by Bud Besser

Judge Edwin Berman Monday overturned a resolution which would have allowed Maine Township voters to vote on whether they favored building a $715,000 addition to the township building on Ballard Road.

Back in April, 200 residents turned out at the annual township town meeting and voiced their opinions regarding building the addition. By a narrow margin the vote favored residents voting on a referendum which would determine the building of the addition.

The judge contended voters should wield their power at the ballot box rather than at annual meetings. He said direct town meeting participation may have worked in the past, but in today's high-tech society such direct voting at meetings is not a likely means for successful government. He said, "The right of redress is at the ballot box. If you don't like 'em, vote 'em out."

Admittedly, the 200 residents at the April meeting are a small percentage of the 130,000 residents in Maine Township. But to deny voters a voice in determining an issue seemed an unusual opinion in limiting the voters' right of expression.

A couple of years ago a court overturned a Niles vote which sought to disband the Niles Park District. More than 65% of voters approved the

Niles family charged in repair scam

By Rosemary Tirio

Members of a local Gypsy family and a Park Ridge relation were arrested by Arlington Heights police July 27 and charged with misdemeanor criminal trespass to property and operating a door-to-door home repair business without a license. Members of the family crime ring are accused of defrauding several suburban seniors in home repair scams.

Michael Miller, 30, and Sandy Miller 20, both of Niles, and Walter Miller, 21, of Park Ridge were arrested when police saw them running across some yards in the 600 block of North Arlington Heights Road in the northwest suburb and stopped them. Police learned from neighbors that the men had tried to work their home repair scam in three homes on the block but were ejected by wary homeowners. One man said he had just thrown the men out of his house.

The three posted $100 bond and were released.

Michael Miller, 24, who has the same name and address of a 30-year-old relative arrested in Arlington Heights, was picked up in a separate incident after an 81-year-old widow in the 900 block of North Douglas Avenue called police and reported that Miller charged her $180 to surface-seal her driveway after first promising

Warehouse Club to close doors

The Warehouse Club will close its Niles business store and five remaining locations it owns in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania in September. The Warehouse Club once had more than a dozen stores in the Midwest and on the East Coast.

The company filed for Chapter 11 in February and a Warehouse Club spokesperson would only confirm the company's planned shutdown but not why it chose to liquidate at this time. As of February each of the Warehouse Club stores employed about 100 persons.

This past weekend, store employees told shoppers of the September closing and explained they would only accept cash and credit cards for purchases, not personal checks.

Niles Library plans $3.5 million expansion

by Kathleen Quirsfeld

Space, and more of it is what the Niles Public Library wants and needs, both in and out of its present building. To further this goal, the Library Board met with an architectural firm on July 20 who presented plans for expanding the existing structure.

Although providing more space for books and other materials is paramount to the Board, its second initiative to provide more parking space for patron cars, took center stage at the meeting.

With its goals neatly defined and prominently displayed at the front of the Library's Conference Room, the architectural firm Frye Gillian Molinaro presented expansion design models to the Board of Trustees and members of the public. Particular emphasis was placed on providing additional parking.

Keeping a sharp focus on the costs needed for the project, the firm determined that $3.5 million would be necessary for new construction. Michael Molinaro stated that several expansion concept designs were created for the best use of this money, mindful of one of the library's main concerns in providing more parking for patrons.

"When we left from our initial meeting, the library board told us we need to provide not only more space but provide for more cars," Molinaro said. "What we are trying to do is provide more parking for patrons."

Niles initiates licensing of daycare facilities

At the June 27 Village Board Meeting, the Board passed an ordinance licensing home daycare and child daycare centers. Home daycare is child care that is provided, for compensation, in a single family home which is the permanent residence of the person providing such daycare. A children's daycare center is a facility providing care for children on a fee basis that is located in a commercial area.

This ordinance establishes some local regulations and requires that all daycare facilities must now be licensed by the Village prior to operation. The purpose of this ordinance is to ensure the safety of our children.

Other regulations of the ordinance and applications may be obtained from the Code Enforcement Department of the Village at 7601 N. Milwaukee Ave. Daycare facilities presently in operation will have fees waived this year but must come in to register by September 1, 1995. Anyone desiring more information can call Code Enforcement at 967-6100.

Niles welcomes students from Pisa

On Saturday, July 15, the Village of Niles welcomed eight students from our sister city, Pisa, Italy. The students are between the ages of 15 and 18 years and have been residing with host families during their one month visit. The students recently returned to Niles from a four day trip to Washington, D.C. which was hosted by the Niles Sister City Association.

The student exchange program is a major element of sister cities. In September, 1995, Niles representatives will spend three weeks in Nafplion, Greece, the Village's other sister city. These exchanges provide an opportunity to develop a better understanding of each country's culture and to establish long lasting friendships.

State Authority supports elderly in Skokie

The Illinois Development Finance Authority has issued $8 million in Facility Revenue bonds on behalf of the Council for Jewish Elderly. Approximately $4.64 million in bonds proceeds will be used to finance the acquisition of equipment and the renovation of the Council's Lieberman Centre facility located at 9700 Gross Pointe Rd. in Skokie. The remaining $3.36 million in bond proceeds will be used to repay the previous bond issued by the Authority in 1992.

Funding from the Illinois Development Finance Authority will enable us to cost effectively renovate Lieberman's existing facilities, thereby providing residents with an improved physical environment," said Ronald Weismehl, executive vice president of the Council for Jewish Elderly.

