

Police investigating cause of Niles boy's death

A 17-year-old Niles boy was found dead Oct. 24.

According to police, the youth, known as a heroin user, was released from Forest Hospital in Des Plaines on Oct. 14 and spent Oct. 22-23 at a friend's home in the 8700 block of Oketo.

A 20-year-old at the house heard the victim snoring at 1 a.m. Oct. 24. Another 20-year-old awoke at around noon the next day and attempted to waken the youth who did not respond. Police said the friend dialed 9-1-1, but hung up immediately. An officer was sent to the address to investigate the call.

When the officer arrived, he was met at the door by the two 20-year-olds. One said, "We need an ambulance. Something is wrong with my friend."

He was led to the rec room in the basement where the victim was lying face down, shirtless, wearing black jeans. The officer asked Niles dispatch for an ambulance and then checked the victim for signs of life. He found none.

"(The police report) makes references to syringes found in the home, but we do not have any in our custody," said Sergeant Daniel Halley of the Niles Police Department. "We are not sure if he died of a drug overdose. We are waiting for the toxicology reports which take 30 to 60 days."

Blase names new Zoning Board chairman

By Tracey Berk

The Niles Zoning Board will seat its third chairman in less than a year.

Mayor Nicholas Blase announced at the Niles Village Board meeting Oct. 25 that Joe Salerno will be stepping down as man in command and Ed Main, formerly of Wheeling, will be taking over.

Salerno, 64, began working for the Village in 1961 and served as Director of Code Enforcement from 1973 through January of this year. At that time he "retired" and took over for a retiring Jack Frick as chairman of the Zoning Board.

On Oct. 25, Salerno announced he would be stepping down.

Voters go to polls Tuesday

By Tracey Berk

The 1994 general elections are Tuesday, Nov. 8. Besides state, congressional and judicial ballots, here is a look into local candidates and issues.

Illinois House of Representatives, 13th District

The 13th District includes Morton Grove, Golf, and portions of Niles, Park Ridge, Glenview, Skokie, Lincolnwood and Chicago's 41st and 45th wards.

Dan Staackmann won the 13th Illinois House District's Republican ticket during the primaries and will face incumbent Democratic State Representative Ralph C. Capparelli in the election.

Capparelli, of Edison Park, is seeking his 13th term for the post he has held since 1971.

Capparelli has been praised for signing the Illinois Taxpayer Protection Pledge, supporting the Tax Accountability Amendment and supporting the Tax Freedom Act. He has reduced property taxes by increasing the general and senior homestead exemptions and he believes that the cost of operating government must be controlled.

Staackmann, of Morton Grove, is making his second bid to the General Assembly after being defeated in the March, 1990 primary for what was then the 1st District.

A Morton Grove Park District commissioner since 1987, Staackmann believes the focus should be on resources for education and jobs for youths to make a dent in crime. He favors a school voucher system, reducing property taxes and raising funding for education.

Staackmann is a real estate salesman, president of the LiPoni Foundation, president of the Maine-Niles Association of Special Recreation Board and a member of the Illinois Association of the Park District's legislative committee.

U.S. House of Representatives, 9th District

The 9th District covers portions of Niles, Morton Grove, Skokie, Lincolnwood, Evanston and Chicago's northside lakefront areas.

Incumbent Sidney R. Yates, 84, refuses to admit that he is running for his last term, but after 45 years in office, the Democratic Congressman will be facing Republican Committeeman George Lamey on Nov. 8.

Yates defeated Democratic vice president of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District Frank Gardner in the primaries by 34,097 votes. He says his seniority is his strong point and his knowledge of the district allows him to get things done.

by Bud Besser

One of the strangest phenomena of the American psyche is why Americans fail to vote.

Bugle editor, Tracey Berk, asked for a column pertaining to voting. We were going to consult the almanacs and the New York Library Information Book. We thought writing about the 90% of Frenchmen who vote in national elections and voters in Sri Lanka and Mozambique and in Brazil and Lichtenstein who have a higher voter turn-out than we have in the United States might hammer home the point we're just too lazy to exercise our vote.

We could write about 250,000 men in World War II who would have loved to vote during the past 50 years, but lost their lives fighting for that very right to vote. But that reasoning would attempt to lay a guilt trip on non-voters and we know it doesn't work.

In France national elections are held on Sundays. We've always thought a Sunday voting day would bring many more American voters to the voting booths. But if the Bears or Bulls were on television it would be hard to drag the sports fans away from the tube. And we're not sure politicians would like to see many more people voting.

There's really no great message here. Next Tuesday your vote could determine the way

Dist. 63 students score high despite mobility rate

by Ben Rieck

East Maine School District 63 students scored well on the recently released 1994 School Report Card, despite having a high mobility rate in some schools.

The report card which shows results from 1992-93, was presented at the last board of education meeting held Oct. 25.

Judith Hennig, Director of Curriculum, discussed how the mobility rate, multiculturalism and familiarity with the English language are significant factors that can affect student learning and performance.

Mobility is defined as transfers in and out of the school or district from Oct. 1 to the end of the school year.

"Twenty-seven percent is the mobility rate for District 63," Hennig said. "The district has a higher rate of mobility than the state."

The state mobility rate is approximately 19 percent. Melzer School and Gemini Junior High School have figures over 30 percent each and Apollo School has a rate over 50 percent.

Board president Scott Kriesman noticed that even with a mobility rate of more than 50 percent at Apollo, the students scored

Niles law puts user fee on special events

Hosting an event in Niles will now cost more money. The Niles Village Board approved an ordinance at its Oct. 25 meeting that will impose an additional charge to the host of a for-profit event to cover the cost of officers needed for control.

"If a person runs a for-profit event, a user charge will be administered," said Niles Village attorney Richard Troy. "The Village Manager will determine how many police or patrol officers are needed and impose a charge."

Troy said the officers are generally used for crowd control, traffic control and code enforcement. This charge will be paid in advance unless contested.

"If the licensee objects to the charge, then there is a hearing," Troy said.

The licensee must notify the Village Manager in writing within seven working days and a hearing will be set within 14 days. After the hearing, the Village Manager will either confirm, modify or nullify the amount of the licensee user charge.

Teachers see efforts pay off

Representatives from Oakton Community College's (OCC) Tech Prep Program and Public Safety Department made presentations to the Board of Trustees during the October meeting, held Oct. 18.

Dr. Trudy H. Bers, Senior Director of Institutional Research, Curriculum and Strategic Planning, and Jane Lucas, head of OCC's Tech Prep program, used new presentation software to describe a program that brought academic and vocational teachers from OCC and several high schools in the district together with professionals actually working in the field.

The group spent a full day at the architectural firm of O'Donnell, Wicklund, Pigozzi and Peterson, where they were able to see first hand how what they teach is put into use.

In addition to the obvious technical skills, the group learned about how important reading, writing, math and speaking and other communication skills are to this discipline.

The participants were given an overview of an entire project, presented from its initial stages of marketing to obtain the account, planning and working with a client, the technical details that must be put in place before a site is completed, all the way through landscaping.

Professor honored

A community college teacher was recently named Illinois Professor of the Year.

Lynda Jerit, an Oakton Community College English professor, was selected by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) for the award.

"It is an honor to have one of Oakton's instructors receive such a prestigious and meaningful award," Oakton President Thomas TenHoeve said. "It exemplifies the college's commitment to providing quality education to the diverse community which it serves."

U.S. Professors of the Year went to four winners in four categories: Outstanding Research and Doctoral Universities Professor; Outstanding Master's Universities and Colleges Professor; Outstanding Baccalaureate Colleges Professor; and Outstanding Community Colleges Professor.

