The new sign terms AT&T's claim that removing the tower is too expensive "a bunch of baloney." However, while you can try to fight city hall, it seems much more difficult to fight geography and the FCC.
Because the tower is located in Chicago, the giant conglomerate

Rotary announces recipients of fund-raiser

Every year for the past 20 years Park Ridge Rotary has solicited proposals from local non-profit organizations or causes to be the recipient of their annual fund-raiser. Rotary's criteria is based on a need unique in some manner which will develop support by the community and other business people. Rotary's focus is on a request for a specific and tangible project or need.

This year Rotary is proud to announce it is pledging their support to two beneficiaries, due to their unique issues and practical solutions. "The Youth Campus was chosen," according to Ken Rojcek, recipient committee member, "because of their willingness to accept the challenge to develop a subsidized early infant day-care program - a need which continues to surface in our community. Avenues to Independence was also chosen because the expansion of their work program also fills a need in the community." This pledge is a two year monetary commitment for Rotary to both organizations.

Funds donated to The Youth Campus will be used to adapt existing space on the 1st floor of The Haake Diagnostic Home (a facility already caring for medically fragile children) by reconfiguring the physical space, developing a new interior design, and purchasing equipment such as cribs, playpens, high chairs, and rockers.

The most urgent need in Maine Township is subsidized daycare for children ages 6 weeks to 15 months. There currently is no center providing subsidized child care to this group of children, only 15 months and older.

nering with Avenues to Independence (formerly NSAR) to fund the start-up of a lawn maintenance service. This service will be staffed by workers with disabilities. The plan is to purchase equipment necessary for a maintenance service, such as a 48" industrial mower, hedge trimmers, and other lawn tools. Additionally, Avenues will train individuals to develop the skills necessary to perform lawn maintenance.

Park Ridge Rotary will be asking companies, businesses, and individuals to help support the first phase of these two programs which will begin serving a group of individuals and families in great need. There will be a fund-raiser dance on Friday, May 8, 1998 at the Hotel Sofitel in Rosemont.

Jane Meagher, Fund-raiser Chairman for Rotary, says "this festive evening includes dinner, dancing, and silent auction with a raffle offering a grand prize of $10,000 and second prize of a trip to an Ireland Castle."

Rotary is pledging its support to two worthy beneficiaries. We hope the community will help us and pledge its support also," the chairman explains. Jane can be reached at 847-696-4472 for tickets or more information.

AHA sponsors Wellness Celebration for women

Chicago area women are invited to bring their mothers, sisters, daughters, co-workers and friends to the American Heart Association's first "Each One, Reach One" Women's Wellness Celebration, a free, fun-filled evening devoted to heart-healthy demonstrations, discussions, door prizes and more. The celebration takes place from 6-9 p.m. on Tuesday, February 24 at the Rosemont Theatre, 5400 N. River Rd. in Rosemont. Admission and parking are free.

Avenues to Independence 45th Anniversary

Secretary of State George Ryan will serve as Honary Chairperson at this year's Love Affair, a gala fundraiser which will also commemorate Avenues to Independence's 45th anniversary celebration.

Avenues is a not-for-profit group founded in 1953 by a group of parents who wanted to give their children who had a primary diagnosis of mental retardation, an education. Today, Avenues offers vocational, residential and leisure opportunities to 250 adults.

The Love Affair is set for Saturday, Feb. 21 at the Ramada O'Hare Penthouse in Rosemont. Tickets are $100 a person. For further information, call (847) 299-9720.

Donna Richardson will emcee the event and demonstrate easy, time-saving ways to jump start any health and fitness routine. Carol Ritchie, recipe developer for the just-released second edition of the American Heart Association Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol Cookbook, will provide heart-healthy cooking demonstrations and snacks. Cholesterol and blood pressure screenings, a panel discussion with medical experts and an audience Q & A also will be featured at the event. All attendees will receive a free "Each One, Reach One" T-shirt.