The Council for Jewish Elderly is a private, not-for-profit social agency that offers facilities and services which assist the elderly community in the metropolitan Chicago area and maintain quality independent living. In 1981 the Council opened the Lieberman Geriatric Health Care Centre, a 240-bed skilled nursing facility to provide long-term care for elderly residents that for medical reasons can no longer remain independent.

Youth's misadventures lead to philosophy of business

by Joseph Zurawski

Ask around at the Morton Grove Historical Society or in the Local History Room of the Morton Grove Library about who the interesting personalities in early Morton Grove history and the name that keeps coming up is Irwin Dilg.

Irwin Dilg remembers playing "sheeny," a form of hockey, as a youth. Says Dilg, "We cut our hockey sticks out of trees with a crotch like that and a handle. We used to have tin cans for a puck. On Sundays we had our big game (when) a lot of people used to come to watch us play."

There was a bit more excitement at Squire Dinges' pickle yard. Dilg says with obvious relish (pun intended, listening to Dilg one can't resist), "They had big tanks in there. After swimming we'd go in the pickle barn there like a big long shed, and we'd get up on these rafters and reach in and get a pickle. Every once in a while we'd get a pickle in the back of the neck. One of the fellas would throw a pickle at us. 'Get out of here now! You get enough there!' he says. 'Before you know it you'll fall in there and we'll make a pickle out of you!' And we'd run then."

They'd take these crooked pickles that they couldn't put in a jar and throw them at us. They wouldn't throw a good pickle at us because that would be wasting a good pickle."

A love of horses
When young Dilg had a love of horses. The price he paid to nourish that love, even though money wasn't involved, left lifetime memories. He speaks of his "little buckskin bronco" that he "got for nothing."

Apparently the Reichter brothers had this horse that no one could ride. Dilg says, "I was watching that horse all the time. I liked him." When asked if he could ride the horse, Dilg replied, "Sure, Why?" One of the brothers claimed the horse was too wild to ride but the other brought the horse to Dilg to let him try riding it.

Dilg noticed the buckle was tied in a knot, instead of just being shortened. "You know that these knots would be on your legs?" asked Dilg. He shows his legs. Without waiting for a comment he continues, "Scars, yes. They rubbed my skin right down to the bone. And I couldn't even say nothing. I wouldn't even tell my mother. My stockings were full of blood all the time."

When his mother would ask about the blood, Dilg would respond, "I fell down." His mother would wash the wounds with soap and water and put on a bandage. "That was American Family soap. I'm still using it to this day. We used to get it by the case and I brought everything when we moved. That was eight years ago and I still got a half dozen bars downstairs. Still wash my dishes with it."

Dilg kept the horse for several years but other activities, including an interest in girls, convinced him it was time to give it to Charlie Peschke for $100. Since Charlie couldn't control the horse, he sold it to a "guy who said he could get $200 for the it because (the horse) is broke in already."

"So I cried like hell," says Dilg "but I couldn't stop it because the deal was made."

Dilg learns a philosophy of business

A few years later, Dilg got his own motorcycle. He describes coming "round the corner at Dempster and Milwaukee. John Steil's place was on the left-the house is still there. I'd come around with that motorcycle so fast. It was a dirt road, dust. I had a Khaki uniform on, greens, goggles, gloves. Vroom. I had my muffler taken off. I hung a right...they make so much noise. But I didn't think I was doing any harm."

It turns out that Steil, "this guy had chickens. And there be a chicken on the other side and I'd be coming along with that and that damned chicken's want to get ahead of me like that. And I'd hit the damn thing and geez! Broom! Not pay any attention to it."

When Dilg got home his mother asked him "whose chicken did you hit?" Dilg responded, "Nobody's." His mother told him to look in the mirror. "Egg all over my face and I didn't know it," says Dilg.

His mother gave him $2 to "go back and pay that farmer for that chicken." Dilg returned saying "the guy was ready to take pitchfork in hand," but after Dilg apologized, Steil took the money and told Dilg to slow down the next time.

When Steil came to the store the Dilg's owned - it was called the Morton Grove Exchange - he returned the $2 explaining "the chicken had no business on the other side (of the road)."

Steil did not want young Dilg to find out, but Dilg's mother, some time later, said, "You get honest people in the world just like Mr. Steil." Dilg questioned his mother and found out Steil returned the money for the chicken.

So Dilg complained to his mother saying Steil "should have given me the chicken if I paid for it." His mother reminded Dilg that he doesn't even like chicken. Dilg responded that we would have eaten it if it was fried.

Dilg concluded the chicken episode with this comment, "That's the way we got by in life. You know, we had to pay for everything we did, and don't insult anybody and be nice to people because they might be a customer of yours."

Although Irwin Dilg passed away in 1981 this account of his growing up in Morton Grove was preserved thanks to an oral history project that sought out, interviewed, transcribed, and now makes available these biographical statements of life in early Morton Grove. These are available only in the Local History Room of the Morton Grove Library for a few hours a week. Call 965-4220 for exact information.

Adult Day Program

Serious depression affects some 15 percent of those over 65, and many, if not most, of those cases are related to loss, according to Joseph S. Angelillo, Adult Day Program coordinator for Forest Health Systems, Des Plaines.

Angelillo, who holds a masters degree in clinical psychology, has specialized in geriatric psychological issues for the past 15 years.

"Feelings of loss aren't restricted to the death of a spouse or loved one," Angelillo says. "For a victim of stroke, heart attack or other illness, the loss of physical abilities and the control they once had also can trigger depression. So can the loss of what we perceive as our 'role' -- as provider or caretaker, for instance."