Each of the four winners will receive a $5,000 cash award from the Carnegie Foundation.

"I feel humble and particularly pleased that the Carnegie Foundation has seen fit to honor a community college teacher," Jerit said. "In many ways, I'm a symbol of thousands of community college teachers who take enormous pride in how well we teach, how much we care about what we do and how much time we spend polishing our craft."

Good News Celebration concert set

Celebrating the "good news" of their faith, the youth of First Congregational Church of Des Plaines will participate in a concert highlighting young people's commitment to mission. Joining First Congregational's adult and youth choirs will be the St. Sabina Gospel Choir of Chicago and His Command Performance Youth Choir of Wilmette. The concert will conclude with a gospel sing-along to celebrate the Christmas message.

St. Sabina's dynamic and dedicated singers, under the direction of Walt Whitman, reach out to their neighborhood through anti-drug marches and performances at homeless shelters and NAACP conventions. In addition, they have a strong mission aimed at stopping the sale of grain alcohol and other drugs in their south side neighborhood. Proceeds from this concert will assist in that effort.

His Command Performance is a Christian youth choir sponsored by the Chinese Christian Fellowship Church of Wilmette. Although the choir is approximately 70 percent American-Chinese, young people of all ethnic backgrounds are welcome to participate. This choir has a well-established mission bringing Christian music from the Renaissance period through modern-day rock-n-roll to nursing homes, detention homes, Christian conventions and youth rallies. In addition, the choir has toured across the U.S. and, in December 1995, will travel to the Far East as "Ambassadors of the Good News". His Command Performance will use proceeds from this concert to allow a young Native American from Livingston, Texas to join the choir during its first annual Summer Music Camp.

This concert is the first occasion for First Congregational's Junior Youth Choir to participate in mission work. The choir members will select a community organization to receive their portion of the concert proceeds. In addition they hope this effort will mark the beginning of a commitment to service in their neighborhoods.

The Good News Celebration concert takes place at 7 p.m. on Nov. 6 at the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines, 766 Graeceland Avenue, Des Plaines. There is no charge for admission, however, a free-will offering will be taken. Proceeds from the concert will be split among the three choirs for use in furthering designated mission projects. Infant and toddler care is available and refreshments will be served following the concert. First Congregational Church is handicapped accessible. Call (708) 299-5561, for additional information.

Dental Society calls for ban of spit tobacco

If major league baseball players need a strike to make a point, Chicago area dentists suggest they go to bat against the use of spit tobacco, or smokeless tobacco.

"Players are highly visible role models," said John Parzakonis, DDS, president of the Chicago Dental Society. "I wish they would take a more active role in informing the public, especially kids, that spit tobacco can be extremely damaging to oral health and can cause death."

The Chicago Dental Society has joined the American Dental Association in calling for a ban on spit tobacco at major league baseball games.

Studies show that snuff, a fine ground or shredded form of tobacco sold in small tin cans or tea-bag-type sachets, and chewing tobacco, coarsely-cut leaf tobacco packaged in loose or plug form, are culprits in a variety of serious health conditions, including oral, pharyngeal and esophageal cancer, oral leukoplakia (white, precancerous patches on the gums), and periodontal disease.

New narcolepsy drug under investigation

Determining if a new drug can alleviate the symptoms of narcolepsy, without causing undesirable side effects associated with other treatments, is the goal of a new study at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center.

Narcolepsy is a sleep disorder associated with an extreme tendency to fall asleep, especially when a person is in a quiet environment or involved in monotonous activities.

Researchers at Rush are seeking volunteers aged 18 to 65 who have a diagnosis of narcolepsy that has been confirmed by an accredited sleep center within the last five years. Volunteers who currently are receiving treatment must be willing to discontinue their current medications prior to entering the study.

Patients involved in the study will receive free comprehensive care throughout their participation.

For more information, contact Linda Smith at the Rush Neuroscience Institute, (312) 563-2030.

Resurrection adds in-house laundry facility

Resurrection Medical Center laundry staff employee, Michael Lea (right), loads soiled linen into a continuous batch washer.

A newly designed Laundry and Linen Services facility is now operational at Resurrection Medical Center, 7435 West Talcott Avenue, Chicago. The 7,000-square-foot facility is capable of processing over 3.8 million pounds of soiled linen per year. It currently provides full services for Resurrection Medical Center and will begin servicing Our Lady of the Resurrection Medical Center in late November.

"Bringing the laundry service in-house will save the corporation almost $300,000 during the first year of operation and significantly increase the quality of the laundry and linens provided to patients," said Frank Madl, Vice President of Support Services.

The in-house laundry facility is unique in that it is one of the very few post-sort operations in the country. Linens are sorted by category after the wash process is completed as opposed to before washing, reducing staff exposure to soiled laundry. The tunnel washer is capable of processing 1,500 pounds of soiled linen per hour, and the ironing equipment can iron and fold 1,000 sheets per hour.

In preparation for conversion to in-house services, linen committees were formed with the Nursing Division at each hospital in an effort to standardize on a like product line to service both facilities. Along with being cost efficient, standardization of items also improves the ability to provide adequate quantities of linen in a timely fashion.

"We want our patients to be as comfortable as possible, and we feel that the addition of an in-house laundry will provide the highest quality of linens for them," said Madl.

Diabetes - No Sweet Success

by

Edward Hsi, M.D.

Five percent of Americans have diabetes mellitus. Medical science continues to make advances in understanding and controlling this long known disease. In 1682, scientists knew that excess thirst, excess urination, and increased appetite were related to some damage of the pancreas. Over the years, the factor that causes diabetes became known, namely the loss of, or inadequate production of insulin to meet the body's needs.

Despite this science, patients often fail to recognize the importance of following their therapy. Many deny that the disease is dangerous as most of the time there are few symptoms. Beware, since diabetes can creep up and result in life threatening complications.

First, diabetes is a metabolic disease. High blood sugars can result in abnormal breakdown of adipose tissue, releasing fatty acids. Excess fat deposits in the liver. Even shock or coma occurs as a result of this change in metabolism. Proteins are broken down faster than they can be remade. Water and salt balance shifts when excess sugars pass out of the body as increased urine. White blood cells function poorly with blood sugars over 200 mg/dl, and infections occur more easily. Cataracts are more likely to form as well.

Second, diabetes is a vascular disease. Cholesterol deposits occur at an increased rate in all arteries. Large vessel blockages typically result in stroke, heart attack, or circulatory disease in the legs. This accounts for the increased risk for coronary artery disease and arterial insufficiency in diabetics. Peripheral vascular disease is of concern since cuts and scratches on a limb may not heal properly. A diabetic may take weeks to heal what normal people can heal in days due to poor inflow of blood. Not infrequently this leads to chronic skin ulcers, bone infections, and even gangrene of limbs.

In addition, small vessel blockages and scarring begin as soon as ten years after initial diagnosis. These changes result in progressive kidney and eye disease. Both kidney and retinal arteries are about the same diameter. Having said this, many poorly controlled patients have ended their lives on dialysis and blind. Kidney vessels become damaged, and also loss of the ability of the kidney to act as a filter occurs. Loss of vision occurs from abnormal vessel proliferation, bleeding, and even retinal detachment. Fortunately, studies indicate that tight controls of blood sugars minimize the risk of serious injury to kidneys and eyes.