The American Heart Association is bringing women together to share a vital message: cardiovascular disease is the number one killer of American women ages 35 and older, claiming more lives than all forms of cancer and other leading causes of death combined. Yet, a few simple lifestyle changes can reduce the risk. The Women's Wellness Celebration will show women that adopting a healthier lifestyle is easier and more fun--than they think.

The "Each One, Reach One" Women's Wellness Celebration continues the American Heart Association's National Women's Heart Disease and Stroke Campaign, which was launched last September as a public awareness effort about women and cardiovascular diseases. The campaign is partly funded by the Aetna Foundation and Aetna U.S. Healthcare to increase awareness of women's cardiovascular health issues. It also is partially funded by an unrestricted educational grant from Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories.

Registration for the "Each One, Reach One" Women's Wellness Celebration is not required but is highly recommended. For registration information contact the American Heart Association of Metropolitan-Chicago at 312-346-4675.

Women in Engineering Day at Northwestern

Northwestern University will sponsor an all-day career workshop for high school and junior high school girls on Saturday, Feb. 28 beginning at 8:30 a.m. at the Technological Institute Building, 2145 Sheridan Road, Evanston.

The workshop, called "Today's Decisions for Tomorrow's Opportunities," is designed to encourage young women to consider engineering and the sciences in their education and career choices.

Women In Engineering Day has been held at Northwestern annually since 1970, when only 4 percent of the students in its Robert R. McCormick School of Engineering and Applied Science were women. Today, one-third of McCormick students are women, putting it atop the Big Ten's engineering schools and among the nation's leaders in the percentage of women it enrolls. McCormick also has the highest percentage of women faculty members of any major engineering school in the country.

The program will feature panel discussions, a goal-setting workshop and laboratory tours. The keynote speaker is Cynthia Hirtzel, dean of the college of engineering at Temple University and a graduate of Northwestern's civil engineering department, who will use M&M candies to demonstrate principles of statistical quality control -- and to provide a snack.

Invitations have been sent to high school and junior high school students throughout the region, and 200 participants are expected to attend. Lunch is included in the registration fee of $5 per person. The program is open to all young women and their parents and teachers. Interested parties should call Marla Dwyer, assistant dean, at (847) 491-5173.

Starting the week off, Monday, February 23, a public informational meeting will be held in room 113 at 7 p.m. Parents, friends and concerned members of the community are welcome to come to this meeting to preview the week's events, gather information and ask questions. Presented by Campus Minister Sarah Schmidt, and Regina Dominican alumnae Dr. Mary Halpin and Social Worker Christina Sprang, the evening discussion is titled, "Is Your Child At Risk?"

During lunch periods that week, students are invited to participate in "Brown Bag Sessions," a series of presentations and discussions on topics pertaining to eating disorders, self-esteem and wellness. The lunchtime schedule and topics are: Monday - Body Image, Self-Esteem and the Media; Tuesday - Wellness: Nutrition and Fitness; Wednesday - Eating Disorders: Anorexia, Bulimia and Binge Eating; Thursday - Screenings (for RDHS students only); and Fearless Friday - A Day to Consciously Refuse to Diet.

Presentations and screening will be conducted by RDHS staff and area psychologists. At Thursday's screening, students will be invited to fill out a brief questionnaire and meet briefly with a member of the school counseling staff or a psychologist from the community.

Please contact Sarah Schmidt at (847) 256-7660 with questions regarding Monday night's presentation, or any of the other programs scheduled for this week.

Skokie Auxiliary present ill children with caps

Skokie Auxiliary 328 of the Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A. (JWVA) recently presented baseball style caps, with their organization logo, to children undergoing chemotherapy treatments at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Lillian Frisch, president of the Auxiliary announced that these gifts are part of a nation-wide program, sponsored by JWVA, under the auspices of their child-welfare program. JWVA regularly sponsors parties, provides gifts and arts and crafts materials to children's homes, schools, etc., including the Ronald McDonald Houses.

"We need to get fathers to be more realistic about their parenting roles, about what active involvement actually means. It's more than playing for 15 minutes after supper," he said. "This data tells us that we need to give mechanisms to men to be able to start communicating with their parents about the investments in the parenting role and how they can support each other better."

