real Estate.

The campaign, developed by ERA's Chicagoland advertising agency, J. Herman Sitrick Advertising Inc., Skokie, helped ERA Real Estate achieve a 60 percent increase in Chicago market share during 1993.

The Chicagoland ERA brokers won A Team ERA Local Marketing Award (TELMA). The award was made for a series of print and radio ads which distinguish ERA philosophies, products and services from other real estate companies in the highly competitive Chicago market.

Using the theme "What Makes Us Different, Makes Us Better," the campaign began in 1993 and continues today in the Chicago Tribune, Chicago Sun-Times, five leading Chicago radio stations, as well as the key network-affiliated and independent TV stations in Chicago. ERA products and services such as its Sellers Security Plan, Home Warranty Plans and Electronic Home Selling Network are emphasized in the ads.

A panel of ERA marketing and advertising professionals judged the TELMA awards based on creativity, design, effectiveness of communications, production quality and results.

First Chicago earns $2 per share

First Chicago Corporation recently reported first quarter net income of $193.8 million, or $2 per common share on a fully diluted basis. Return on common stockholders' equity was 20 percent.

Net income for the 1993 first quarter was $179.1 million, or $1.91 per common share, fully diluted.

"The first quarter marks our sixth consecutive quarter of solid fundamentals, and reflects the diversity and strength of all our businesses," First Chicago Chairman Richard L. Thomas said. "Our credit card unit produced especially strong results and other segments also performed well.

Among the highlights of the first quarter:

• The credit card business continued to exceed expectations in both revenue and volume levels. At quarter-end, total receivables were $10.4 billion, an increase of 22 percent from the year-ago quarter.

• Credit quality improved further in the quarter. The provision for credit losses of $50 million - including commercial provisions of $7 million - was the lowest level in five years. Nonperforming assets were $280 million, or 1.2 percent of related assets, essentially unchanged from year-end and down 26 percent from a year earlier.

Attention book browsers

Do you like to spend your time reading? Haven't you often wondered what others who have just read the book thought about it? The stimulation of this exchange is a wonderful experience.

The Book Browsers group of The Center of Concern offers such an opportunity. They meet every month on the fourth Tuesday, at 2 p.m. at 1580 N. North-west Highway, Park Ridge. The facilitator of the group is Nancy Larson of the Park Ridge Public Library.

Their next meeting is Tuesday, June 28 at 2 p.m. The book to be discussed is "An Unsuitable Attachment" by Barbara Pym. The story takes place in the parish of St. Basil's Church in London. The vicar, his wife and her sister, fret over improbable attachments and then embark on a decisive holiday to Rome. A free library copy of this book can be picked up at The center of Concern's Suite 310, 1580 N. Northwest Highway, Park Ridge, during normal business hours. Then bring it back with you on June 28 and see what the Book Browsers group is all about.

Nature walks, games, and many other activities will help children learn how to discover and enjoy the wonders of nature. A registration fee of $5 per child will help cover the cost of "discovery tools" and other materials each participant will use or receive.

Space is limited for these programs. Call (708) 824-8360 for more information, or visit the nature center to pre-register.

A bright new idea: miniature trac lights

Tired of that fluorescent flicker? Miniature trac lighting offers some bright new ways to shed light on everything from kitchen work spaces to favorite wall hangings.

The 3/4-inch-wide trac in Juno Lighting's new Trac 12 low-voltage system, for instance, accepts a variety of miniature fixtures for strip and track display lighting. So you can put the trac in hitherto unheard of places -- out of sight in bookcases, glass-front cabinets, moldings, stair treads, handrails, under kitchen cabinets and on low-ceiling soffits.

The tiny three- or five-watt lights are a mere 1-1/2 inches long and can be spaced along the trac as required to provide continuous illumination.

Miniature high-intensity halogen spotlights, so small one fits in the palm of your hand, can be snapped in the trac, too. And unlike regular-size trac installations for each low-voltage spotlight, miniatures use one small transformer for an entire trac.

And Then There Was Light... How can you use miniature trac lights? Starting with the kitchen, the experts at Juno have some suggestions:

• Get rid of your flickering fluorescent tubes and light a kitchen counter work area with dimmable white lights mounted underneath cabinets.

Since you can snap in lampholders at any interval you wish, dark corners or uneven task light areas can be eliminated.

• Mounted near the front edge of a cabinet top, the tiny lights add cheerful indirect light and highlight baskets, dried flowers, collector plates and other decorations atop cabinets.

• Mount miniature track lighting with tiny halogen spotlights on low ceilings or soffits to accent your favorite art, pottery or china.