Finally, diabetes is a neurologic disease. Diabetic neuropathy, or nerve damage, occurs as a result of poor small vessels or direct metabolic damage. Starting in the feet there is loss of sensation and strength. Eventually, a deep, stinging, burning pain progresses up the limbs from fingers and toes. This pain is worse at night, causing sufferers to pace the floor. Motor loss can lead to wrist or ankle drops, facial/eye muscle paralysis, and pupils malfunctioning. Autonomic nerves that control body functions are also affected. Bowel involvement leads to diarrhea or constipation, incontinence, and causes the stomach to empty more irregularly. This becomes a "Catch-22," since meals cannot be predictably absorbed, making blood sugars hard to control. Severe diarrhea at night is common. Urinary retention and impotence occur. Blood pressure falters, so that some diabetics get dizzy and faint standing up. This occurs since the body fails to adjust for the blood rushing away from the head as we stand up.

Sounds bleak, doesn't it? Well, don't despair. All it takes is will-power to change, which usually comes from a better understanding of the consequences and good coaching from your doctor.

Dr. Hsi's office is located at 8780 Golf Rd., Des Plaines. Phone (708) 296-3577.

Eye exams help curb blindness from diabetes

Thousands of people will lose their sight from diabetic eye disease this year. A simple eye examination could reduce that number by half, says Prevent Blindness America™.

Diabetic eye disease is a group of eye disorders that afflicts people with diabetes. These eye diseases are: diabetic retinopathy, which occurs when the tiny blood vessels that nourish the retina weaken, break down or become blocked; cataract, the clouding of the eye's natural lens; and glaucoma, which develops when a fluid build-up within the eye damages the optic nerve.

"There are approximately 14 million people with diabetes in America," said Maurice Rabb,

M.D. Many of them will develop one or more of these eye disorders."

Prevent Blindness America™ is urging people with diabetes to visit their eye doctor for a comprehensive eye exam that includes dilating the pupil. This procedure enables the eye doctor to check the back of the eye for damage caused by eye disease. According to Prevent Blindness, nearly half of all blindness can be prevented.

"Diabetic eye disease offers no symptoms during the early stages," Rabb said. "By the time people notice changes in their eyesight, a significant portion of vision may have already been lost permanently."

As part of Diabetic Eye Disease Month, Prevent Blindness is offering free information about diabetic eye disease. People can obtain the information by calling Prevent Blindness America™ at 1 (800) 331-2020.

Suburban municipalities call for cap on unfunded mandates

The Northwest Municipal Conference (NWMC) joined today with other state and national organizations, calling for an end to unfunded mandates. Specifically, the 40 member municipalities and townships asked that the Illinois General Assembly pass a constitutional amendment blocking new unfunded mandates, and the Congress pass legislation limiting new unfunded mandates. At the federal level the National League of Cities is urging the passage of the same type of legislation.

Both the NWMC and the National League of Cities are calling for these measures as part of National Unfunded Mandates Week.

Unfunded mandates is the practice of the state and federal government imposing mandating that local governments carry out programs or activities. However, these mandates do not provide localities funding to carry out the requirements.

Mayor Michael O'Malley, Legislative Co-Chair of the Northwest Municipal Conference and President of Hoffman Estates, stated that every year "unfunded mandates: divert municipal and township funds from basic services like policing; drive up local taxes, including the unpopular property tax; and break the link that local voters have traditionally made between local taxes and local spending - traditionally, a voter would pay a local tax and be assured that he would get a local service."

The Northwest Municipal Conference estimates that for about 30 suburban Chicago municipalities, mandates will cost $39 million in 1995 and $52 million in 1996. For 14 communities in the northern suburbs, this amounts to 10 percent of their budgets. In other words, before a municipality can even consider how to spend its budget, one dollar has already been set aside for state and federal mandates.

The annual MED Week celebration is an opportunity for Chicago's business and professional leaders to honor Illinois' minority business entrepreneurs and advocates for their outstanding contributions and achievements in minority business development.

Voters asked where spending decisions should be made

Voters residing in 55 Cook County communities will be asked if they want spending decisions to be made locally or by the state legislature through a referendum question on the Nov. 8 ballot.

The referendum question simply asks, "Should the municipality's spending decisions on community services, such as fire fighting, police, paramedic, snow removal and neighborhood crime prevention be made by your locally elected board rather than by the state legislature in Springfield?"

During the next General Assembly, state legislators will decide on several municipal issues: increasing municipal workers' pensions, environmental regulations upon local governments, among others. All these issues are part of a disturbing trend in Springfield to shift decision making away from the local village hall to the state capitol. The referendum question asks voters if this shift of power and decision making to Springfield is what they really want.

"Cook County residents need to let the state know how they want to handle essential municipal services, said Mayor Lorraine Poppelka, Forest Park and President of the West Central Municipal Conference. "A suburban Cook County-wide effort is needed to truly gauge the opinion of the electorate."

The General Assembly has forced municipalities to implement and fund programs neither approved nor requested by local residents, curtailing the powers granted to towns by the 1970 State Constitution. In addition to the mandating of certain programs, the state legislature, has often refused to grant relief or approve initiatives that would allow communities to address their own problems more effectively.

"We need to send a message to the state legislature on the efficiency of local government in delivering quality services, and for being accountable for those services," said Park Ridge Mayor Ronald Wietecha, who is also Vice-President of the Northwest Municipal Conference.

How intrusive has the state legislator been in the affairs of local governments? Since 1986, the Illinois General Assembly has passed 237 public acts mandating what local governments are to do and how to do it. These state imposed mandates will cost taxpayers in Cook County nearly $470 million over the next three years.

"The State of Illinois continues to place their funding priorities over that of my village's through the enactment of 'state mandates.' This means that our local property tax must be spent to satisfy what at times might be termed the 'whims' of the legislature," said President Thomas Brown, East Hazel Crest, and President of the South Suburban Mayors and Managers Association. "I believe that my village elects its President and Board to determine where our dollars are spent not the state legislature."

The 55 municipalities agreed to place the referendum question on their ballot at the request by the Suburban Mayors Action Coalition. The Coalition represents 114 municipalities and townships from the Northwest Municipal Conference, South Suburban Mayors and Managers Association, and West Central Municipal Conference.

Capparelli honored by BCI seniors

Sponsorship and passage of the Senior Citizens Bill of Rights by State Rep. Ralph C. Capparelli (right) led to the presentation of a plaque of honor by the Bank of Commerce & Industry Senior Citizens Club. The plaque, which was presented by BCI Seniors Club Director Mike Tomczko (aka a little spoiled costumed school boy during the Club's recent Halloween Party), recognized Capparelli's "diligence, hard work and persistence which made the passing of the Bill of Rights for senior citizens possible."

Other seniors legislation that became law which Capparelli supported during the 1993-94 session included: S.B. 311, that added $1.3 million to the Department on Aging's "Meals on Wheels" program for needy seniors across the state; S. B. 950, that encouraged pharmaceutical companies doing business with the state to offer rebates to help fund the state's pharmaceutical "Circuit Breaker" program; H. B. 978, that doubled the fine to $20,000 against nursing homes in which abuse of seniors occurs; H. B. 2163, that toughened laws against individuals who draw up fraudulent "living wills" for seniors; and H. B. 2222, that increased the "Circuit Breaker" exemption and guaranteed annual increases equal to increases in the Consumer Price Index.

Capparelli, a candidate for reelection in the 13th Legislative District, has fought and continues to fight for many important changes in policies affecting seniors across Illinois. The BCI Seniors Club mid-day Halloween Party and luncheon was held at the Lido Banquet Hall, in Chicago, and was attended by nearly 200 Club members and guests.

