oning board calls pool hall an "undesirable business"

Niles refuses to issue license to pool hall

by Kathleen Quirsfeld

It took two separate votes but the Niles Planning Commission & Zoning Board successfully kept the Village of Niles free from a second pool hall by denying a change in zoning to a man who sought to open a hall at 8526-R Golf Road.

The request to change the zoning came from Ted Mavrakis, 6600 Beckwith Rd., Morton Grove, who told the Board that he wished to put 12 pool tables at the Golf Road location and charge customers $8 an hour to play pool.

Mavrakis, the owner of four pizza restaurants, one each in Evanston and Morton Grove, sensed the Board's reluctance to grant the request, and quickly stated that the pool hall would only be open to individuals over 18 years of age. He also said that only soft drinks would be sold and no alcoholic beverages would be sold or consumed on the premises.

The Zoning Board was not convinced that this would be enough of a deterrent to keep un-

From the Left Hand

By Bud Besser

We've discovered there's little revolutions which take place in our lifetimes which we're either not aware of or accept them with such ease we fail to recognize their importance.

Airplanes and computers and television and polio vaccines and the civil rights movement and the feminist revolution and nuclear fission have all played important parts during our lifetime. But there's new life cycles taking place before our eyes which may be the most important revolution of all.

Author Gail Sheehy has just published her newest book, "New Passages: Mapping Your Life Across Time" that tells us people are taking longer to grow old and longer to die: 30-year olds still consider themselves as kids, 45-year olds are starting families and 70-year olds are going back to school and playing tennis and

New Tam clubhouse near completion

The Niles Park District is pleased to announce the near completion of its new clubhouse and restaurant at the historic Tam Golf Course. The clubhouse design is unique to the Chicago area; it was modeled after the Grand Floridian, a resort in Florida. The clubhouse will be used for the daily operations of the golf course and home to O'Shanter's Food and Spirit.

Tam Golf Course was formerly the Tam O'Shanter Golf Course. During the 1940's and 1950's the owner of Tam O'Shanter, George S. May, helped bring national attention to both the sport of golf and the golf course. May achieved this fame through several means. Believing that top money would bring top players, May offered $50,000 for first prize with $50,000 for play exhibitions (other tournaments would pay $8,000 to $12,000). Although the first place prize money was impressive, May also gave money out for the most interesting shot, breaking club records, and most glamorous player. This money did bring the top professional and amateur golfers. Additionally, May was the first to have international players enter the contest.

All of the marketing ploys worked well to attract players and spectators, but it was not until May's held the first televised golf tournament which made Tam O'Shanter became a household name. It was Sunday, August 23, 1953 when Tam O'Shanter made history. During the tournament a camera was set-up behind the eighteenth green to cover the last day of the tournament. Lew Worshem came to the final hole needing a birdie three to beat Chandler Harper for the $25,000 first prize. Worshem drove to the left of the fairway and was about 121 yards away from the cup. Worshem shot the ball and it landed about 50 feet from the cup and rolled back into the hole. It was an unbelievable shot and a handsome $62,000 victory for Worshem

YMCA reports rash of locker break-ins

By Rosemary Tirio

Three incidents of theft from lockers at the Leaning Tower YMCA in the 6300 block of Touhy Avenue were reported July 5 by the membership secretary.

A 67-year-old Lincolnwood man reported that unknown person(s) removed his wallet containing credit cards and an unknown amount of cash from his locker sometime between 7:15 a.m. and 8:46 a.m.

A 46-year-old Chicago man reported that $50 and credit cards were taken from his locker. Another man reported $100 and a gold money clip missing from his locker at about the same time as the other two incidents.

The operations director said that locker break-ins had previously been a problem but that none had taken place for "quite some time."

Several security measures have been taken, including security cameras in hallways and by entrances, assignment of more personnel in locker rooms and a more thorough checking of guest passes, the director said. Warnings have also been posted in locker rooms reminding patrons to lock their lockers.

Several instances of locker and poolside thefts have also been reported throughout the community in recent weeks. Park districts, health clubs and all facilities like this face theft problems the director said.

Thieves generally pop or cut locks off to gain access to lockers, the director said. "They know how to get them off," she added.