• Illuminate a hallway gallery of photos with tiny spotlights on a trac.

'Moving up' and 'downsizing' at Lakes of Lincolnshire

Lincolnshire isn't even located in the condominium, says Katz. "The best part, perhaps, is knowing that somebody else will be mowing the lawn in summer and shoveling the sidewalk in winter," he said. "That's something most buyers haven't had at their previous home, and it's one example of how downsizing is actually a move up."

Another example: Lakes of Lincolnshire owners are automatically given full membership in the Rivershore Bath & Tennis Club, which features two tennis courts, a swimming pool and large sunning deck cantilevered over the lake. A closed-circuit TV system, telephone-intercom entry feature and attended gatehouse add an extra touch of security.

"Actually, 'downsizing' is a relative term," noted David Katz, executive vice president of the pioneer condominium development firm based in Skokie. "In many cases, our residences are the same size as the owner's previous home; sometimes bigger. The size and layout often makes customers touring our models forget that it's a condominium. Their minds automatically put it in the same category as a single-family home."

Of its 60 two- and three-bedroom, two and 2-1/2-bath residences, less than 15 remain unsold, ranging in size from 2,506 to 2,907 square feet, the remaining Lakes of Lincolnshire Condominiums are base-priced from $308,000 to $380,000 in Phase II (prices and availability subject to change without notice). The first phase of 30 homes is sold out.

Two six-story buildings joined by a first-floor indoor garage comprise the complex. Each of the six floor plans is included only once on each floor in each building. Five of the six plans are still available, and all five include family rooms.

"We've concentrated on creating condominiums with both size and substance," said Katz. "Floor space and wall space are important when it comes to placing furniture. We know this is important to buyers who have, over the years, amassed a collection of furniture and decor with which they feel comfortable. Our layouts let them highlight their special possessions without reducing the sense of open space."

Space is defined in the Lakes of Lincolnshire Condominiums not only from wall to wall, but vertically as well. The standard ceiling height throughout the community is nine feet, which is great for displaying artwork. In addition, distinct ceiling treatments include a coffered foyer ceiling and the living rooms and/or family rooms of the penthouse apartments feature 13-1/2-foot vaulted ceilings with clerestory windows.

The use of space extends to the outdoors as well. Bay windows are featured in several floor plans, which also boast as many as three private terraces each, some up to 20 feet wide, accessed through breakfast areas, family rooms and living rooms. One plan features a terrace off the master bedroom.

"Outdoor space is popular among buyers of any type of home, and it provides a bridge between the indoor spaces and the surrounding community," besides providing a great view of the adjacent man-made lake as well as the nearby Marriott Lincolnshire resort golf course," said Katz. However, it's possible that the most attractive amenity employees will find at the Lakes of

Carpenter ants have designs on your home

Carpenter ants may be little more than a nuisance outdoors, but if they have designs on your house as a nesting area, they can pose serious problems.

These large black ants tunnel through soffits, wall studs and other wooden portions of a house, chewing out a honeycomb of "galleries" in which to live.

Large numbers of ants or piles of sawdust under windowsills and baseboards, says the National Pest Control Association, may indicate a nest in the wall or other enclosed space.

Carpenter ants prefer wood that's been damaged by water, so try to avoid moisture problems. Don't stack logs or damp wood against your house, and repair leaking pipes or damaged caulking around windows.

Other suggestions:

- Seal cracks around doors, windows, vents and the foundation.
- Trim trees and bushes away from the house.
- Remove tree stumps and dead limbs.
- Replace rotted wood on the exterior and interior of your house.
- Place screens on windows and vents.

How much radon is in your home?

Radon, a natural radioactive gas that is odorless, tasteless and invisible, is one of the most serious environmental health threats people face today. According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), radon is estimated to cause between 7,000 and 30,000 lung cancer deaths each year.

How does radon enter a home?

Radon can enter a house in several ways. Being a gas, it moves from the soil into the basement or lowest level of the house through openings such as cracks, loose-fitting pipes, slab joints or porous block walls. Although less of a contributing factor, groundwater supplies and building materials are two other possible means of entry.

How is radon detected?

Generally, two types of radon detectors can be obtained by individuals to detect and measure radon in a home or building: short-term and long-term. Each type of detector is accurate, but since the amount of radon escaping from the earth varies, the long-term detector will give a more representative assessment of actual radon content in a home.

Concentration of radon can be reduced. Since there is no known safe level of radon, there can always be some risk. That risk can be reduced, however, by lowering the radon level in your home.