Statistics from the National Institute of Mental Health are unsettling: older Americans face four times the risk of depression as the general population. Successful treatment is available, however, for most cases of depression, regardless of age.

Forest's Adult Day Programs, which are located in Elgin and Woodstock, provide therapeutic settings that specifically address the needs of older adults who are having trouble coping with changes and loss that may accompany aging. The program operates weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Following a thorough psychological assessment, each participant receives an individualized treatment plan.

"When someone is showing a marked decline in interest in daily activities and a prolonged sense of sadness, it's important that they have a clinical assessment by a psychologist or psychiatrist," points out Angelillo. "Depression can be, but is not necessarily, linked to dementia. It also can be a side effect of certain medications."

To provide a strong network for program participants, family members and friends are encouraged to attend family support groups; individual counseling also is available to help family members understand the problems of depression, dementia or Alzheimer's.

In some cases, Angelillo says, family members are too helpful. "It may be difficult for the caretaker to accept, but stroke or heart attack victims don't need to have someone hovering and doing everything for them. That only makes them feel more powerless. What's needed is for the patient to learn to become as independent as possible, even though there'll be frustration and anger along the way."

Plan next year's taxes for more retirement income

If you're retired and got hit hard this past tax season, you're not alone. Taxes can now take a big bite even out of the moderate incomes of many retirees who are receiving Social Security. As a result, it's important to use strategic planning in order to minimize your tax burden.

If you have a moderate income in addition to your Social Security benefits, current tax laws could reduce that income considerably by taxing as much as 85 percent of your 1995 Social Security benefits. And if those extra taxes mean you need to generate additional income by selling appreciated property, such as stocks or real estate, you could find yourself facing a harsh capital gains tax, and possibly even higher a tax on your Social Security benefits.

How can you minimize taxes and increase your own personal financial security? A free booklet, "Tax Strategies to Increase Your Retirement Income," can help you keep more of your retirement income this year and in future years. The booklet covers important areas where you may be able to minimize your taxes, including Social Security benefits, itemized deductions, and IRAs. It also offers tips on keeping gains on your personal residence, and avoiding a capital gains tax.

Informative and easy-to-read, "Tax Strategies to Increase Your Retirement Income" also discusses charitable remainder trusts and charitable gift annuities as financial planning techniques that may dramatically increase your spendable income and also reduce your current income tax liability. To receive a free copy of "Tax Strategies to Increase Your Retirement Income," call toll-free 1-(800) 843-8114, Ext. 52, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays Eastern time, or write the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. TXS, Washington, D.C. 20069.

New publication to focus on divorce issues

To provide useful and timely information on divorce-related issues, a bi-monthly newsletter of the latest family, social, and legal trends in divorce across the United States began publication in July. Divorce Talk is believed to be the only newsletter addressed to this topic which touches the lives of more than 5,000,000 Americans each year.

"Anyone who is contemplating divorce, is in the divorce process, or is dealing with any of divorce's many after-effects, will find this a useful, supportive and informative publication," said Dr. Robert B. Shapiro, a psychologist and custody evaluator. "We are never taught anything about divorce: our neighbors, a family member, or television may be our only sources of information," he adds. "Feeling safe and being optimistic about the future is based, in part, on knowing your options; knowing what you are going through; knowing what to expect; and planning for the future."

Every issue of this easy-to-read eight-page newsletter contains useful articles about custody-visitation issues, finances, domestic violence and abuse, trials, dating, blended families along with recent judges, decisions and much more.

Dr. Shapiro leads an advisory board for Divorce Talk which consists of other mental health professionals, attorneys, and judges who are currently active throughout the United States. Among the topics that will be addressed in future issues are:

- Alimony, Maintenance, and Child Support
- Division of Property
- Custody Issues and Visitation Issues
- Removing Children From Their State Residence
- Martial Settlement Agreements
- Domestic Violence and Its Impact on Divorce Settlements
- Attorney Role in Divorce
- State Agencies for Children
- Women and Family Shelters
- Social Security and Retirement Benefits
- Mediation
- Divorce Trial and The Latest Court Rulings
- Grandparents' Rights
- Dating After Divorce
- Remarriage
- Blended Families and Step-Parenting
- Celebrity Divorces

Subscriptions and more information about the newsletter is available from Divorce Talk USA, 378 Park Avenue, Suite 300, Glenview, Illinois, 60022 or call (708) 835-8050.

School day study begins

On Thursday, July 20, the Educational Policy Advisory Council (EPAC) began the first in a series of on-going meetings to study the current school day schedule, hear concerns regarding the present school day arrangement, identify strengths and weaknesses of the current set-up, and recommend, if necessary, any improvements. The results of this study are expected to be reported to the District 219 Board of Education in December of this year.

This initial meeting served to identify the goals and clarify the timelines by which this study is to be conducted. The ultimate aim of this intense school day examination is to determine how the district can best meet the needs of our students during the time available for instruction. With this study, the Board of Education hopes to increase instructional time for students while maintaining student options to take 7 to 8 classes; use time differently, if feasible, to decrease schedule conflicts; maximize collaborative planning time for teachers; offer each teacher or class, on at least a weekly basis, an extended period for project or problem-based learning; and lengthen each daily period beyond the current 40 minutes.

Over the course of the next several months EPAC will hold a number of meetings to set parameters, design and implement surveys, and suggest and evaluate potential school day models. Meetings are currently scheduled for 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 10, Thursday, Aug. 17, Wednesday, Aug. 23, Tuesday, Aug. 29, Thursday, Sept. 7, Tuesday, Sept. 12, Tuesday, Sept. 19, Thursday, Sept. 28, Thursday, Oct. 5, Tuesday, Oct. 17, and Monday, Oct. 30. All meetings are open to the public and are held in the Board Room at the District 219 Administrative offices, 7700 Gross Point Rd., Skokie.