Residents provide Niles Historical Society with Model T Ford

by Joseph W. Zurawski

Jayne Barry and Adolf Foss stand alongside the 1913 Model T Ford as it is being prepared for the ride to the Morton Grove Historical Society.

The 1913 Model T Ford, since 1992 on display at the Niles Historical Society Building, 8970 N. Milwaukee Ave., was made possible by Jayne Barry of Morton Grove and Adolf Foss of Niles. Barry donated the car and Foss made it, and keeps it, operable for parades and other public events.

Barry remembers the car when it came into the family. She was six years old at the time. "It was a used car and was really my brother's car," says Barry. Her first direct recollection of her contact with the car was having to push it up a hill.

Brother bought the car used. When her brother drove the car he always had to "look out for cows," says Barry. There were frequent Model T caravans in the 1920s and 1930s to Wisconsin Dells with 10 to 15 cars involved. One of the major concerns was the car's overheating. Everyone would stop as they would for "the biggest problems—tires," says Barry. After all would pitch in to fix the tire, they would be on their way until another problem arose. Barry mentions they had to stop four or five times on an average trip.

After her brother passed away the car was kept in the same Morton Grove garage but was in danger of water damage. After heavy rains the garage flooded occasionally.

Adolf Foss, a volunteer with the Niles Historical Society and personal friend of Barry, understood restoration of the Model T. Foss said "it took four years" and now the car can be driven. However, warns Foss, a driver must pay particular attention to the clutch: "If you ride the clutch," says Foss, "it burns out."

"There's a technique in driving it," explains Foss. Go no faster than a mile an hour and you will have no problems. In fact, claims Foss, "you can go to California without stopping." But, he adds, "drive it as fast as five miles and hour and you'll need a new band and the clutch will burn out." Foss demonstrates with his hands and fingers exactly how and why this will occur.

Had to buy special parts catalog

Restoration of the 1913 Model T was possible since Barry had an extensive collection of books and magazines from the Model T Club. Foss studied these and a special catalog only for Model Ts that described parts used in the car. The catalog itself costs $35.

Foss affirms that "parts were expensive." It would cost $1000 just for the cloth for the roof so

Also, working the shifts, and especially the clutch, are delicate operations according to Foss. "Once started and with the Foss technique in driving it," the Model T is ready for Jayne Barry. Barry will don her big hat, her long dress, her pointed shoes to be the special lady from the past in the parade. For many years Barry was that lady in the 4th of July parades in Morton Grove in that very same 1913 Model T Ford.

Criminal Damage

A 29-year-old truck driver reported that the sidewalls of the front two Goodyear Wrangler tires on his 1983 Jeep Caryl had been punctured sometime between 6 and 8:30 p.m. while the vehicle was parked in a lot at 5679 Howard St.

Six windows in a 1987 Dodge Ram parked in the church parking lot in the 8200 block of Harrison were smashed out sometime between 11 p.m. July 6 and 5:30 a.m. July 7. The window on a gymnasium door on the southeast side of the building was also smashed. A special watch has been requested by the church due to this incident and a recent burglary.

Auto thefts

Tools valued at $1,500 were taken from the bed of a 1990 Ford Ranger XLT truck which was covered with a Jem top sometime between 10:30 a.m. and noon July 5. No sign of force, no broken window or lock damage was found at the scene, a parking lot behind the 8500 block of Milwaukee Ave. The victim, a 37-year-old Niles carpenter, was uncertain if the truck was locked. A neighbor who came out to the parking lot at noon said that the truck was open at that time.

A 48-year-old Chicago woman found that unknown offender(s) broke the window in the right rear door of her 1991 Sable GS while it was parked in a lot in the 9200 block of Milwaukee Ave. between 9:30 and 11:50 p.m. July 3. A black purse containing $2 in cash, an Illinois Driver's License and three credit cards were taken.

A 1988 Toyota Camry was broken into July 3 between 3:15 and 6:30 p.m. in the parking lot at 210 Golf Mill. A hard object was used to smash the rear driver's side window. A mobile cellular phone valued at $160 and a cigarette lighter valued at $50 were taken. Repair was estimated at $100. The auto belongs to a 36-year-old Des Plaines woman.