A variety of methods can be used to reduce radon in a home. In some cases, sealing cracks in floors and walls may help. In other cases, simple systems using pipes and fans may be used. Additionally, passive barrier systems for new and existing construction are also available.

Many sources currently exist for accurate and reliable information on all aspects of the radon problem. Each state has a radon office and many counties have one also.

Counties and radon With almost one third of all counties in high radon potential areas, counties are addressing radon through educational outreach programs, informational exhibits at fairs, test kit distributions, work with county extension services, and other awareness building activities.

Increasingly, counties are forming successful radon partnerships with local businesses, chapters of the American Lung Association, and other non-profit civic organizations. Radon poses a serious health threat to residents of many counties and it encourages counties to address this risk.

Not since the JFK assassination in 1963 have such quickly-changing images come into our homes with such rapidity. There was the T.V. picture of the Dallas shooting and the rush to the hospital. Then the flip of the switch—the new president being sworn into office on Air Force One. Flip the switch—the dead president returning to Washington. Flip the switch—back to Dallas and Jack Ruby shooting Lee Oswald at close range. It was too much to absorb.

This sudden change of focus also applies to "issues" which suddenly take center stage. It was only a short time ago when Anita Hill confronted Clarence Thomas before a national TV audience. The personalities and testimony involved became secondary to the issue brought to the forefront. Suddenly "sexual harassment" was moved to the front of the national agenda and the issue has changed the focus of the entire country. We now are much more aware of a problem which was hidden from view before the national debate took place.

Flip that switch again and "spouse abuse" is the subject which is now taking over center stage. The Bronco chase and the eventual verdict regarding O.J. will fade away, but the issue of spouse abuse will no longer be hidden in the closets of thousands of homes throughout the country. It now has become a public issue. The public is now being informed domestic abuse by husbands, boyfriends and former partners is the leading cause of injury to women, ages 15 to 44, according to a Chicago Tribune story. It points out whereas it formerly was a "private matter," but it now becomes part of the community's responsibility. In 1989 police were called nine times to the home where O.J. was accused by Nicole Simpson of beating her. When O.J. was fined $700 and allowed to receive counseling by telephone as his only punishment, the court seemed to agree with O.J. Simpson the abuse was a "family matter." Domestic violence experts contend such leniency encourages batterers, giving tacit permission to continue with this behavior.

According to other statistics 25% of women violated are eventually killed. Three out of ten of those killed are by husbands, former spouses and lovers. And it's a "given," if a boyfriend beats his girlfriend, you can be assured after they're married he will become a wife-beater.

In 1979, Williams was asked to resign from Glenbrook North High School after two students claimed he had inappropriately touched them. Williams, who had been assistant boys and girls swim coach at the school from 1972 through 1979, pleaded guilty to contributing to the sexual delinquency of a minor and served two years probation. The mark was then stricken from his record.

A law recently passed disallows a misdemeanor sex conviction to be expunged from a record.

liams' credentials. There was nothing there."

Williams was released on $75,000 bond, but is restricted to his home 24 hours a day as part of the Cook County Sheriff's Department's Electronic Monitoring program mandated in his bond agreement by Judge Marcia Orr of the 2nd District. The device is attached to his ankle and a monitoring box is attached to the telephone at his residence. If the subject should travel outside 150 feet of the phone, the Sheriff's Department is alerted and police would immediately dispatch to the residence.

Williams is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing today in Skokie District 2 court. If convicted, the teacher could face between three and seven years in prison. The Niles Township High School Board has also sanctioned a plan that calls for the hiring of more security staff to monitor both its school buildings during important times, such as before and after school. This new personnel could cost the district up to $50,000 for the 1994-95 school year.

Finally, the School Board approved several administrative salary increases; assistant superintendent Carolyn Anderson received a six percent increase of $6,000 for a $106,600 annual salary; Niles North High School Principal Donald Childs was granted a four percent salary increase of $4,000 for a total $100,600; and Niles West athletic director Jerry Turry received a 3.5 percent increase from last year and will make $91,700 next year.

District 219 is facing one of its largest turnovers ever in school history, mostly as a result of the "5 + 5" early retirement program. Salaries for the 24 administrators will equal a little over $2 million for the 1994-95 school year.

Niles Park Board ...

Plans for construction of the Oak School property are underway and proposed playground layouts have been devised. A meeting is scheduled for July 14 at 7 p.m. at Ballard Leisure Center to discuss the proposed plans.