How much parenting men actually do

Dads say they're doing more parenting and they buy into the notion of doing so, but they're overstating their commitment. Just ask moms, who apparently have a better grasp on their husbands' perceived commitment and the reality of what they do, according to new research.

"We're doing all right, but men still have a long way to go," said Brent McBride, a University of Illinois family educator who studies men's roles as parents.

With increasing numbers of women working outside the home and media portrayals of children-oriented fathers, there has been a growing expectation that men should be more than financially oriented providers, McBride said. "It is no longer ethical for us as a society to expect women to do one shift outside the home and a second shift inside the home," he said.

For 10 years, McBride has conducted parenting programs just for men to help them "overcome the restraints and barriers to becoming more involved as parents." But his study in the fall issue of the Early Childhood Research Quarterly made it clear that in order to help dads, he needs moms, too.

The study--by McBride, a professor of human development and director of the U. of I. Child Development Lab, and graduate student Thomas R. Rane--measured the perceptions of psychological and emotional commitments to parenting roles made by fathers of 3- to 5-year-old children in 89 Midwest families and their actual performance.

Beyond the standard time-use studies, McBride and Rane provided a detailed look at fathers' actual involvement. They considered dads' interaction with kids, their physical and psychological accessibility to the kids and how well they handled indirect responsibilities such as arranging baby sitters, making doctor's appointments and planning for school or the weather.

Both mothers and fathers were given 15 pennies and told to distribute them according to their perceived psychological investments of dads in five adult roles: worker, parent, spouse, social and other. Next the parents were tested with a parental responsibility scale codelveloped by McBride in 1993 to measure participation in 14 common child-care tasks.

When the data were combined and analyzed, the researchers concluded that dads' performances didn't stack up to their perceptions, but the mothers' read on the dads was on target.

The findings suggest that identity theory doesn't work for men in explaining what they do as parents, said McBride, noting that the dads' ranking of investments in each role didn't, as expected, say a lot about their parenting behaviors.

"We need to get fathers to be more realistic about their parenting roles, about what active involvement actually means. It's more than playing for 15 minutes after supper," he said. "This data tells us that we need to give mechanisms to men to be able to start communicating with their parents about the investments in the parenting role and how they can support each other better."

Police News

Leaving an accident scene

Abel R. Mercado, 30, was driving southbound on Grant Street in his 1993 Hyundai Elantra and making a left turn into eastbound Dempster Street around 10:52 a.m. Feb. 9, when he failed to yield to and struck the Jeep Grand Cherokee of a 53-year-old Winnetka man which was traveling westbound on Dempster Street. The victim's vehicle rolled over once and landed on the tires. Mercado left the scene, traveling eastbound on Dempster. His vehicle was recovered in the alley behind the 8800 block of Dempster Street, police said.

Mercado was charged with leaving the scene of a motor vehicle accident, driving while his license was revoked, failure to yield while entering an intersection and failure to give any information.

Mercado was arrested Feb. 10 at 11:50 a.m. in the 8600 block of Dempster Street. The victim was transported to Lutheran General Hospital by the Niles Fire Department.

Illegal tax schemes continue to proliferate

If not paying federal income taxes again sounds too good to be true, that's because it is.

The Internal Revenue Service reports that schemes involving illegal tax protesters continue to proliferate, causing the agency to step up efforts to warn people not to follow bogus advice.

While not paying taxes might seem like a tempting idea, it's not a smart one. While working toward tax reform is not illegal, failure to file and pay federal income taxes is definitely against the law.

Tax protest groups who sell false or misleading advice on "untaxing" are not making legitimate efforts to reform the tax system, but advocate disobeying tax laws. Most people who have paid for and followed the advice of these groups are now paying back taxes, penalties, interest, their assets have been seized, and some have even faced criminal prosecution. They got a lot more than they bargained for. Law-abiding taxpayers should be aware that no court in the United States has ever accepted any of the arguments that tax protesters have used to further their cause.