Autos stolen

Two autos were stolen from the dealership in the 6200 block of Touhy Ave. Sometime between June 28 and July 6 a light blue Chevrolet Celebrity was removed from the lot apparently without keys.

On July 6 at 8:30 p.m., a green and beige Ford Taurus was parked in the rear of the dealership after being washed for a customer. A 41-year-old salesman was outside at the east end of the building when the auto exited the lot eastbound on Touhy. However, the salesman did not see the offender, so no description is available.

Theft

A vending machine company owner came to the Golf Mill Mall to service a Wizard Gum Ball machine and found that the machine, which is valued at $2,000, was missing from the designated spot. The machine company owner had no idea who could have taken the machine which is 4'10" tall and weighs 40 to 50 pounds.

A 42-year-old Skokie woman had her Discover and Visa cards, an insurance card, a driver's license and a Warehouse Club card removed from her purse while she was grocery shopping at the supermarket at 5667 Touhy Ave., July 4 at 1:46 p.m.

Burglary

The rear basement door of a home in the 8900 block of Merrill was pried open sometime between 5:30 p.m. July 3 and 11:18 p.m. July 4. Three upstairs bedrooms were ransacked and $800 in cash was stolen from the master bedroom. Sterling silver plates and antique candlestick holders, a Lladro figure, two Persian rugs and seven pictures were also taken.

The 24-year-old loss prevention agent of a store at 8650 Dempster apprehended a 40-year-old Chicago man attempting to leave the store with merchandise, including two video tapes, valued at $30 at 2:09 p.m. July 5. The offender struck the agent in the face with a closed fist. The agent refused medical treatment. An August 14 court date was set.

Retail theft

A 34-year-old Stone Park man was observed attempting to remove merchandise valued at $134.99 by the store security agent at 590 Golf Mill at 5:42 p.m. July 3. The offender removed two pairs of pants, a shirt and a pair of shoes from under his jeans in the store security office.

DUI/Accident

A 29-year-old Mt. Prospect man was charged with failure to reduce speed, driving under the influence, having no proof of insurance, having a blood alcohol level over 0.10 and illegal transport of an alcoholic beverage after police responded to an accident reported at Golf and Greenwood July 3.

The arrestee had rear-ended another vehicle. The arresting officer detected a strong odor of alcohol on the offender's breath along with the offender's blood-shot eyes and slurred speech. The offender failed the field sobriety test and was placed under arrest and transported to the Niles Police Department where he submitted to a breath test, which he also failed. The arresting officer also inventoried a partially filled can of beer found on the driver's side of the arrestee's vehicle.

Neighbor dispute

A 16-year-old Niles student and her 42-year-old mother were approached by a 55-year-old Niles man driving a Dodge Ram truck while they were walking near Niles Terrace and Waukegan Rd., July 3 between 6 and 6:15 p.m. The offender stopped and stared at the victims. As the victims began to cross Waukegan Rd., the offender put his truck in reverse and drove it in a threatening manner toward the victims, who ran in opposite directions to avoid being struck. The offender then parked his vehicle on Waukegan Rd. and yelled at the 16-year-old victim that he "tapes" her conversations and said, "I want you guys out of there" and "I can make you lose your whole house," comments which referred to neighbor disputes over the past six years.

The offender followed the victims into a food store, where the 16-year-old victim asked employees to call the police. The responding officer gave the victims their legal options and offered to drive them home.

Facts about Medicare coverage

Q. What cost does Medicare cover?

A. Medicare has two parts: Hospital Insurance (Part A) and Medical Insurance (Part B). Hospital Insurance helps pay for inpatient hospital care, care at a skilled nursing facility following a hospital stay, home health care, and hospice care. Medical Insurance helps pay for doctors' services and other medical services such as outpatient hospital care, ambulance services, and X-rays.

Q. What is not paid for by Medicare?

A. Medicare does not cover the cost of custodial care (such things as help with walking, bathing, and dressing - even when this care is given in a participating hospital or skilled nursing facility), most nursing home care, dental care and dentures, most prescription drugs, routine checkups and routine foot care, most immunizations, and eye or hearing tests and glasses or hearing aids.