Rep. Capparelli receives Tax Accountability endorsement

State Rep. Ralph C. Capparelli received the highly coveted endorsement of Tax Accountability '94, the political affiliate of the National Taxpayers United of Illinois, which is the No. 1 tax watchdog group in the state.

In a letter to the 13th District legislator, Chairman Jim Tobin noted that the recognition was given for "your exceptional desire to fight taxes and further the cause of vitally needed fiscal integrity for Illinois."

The 10,000 member organization cited Capparelli's commitment as a result of his 1) signing the Illinois Taxpayer Protection Pledge to oppose and vote against any and all efforts to increase state or local taxes, 2) supporting the Tax Accountability Amendment that requires two weeks public notice and 60 percent approval by the General Assembly to increase state taxes or user fees, and 3) supporting the Tax Freedom Act to roll back and cap property taxes and other local taxes at 1990 levels, or freeze all local taxes and user fees at the current amount, whichever is less.

Other tax-related legislation Capparelli supported included reducing property taxes by increasing the general and senior citizen homestead exemptions and freezing assessments on homes of seniors citizens with incomes under $35,000, saving them $50 million in property taxes.

Capparelli believes that the cost of operating government must be controlled. "Governments will spend as much or more than they receive," he said. "We can't do that in our personal lives without getting into a financial bind. Governments also must live within their means. One way to assure that that happens is by enacting tax freezes and tax caps. This I pledge to continue to support as I have done in the past."

Capparelli, who also serves as deputy majority leader in the Illinois House, has represented his district with "straight talk, tough leadership and proven results."

Staackmann says opponent is spreading lies

Daniel Staackmann, Republican candidate for State Representative in the 13th District, once again refuted charges that he failed to vote in elections as his opponent, 24-year incumbent Democrat, Ralph Capparelli, suggest in literature he mailed to the voters in the district.

"These are just blatant lies that attack my character. That is Capparelli's style of campaigning," Staackmann said.

In early October, Staackmann sent news releases to the local papers informing them of his voting record. This was done after Morton Grove resident, Dave Hoffman, received a phone call stating that Staackmann had not voted in the last three elections.

The release was printed on Oct. 13, yet Mr. Capparelli ignored it and proceeded to send campaign materials to deceive the public.

My opponent has 24 years as an incumbent, a pretty good time to become an expert at negative campaigning. Voting records are not issues in a campaign. The real issues are crime, taxes and education. Mr. Capparelli is not focusing on these. The fact that Capparelli put out these lies proves that he will do anything to get re-elected," Staackmann said.

"I have a copy of my voting record from the Election Board. It is proof that Capparelli is spreading lies. Legal action is being looked at."

UAW unanimously endorses Sheehan

Nancy Drew Sheehan, Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, received the unanimous endorsement of the Illinois United Auto Workers. Chuck Anderson, Government Affairs Director of the UAW, introduced Sheehan to a standing ovation by the delegates attending the state-wide conference in Springfield.

"My life was improved because of the union membership of both my parents as I grew up, and later through my own 17-year membership in the Chicago Teachers Union," Sheehan said. "I have consistently supported union issues as Commissioner of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District in Cook County and I will continue to back labor and labor issues if I am elected Treasurer."

Sheehan is the Chairman of Finance of the Water Reclamation District and organized the largest bond offering in the District's history, saving taxpayers $6 million in 1993. Her changes in investment policy resulted in a significant increase in portfolio income.

If elected, Sheehan will review the cash management procedures in the Treasurer's office and will work to establish a Cash Management Team with members of the Governor's and Comptroller's offices in order to better coordinate the flow of state funds.

Sheehan endorsed by AFL-CIO

Illinois State Treasurer Candidate Nancy Drew Sheehan announced she has received the unanimous endorsement of the Illinois AFL-CIO.

"This State was built by hard-working men and women with strong ethics," Sheehan said. "If elected, Sheehan said she will continue to support organized labor."

Sheehan was endorsed by a large group of labor leaders from all over the state representing every major Union. Sheehan, Earleen Collins, candidate for Comptroller and Al Hoefeld, candidate for Attorney General were the only candidates to receive a unanimous endorsement.

Staackmann endorsed by F.T.N.

The Family Taxpayer's Network has endorsed Republican Candidate Daniel J. Staackmann over Ralph C. Capparelli for Illinois House of Representatives in the 13th Representative District.

Before endorsing either candidate, FTN first evaluated both of them on their stands on family and business issues.

"Daniel J. Staackmann is the kind of person we want in Springfield," said Jack Roeser, FTN's founder and president. "Dan gives the voters of the 13th Representative District a clear choice. We want to protect the families and businesses of our state and to assure the future of Illinois."

Sheehan is not merely serving up campaign rhetoric; she is a knowledgeable and well respected twice-elected Commissioner of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago (MWRDGC), who has gained high marks for her management of the District's $750 million annual budget.

Sheehan who describes herself as "independent," and "motivated," offers a no-nonsense approach when speaking of the issues that surround the Treasurer's Office. Equipped with a long list of impressive credentials which include studying at the London School of Economics, she exhibits an obvious affinity for financial matters and a command of even the smallest details. Here is a fresh approach to state government that includes new investment strategies designed to provide more income for the state.

"There is a taxpayer revolt," Sheehan said. "You can't fund all government entities through the taxpayers; we must look for alternative sources of revenue. Competition has arrived at the Capitol. We must be more proactive in making money for the state."

When asked about the role of the Treasurer's Office, Sheehan offers that the duties of the Treasurer have been too politicized. She argues that the Treasurer's job is really about good sound money management.

"There is no such thing as Democrat or Republican money," said Sheehan. "If elected, she plans to concentrate on making sound business decisions that will make and save more money for the state. Then she adds "Let the politics come in later, on how to spend the money best for the people of Illinois."

Nancy Drew Sheehan looking to make a difference as State Treasurer

Metropolitan Water Reclamation District Commissioner Nancy Drew Sheehan hopes to become the state's first woman Treasurer.

Upon first meeting Nancy Drew Sheehan, one cannot help but notice how impressed she is about the issues that surround state government. Sheehan, the Democratic candidate poised to become this state's first woman Treasurer explains: "Running for State Treasurer is a natural fit for me. The work that I have done at the Water Reclamation District is a blueprint of success for what can be done at the state level."

Sheehan has a wealth of ideas on how to make the Treasurer's Office more efficient and pro-ble by investing state funds more expeditiously and changing outdated technology which will translate into a better yield on funds.

If elected, Sheehan also plans to seek out the advice of a broad spectrum of investment techniques of the Treasurer's Office. Sheehan will also work to establish a Cash Management Team comprised of the Governor, Treasurer, and Comptroller's office to implement the coordination between units.

Sheehan will also be looking to enhance the state's economic development by offering discounted loans to help businesses start-up or expand as well as becoming involved in lending securities as an additional investment tool to make more money for the state.

Sheehan, who served as the first woman Vice President of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District, and is currently the Chairman of Finance for the District, has always made saving taxpayers money the cornerstone of her work. One of the most obvious examples was when within twelve weeks of her election as Chairman of Finance, she was responsible for engineering a bond offering of $477 million resulting in a savings of over $6 million to the taxpayers. It was through her efforts that $20 million was set aside for retail purchases directed to Cook County taxpayers to purchase the bonds directly from brokers, in order to avail themselves of one of the highest rated bonds in the State of Illinois.

When Sheehan speaks of her tenure at the District she prides herself on the fact that it is the best run government agency in the State of Illinois.