EPAC is an organization composed of parents, students, teachers and an administrator from each school which reviews and initiates proposed changes in policy regarding students. In addition to the school day study, EPAC also regularly reviews the student handbook and grade weight change proposals generated by the District Curriculum Council.

The workshop will be held on Tuesday, August 22, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Women's Business Development Center, 8 South Michigan, Suite 400, Chicago.

This workshop is designed for established small business owners who want to sell their products or services to corporations or governmental entities, and covers the intricacies of becoming certified with both governmental bodies and the private sector through the Women's Business Enterprise initiative and other certifying agencies.

Registration fee is $30 and includes all materials.

For further information or to register, call the Women's Business Development Center at (312) 853-3477.

Registration and prepayment are recommended to guarantee space in the workshop.

Home Alone skills taught

If your child will be spending any time at home alone, the Northbrook Park District offers a unique class to help him/her feel comfortable at with everyday occurrences. Children, ages 6-9, will be taught how to handle phone messages, deal with strangers, administer first aid and safely entertain themselves while they await the return of an adult.

Parents are encouraged to attend "Home Alone" with their children on Saturday, Sept. 16, from 11:15 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. The course will be conducted by a certified American Red Cross instructor at the Leisure Center, 3323 Walters Ave. Register at 1810 Walters Ave. or call (708) 291-2980.

Keep children buckled in their seats

Although nearly 600 children under the age of four are killed annually in automobile crashes and more than 130,000 are injured, compliance with laws requiring the use of child safety seats in cars remains as low as 50 percent, according to trauma surgeon, Dr. Thomas Esposito of Loyola University Medical Center.

Esposito, who is assistant director for injury analysis and prevention at Loyola's Burn and Shock Trauma Institute and president of the Chicago Metropolitan Trauma Society, notes that using restraints reduces by half a child's risk of being killed or severely injured in a car crash.

"Most people are unaware of the Illinois Child Passenger Protection Law which requires that children be properly secured in car seats or seat belts while riding in cars," noted Esposito. Violation of this law can result in a $25 fine for the first offense and $50 fines for subsequent infractions.

Esposito recommends that parents consistently buckle children into their seats, even when traveling only a few blocks in the neighborhood. Not using a restraint system for short distances confuses the child and introduces an option to "make exceptions," he explained.

Furthermore, three out of four collisions occur within 25 miles of home.

For longer trips, Esposito recommends bringing a travel bag containing toys, books and coloring paper that will occupy children and keep them from trying to free themselves from car seats.

"Because children want to be like adults, parents set the best examples by using seat belts themselves," he added.

Esposito advises parents to purchase a car seat that fits the child's age, size and weight and to use the model in compliance with the manufacturer's instructions.

"In cars equipped with a passenger-side air bag, parents should keep children who are under one year of age and weigh less than 20 pounds in the back seat in the rear-facing position. Otherwise, if the air bag deploys, the force might seriously injure a baby's head and brain," Esposito warned.

For children weighing 20 pounds to 40 pounds, the car safety seat should be in the forward-facing position. Older children, 40 pounds to 60 pounds, should ride in booster seats until the vehicle's safety belt fits properly around them when they sit directly on the regular car seat.

Research shows that child-passenger protection devices, when used properly, are 71 percent effective in reducing the need for hospitalization.

In addition to using child car seats, Esposito recommends that drivers make sure a vehicle is in good working order, including its brakes and tires.

The Loyola Burn and Shock Trauma Institute, initiated in 1992, draws together experts in patient care, basic sciences, clinical research and education to learn more about the body's response to trauma and physical shock and to develop new strategies for healing and preventing injuries.

For more information on child transportation safety, call the Loyola University Burn and Shock Trauma Institute at (708) 327-2400, or the Illinois Department of Transportation, Division of Traffic Safety at (217) 782-5865.

ed by the Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra and The Newport Jazz Festival on Tour. Jazz at Orchestra Hall represents a firm commitment by Orchestra Hall to this uniquely American art form.

"Our contest is especially for new and unpublished poets seeking a forum that enables them to share their work," says Jerome P. Welch, Publisher. "We are looking for sincerity and originality in a wide variety of styles and themes. You do not have to be an experienced poet to enter or win." Poems should be sent to Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum, Inc., Dept. J, 203 Diamond St., Sistersville, WV 26175.

Fun Fest '95 at Glenview Terrace Sunday

How do you make a fundraiser that has been a successful six-year tradition in Glenview even more successful? Make sure that more people can share in the fun and games by moving the date to a Sunday?

And, that is exactly what Glenview Terrace Nursing Center is doing with its 7th Annual Community Fun Fest which will be held on Sunday, Aug. 13, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Fun Fest, which last year raised over $7,000 toward research and community education programs for the American Heart Association, will be the biggest yet with rides and games by moving the date to a Sunday?

Serving as Chairman of the Fun Fest, Curtis Fletcher feels it is a natural extension of Glenview Terrace's philosophy of "Care with the human touch." "Our residents and employees look forward to this event all year and work together to make it fun for all who come and a real success for the American Heart Association. "Home with Heart" has come to reflect not only the day's theme but also how we work with each other all year round," says Curtis.