Early detection key to controlling lead poisoning

Lead poisoning is one of the greatest environmental problems facing children in this country. More than 25,000 Illinois children tested positive for lead poisoning in 1993 - 20,000 of whom live in Chicago. However, according to experts at La Rabida Children's Hospital and Research Center, lead poisoning is not just an urban problem. Older homes in cities, suburbs, and rural communities can pose a threat as well.

Early detection is key to successful treatment. "Even small amounts of lead in a child's system can influence their health and curb their intelligence and growth," said Patricia Bailey, R.N., clinical nurse specialist at La Rabida. "The sooner they are tested and begin treatment, the sooner they are on the road to recovery." La Rabida performs in-house lead poisoning test using a blood lead analyzer that accurately measures lead intoxicity within 24 hours. These quick results detect mild to high levels of lead and allows treatment to begin immediately. Parents can then begin to take steps to alleviate sources of lead from the child's environment.

Bailey suggest these tips for parents to protect their children from lead poisoning:
• Have children regularly tested for lead poisoning at least twice a year from the time they are six months old, until they are six years old.
• Be aware of peeling paint and paint dust on walls, window sill door frames, and painted or ceramic dishes. These are lead dangers that children should avoid.

• Give children foods rich in calcium, such as lean meat, grains, fruits, and milk, because they protect young bodies against lead.
• Do not allow children to eat dirt, including dirt from indoor potted plants.
• Do not allow children to eat snow or icicles.
• water tap for cooking, drinking or preparing infant formula. Let cold water run for a few minutes before using it.

For more information on lead poisoning or to have a child tested, please call La Rabida at (800) 616-CARE.
La Rabida has medical professionals and families available to talk about their experiences with lead poisoning. For more information call Jenifer Gale, (312) 363-6700, extension 385.

Forest psychologist advises parents on eating disorders

From toys to advertising to entertainers, there's plenty of blame for popularizing idealized body images that are unrealistic and unhealthy. But as young girls continue to starve themselves and to suffer the serious, even fatal consequences of anorexia and bulimia, what changes? If anything, the images get thinner and younger, as witness the current trend of waif-like models.

Countering the implicit message that "thin is good, thinner is better" isn't easy. But it's important that parents try, says Marjann Troiani, Psy. D., director of the eating disorders program at Forest Hospital.

"The message of thinness is filtering down to younger and younger children, and it's coloring kids' ideas of normal body shapes," says Dr. Troiani. "Models look like Popsicle sticks, and that's what even very young girls think they should look like."

Dr. Troiani cites a recent survey of Chicago fourth-graders. "Seventy-five percent of these children responded that they weigh too much; some are already dieting. And their comments sounded like those of adolescents or young women. I'm jogging to get this blubber off my legs," was one little girl's remark in the survey."

Except in cases of serious overweight, dieting by a child at the age of 9 or 10 can disrupt the normal development process, says Dr. Troiani. "And it sets the stage for serious eating disorders by adolescence."

Because anorexia and bulimia primarily affect girls and women, parents of daughters should be particularly sure to send the message that who you are and how you act is what's important, not how you look. "Of course, 'you look nice,' is fine. But don't dwell on her appearance or slenderness. Instead, compliment her like."

for something she's accomplished, even if it's just a household chore."

In addition, Dr. Troiani offers the following suggestions:

- Evaluate family attitudes about weight. If Mom or Dad is racing to be first on the scale every morning or obsessing about their appearance, it sends a clear message about priorities.
- Give hugs, not donuts. Don't use food to pacify or reward children. It can set up a damaging, lifelong pattern of using food as an emotional outlet. Instead, reward your child with your attention and compliments for a job well done. And help her deal with problems by talking about them, not using them as an excuse for a treat.
- Eat regular meals and stock healthy snacks. "Constant snacking on 'feel-good' foods can be the first step to binging," says Dr. Troiani.
- Provide small servings and scrap the "clean plate club." The old, eat-everything-on-your-plate approach not only leads to conflict today, according to Dr. Troiani, but also can lead to overeating in later years.
- She offers a final caution: "Talking to your kids is fine, but listening is even better. Make the time to hear them out about emotional issues, what's bothering them. When a child feels ignored, she or he will look for ways to get attention."

Roman artist to exhibit at the Italian Center

The paintings and sculptures "Deities" of artist Meo Carbone will be on exhibit at the Italian Culture Center in Stone Park, IL, from Aug. 6 through Aug. 31.