Local governments to share in tree planting grants

Gov. Jim Edgar recently announced 41 Illinois municipalities and park districts will share $796,197 to plant trees on public lands. The Village of Skokie received $23,000.

"These grants will help stimulate local economies by providing communities with dollars to hire local small businesses, such as nurseries, garden centers and landscaping services, to purchase and plant trees in public areas," said the Governor.

Tax caps a must

Dear Editor:

On Nov. 8, Cook County residents will have the opportunity to voice their opinions about property taxes. An advisory referendum will be on the ballot asking voters if they support a limit on property tax extensions. It is extremely important that taxpayers send a strong message to the General Assembly, that they do want tax caps.

Similar tax relief granted to the collar counties in 1991 has reduced double-digit increases in tax rates. According to one township assessor in DuPage County, a recent study shows that two-thirds of homeowners property tax bills went up less than five percent in 1993. He also noted some very positive byproducts of tax caps, such as the formation of citizens groups to explore alternative means of raising funds for schools and parks. Taxing districts have also started to reexamine their spending priorities and become more efficient in providing services.

As Chairman of the Senate Republican Task Force on Cook County Property Tax Relief, I listened to the thousands of angry taxpayers who attended our hearings in 1991. Three years later, their message has only grown stronger. It is clear that they want the same property tax relief as granted to the collar counties.

Property tax relief has long been a priority of the Senate Republican leadership and Governor Jim Edgar. Our proposal to extend property tax caps to non-home rule governments in Cook County was passed twice by the Senate in recent years, but stalled in the Democrat-controlled House of Representatives both times. In a spirit of compromise, it was decided to let the voters have their say.

The public now has the opportunity to once and for all make it clear whether or not they favor property tax caps. The members of the Illinois House and Senate will be watching the results very carefully.

Sincerely,
Senator Walter Dudyycz

Quinn supporter

Dear Editor:

Someone named Janice Scialaba from the Chicago suburb of Bloomingdale recently wrote a letter to your paper attacking the character of our State Treasurer Pat Quinn. This sort of letter should not go unchallenged.

Treasurer Quinn is the only statewide constitutional officer in Illinois to cut his office's spending every year. He has earned more than $775 million in interest for Illinoisans by investing money in banks throughout the state without raising taxes.

If elected Secretary of State on Nov. 8, Quinn will cut the office budget every year, and Quinn has a specific plan to reduce vehicle taxes by $38 million. Incumbent Secretary of State George Ryan has increased vehicle taxes by $33 million a year. And he has used some of that tax increase to pay for his 7 full-time bodyguards, the largest security detail of any Secretary of State in the nation.

Pat Quinn doesn't have bodyguards, and he intends to make the Secretary of State's office work for taxpayers. Against all odds, he set up the Citizens Utility Board, the largest consumer group in Illinois which represents ratepayers against big utility companies. Before that, Quinn reduced the size of the Illinois legislature by leading the petition drive for the Cutback referendum, which has saved taxpayers millions of dollars.

Pat Quinn led the opposition to the political pay raise this year and is the only statewide constitutional officer who supports the Eight is Enough term limit amendment on legislators and statewide officials.

As a volunteer who has circulated petitions for Pat Quinn for nearly 20 years, I know Pat

Taxpayers should not pay for Rep. mailings

Dear Editor:

I am outraged that our current State Representative Ralph Capparelli is mailing out his campaign literature at taxpayer expense. Even though Mr. Capparelli has close to one half million dollars in his campaign fund, he is making the taxpayers pay almost six cents for each and every piece of literature he mails. Mr. Capparelli is using the State Democratic Party's not for profit mailing permit which is saving him over $2,000 per mailing he sends out to the voters in his district. What most people do not know is that for each piece of not for profit mail you receive, the U.S. Congress has to pay the U.S. Post Office the difference between not for profit and regular bulk rate fees.

Mr. Capparelli keeps telling you that he is for you the Taxpayer. If that is true, why is he making you the taxpayer pay for his campaign mailings? Two years ago, after the campaign's were over, both the Democrat and Republican Parties were investigated by the U.S. Postal Inspectors and told that they could not put out mailings on their not for profit permits for local candidates unless they were reimbursed for the postage cost. It looks very suspect that Ralph Capparelli in his Board of Elections filings co-incidentally reimbursed the State Democratic Party as well as the Friends of Michael Madigan an amount of money within a couple hundred dollars of what they spent on his behalf.

The Conn family will be casting their votes for State Representative Candidate Daniel Staackmann this year because he is paying for his campaign mailing's with his campaign dollars, not our tax dollars. Dan Staackmann is truly interested in the taxpayer and will do a good job.

Quinn called master of misrepresentation

To the Editor:

For candidates committed to running a credible campaign, sticking to the facts is imperative. Once again, Pat Quinn has jeopardized his own credibility. In letters ridiculing Secretary of State George Ryan's Live and Learn program, he used an employee's fiancée to misrepresent the facts of a fantastic program. This follows an incident earlier this year where he used a Quinn county coordinator's wife to testify in a politically motivated legislative hearing.

Please allow me to set the record straight. Secretary of State George Ryan has never received a personal financial gain from any program. Plus, Ryan's "Live and Learn" program works for all of us. "Live and Learn" has effectively doubled organ donation registration in Illinois in just one year. As State Librarian, George Ryan's program has guaranteed library and literacy grants across the state are adequately funded.

Would Quinn have been able to secure funding for such needed programs? I think not! As State Treasurer, Pat Quinn has tried many times, but failed in every attempt, to pass legislation through the General Assembly. Given this record, it is improbable he could ever pass such a platform through the state legislature.

Quinn says he will cut the budget, but fails to offer any specifics. He prefers to criticize Mr. Ryan's positive accomplishments of saving lives and providing opportunities to learn and read and write.

Once again, Quinn shows that he is a master at misrepresentation and character assassination, but incompetent in what it takes to be effective - leadership and innovation.

Sincerely,
Nancy Owen

Quinn works for us and that's why I'm supporting him for Secretary of State.

Second City celebrates 35 years with anniversary show

The Second City revealed plans today to mount a special 35th anniversary show. The comedy revue, which will be a retrospective representative of some of the best and most significant work from The Second City over the past 35 years, will begin preview performances on Election Day, Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Director and Second City Artistic Consultant Sheldon Patinkin said, "The date is significant only in that Second City has tried over the past few decades to reflect the world of politics through comedic satire. I am hoping to explore some of the political statements made over the years here at Second City in this revue."

Although the final material has not yet been selected, Patinkin, the cast, and the producers are searching through scripts.

"We plan to experiment with some sketches written several years ago, and make sure they are still relevant in today's political, economic and social climate," said Executive producer Andrew Alexander. "What is so exciting to me is that audience members will have the opportunity to see scenes written by some of the biggest names in comedy."

Not only will audiences see classic sketches, but Second City has also confirmed that some alumni will be returning to perform in the scenes they originally created.

"We are currently talking to some of our alumni about performing in the retrospective," Alexander said. "Most have been extremely receptive to the concept, and we have had several big names already commit to the project."

Though no names are being revealed yet, Alexander promises some exciting surprise alumni appearances.

The 35th anniversary show will kick off a year-round celebration of Second City's 35-year history. In addition to a live retrospective anniversary show, plans are also in the works to produce an anniversary television special directed by SCTV funnyman, Dave Thomas. The Second City was originally founded on Dec. 16, 1959.

Legendary blues artist Bo Diddley will perform with Billy Branch, Son Seals, Junior Wells and others at HOPEFEST '94, a spectacular blues concert to benefit the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless, Thursday, Nov. 17, at Park West.