Taxpayers shouldn't be fooled by claims that "thousands of people" are supposedly following this advice with no consequences. Tax protesters often claim they don't pay taxes and haven't for years, but a number of individuals who market these packages actually pay their federal taxes. Possible charges against tax protesters include failure to file income tax returns, attempting to evade or defeat income taxes, and aiding and assisting in the filing of fraudulent documents.

"Tax protester schemes are no different than other consumer scams. People are duped into paying money for bad advice, then find themselves facing a huge financial burden. They end up paying back taxes, penalties, interest, their assets have been seized, and some have even faced criminal prosecution," said Robert W. Brock, IRS District Director for Illinois.

The tax protesters' arguments have changed little throughout the years, but every year more honest Americans get sucked into the rhetoric. Among the most p.m. Feb. 12 in the 8600 block of Harlem Avenue, a 12-year-old Niles youth came up to him and started hitting him for no reason. The victim said the two youths attend the same school and have never gotten along.

The responding officer and the victim drove around the neighborhood looking for the offender but with negative results. The victim declined medical attention. The victim's family requested a follow-up investigation.

common claims:

- the 16th Amendment was never ratified,
- the IRS is really a private corporation,
- filing an income tax return is "voluntary" and not required by law,
- filing an income tax return violates the 5th Amendment,
- "sovereign citizens" are not U.S. citizens but citizens of the states, and therefore not liable for federal income taxes.

No court has ever accepted any of these arguments, often citing them as without merit or frivolous. Over the past 10 years, more than 2,000 tax protesters have been convicted of criminal tax charges, with more than 60% receiving jail sentences.

No Medicine is Smoked

With the recent passage of propositions legalizing drugs in Arizona and California, and with the potential for other states to adopt similar measures, the law enforcement community wants to remind you of the damage to individuals and entire communities caused by drug abuse and the attendant violence.

On November 5, 1996, voters passed proposals by referendum in California and Arizona that make "medical marijuana" available in California and all schedule I drugs (heroin, LSD, etc.) available in Arizona for "medical use."

Why not legalize? Every year drug abuse kills thousands of people. Drug abuse leads to child and spousal abuse, property and violent crime, the spread of AIDS and other disease that costs employers millions of dollars in accidents, mistakes and absenteeism.

Increased acceptance of drugs leads to increased levels of drug abuse.

'I do not believe one needs to be a noble laureate to realize that at a time when the dangers of smoking are pointed out time and time again, it makes no sense to tell people that smoking marijuana is okay.'

- Increased drug availability and use will worsen our crime problems.
- Most importantly, legalization of dangerous substances sends a conflicting message to our young people.

With reference to claims about medical use, I'm a cop, not a Doctor, however, I do not believe one needs to be a noble laureate to realize that at a time when the dangers of smoking are pointed out time and time again, it makes no sense to tell people that smoking marijuana is okay. "No medicine is smoked."

Furthermore, scientific research is the best way to determine if a drug has real medical use, "not public referendums."

In more than 90 percent of cases, the cause of high blood pressure (or hypertension) remains unknown, although the condition is thought to cause or contribute to the deaths of more than 200,000 Americans each year. It is also the most common chronic condition in older women. It is often called "silent killer" because in the early stages there may be no symptoms. However, in its advanced stages, it can harm the heart, blood vessels, kidneys, and eyes. If left untreated, hypertension can greatly increase risk of stroke, heart attack, and liver and kidney damage. Luckily, hypertension can be easily detected with blood pressure tests, and can be effectively treated with diet, weight loss, exercise, and medication. The American Heart Association recommends getting your blood pressure checked at least every two years. However, you should get tested annually if you're moderately overweight, have a family or personal history of hypertension, or fall into certain ethnic groups - African-American, Puerto Rican, Cuban or Mexican-American - that have an increased risk of the condition. Diabetes has also been called a "silent killer" because many people don't become aware that they have it until they develop one of its life-threatening symptoms, such as blindness, heart disease, kidney disease or stroke. The risk of diabetes increases with age. Nearly 18.4 percent of the United States population or 6.3 million people age 65 and older have diabetes. While there is no cure for the disease, with proper diagnosis and treatment, it can be controlled.