Niles pools are getting some renovating of their own as the Park Board voted in the Finance Committee Meeting to extend hours at IceLand and Oasis Pools. IceLand's hours will be extended two hours and will be open until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Oasis will extend its services one hour and will be open until 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

"There have been some complaints about the regular hours," Commissioner Mariene Baczek said. "Those complaints were well taken. We want to make our customers happy. Our customers come first." Baczek said it will cost the Park District $7,000 to keep the pools open the extended hours and attendance will be monitored very closely. About 3,190 pool passes have been sold so far this year as compared to 2,314 at the year end last year. That is a 30 percent increase thus far.

Other factors that contribute to a firm's selection, Balling said, are the firm's size, background on similar projects, attention to detail, the outside consultants they work with and how many other projects they are working on at the same time.

Balling said that the initial rating sheets, tabulation therein and final selection of the architect for the million dollar project will be complete by June 24.

Also ready by June 24 will be a grant application for work to be done in Harrier Park. Balling said that the application includes the budget, master plan, an environmental assessment, the deed to the property, assurances that the park district can meet the other half of the matching grant, and an agreement that the property will not be used for anything but recreational activities.

Included in his report to the commissioners were the details of the sites needing work, including the Centennial Gazebo and renovations on the front of the park and its bathroom.

The Park District will receive tentative results of the application by the end of August, Balling said, at which time a meeting in Springfield with the Department of Conservation will take place.

Kaplan JCC presents health care series

"Health Care Reform: A Community Primer," the first part of a health-care series at the Mayer Kaplan Jewish Community Center (JCC), will take place on Sunday, June 26 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. JCC is located at 5050 W. Church St., Skokie.

In this program, health professionals will discuss issues with the presenters, Drs. Samuel Sugar and Louis Rowitz. The audience will assume round-table form and take part in the discussion. Dr. Rowitz is Professor and Deputy Director of the Center for Public Health Practice at the School of Public Health of the University of Chicago. Dr. Sugar is a Senior Attending Physician at Evanston and Glenbrook Hospitals, and an Associate in Medicine at Northwestern University.

Topics to be discussed in this program include: Definition of Health Care Terms and Con-

Oasis Pool received its first audit by Ellis, the company that trained the lifeguards, on Saturday, one of the pool's busiest days. Baczek said the company performs surprise audits and does not make anyone aware of its presence. The staff received a 96.5 rating which is classified as a gold elite status.

"The company is very strict," Baczek said. "The fact that we got this rating is great. It really says a tremendous thing about our staff."

Baczek was awarded a plaque at the meeting commemorating her work on the M-NASR Board over the last four years. Baczek served as Board President from 1993-94, Board Treasurer from 1992-93 and Board member from 1991-present. During her reign as president she recruited Lifeguards and far his work with the organization and initiated an administration fee that is being used today.

"This is a very special cause that we all need to be more aware of," Baczek said. "We should all do our part in sharing ourselves with people with disabilities. You don't have to be an elected official to do that."

him from stopping the fight, and allowing Norbeck to flee southbound through the lot.

Catchings followed on foot and took the driver's seat in a maroon '84 Buick LeSabre as both suspects drove eastbound away from the scene without the wallet.

Another witness at the scene was able to give a vehicle description to police on the getaway car. Police related the information to the Niles dispatch and other units and the vehicle was located within one-half hour at the couple's Chicago apartment, 6730 N. Central, by a Cook County Sheriff's police officer who had overheard the dispatch.

Niles and Chicago units were sent to the scene and made contact with the two subjects that fit the witness and victim's description of the assailants. Norbeck and Catchings were taken into custody at 9:48 a.m. at their Chicago apartment and transported to the Niles Police Department.

Chicago police officer Dave Kralky recovered a container of "Qualco" brand pepper spray in the couple's apartment. Another officer recovered an additional container of "spray stopper" brand pepper spray in Norbeck's purse. Both sprays were inventoried as evidence, along with narcotic paraphernalia found in the apartment. Police said no drugs were discovered at the site.

The Skokie victim was transported to Rush North Shore Hospital for treatment of facial injuries. According to police, the victim was never admitted and was promptly released in good condition.

Norbeck and Catchings were charged each with felony armed robbery and aggravated battery and Class X armed violence. Under former Governor Jim Thompson's Class X law, the offenders, if found guilty, would face a minimum five years sentence with no chance for parole, police said. In accordance with the felony charges, the subjects would spend their jail time in a penitentiary rather than a county jail.

"These two have extensive criminal histories," said Sergeant Roger Wilson of the Niles Police Department. "They are both I.V. drug users and have a lot of past drug charges. Their sentence will depend on the leeway of the judge."