The ninth annual HOPEFEST, which also includes a silent auction, is sponsored by Sara Lee Corporation, CNA Insurance Companies and LaSalle National Bank. All participating performers are donating their time and talent to assist the Coalition in its efforts to end homelessness in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Tickets are $30, available in advance by calling the Coalition office at (312) 435-4548, Ticketmaster at (312) 559-1212, or at the door on concert night. Visa and MasterCard are accepted. Doors will be open at 6:30 p.m. at Park West, 322 W. Armitage in Chicago.

Proceeds from HOPEFEST '94 will help support the efforts of the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless. The Coalition works with homeless women with children, youth and single adults from all sectors of the city to empower them to take control of their lives.

It has been exactly 27-1/2 years now that the magnificent sounds of the restored Grande Barton Pipe Organ in the Patio Theatre, 6005 W. Irving Park Road, Chicago, have been heard for many outstanding pipe organ programs. Prior to that time, the organ lay dormant since the advent of sound films because the need for accompanying silent movies had ended. During the 30s, 40s and 50s, many theatre owners sold their pipe organs, only to regret it later, because pipe organ enthusiasts around the country were rebuilding the remaining ones, so that their unique sounds could be enjoyed again. Fortunately, the Patio organ stayed with the theatre, and since 1967, many pipe organ programs were presented there with such stars as Leon Berry, Gaylord Carter, Jack Moelmann, Hal Pearl, Bob Ralston, Ron Rhode, Bill Vlasak and the late Pearl White to name a few.

Now, on Sunday, Nov. 13, at 2 p.m., the Chicagoland Theatre Organ Society will present another theatre organ great, Stan Kann, for your musical enjoyment.

Northbrook Theatre announces auditions

Stann Kann at the Patio

It has been exactly 27-1/2 years now that the magnificent sounds of the restored Grande Barton Pipe Organ in the Patio Theatre, 6005 W. Irving Park Road, Chicago, have been heard for many outstanding pipe organ programs. Prior to that time, the organ lay dormant since the advent of sound films because the need for accompanying silent movies had ended. During the 30s, 40s and 50s, many theatre owners sold their pipe organs, only to regret it later, because pipe organ enthusiasts around the country were rebuilding the remaining ones, so that their unique sounds could be enjoyed again. Fortunately, the Patio organ stayed with the theatre, and since 1967, many pipe organ programs were presented there with such stars as Leon Berry, Gaylord Carter, Jack Moelmann, Hal Pearl, Bob Ralston, Ron Rhode, Bill Vlasak and the late Pearl White to name a few.

Now, on Sunday, Nov. 13, at 2 p.m., the Chicagoland Theatre Organ Society will present another theatre organ great, Stan Kann, for your musical enjoyment.

It was Phyllis Diller who discovered Stan as a comedic collector of vacuum cleaners and other gadgets and also as a brilliant organist. Stan's 77 guest

Celebrating Adoption conference set

Learn how the Baby Richard case and recent adoption legislation may affect you and your adoption. Richard Lifshitz, the attorney who is representing the adoptive parents in this case, will answer your legal questions.

Adoptive Families Today, an adoption support group based in the northwest suburbs of Chicago, announces its second annual adoption conference, entitled Celebrating Adoption.

This one-day conference will feature a keynote address on "Growing Your Family" by Patricia Irwin Johnston, M.S., an adoption educator, author, and publisher at Perspectives Press in Indianapolis, Indiana. Ms. Johnston will also present workshops on the following topics: "How to Know if Adoption is Right for You;" "Sex Education and the Adoption-Built Family;" "Embracing Difference;" and "Life Goes On: Lifelong Infertility Issues After Adoption."

Other workshops will cover issues of interest to both pre- and post-adoptive parents and adoption professionals. The growing trend toward international adoption will be discussed in four workshops. In addition, workshops on medical topics such as attention deficit disorder and emotional issues, which are frequently of concern to many adoptive parents, will be included.

The conference will be held Sunday, Nov. 13, at the Galvin Center for Continuing Education, Motorola, Schaumburg, Ill. For further information and registration materials, contact Robin Netter at (708) 459-0677.

Calling all Maine East alumni

Looking for that old high school buddy? Or sweetheart? Or maybe just wondering what the old gang is up to? Well you are in luck!

Two students honored in science competition

Niles North senior Daryn David of Skokie and Niles West senior Mahesh Madhav of Morton Grove were recently named among the top finalists for the Museum of Science and Industry's 1994 Outstanding Young Scientist Award. David was chosen as one of the top 10 nominees while Madhav was listed among the top 20 finalists.

This is the fifth time that District 219 students have placed so well in this competition; 1988, 1990 and 1992 each saw a Niles Township High School student place in the top 10 finalists, and in 1991, Niles West student Erik Bauer won the first place award.

Seventy-one area high schools participated in this competition, and each school was able to nominate only one student. Both David and Madhav will be honored on November 17 at the Museum of Science and Industry for their accomplishments.

Nelson School's enterprising sixth graders

Nelson School's sixth graders started a 17-week D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program under the direction of Officer Charles Hering. This program includes not only information about drugs, but involves role playing, propaganda, and peer pressure strategies. A graduation ceremony completes this positive and timely program.

At Nelson, the sixth graders are "enterprising people." After reading a story in their reading book about some children who form a cleaning business, the students decided to apply what they learned and start their own businesses.

Nelson School is one of four elementary schools in East Maine School District 63 and is located at 8901 N. Ozanam in Niles.

These semifinalists represent the top half of one percent of high school graduates in Illinois: Patrick Bradley of Northbrook, Theresa Gibbons Park Ridge and Ben Kochuvell of Skokie.

Niles West Field House dedicated

District 219 Board of Education member, and former president, Gail Stone cuts the ribbon at the Oct. 20 dedication of the Niles West Field House.

On Oct. 20, Niles West got a new field house. The 40,000-square-foot facility is covered by a clear span arch supported roof structure. It houses four competition size basketball courts, four tennis courts and four volleyball courts.

The track is a six-lane, 160-meter course; one mile is 10 laps. It is a fully competitive facility which is certified for official track meets and it has a pole vault and long jump area.

By rotating the layout, the school can include four down-sized basketball courts, 16 badminton courts and six volleyball courts, all which will be used for physical education classes. There are divider curtains that can separate the facility for multiple purposes. By dropping the outside curtains, the volleyball and basketball courts can be used at the same time students are running on the track.

In addition, the new field house design includes infield practice areas for softball and baseball and two batting practice cages.

"The entire physical education and athletic departments join me in thanking our Board of Education for the value they place in physical education and athletics," said Niles West athletic director Gerald Turry. "We look forward to many years of successful use of this wonderful addition to Niles West High School."

Community invited to Engineering Night

Prospective engineering students and their parents are invited to Oakton Community College's "Engineering Night." The event will be held on Friday, Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center at Oakton Community College's Des Plaines campus, 1600 E. Golf Road.

Deans and directors from major four-year engineering colleges across the state will give short informational presentations which include admission requirements, costs, available engineering majors and job outlooks.

Local residents win college awards

The Honors College at the University of Illinois at Chicago has presented a University Scholar Award to Morton Grove resident Michael Gilbert and Northbrook's Josephine Volpe.

Gilbert and Volpe were two of 25 entering freshmen to win one of the competitive prizes for the 1994-95 academic year. Given to high school students who are in the top 10 percent of their graduating class and who have ACT scores of 28 or higher, the merit award covers full tuition and fees for Honors College students and may be renewed up to a total of four consecutive years.