"Because of the Sunday date this year," says Curtis, "we are expecting this Community Fun Fest to be much more of a family event." And, the games, rides and booths will reflect a family carnival atmosphere. A 25-foot Giant Sled and the ever-popular Ferris Wheel will create excitement for kids of all ages. A new entertainment addition will be the Jessie White tumblers. And, one of the busiest attractions of the day will again be the "Wide World of Taste," a tent filled with a variety of ethnic foods made by staff members and families from favorite family recipes. This tent gives everyone an opportunity to pitch in and contribute in their own unique way to this day of fundraising for the American Heart Association.

"Residents and their families play an integral part in the day by collecting tickets and supervising booths," says Maggie Harris, Director of Social Services at Glenview Terrace. "Their participation helps them feel that they are a vital part of the fundraising effort. They feel good about themselves and their ability to help others."

In addition to the food, booths, games and rides, there will be an opportunity to receive a massage and have blood pressure and cholesterol levels checked.

A highlight of the day will be a raffle of items donated by local businesses. "This raffle gives the entire Glenview community a tangible way to support the Community Fun Fest and contribute to the American Heart Association," says Curtis.

All monies raised will help the American Heart Association conduct research and community education programs in the fight against cardio-vascular diseases, the nation's number one killer.

Glenview Terrace Nursing Center is located at 1511 Greenwood Rd., Glenview. For more information regarding the 7th Annual Community Fun Fest, call (708) 729-9090.

County warns about immunizations

Cook County health officials are concerned that adults are not properly protected against tetanus and diphtheria - two serious diseases easily prevented through immunization. It is estimated that 50% of people over the age of 50 in the United States are not adequately protected against tetanus and diphtheria. The Cook County Department of Public Health (CCDPH) recommends that all adults receive the tetanus/diphtheria (Td) booster every ten years.

"An important purpose of our health department is disease prevention," said Cook County Board President John Stroger. "Adults - not just children - need to be properly immunized to protect their health."

"It's an educational thing. Adults simply do not realize that they need to get a (Td) booster every ten years regardless of their risk for infection. The misconception is that we only need if we step on a rusty nail or are working in flood waters when the reality is that both diseases, especially tetanus, can pose a very serious threat to our health every day," said Kay Knudsen, RN, immunization program coordinator for the CCDPH.

Currently, the former Soviet Union is experiencing an outbreak of diphtheria which, according to World Health Organization officials, threatens to spread to other countries. Unpro-

Forest Health Systems therapeutic school

Forest Health Systems has announced a new therapeutic day school, scheduled to begin in August, that will accommodate high-risk, special education young people between the ages of 12 and 21.

According to Jane Rubenstein, associate administrator of education, the Forest Therapeutic Day School will provide intensive therapeutic support and highly individualized academic attention. The team includes psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, and specialists in speech and language, special education and activity therapy.

"With an enrollment limited to 24, this program can optimally serve the middle or high school student who needs intensive one-on-one attention," Rubenstein said. "And the self-contained, highly structured, secure setting will help students who are easily distracted to maintain concentration and energy." Strong family involvement also will be an important component of the program, she said.

Located at Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines, the school will have access to a pool and gymnasium facilities.

Referrals to the school must be coordinated through a student's home district. For further information about the Forest Therapeutic Day School, contact Jane Rubenstein at (708) 635-4100, ext. 257.

Serving the northwest suburbs for more than 35 years, Forest Health Systems is a group of behavioral health facilities, including Forest Hospital, that offer treatment programs for children, adolescents and adults suffering from mental and emotional disorders.

Dieting dangers

by Karen Collins, M.S., R.D.
American Institute for Cancer Research

A common expression says, "If you're going to do something, don't do it halfway." However, evidence is mounting that this is not true regarding weight loss. Strict dieting practices may increase the tendency for binge eating, which can erase all the weight loss achieved on a diet.

A study of adolescent girls' dieting practices recently published in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association found that binge eating was strongly related to dieting practices that were classified as unhealthy (including skipping meals, very low calorie levels and eating just one food a day) and especially to practices classified as dangerous (including fasting, vomiting, laxatives and diet pills). People who did not diet and those who made modest changes (such as physical activity, balanced food selections, and eating less fat and sugar) had low frequencies of binge-eating.

This link of rigid dieting and binge-eating has been seen in other studies, too. Researchers at the University of Toronto suggest that diets make people feel deprived, which leads to overeating and binge-eating. They say that food and eating tend to dominate the thoughts of dieters, along with fears of losing the tight control they believe is necessary for success.

The study of adolescent girls found that binge-eating was also related to self-esteem, body dissatisfaction, exaggerated importance of weight, and extreme guilt after overeating. Experts say that this points out the need for education and support regarding realistic weight and shape goals. Not all Americans are meant to look like Cathy Crawford or Fabio, and we need to create an acceptance of a wider range of healthy body shapes. A vicious cycle can develop in which perfectionistic dieting attitudes lead to bingeing, and bingeing in turn leads to more negative thinking and ever-stricter dieting.

Contrary to the old advice of avoiding "halfway efforts," the best approach to reaching and maintaining a healthy weight is to make modest changes in the lifestyle you are already living. Find a physical activity you can enjoy regularly. Create permanent eating habits that support good health and that are realistic for you. The American Institute for Cancer Research dietary guidelines form an excellent basis for overall good health. No foods need to be given up completely. Basically, keep dietary fat low and emphasize fruits, vegetables and whole grains in your food choice. Not only will such a lifestyle help control your weight, it will also lower your risk of cancer and give you more energy to enjoy life.