The exhibit opening will coincide with the Italian Day Picnic. Meo Carbone was born in Minervino Murge (Bari) in 1945. After finishing his studies in Bari, he moved to Rome. From 1963 to 1968, he was a student of the sculptor Lorenzo Ferri. During this period at the atelier he developed a personal style and closely examined aesthetic and artistic values.

As a young man, Meo Carbone's determination and quest for knowledge helped him to assert himself in painting and sculpture. As a result of his continued research he won many awards including the "Oscar del Giovanni", an award for sculpture, and the first prize "Tevere Reno" in Cologne, Germany, for his distinguished and innovative work.

From 1977 to 1979, Meo Carbone resided in Los Angeles. In 1978, he had an exhibition at the Los Angeles County Museum of Modern Art. In 1980, he returned to Italy to develop new artistic approaches and techniques.

In 1989, Meo Carbone traveled again to the United States. Upon his return to Italy, while reading a book of symbols, he was struck by the graphic images of North American Indian deities, and thus his work on the present project began. The result being sculptural works achieved through mixed media and materials.

The exhibit "Deities" is traveling throughout the United States, and has been in Philadelphia and West Palm Beach, Florida; and has received acclaim and complimentary reviews. The sculptures will also be on exhibit Sept. 4 to 18 at the State of Illinois building in a two-man exhibit with artist Giovanni Bucchi.

The exhibit is open Mondays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Italian Cultural Center, 1621 N. 39th Ave., Stone Park, IL. Sundays, for groups, by appointment only. For more information, call (708) 345-3842.

The Studio: Restaurant with a past

A surprisingly modern name for a restaurant that started out in 1926 as a Prohibition era speakeasy in the living room of a small cottage on Miller's Mill Road (now Lincoln Avenue) then rural Morton Grove. Louis Buller bought the cottage because it was near the train station and a logging mill, and its secluded location surrounded by trees made it "a grand location for a dram shop and a place to offer the good cooking of his wife, Mary," Louis named it The Studio, because the location and size of the cottage reminded him of "a hidden little studio."

Now, nearly 70 years and three generations later, The Studio's past is prominently displayed in several large photos of the various stages in its evolution. Louis' great grandson, Bob Leibrandt, the fourth generation proprietor of the dram shop turned fine dining spot, takes visitors on a photo tour, pointing out the many changes that were made in that tiny framed cottage since 1926. He proudly slips in that The Studio is Morton Grove's oldest continuous business.

The cozy charm pervades the now-sprawling restaurant, which still looks deceptively small from the outside. The library-bar is lined with bookshelves - with real books. "Some people actually do read them," said Paula Leibrandt, Bob's wife, who is hostess two or three nights a week, oversees decorating and writes ads for the business. "It looks like a fifth generation of the family is preparing to carry on the family tradition well into the next century."

The popular bar is packed Wednesdays through Saturdays, says Bob, and that might be because of the entertainment. Yvonne and Larry appear on Wednesdays, playing the piano and organ and leading the crowd in singing and dancing. Ken Riehl, who's been entertaining in the area for 30 years, plays the accordion on Thursdays. Dick Henson, "a one-man band," as Bob describes him, plays guitar and synthesizer Fridays and Saturdays. "People sing, line dance, circle dance," says Paul. "We have a group that comes in every Friday and Saturday nights. They have birthday parties, St.

Patrick's parties here. They're always here," she added. Paula, a former flight attendant and restaurant manager, with 20 years in the service business, says she and Bob "take pride in personal service," and, indeed, she seems to be personally fond of The Studio's large cast of loyal patrons.

Last September, that cast got together and put on a play that Paula wrote, "The Wizard of Oz" ("Coz I said so," Paula expands). One customer, Wes, who sports a handlebar mustache, reminded her of the Wizard, opening the door to the Emerald City, and so she was inspired to write the play, set in Circus City and featuring Dorothy and the Drunchkins. "It was very funny," she said. "Thirty people, all patrons, volunteered. They did it for The Studio. It shows how much they love coming here. It's like home," she added.

They sold tickets and put on three performances. "We even had a search light out front. It was just like Hollywood," Paula bubbles. Afterward, they passed out ballots, Academy-Award style, and had the audience vote for best performances. "They're really a great group, and we're lucky to have them. They're the kind of people you'd want to have at your bar," Paula said. They plan to stage another play next September, she said.