A graduate of Niles West High School, Gilbert is majoring in civil engineering.

A graduate of Glenbrook North High School, Volpe is majoring in history.

Students don't kid around in nursery school

The Niles North High School child development class is seeking nursery-school aged girls for their current semester. Two different daily classes are held, one from 9:15 to 11:10 a.m. and the other from 12:15 to 2:10 p.m. There are openings for one student in the morning class and four in the afternoon session. The cost is $75 per semester and applicants must be at least 4 years-old as of September. Class size is limited to 15 students, and there is one adult for every two children.

Preschoolers enrolled in the program work to develop math, socialization, and large and fine motor skills. Activities include playing at science and math tables, discussions centered around specific themes, such as the changing of the seasons or the world of nature, and the reading of children's books.

Miller and Swann team up for Big Brothers/Big Sisters

Internationally renowned designer, Nicole Miller, and Steelers' legend, Lynn Swann, are teaming up to support the national youth organization Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America. Together, Lynn and Nicole are hosting three celebrity packed charity sports extravaganzas in three separate Nicole Miller boutiques located in Chicago, Denver, and Philadelphia. Dates are Nov. 3, Nov. 29, and Dec. 8 respectively.

Each night promises to be a sports lover's dream. Along with good food, great people and lots of fun, Lynn guarantees some of his famous sports friends at each event to sign autographs and mingle with the supporters - all to benefit Big Brothers/Big Sisters. Nicole Miller boutiques expect to raise at least $20,000 per event from ticket sales and raffled prizes donated, in part, by Nicole Miller licensees.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is based on the concept of a one-to-one relationship between an adult volunteer and an at-risk child. These children, primarily from one-parent homes, are most vulnerable to the negative influences of their environments. Through One-to-One matches, volunteers serving as mentors and role models can help these youth to increase their self-esteem and, often for the first time, to see themselves as having happy, successful futures.

Miller, known in part for her whimsical silk print accessories including ties, has been a major influence in women's apparel for years. Her "little black cocktail dress" has been a staple in thousands of women's wardrobes and she continues to expand her design expertise into men's tailored apparel, eyewear, childrenswear, hosiery, handbags, and fragrances for men and women.

Always a lover of sports, Nicole Miller's unique silk print ties, in a variety of sports motifs, have captured the attention of sports enthusiasts worldwide. Her designs have included the recent 75th Anniversary of the NFL, as well as, ABC Sports' 25th anniversary of "Monday Night Football."

A staunch supporter of children's organizations, Miller is thrilled to host the sports filled evenings for Big Brothers/Big Sisters. "Lynn has been a good friend for some time now, and when he suggested we get together and help Big Brothers/Big Sisters by having some parties, I was all for it!"

Lynn Swann, for nine years, was a legendary player with the Steelers as they won four Super Bowls. Swann was named to the All-Rookie team in '74, All-pro in '75, MVP of Super Bowl X in '76 and was selected NFL Man of the Year in '81. Today, Swann has a full time career as a commentator for ABC Sports.

Away from work, Lynn Swann is an active community volunteer. Since 1980, he has been the National spokesperson for Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America and in 1993 was named President of their National Board of Directors.

"Nicole Miller and Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America provide quality and fun. Nicole provides quality through her outstanding concepts which are fun and exciting to wear. Big Brothers/Big Sisters, through One-to-One mentoring relationships, helps to improve the quality of a young person's life. I am pleased to have both these fine organizations working together to make a difference in a child's life," Swann said.

Illinois lotto game improving; thousands more will win

The Illinois Lottery's Little Lotto game is undergoing one little change, and thousands of additional people will win cash prizes each drawing because of it. Lottery Director Desiree Rogers recently announced that, beginning with the Nov. 7 Little Lotto drawing, five numbers between 1 and 30 will be selected. Previously, five numbers between 1 and 35 were drawn.

As with the old game, those who match three, four or all five numbers win a cash prize. The top prize amount remains $200,000 to a single Grand Prize winner.

Political Correctness
issue to be addressed

What happens when two friends and colleagues disagree passionately on an issue? We are not sure, but sparks will fly on Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m. when Gary Saul Morson, professor of Slavic languages at Northwestern University and Gerald Graff, professor of English at the University of Chicago, explore the arguments in favor and against the move towards "p.c." in Political Correctness and Freedom of Thought.

Gerald Graff is the author of Beyond the Culture Wars, a 1993 American Book Award Winner, which argues that these "culture wars" being fought over multiculturalism and political correctness are a sign of the intellectual vitality of American education. Graff taught at Northwestern University where he was chairman of the English Department and director of Northwestern University Press. He joined the University of Chicago in 1991 as the George M. Pullman Professor of English and Education.

Gary Saul Morson is Frances Hooper Professor of the Arts and Humanities at NU. He is the author of many books and articles and editor of the series Russian Literature and Thought. Morson has always argued in favor of a healthy skepticism of present orthodoxies, and encouraged intellectual pluralism.

Admission is free. Audience input is welcome. The Library is located at 5215 Oakton St. in Skokie.

Locals charged in odometer fraud ring

An undercover investigation into an odometer rollback scheme that cheated used-car buyers of hundreds of thousands of dollars has led to charges against five Cook County residents, Secretary of State George H. Ryan said Oct. 25.

Authorities also are seeking charges against two suspects in DuPage County in connection with the operation, which reaped huge profits by rolling back the odometers of late-model, high-mileage fleet vehicles bought at auctions.

Additionally, Secretary of State Police seized 17 vehicles valued at more than $170,000. The odometers of the vehicles, all advertised in major metropolitan newspapers, generally had been rolled back between 40,000 and 60,000 miles. On the average, buyers lost about $4,000 on their deals.

"This was a highly elaborate deception concocted to sell high-mileage vehicles at low-mileage prices," Ryan said.

Drunk driver almost causes accident

A Niles police officer observed a vehicle traveling southbound on Caldwell Ave. and weaving throughout the lanes at 7:37 p.m. Oct. 25.

The offending car crossed over the broken white line and then weaved back and bounced off the curb. The driver again entered the center lane, almost striking another car, causing the other car to enter incoming traffic.

The officer stopped the driver in the 6800 block of Caldwell and detected a strong odor of alcohol on his breath. After failing field sobriety tests, the driver was taken into custody.

Kil Dong Choe, 61, of Chicago, was charged with a DUI, (12), improper lane usage and no proof of insurance. Bond was set at $1,000 and Choe is scheduled to appear in court Dec. 7.

Employee charged with felony theft

A former employee of J.C. Penny, 220 Golf Mill, was arrested Oct. 25 for thefts she committed while she was working for the store between July 8 and Oct. 8.

The thefts, in the amount of $1,710.03, consisted of fraudulent refunds and credits and underrings on numerous occasions.

Myra Pevela, 23, of Niles, gave verbal and written statements as to involvement in the theft. An assistant state's attorney approved felony theft charges and bond was set at $40,000.

Store burglarized in break-in

While responding to a burglar alarm at a grocery store in the 8800 block of Milwaukee Ave., police ascertained that an offender had gained entry to the store through the front door by pulling the lock off with pliers or a vice grip.

Once inside, the offender forcibly removed a cash register from the check-out area at the front of the store by tearing it loose from its electronic connection wire.

There was $500 inside the Omron cash register. The pulled lock was found in a trash can outside the front door.

Employee steals from two stores

Lance Chasen, 25, of Carbondale, was charged with two counts of felony theft Oct. 24 in connection with the theft of over $1,800 from two stores in which he was employed.