For a free booklet giving advice on how to "Get Fit, Trim Down," send a stamped (55 cents postage), self-addressed envelope to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. TD, Washington, DC 20069.

'Time Out' to fitness and sports-related injuries

While most college and professional athletes have the benefit of time-out calls and team physicians for on-the-field mishaps, many "weekend warriors" do not have access to such aids.

In turn, as Americans become increasingly involved in physical fitness and amateur sports, they risk a greater chance of being injured than professional athletes, according to Loyola University Medical Center's chief of sports medicine, Dr. Pietro Tonino.

"The most common sports injuries involve orthopaedic conditions such as sprains and muscle-pulls as well as medical conditions including exercise-induced asthma or cardiac problems that limit physical activity," noted Tonino, who is assistant professor of orthopaedic surgery.

"Many sports injuries can be avoided by stretching before any type of exercise," said Tonino. "Stretching loosens the muscles for optimum performance and is extremely important before exercise."

"Approach any sport or exercise activity slowly and gradually build up speed and frequency," he said.

Tonino recommends that a person who has not been physically active for several months or more, but wants to get back into shape, start at a level that is 40 percent to 50 percent less strenuous than what the person was accustomed to in the past.

"Swimming is another way for people to 'get back in shape' because the activity increases cardiovascular endurance and aerobic capacity," Tonino said.

"A person injured in a sports activity should seek prompt medical attention to reduce the risks of repeated injury," added Tonino.

In addition, Tonino is the team physician for the Loyola Ramblers basketball team, and for Lewis University in Romeoville, Triton College in River Grove, Fenwick High School in Oak Park and Romeoville High School in Romeoville. Tonino has served as a physician for the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Diamond Shamrock to license process

UOP announced that Diamond Shamrock will license and install a new, grass-roots UOP Carom process unit at its Three Rivers, TX, refinery for the extraction of benzene, toluene, and xylenes from 20,000 BPSD reformat feedstock. Start up of the Carom unit is scheduled for the first quarter of 1997.

For the Carom process, UOP developed a unique solvent system composed of tetraethylene glycol and a proprietary solvent that not only enhances the aromatics capacity of the solvent, but also improves aromatics selectivity. High purity aromatics are recovered by a combination of liquid-liquid extraction and extractive distillation. The versatile Carom units can process a wide range of feedstocks, including reformat, pyrolysis gasoline, and coke oven light oil. In addition, the special solvent system can be tailored to handle virtually any concentration of aromatics in the feed.

Headquartered in San Antonio, Texas, Diamond Shamrock is a regional refiner and marketer of petroleum products. Other businesses include retail marketing, petrochemical processing, and the marketing and storage of natural gas liquids.

UOP, located in Des Plaines, is a leading international supplier and licensor of process technology, catalysts, process plants, and technical and engineering services to the petroleum refining, petrochemical, and gas processing industries. UOP is the world's leading supplier of the technology, used for the production of benzene, toluene, and paraxylene.

Ameritech cuts Illinois rates

Ameritech's prices in Illinois, already among the lowest in the country, will be reduced another $40 million, effective Thursday.

Ameritech is providing these savings to its Illinois customers as the first annual adjustment under a price regulation plan proposed by the company in 1992 and approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission last October.

"Ameritech is pleased to bring significant savings to our customers, making basic telephone service an even greater value in Illinois," said Doug Whitley, president of Ameritech Illinois. "At the same time, updated approaches to regulation are giving us more flexibility to compete in new markets and bring the full benefits of advanced communications to all our customers."

The overall package reduces consumer rates by $23 million.

business rates by about $15 million, and charges that long distance companies pay to use Ameritech's local network by about $2 million.

Consumer calling charges will be reduced by increasing volume discounts that are applied to customer bills automatically. The higher a customer's monthly calling charges, the greater the discount.

Reductions also include $2.1 million in consumer savings on call management features like Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Three-Way Calling and Automatic Callback. Other consumer reductions are being applied to one-time charges when ordering a call management feature or changing existing service.

In addition, consumers are guaranteed no increases through 1999 in their monthly line charge or charges for calls in their local calling area.

Business customers will see a total of $15 million in reductions, due mainly to lower one-time charges for ordering new service or changing existing service. For example, the one-time charge for establishing new business service will decrease nearly 40 percent, from $84.50 to $52.35.

Other business reductions apply to private line services (business lines solely dedicated for use between two business locations.)

Ameritech, one of the world's largest communication companies, helps more than 13 million customers keep in touch. The company provides a wide array of local phone, data and video services in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. Ameritech is creating dozens of new information, entertainment and interactive services for homes, businesses and governments around the world.

One of the world's leading cellular companies, Ameritech served more than 1.5 million cellular and 700,000 paging customers, and holds cellular interests in Norway and Poland. Ameritech owns interests in directories in Germany and other countries. Nearly 1 million investors hold Ameritech (NYSE: AIT) shares.

Be ready for new Illinois area codes

Sprint/Centel-Illinois urges its customers to gear up for new area codes coming to the Chicago area.

The new 847 area code will be assigned to all Sprint/Centel north and northwest suburban customers who have had the 708 area code, effective Jan. 20, 1996. Chicago residents and businesses, including those served by Sprint/Centel, will continue to use the 312 area code. This results from a decision made earlier this year by the Illinois Commerce Commission to split the current 708 suburban area code.

"It became obvious the supply of 708 numbers was on the verge of becoming exhausted. The popularity of fax machines, cellular phones, pagers, modems and second lines in homes had rapidly depleted the number of available phone numbers," explained Dave Lawrenz, Sprint/Centel business affairs administrator.