Off the bar is another cozy room, one of three banquet/meeting rooms that can accommodate groups of 10 to 150. A massive fireplace dominates one end of the room, and above it a huge stuffed moosehead. Bob says it has been hanging there for 30 years or more, but he can't remember how it got there. Paula said that banquet customers love to decorate the great horns, and its glassy eyes must have seen a lot of merriment at the showers, rehearsal dinners, and holiday parties that have taken place under its silent gaze.

Local student named to Dean's Honor Roll

Creighton University student Monique M. D'Avic of Skokie, has been named to the Dean's Honor Roll for academic achievement during the spring 1995 semester.

Scholarship winner

Mary Gleason, of Park Ridge, has been awarded the Drake University Achievement Award at Drake University beginning in the fall 1995 semester. Gleason attended Maine Township High School South.

Futures Unlimited

Students attempt to view a specimen under a microscope in a science workshop held during Futures Unlimited, the fourth annual conference for eighth grade girls to explore careers in math and science. The program was held at Oakton Community College's Des Plaines campus. Students from local elementary and junior high schools interacted with female role models in various professions ranging from biology, dentistry, industrial engineering, accounting and more. Shown above from l. to r.: Anna Lutger and Katie Thompson, Lincoln Jr. High School in Park Ridge.

Social Security and students

For most students, retirement is a long way off, but the wages credited to their Social Security number now will be adding up during all the years they work. And, if they become disabled before retirement, these earnings will figure prominently in their eligibility for Social Security disability benefits.

To assure that you're getting credit for your earnings and that your Social Security wage record is correct, make certain your employer has your correct name and Social Security number. Your future benefits will be based on these earnings, so it's important that your record shows all your covered wages. You can check your record any time by completing a personal earnings and benefit estimate request form. Just call the toll free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask for it.

Most young people whose parents claim them as dependents for income tax purposes already have a Social Security number, as the law requires. But, if you've never had a Social Security number, you'll need to apply for one. If you're age 18 or older and applying for the first time, you'll need to apply in person at your local Social Security office.

If your card has been lost or stolen, you can get an application for a free replacement card by calling the toll-free number or by visiting your local office.

Increase in student fees

Six student fees in the three Maine high schools are scheduled for slight increases with six remaining the same for the 1995-96 school year.

Student insurance will increase from $15 to $17; 24-hour insurance from $50 to $55; and football insurance from $36 to $40 with the student paying $20 and the Board of Education paying $20.

Sports admission prices will remain the same with a family pass at $10. Student admission will be $1 and adult admission $2. A student's ticket will remain the same at $3.

Physical education/athletic towel rental will increase slightly from $12.10 to $12.50 with the physical education lock charge remaining the same at $1. Yearbook prices at East will increase from $16.50 to $17 and at West from $18 to $19. The price of a yearbook at South will remain the same at $18.

Ticket broker law passes

Ticket brokers will have to meet stricter standards regarding the resale of tickets, under legislation sponsored by Assistant Senate Majority Leader Walter Dudydz (R-7th, Chicago) and approved May 18 by the General Assembly.

House Bill 1002 requires ticket brokers to register with the Secretary of State to maintain their current exemption from the Ticket Scalping Act. Brokers must certify that they comply with specific new criteria and pay an annual registration fee.

"Qualified ticket brokers are currently exempt from laws prohibiting the resale of tickets at prices higher than face value. However, there are several loopholes, which officials at the Rosemont Horizon think should be closed," Dudydz said. "House Bill 1002 maintains the current exemption but requires brokers to register with the state and meet stricter guidelines regarding the resale of tickets."

Registrants must certify that they: engage in the resale of tickets on a regular and ongoing basis from a permanent or fixed location within the state; maintain as the principal business activity at that location the resale of tickets; display at that location the ticket broker's registration; maintain at that location a listing of the names and addresses of all employees; certify that neither the ticket broker nor any of their employees have been convicted of a violation of the Ticket Scalping Act within the preceding 12 months; comply with all applicable federal, state and local laws relating to its ticket selling activities; maintain a statewide toll free number for consumer complaints and inquiries; adopt a code that advocates consumer protection that must include consumer protection guidelines, a standard refund policy and standards of professional conduct; adopt a procedure for the resolutions of consumer complaints by an objective third party; establish and maintain a consumer protection rebate fund in an amount in excess of $100,000-$50,000 of which must be available for immediate disbursement.

