Library Board foresees negative impact of tax caps

The Constitutional amendment which will have implications for education in the coming years, Governor Jim Edgar was one of the teachers slated, according to the Maine East High School band program. The amendment, which would increase the property tax lid, was signed into law by Governor Clinton and would limit property tax increases to a maximum of 5% per year, regardless of inflation. The amendment would also require local governments to maintain the same levels of services and programs, unless they seek an exception through a public referendum. The amendment is expected to have a significant impact on local education, as school districts across the state struggle to maintain their budgets. The Maine East High School band program, which has a long history of success, is expected to be affected by the amendment. The band program, which includes several ensembles such as the Marching Band, pep band, and orchestra, has been a staple of the school for many years. The band program has a strong tradition of excellence, with many students going on to college and careers in music. The band program is expected to face significant challenges in the years ahead, as the school district tries to maintain its programs in the face of reduced funding.

CAT shows school readiness

Most students who will attend first grade next year have already shown readiness for the challenge thanks to the achievement of 77 percent of the students on a test that doctors and teachers use to determine how well students are doing.

The CAT test, which stands for California Achievement Test, was given to students in third grade in March, and the results were released to parents Wednesday.

In math, 88.8 percent of the students exceeded expectations, compared to 78.8 percent last year. The current year’s results were better than those of 84.7 percent in 1995 and 82.8 percent in 1994.

In math concepts and applications, 62.1 percent exceeded expectations, compared to 54.5 percent last year.

In math computation, 53.8 percent exceeded expectations, compared to 51.9 percent last year.

In language, 79.6 percent exceeded expectations, compared to 78.3 percent last year.

In reading, 68.4 percent exceeded expectations, compared to 66.1 percent last year.

In writing, 58.4 percent exceeded expectations, compared to 57.6 percent last year.

“Over 52 percent of the students scored above the national average,” said Rich Leek, director of Evaluation and Accountability for the OUSD.

“Parents have a lot of pride in knowing how well our students are doing,” Leek said.

Almost 30 percent of the students were not meeting expectations in reading, learning, language, and math. This year, 26.6 percent of the students were meeting expectations for learning.

Almost 14 percent of the students were meeting expectations in writing, learning, language, and math. This year, 13.8 percent of the students were meeting expectations for learning.

“Younger students seem to be falling behind,” Leek said.

Approximately 28 percent of the students were falling behind in math, learning, language, and reading. The current year’s results were worse than those of 27.6 percent in 1995 and 26.9 percent in 1994.

In math, 78.9 percent of the students were falling behind, compared to 77.3 percent last year.

In math concepts and applications, 48.8 percent of the students were falling behind, compared to 47.7 percent last year.

In math computation, 49.3 percent of the students were falling behind, compared to 47.3 percent last year.

In language, 69.4 percent of the students were falling behind, compared to 68.6 percent last year.

In reading, 75.5 percent of the students were falling behind, compared to 74.7 percent last year.

In writing, 44.5 percent of the students were falling behind, compared to 43.8 percent last year.

Expectations are for students to be at least meeting expectations in reading, learning, language, and math.

“Students who don’t meet expectations need to be helped next year,” Leek said.

What every woman should know about ABS

Why publish the booklet to women about an ABS?

1. To increase the awareness of the importance of breast examination.
2. To educate women about the proper techniques for breast examination.
3. To provide information on the benefits of early detection and treatment of breast cancer.

It is critical to understand that a breast exam is not a substitute for mammography. However, it is an important component of a comprehensive breast cancer screening program.

A woman who practices a regular self-exam is more likely to detect a breast lump early, which can lead to better outcomes.

Governor makes appointments

Gov. Pat Quinn recently signed a new law requiring all health care providers to offer mammograms to women over the age of 40 as part of routine care. The law takes effect on Jan. 1, 2011.

What women need to know about breast health:

1. Breast exams should be performed by a health care provider at least every two years.
2. Women should perform monthly self-exams to detect any changes in their breasts.
3. If a lump or abnormality is found, it is important to consult with a health care provider for further evaluation.