"We anticipate yet another area code, 630, will be introduced in the western suburbs in late 1996 or early 1997, depending upon how quickly the numbers in reserve are used up," Lawrenz said.

"We urge our customers to plan for the change now. Begin notifying friends, relatives or business customers who must dial your area code. Remember to use your new number on checks, address labels, stationery or any other item which may include your telephone number," Lawrenz said.

Business customers are reminded they may have a telephone system which will need to be re-programmed at the time of the area code change. These customers should contact their communications vendor now to arrange for any software, programming or other changes that may be necessary to accommodate the new area codes.

Sprint/Centel offers its business customers a toll-free number, 1 (800) 539-7229, to call for information on how to update their phone systems or for other questions regarding the new area codes.

Multi-Pure drinking water systems for your home

Fact-Illinois has the worst lead problem in the U.S. According to the E.P.A. lead causes learning disabilities and birth defects. By the year 2015 every home will need a water filtration device, because the water that comes out of the tap does not assure it will sustain health, only life.

Multi-Pure has been manufacturing and distributing the best solid carbon block water filtration for 25 years. This system removes lead chemical contaminants, chlorine, particulate matter and cryptosporidium, a parasite in Chicago water, and has an equal warranty to prove it. More and more chemicals are put into our water to try to kill these bacteria. Our bodies can only filter out so many germs. Last year, just two hours north of Chicago, some 400,000 Milwaukee area residents became ill, after cryptosporidium, a water-borne microbe, entered the water system.

Multi-Pure was recently featured on the television program,

Holy Family holds memorial mass

A memorial mass will be held at Holy Family Medical Center for Helen Summers, RN, of Des Plaines, in the medical center's Chapel on Wednesday, Aug. 16 at 11 a.m.

Helen, a volunteer in nursing at Holy Family, passed away Monday, July 24. Helen was an integral part of the Holy Family staff since the hospital opened in Pro Files On America. It is certified by the National Sanitation Foundation.

For eight years, Multi-Pure has been an independent distributor in the northwest area of Chicago and suburbs.

Imagine pure water at your tap for less than 10¢ per gallon. The human body is approximately 85% water. Given the vast amount of chemicals, metals and chlorine, which is known to destroy the positive cholesterol, isn't it wise to provide the best source possible at such a reasonable amount to safeguard yourself and family?

Chicago Life Magazine published and reported on water systems for homes and Multi-Pure was rated No. 1 for home water filter systems. So, safeguard your family from killer bacteria that are found in our waters.

For more information, call (708) 519-1898 or 324-3945 for a free home trial of pure drinking water for you and your family.

Since that time, she worked as a volunteer both at Holy Family Medical Center and the Holy Family Health Center. She will be greatly missed by both staff and patients.

Public Indecency

A 27-year-old woman employed as a nanny alerted the assistant manager of a fabric store in the 8200 block of Golf Road that she observed a man standing in the aisle about 20 feet away from her exposing himself.

The victim described the offender as being in his late 40s or early 50s, balding with dark hair, medium build, tan complexion and wearing thick glasses with dark frames.

The victim said the offender did not approach or speak to her. The assistant manager followed the offender out of the store but lost sight of him in the parking lot.

Burglary

A 42-year-old neighbor observed pry marks on a basement door on the west side of a home in the 8100 block of Octavia and reported it to Niles police about 6 p.m. July 30.

Police found considerable damage to the door, which was separated from the jamb, but entry was not gained. The offenders gained entry by prying open the back door, opened cabinet doors in the dining room and entered two bedrooms ransacking closets and dresser drawers.

The owners of the home were on vacation, and it is not known whether anything was taken. Numerous televisions, VCRs and stereo equipment appeared to be undisturbed.

Unknown offender(s) entered a business in the 9100 block of Milwaukee Ave. sometime between 8:45 p.m. July 27 and 8 a.m. July 28. The office area was ransacked and the key to the soft drink machine and the change box containing about $150 to $200 was stolen.

The offender(s) apparently lifted the acoustical tile and broke through the ceiling by unknown means, entering the business next door.

The impression of a footprint was lifted from the top of the soft drink machine.

The 52-year-old owner of a store in the 9100 block of Golf Road reported that unknown offender(s) used a hammer to break the southeast side rear window and entered the store ransacking the desk area and file drawers and taking between $500 and $700 in cash and rolls of change.

The offender(s) also broke into the victim's briefcase and removed Visa receipts and a green bank deposit bag.

Theft by deception
A 45-year-old homeowner in the 7700 block of Waukegan Road gave two checks totaling $6,380 for work on the foundation and driveway of her home July 31 between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.

The offender, described as between 30 and 40 years old, 5'6"

Senate passes bill targeting fake IDs

Secretary of State George H. Ryan thanked Senate members for passage of his proposal to crack down on those who own or manufacture fake out-of-state or federal identification cards.

The measure -- House Bill 2204 -- cleared the Senate unanimously and now awaits action by the governor. The legislation also passed the House unanimously in April.

This legislation is going to let us close a loophole that is now letting young people use fake out-of-state IDs without fear of any penalty," Ryan said. "These new penalties will help us deter many young people from drinking -- and that means we can eliminate a major factor in many highway deaths."

Ryan's proposal would extend current penalties for the possession, use or manufacture of fake drivers' licenses and identification cards to false out-of-state and federal IDs.

Currently, anyone caught carrying a fake ID faces a minimum $500 fine or 50 hours of community service, while manufacturers can face a maximum five-year prison term plus a $10,000 fine.