Chasen worked at Radio Shack, 9515 Milwaukee, from June 8 to Oct. 17 where he signed 20 sales return receipts in the amount of $983.98 using customer's names and keeping the cash.

He also worked at the Radio Shack located at 7245 Dempster where he signed 17 return receipts in the amount of $856.18 and kept the money.

Bond was set at $40,000. The offender is to appear in court on Nov. 3.

Driving at dusk

by Secretary of State George H. Ryan

With the return to Central Standard Time at 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 30, motorists will be driving home from work at dusk for the first time in months. Heavy traffic and tired drivers combine with early dusk to create a peak time for fatal accidents.

The Department of Transportation's 1992 accident statistics show a high fatality rate in Illinois between 4 and 8 p.m. when many motorists are coming home from work. In rural areas, these are the most dangerous hours to be driving.

Q. What can I do to protect myself when driving at dusk?
A. Adjust your driving habits to compensate for reduced visibility. Turn your headlights on as soon as it starts to get dark. Reduce speed and increase your following distance - especially in bumper-to-bumper rush hour traffic.

Fewer fatal crashes are reported during the morning rush hours because drivers are more rested, but drivers should be cautious at dawn as well as dusk. Visibility is poor in the winter at both times.

Q. What does Illinois law say about using headlights?
A. The law requires headlights to be lighted from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise. They also must be lighted at any time when insufficient light or bad weather make it impossible to see vehicles and pedestrians clearly from 1,000 feet. Do not drive at dusk with parking lights only.

crime is handled in Illinois, though we've always thought the crime issue is a phony one (there are now more than one million people behind bars in American prisons). Today, any politician who doesn't come out for tightening crime legislation is likely to get beat at the polls.

Next Tuesday your vote could change the way the state funds your local schools. Rather than pay ever-increasing property taxes, education could be partially funded by increased state income taxes. If you're a senior citizen you might okay that increase, hoping it will hold down taxes on your home. And if you're a younger voter you might prefer your homeowning neighbors continue to share in school funding by paying higher property taxes rather than asking you to pay more state income tax.

In Congressional races we are represented by many of the most important men in Congress. Conservatives have a worthy representative in Henry Hyde, who represents the west end of our Bugle area. And liberals at the north and east ends of Bugleland can vote for Sidney Yates, who has been a member of Congress for more than forty years.

We have choices and we have issues. And in this land of the free we also have the choice of not voting. That too is a freedom of ours. It might be a freedom which would be hard to explain to those 250,000 guys who never made it home from WW II. But more than half of us will exercise that right next Tuesday.

Those two suspects would not speak to police and on Oct. 26, when M.G. police went to the Cook County Department of Corrections to speak with Kougiats, the story changed.

Kougiats admitted his role in both burglaries, but denied the other two's involvement and insisted he acted alone, but refused to put his statement in writing. He said he used a screwdriver to gain access; took money, a CD player and CDs from Pat's place, and $108 from American Legion.

Assistant state's attorney Ina Kantor indicated the likelihood of approving two burglary charges against Kougiats and advised the complaints be served when he appeared in court Oct. 31. He was being held on $15,000 bond.

Police attempted to speak with the two other suspects. One voluntarily appeared at the police station and denied participation. The other's mother said that her son had retained a lawyer and refused to speak to police.

Personal trainer to visit suburbs

Kathy Kaehler, Hollywood's hottest personal trainer, will visit the Woodfield and Old Orchard shopping centers Saturday, Nov. 5, to help the American Heart Association of Metropolitan Chicago raise awareness of the importance of exercise and cardiovascular health.

Kaehler will be on-site at Woodfield's new NordicTrack Fitness at Home store from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The nationally-known health and fitness trainer will offer free personal fitness consultations, sign copies of her current workout video and lead off a public NordicTrack-a-Thon to benefit the American Heart Association. Kaehler will be on hand at Old Orchard's new NordicTrack store from 3 to 5 p.m.

The Track-a-Thon, which has been staged in more than 55 cities across the United States and Canada, challenges shoppers to support the American Heart Association by donating five minutes of their time on a NordicTrack fitness machine. For every cumulative 100 minutes the public spends exercising, NordicTrack will donate a piece of equipment to the American Heart Association for use in fundraising auctions. Participants will receive a free NordicTrack T-shirt, along with the satisfaction of knowing they've helped the American Heart Association.

Yates has accomplished 22 terms as a U.S. Representative for the 9th District, is a member of the Chairman of the House Interior or Appropriations Subcommittee and the House Foreign Operations Subcommittee and chairs the Subcommittee for the Department of the Interior and related agencies.

Yates' goals involve curbing urban violence and expanding community development. He is pro-choice.

Larney, 51, of Evanston, lost the GOP primary to Herbert John, but defeated Lawrence Joyce in the primaries by a 59.3 percent.

He is an economist and labor mediator who opposes President Clinton's health plan.

Referendums Niles, Morton Grove, Park Ridge and Northbrook are among the 55 communities that will be asking voters whether they want spending decisions to be made locally or by the state through a general advisory referendum on the Nov. 8 election ballot.

While most villages changed the wording to suit their residents, the original question asks, "Should the municipality's spending decisions on community services, such as fire fighting, police, paramedic, snow removal and neighborhood crime prevention be made by your locally elected board rather than by the state legislature in Springfield?"

The 55 communities agreed to place the referendum on the ballot at the request of SMAC, the Suburban Mayors Action Coalition, a division of the Northwest Municipal Conference, the West Suburban Mayors and Managers, and the South Suburban Mayors and Managers, but has received various reactions.

"It doesn't really seem to tie into anything," said Morton Grove Village Manager Larry Arlt. "It's basically an opinion poll. I'm not sure this will produce any meaningful results."

Since 1986, the Illinois General Assembly has passed 237 public acts mandating what local governments are to do. These state imposed mandates will cost local taxpayers nearly $470 million over the next three years.

"We need to send a message to the state legislature," said Ron Wietecha, Park Ridge Mayor and vice president of the Northwest Municipal Conference, "on the efficiency of local government in delivering quality services and for being accountable for those services."

The Golf Maine Park District will be including a referendum question in its ballot that asks to raise taxes.

The question reads, "Shall the Golf Maine Park District be authorized to levy and collect an additional tax of 10.16 percent for the purpose of recreational programs, as provided in Section 5-3a in the Park District Code?"

The referendum will be voted on in several Maine Township precincts.

Of fourth graders, 93 percent met or exceeded state goals in science and 90 percent did in social studies.

Hennig also reported that two very positive trends on the report card included district parent involvement and attendance rates were higher than state averages.

Governor announces guidelines for domestic violence abusers

Gov. Jim Edgar recently announced the release of Illinois' first-ever statewide guidelines for programs working with domestic violence abusers.

"Traditionally, the emphasis has been on treating victims of domestic violence, rather than abusers, but that's changing," Edgar said. "It's critical that we begin solving the problem head-on by working with batterers to change their behavior and prevent senseless violence before it happens. Until we get at the root of the problem, cases of domestic violence will continue to grow."

"Domestic violence is the leading cause of injury among women, affecting about 300,000 each year in Illinois. Nationally, it occurs every 15 seconds and touches more women than those injured by rapes, accidents and muggings combined."

The new standards were developed by the Illinois Domestic Violence Advisory Council under the direction of the Illinois Department of Public Aid. The standards will be the topic of a workshop Nov. 9 at the Holiday Inn East in Springfield.

"The guidelines represent a consensus of practitioners, researchers and experts from related fields," Edgar said. "They will help ensure quality, consistent programs throughout Illinois and, more importantly, help to protect the safety of victims."