House Bill 1002 maintains current law that prohibits brokers from selling, or attempting to sell, tickets while sitting or standing near the facility at which the event is to be held. Brokers must also continue to comply with all requirements of the Retailers' Occupation Tax Act and all other applicable federal, state and local laws. Beginning, Sept. 1, ticket brokers will be prohibited from advertising for resale within the state unless the advertisement contains the name and registration of the ticket broker.

IRS tax filing extension due Aug. 15

If you requested a tax filing extension, the Internal Revenue Service reminds you that your 1994 federal income tax return is due Tuesday, August 15.

Anyone who filled out Form 4868 and sent it to the IRS by the original April 17 deadline received an automatic four-month filing extension. You can take credit for any payment sent with the extension form on Line 57 of Form 1040, Line 28d of Form 1040A, or Line 8 of Form 1040EZ.

According to the IRS, you will own interest on any taxes paid after April 17. In some cases, a late payment penalty may also be due.

If you're unable to finish your return by August 15, you can apply for an additional extension of up to two months by filling out Form 2688. Unlike the original extension, the IRS says, this second extension is not automatic. You must explain why you need extra time. The IRS will let you know whether or not your request is approved.

If your return is done and you owe money, the IRS urges you to file on time even if you can't pay the amount due.

To get 1994 federal tax forms or the extension and payment agreement request forms, call toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (829-3676). If you have tax questions, dial 1-800-829-1040.

running in marathons. Sheehy concluded "young," "middle-aged" and "old" don't mean much anymore and so she devised new categories based on statistical analysis of five generations, as well as surveying working men and women.

Her new labels include 18 to 30 year olds as "provisional adulthood." "First adulthood" is from 35 to 45 and "second adulthood" is over 45.

In a previous book written in 1976 she wrote about middle age being the period when people settled in. Children had moved out into the world, careers were coasting and middle age was about cuddling, not sex, and looking forward to the "golden years" of retirement at 65. But now she dismisses the "middle age" appellation. She said she uses the term "middlescence" which is adolescence the second time around. Men move from competing to connecting. They realize they're no longer going to move up the career ladder and they can't compete physically the way they once did. Those who make the adjustment move from "I gotta win" to "it's really fun to talk to my men friends while I'm playing golf."

Sheehy contends middle-aged women of today have moved from pleasing to mastery. They feel, "I've pleased everybody for a long time. Now they can take care of themselves and I'm outta here." There are 2 million women over 40 in college, twice as many as men that age. Women are now starting businesses and white rafting and climbing mountains and saving refugees. They're now doing all sorts of things they never imagined that they'd be doing.

People are still having mid-year crisis but they're having it much later in their late 40's. A crisis is when people begin asking themselves, "Why am I doing this? What do I have to prove? Do I want to keep doing this?" This self-inquisition turns into "Now that I know myself better, what is it that has meaning to me? What are my priorities? What new adventure can I try?" Sheehy cited one 50-year-old woman, whose kids were still hanging around and begging for money, declaring her freedom. "O.K., I'm 50 years old, I'm celebrating by taking a year's sabbatical. I'm going to be an unlisted mom."

Sheehy contends there are more age norms which is why so many people feel dislocated. We need new maps and we need a new language. What seemed unnatural in the past may now seem quite natural. She cited more men may choose to start over again as Dads in their 50s and 60s.

Ms. Sheehy contends she and her husband are creating a new life for themselves, she in her late 50s and he in his mid-60s. She will continue writing, while he, a magazine editor, will be creating a center for magazine journalism at Berkeley.

Sheehy said she wants people to get a wake-up call from her book. She said she hopes the book will help people see themselves as they are, now and celebrate that we have a second adulthood and get about planning for it and living it and enjoying it.