Edward Jones: Buy and Hold: A Winning Strategy

Some people treat investing as though it were the Indy 500. They need thrills and excitement in the "race" to succeed. They constantly switch lanes, buying and selling investments in an attempt to latch on to the current leader. These people usually think buy-and-hold investing is boring.

Boring it may be, but for good results, buy-and-hold investing is hard to beat. Successful investors know that a long-term investment strategy with an emphasis on quality is one of the surest ways to build wealth.

A survey last year by the Wall Street Journal illustrated the success of a buy-and-hold strategy. The survey evaluated the stock recommendations of 16 leading brokerage firms and found that the firm whose portfolio achieved the highest returns also had the lowest turnover.

Obviously, holding on to good investments can improve your returns. That's even more true in light of the new capital gains tax rates.

The new tax laws provide real incentives to hold investments longer. For assets held longer than 18 months, taxes on capital gains were cut from 28 percent to 20 percent. For assets purchased

While strolling the neighborhood, it's commonplace to see landmark buildings, particularly within the city's Ridge Historic and Lake Shore Historic districts. Evanston's Chamber of Commerce, the Evanston Planning Commission and the Evanston Neighborhood Conference, as well as other enthusiastic community groups, continually work toward maintaining the area's educational and artistic essence.

The student body of prestigious Northwestern University adds vibrancy to the community, and the institution sponsors a wonderful program through which seniors can continue their education in diverse fields. Just one block from the Hotel is the recently constructed Evanston Library where seniors can take time to browse and read through a vast array of literature.

Bob Bianchi reported on the Senior Citizen's Council. To date no insurance plan has been put into action yet. On Thursday, May 7, the Senior Citizens Council will have its 27th Anniversary Mass at Holy Name Cathedral at 10 a.m. Archbishop George will celebrate the Mass. There will be free refreshments in the courtyard after Mass. There is no charge to go to the Mass and no tickets for seating. The club is talking about chartering a bus. If these plans do not go through, you will have to get your own transportation.

The Republicans have passed a bill resulting in the cancelling of the Straight Party ticket for all candidates. Watch the reaction of the Democrats to get this bill repealed. Clinton's budget to congress was a balanced budget with some surplus left over. Clinton wants to use this surplus for Social Security first. There is a lot of action in Washington D.C. to redo the Social Security and Medical. More plans and bills are being prepared by Congress to privatize the bills. This could result in putting the people's money in separate funds. This is only in the proposing stages. There is a lot of talk about it - so watch for any news on it. We'll keep you informed also.

On Friday, March 13 the Historical Society is having their Card Party from 7 to 10 p.m. The Historical Society's phone number is (847) 390-0160. Cost is $7.

Carl Farina is looking for people who will bake for St. John Brebeuf's International Festival, especially for the Italian booth. All kinds of pastries will be accepted.

Carl Farina informed us that only 10 reservations can be accepted for the Arizona trip. A $50 deposit is required. Again, please call Carl at 966-5842. This is due now.

We closed the meeting with a prayer for our sick members - Mary Grote, The Clausens, Bill Wasman and Eugene Mazek.

Industry expert dispels myths about reverse mortgages

Over the last decade, an increasing number of senior homeowners finding themselves "house rich and cash poor" have opted for reverse mortgages. More than 35,000 seniors nationwide have used this financial tool to tap into the equity in their property to meet monthly living expenses, fix up their homes, travel, or for any other purpose they desire.

Still, myths persist about how reverse mortgages work, according to Linda Hubbard, vice president of marketing at Transamerica HomeFirst, the nation's leading private reverse mortgage provider. Hubbard is one of a handful of individuals in the U.S. who has tracked the evolution of reverse mortgage plans since the early 1980s. By virtue of this experience, she is keenly aware of stumbling blocks preventing wider acceptance of reverse mortgages.