Judge Loverde lowered the two suspects' bond from $75,000 to $25,000 at a bond hearing Monday. Each is next scheduled to appear in court on June 27 at 1:30 p.m.

Postal Manager vouches for employee honesty

Dear Editor: Problems with mail service in Chicago have received a lot of attention lately. Some of the incidents reported in the press have raised questions about the integrity of our employees. Let me assure you that these are isolated incidents. They are the exception and not the norm.

The overwhelming majority of postal employees are honest and hard working. They strive to provide our customers with the very best possible service. Their dedication and commitment to excellence often goes unnoticed.

For example, recently an employee from our district found $16,000 worth of cash and checks in a collection box. She quickly returned the deposit. Almost every day we get calls from customers telling us about postal employees who go above and beyond the call of duty.

Although your Postal Service is the best in the world, we recognize that it is not perfect. Being the nation's largest service organization, there's plenty of room for improvement. Despite what you may have heard or read, the vast majority of our customers are very pleased with our service.

In our most recent independent Customer Satisfaction Survey, 86 percent of our customers rated the service we provide to communities with 600 through 603 ZIP Code prefixes as being excellent, very good, or good. This is a rating that any business would be proud of. Nevertheless, we're very concerned about the 14 percent who rated our performance as fair or poor. We've implemented a continuous improvement procedure so we can reach our goal of providing excellent service to all our customers.

We realize that your expectations are constantly changing. When we fail to meet these expectations, tell us! Either fill out a consumer service card at your local post office, or call your district consumer affairs office at (708) 260-5550.

Thank you for allowing us to be of service. We thank you for your business and your continued support.

US Coast Guard Academy nationwide competition

The United States Coast Guard Academy is now accepting and processing applications for appointment as Cadet, U.S. Coast Guard, Class of 1999. Appointments are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional nominations or geographical quotas.

Applications must be submitted to the Director of Admissions prior to December 15, 1994. Candidates must arrange to participate in either the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Testing Assessment (ACT) prior to or including the December 1994 ACT and SAT test administrations.

Appointments are based on the candidate's high school record, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participating in high school activities, community affairs and/or part-time employment. Most successful candidates rank in the top quarter of their high school class and have demonstrated proficiency in both the mathematical and applied science fields.

Candidates must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and not have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1, 1995. Candidates must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1995 and must have completed a minimum of three years of English and three in mathematics to include algebra and plane geometry or their equivalents.

Coast Guard Cadets obtain an excellent undergraduate education at no personal expense. In addition, they receive pay and allowances fully adequate to fulfill their ordinary living expenses. The Academy curriculum emphasizes engineering and science, leads to a Bachelor of Science degree, and establishes a solid foundation for a challenging career. Graduates of the Academy are commissioned as Ensigns in the United States Coast Guard.

The young Academy graduate can look forward to a varied, exciting and demanding career as a regular Coast Guard Officer. Under the Department of Transportation, the Coast Guard performs

Dear Editor: Please explain to our community the hazards in feeding wildlife on a regular basis. Please explain that this creates a nuisance, it's not healthy for the animals, it attracts rodents, and it also makes them larger than natural.

Someone in our community has been feeding the squirrels store-bought nuts. While this may seem like a kind and generous thing to do, it has created many dangers. The squirrels are no longer afraid of man, they approach people looking to be fed, and they are now the size of dogs. These animals now approach the children and having a child pet a squirrel just does not seem like a good idea. If they bite or nick a child - what are the consequences - rabies???

This past week, I was in the yard with my children (both are under 5 years of age). While they were playing the squirrels approached them, totally unafraid of humans looking for food. While some might think this is cute, children seem to have minds of their own, which can lead to dangers to both the children and the animal. It has gotten to the point where we cannot enjoy our yard. Niles claims it wants to attract young families to this community, however, allowing this practice is not the way to achieve that goal. Whomever is feeding the squirrels should know that according to the Village of Niles Code Enforcement Office, there is a $500 fine and that they will prosecute. If this isn't bad enough, our Village also allows the residents to raise pigeons, both on their property and in their homes. What does this due to property values? Who will buy this home? Who will buy adjoining properties? I know, having small children, I would not. Children do not realize that these white circles are feces. They are attracted to this mess and the dangers are limitless. These dangers not only apply to children, but to adults that are exposed over long periods of time. And what if I want to have a party in my yard, are my guests supposed to wear hats? Besides the health issue, I wonder about the safety issue. For example 15 - 20 birds at one