The author notes men have a more difficult time adjusting to the later middle years than women. Whereas men used to say about their wives, "She's nice but I need someone more stimulating," women now are saying this about their husbands. Men are often doing the same thing in their mid-40's that they've been doing all their lives. Life no longer challenges them. They've got to pay that monthly mortgage payment and pay for those college years and they say they can't give it up. And while they don't do some active risk-taking, the insecurity they think they're avoiding may catch up with them. Active risk-taking is a real important part of second adulthood.

The author recognizes the death of a parent is no longer the universal crisis it was in the past. Parents are no longer dying while their children are in their forties. Eighty-two year old fathers are now marrying their high school sweethearts and 70 year olds are now bringing their 90 year old parents to senior citizen affairs. Twenty years ago it was 40 year olds bringing their 60 year old parents.

Sheehy reported at a conference on aging in the 21st century it was reported girl babies born today have a 1 out of 3 chances of living to 100 years old. A boy's chance is one in 10. Scientists are saying there might not be a finite limit to the human life cycle. While we're thinking about planning for a second adulthood there may be a third. Bio-engineers say we'll be able to go to the hospital and regenerate organs. We'll be able to reverse aging. We already know if you introduce very active intellectual stimulation to older people they sprout neural connectors. They grow brain.

savory types away from Niles or discourage younger customers from coming in during school hours.

Todd Bararo, Director of Code Enforcement told Board members that he had surveyed other neighboring suburban communities and could find no others that allowed a pool hall, with or without liquor. Pool tables are located in Golf Mill Bowl on 9300 Milwaukee Ave., which also serves liquor.

Board member Diane Winter stated that although playing pool has apparently become "the rage of the yuppies," she didn't think a pool hall would "fit in Niles."

Angelo Troiana summed up the opinion of the Board by saying "I think this is not a very desirable business. We have the opportunity to control some of the businesses (like this) who have given some trouble."

Dorothy Dollack's opinion centered around the location of the pool hall. It would be four stores down from Chimp's Pizza, which caters to children and their birthday parties.

After much discussion by each of the Board members, a vote was taken on a motion raised by Dollack to deny the zoning request. Dollack and Winter voted to deny the request, Troiana, Roger Bernal and Sydney Michel voted to pass it with several major stipulations, one including changing the hours of operation from 4:30 p.m. to 12 a.m. during the school year.

Mavrakis had originally intended to open the business from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m., seven days a week.

Troiana then noted that "after we make stipulations, we have to have someone go and maintain them." It was after this was said that the board again voted on the matter.

This time Dollack and Winter again voted "no" but were joined by Troiana who said that controlling the 18 year age limit and enforcing the other stipulations named by the board, would be a burden on the village.

The measure was denied 3-2. Board President James Callero and Board member Edward Main were not present at the July 3 meeting.

In another matter, the Zoning Board passed by 4-1 a zoning change request to install three coin operated devices in the Omni Store at 801 Civic Center.

Chris Levine, General Manager of Sugarloaf of Chicago, 410 Williston, Wheaton, explained to the Board that the devices were skill crane machines, where people, typically young children or adolescents, could play for 50 cents.

Sidney Michel was concerned with the location of the machines, stating that the Omni Store is located near the Village Civic Center. "Primarily, it is a food store. If we are going to start putting these things (coin operated games or devices) in volume, we are impeding people coming into these stores."

Angelo Troiani reminded him that the statute permits this type of installation. "The ordinance is there and the ordinance makes it legal for a place to have three coin operated devices. All we can do is put some teeth in it (the ordinance) and enforce it. We may not like it but, the ordinance is there."

Nancy and Bob Derrickson were granted a variation for new construction of their home at 7004 W. Jarvis, Niles, and Deborah O'Malley, 7411 Osceola, Chicago, representing St. Benedict's Home, 6930 Touhy Ave., Niles, was granted a change in zoning to operate a child day care for no more than 16 children inside the Home.

The day care center would be beneficial to the older residents and the children, O'Malley told the Board, who unanimously granted the zoning request.

Personnel have been asked to make frequent checks on the locker rooms, in addition to the assignment of additional personnel to guard locker rooms.

Persons who come into the facility with a guest pass will be asked to show identification, the director said. "We feel it was someone who came in on a guest pass [who perpetrated the three break-ins]," the director said.

Security lockers at the membership desk are also available for members to store money and valuables.

"We are alert to the fact that we need to be careful," the director said.