"Despite increased media coverage and educational efforts undertaken by both the nonprofit sector and private lenders, two main myths persist about reverse mortgages," said Hubbard, who first wrote about reverse mortgages when she was an editor at Modern Maturity. "If reverse mortgages are to realize their potential for helping senior homeowners use their major asset - their home - then these myths must be dispelled."

Perhaps the most widespread misconception about reverse mortgages is that seniors must give up ownership of their homes. This is not the case, says Hubbard.

These myths about reverse mortgages and other key features are examined in greater detail in a video produced by Transamerica HomeFirst. Seniors interested in obtaining a free copy of the video should call Transamerica HomeFirst toll-free at 1 (800) 538-5569, Department W209 or write the company at 505 Sansome St., San Francisco, CA 94111.

Norwood Park Home ... 102 years of quality care

The dignity of the individual is most important during old age. Norwood Park Home, 6016 N. Nina Ave., Chicago, believes its residents are entitled to the exercise of their inherent rights that contribute to the totality of individual dignity, such as privacy, age-appropriate activity programs and menu choices when dining. One ingredient that makes Norwood Park Home a "real" home is its tender loving care, which is expressed openly by staff in all areas of the Home. "The feeling that one experiences upon entering the Home is an intangible reality enhanced over 102 years of providing exceptional service to its residents and the communities it serves," explained Kay Selfridge, Admissions Counselor. "We are very proud of our six-star rating, the highest possible, that we had earned in a state-sponsored Quality Incentive Program for seven consecutive years." Norwood Park Home offers licensed assisted living, nursing care (intermediate care and skilled care), hospice, respite care, and a community outreach program - the Norwood Park Seniors Network (NPSN). The Network provides home-delivered meals, an emergency medical response system, handyman services, one-day group outings, and local shopping trips for its community members. "A healthy and fulfilling independent life is an ideal description of the retirement years for many elderly people," said Selfridge, "but when independence is no longer an option, then an alternative is the Norwood Park Home. Here, residents maintain their independence as their health permits, enjoy social activities with other residents and are served well-balanced nutritious and delicious meals in a pleasant dining atmosphere." Norwood Park Home is located on Chicago's far northwest side and is readily accessible by various forms of public transportation and major roadways. For more information or to arrange for a tour, call Kay Selfridge at (773) 631-4856.

Proposals sought for senior nutrition programs

Under its Multi-Year Plan on Aging for Fiscal Years 1999-2001, the Suburban Area Agency on Aging, Oak Park, is seeking proposals from public, private not-for-profit, or proprietary organizations for senior nutrition program service provision. Successful applicants will be responsible for the implementation and oversight of Senior Congregate Dining Meal programs and Home Delivered Meals to homebound elderly in the suburban Cook County area. Awards are for Fiscal Year 1999, beginning October 1, 1998, and ending September 30, 1999. The Area Agency has the option of offering two one-year renewals for Fiscal Years 2000 and 2001. The Area Agency is especially interested in receiving proposals which include new ideas or innovations which will increase participation in Senior Congregate Dining Sites. These innovations may include, but are not limited to, the establishment of new locations at sites more attractive to today's senior population, ethnic meals, nutrition education, choice in menu items, and restaurant programs. Suggested innovations may enhance already established senior congregating dining sites, or propose to replace traditional methods of service delivery entirely. The Area Agency will prioritize innovative proposals according to, among other criteria, their potential for increasing program participation, reducing costs, improving service to areas which have experienced a decrease in program participation and improving nutrition education and health promotion activities in the area served. The "Request for Proposals" is directed to agencies and organizations which have registered with the Area Agency. Interested agencies that are not registered with the Area Agency should contact Carol Reagan, Area Agency Community Relations Supervisor, at (800) 699-9043 for details on the registration and application processes.

Regency Health Centre opens Early Stage Alzheimer's Unit

The onset of Alzheimer's, in the older person, presents stressful changes for both, the Alzheimer's individual and for family members. Families and spouses usually go to great lengths to care for the impaired individual. Providing this care can place these family members at a high risk for social isolation, disruption of work roles, emotional and physical problems, or family conflicts. Often, families do not receive sufficient information regarding Alzheimer's Disease, and will create a belief or denial, and believe the individual can be cured. If the diagnosis is done through a ruling out process, and it is a true Alzheimer's, there is no cure at this time. It is very important the family receives good, qualified information. Regency Health Centre, is uniquely designed to meet the challenges and needs of the Alzheimer's individual and the family. It offers a continuum of care for the Alzheimer's victim, starting with Early Stage, Middle Stage, Late Stage, and terminal care.