Home owners across Cook County can better protect themselves against unscrupulous merchants offering home repairs and improvements this summer by following some tips offered by Cook County State's Attorney Jack O'Malley.

Beware of anyone who:

- Wants payment in advance or says full payment is required before the work is done.
- Offers a price substantially lower than the average cost of the product or service.
- Uses high-pressure tactics such as "this price is available only if you sign today."
- Solicits door-to-door or by telephone.
- Is unable to provide references, or can't show proof of being licensed, insured, or bonded.
- Claims to have just finished a job down the street and offers you a great price because there are leftover materials.
- Promises a great price if you permit your home to be used as a model or show-house.

O'Malley said a Cook County grand jury recently indicted the owner of a vertical blind business with seven counts of theft by deception for allegedly soliciting business door to door and then never doing the work.

The grand jury indicted Andres Sarquis, 38, address unknown, who allegedly operated A&R Vertical Blinds, located at 7128 W. Grand Ave. in Chicago.

Prosecutors from the State's Attorney's Consumer Fraud Unit allege that Sarquis solicited orders from a total of seven home owners from the Northwest Side, Des Plaines, Elmwood Park and Bartlett and never installed the blinds. In most of the cases, victims allegedly gave Sarquis a deposit ranging between $200 and $1,500.

Sarquis will be arraigned July 13 at the Cook County Criminal Courthouse.

If you think you have been a victim of home-repair fraud or would like a free Home Repair Fraud brochure, contact the State's Attorney's Consumer Fraud Division at (312) 345-2400.

disbanding of the district. But the court reversed the voter's decision and the district remains alive and well.

This township controversy invites the question how important township government is in our area?

Since the township's 130,000 residents include 30,000 Niles residents, 23,000 Morton Grove residents, and about 70,000 residents from Des Plaines and Park Ridge, we wonder how necessary is the retention of township government in our area?

dents have a fire department in their area but police protection comes from the County. Fire protection also comes from neighboring incorporated towns which provide mutual services to their area. The services of the County duplicates the few services the township renders.

We've always had the impression of the township government tries to add services which will justify its existence. And we've believed township government exists to perpetuate the jobs and benefits of those who profit from its existence.

Is township government little more than a boondoggle? We'd like to hear from you...and particularly from residents in unincorporated Maine Township.

ing to determine this evening is how big an addition to we build, and how many additional cars should we put on the site."

Lonn Frye, senior partner at Frye Gillian Molinaro, discussed all five concept designs noting the potential expansion zones, city zoning requirements, square footage needs, the taxing and spending limitations of each and how much more parking, if any, could be created.

Of the five models Frye presented, the second design, which would provide 21,360 new footage and approximately 25 new parking spaces, appeared to be most popular with the Trustees.

With this design, a lot of the new construction would be built in the back with another new structure designed to "flow forward" would be erected toward the street. Frye also stressed that it would fit in nicely with existing architecture and the library could stay open during the construction.

A parking deck, above the second floor of 28 spaces for the staff was also included with this design.

On the negative side, Frye said that this design would take away to do the job for $18. He was charged with suspicion of operating a door-to-door home repair business without a license.

The Miller family and their scams are well known to police in Niles and the northwest suburbs. After studying an area, sometimes for months, to identify the homes of seniors, they approach the owners asking to do driveway repairs.

After gaining a homeowner's confidence, the three would enter the home to discuss the proposed job, and while one discussed business, the other two would roam through the house stealing items of value, according to police.

Fucarino said that many Gypsies are upstanding, honest citizens, but some prey upon the elderly and generally cause frustrating problems for law enforcement officers.

Fucarino said that although many are involved in criminal activities, generally Gypsies are not involved in violent crimes concentrating on theft by deception and what Fucarino described as sleight-of-hand. "You might lose money or jewelry, but you won't get hurt," Fucarino said.

Often Gypsies elude the law because elderly homeowners are unable to identify them or decline to file charges to avoid lengthy court appearances or retaliation. Many times scam victims ask only that their money or missing items be returned to them. "Niles police have had several repair scams in recent years and have been able to obtain restitution of money lost and no formal charges were filed," Fucarino said.

But many scam victims are not that lucky. "They [Gypsies] have been arrested for doing major crimes," Fucarino said. "I've seen them're suspected of stealing hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Police advise homeowners to be wary of any door-to-door solicitations and to know their contractor before handing over any money.

Sex charge ...

The 13-year veteran was charged with sexually harassing a 19-year-old Maine Township man who claimed Cadle "made homosexual advances and tried to arrange a date" during conversations he had while on duty in a convenience store parking lot last February.

The commission found Cadle innocent of charges that he solicited sex and harassed a 31-year-old Des Plaines man he had stopped for a traffic violation near Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road in December 1992.

Following that incident, Police Chief Robert Sturini, then a captain, ordered Cadle not to engage in such practices. The insubordination charge sustained by the commission August 2 resulted from Cadle's alleged violation of that order.

Mayor Sherwood said he was "bitterly disappointed" the commission did not start dismissal proceedings against Cadle. He called the decision "mind-boggling." Cadle had been suspended with pay since June, commissioners said.

Attorney Lisa Lopatka, who represented Des Plaines during the hearings, said the commission's decision is "a slap on the wrist" that "sends the wrong message to police officers and Des Plaines residents."

Sturini said the decision would result in negative "moral implications" but hoped the case "will not reflect on the other fine officers in the department."

Cadle's attorney, Stanley L. Hill, said he would not file an appeal of the charges. Cadle declined to comment.

Lopatka said the city would "seriously consider" appealing the ruling.