Regency At Home Health Agency, offers, in addition to skilled professional care, personal care, i.e. grooming and bathing as well as caring companion services. Regency Adult Day Care Center provides the opportunity for the family members to maintain their work or other daily activities. It also offers the chance to interact with others, and engage in many activities. Regency Adult Day Care offers transportation, to and from the center, 5 days a week. Individuals attending Day Care, can stay at the Nursing Centre for Respite Care and still attend the Day Care program, this maintains consistency as much as possible for the individual. Many families take advantage of this service when they go on vacation, handle medical emergencies or just need some time to themselves. Early Stage Alzheimer's Unit is our newest addition to the continuum of care. This unit provides a safe, home-like environment for individuals who are still independent in their self care, need some reminders, have some recent memory loss at times, and are able to still socialize with others. The goal of this early stage unit is to maintain and stabilize the individual's independence, self esteem, and abilities as much as possible, and not to focus on their limitations. Regency Nursing Centre and Regency Adult Day Care Center can tailor or combine programs to the needs of the Early Stage Alzheimer's individual. Attending Adult Day Care during the day, to participate in all their activities, programs and meals, they can then return to the nursing center during the evening. This provides the opportunity to leave the nursing center daily, which lets the person in the early stage feel some normalcy in their every day life. All nursing services continue to be provided, i.e., medications, personal care. When further care is needed, there is no need to discharge the resident. We offer our long standing Alzheimer's Unit which meets the needs of the individual when they enter the later stage of the disease. This unit has been in existence for 14 years and has been one out of 35 in the country in 1995 to receive Joint Commission Accreditation. Regency's reputation of meeting the needs of residents and families has always been given positive recognition by families, the community and health professional surveys. Our staff are specially trained by Rush Alzheimer's Disease Center's Director of Residential Care Services, Anna Ortigara, along with Kathleen Clyde, Director of Regency Alzheimer's Unit. This training allows our Alzheimer's staff to care for the Alzheimer's resident in a manner that helps the residents feel good about themselves and does not focus on their limitations, but on their successes. The staff integrate their education into their daily care. As a result, very few residents are on medications for behavior management. Managing behavior through care and knowledge and knowing each resident's individual personality, are key elements of care.

For more information, please call Regency Health Centre at (847) 647-7444.

Regency May Not Be The Cure For Alzheimer's Disease, but It Is Definitely The Answer For Alzheimer's Care

Regency Nursing Centre together with Regency Adult Day Care Center is pleased to announce the opening of:

The Early Stage Alzheimer's Unit

A new concept of care for all 3 stages, early, moderate and severe. Regency Nursing Centre and Regency Adult Day Care Center are combining forces to give you total Alzheimer's care.

Grandparents raising Grandchildren

Grandparents trying to raise grandchildren often have an uphill battle. They may have difficulty getting financial support, making medical decisions for the grandkids, and even enrolling children in school.

But there is help available for grandparents who know how to work with public institutions, such as the child welfare system and legal system, said Cammy Seguin, University of Illinois Extension educator, family life.

"Although it is becoming more common for grandparents to raise their grandchildren, some laws and support service regulations do not reflect this trend," she said. "Generally, only parents have the legal rights to make medical decisions and obtain financial assistance for their children. The bureaucracy can create difficulties when grandparents try to make decisions for grandchildren because the parents are unable or unwilling to assume their responsibilities."

Grandparents may need help when they cannot afford to care for children or do not have suitable housing. They may also need emotional support for dealing with a parent who returns temporarily and wants the child back. In addition, they may need general advice on raising a child in today's world.

For financial help, grandparents can turn to organizations and programs such as the Aid for Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), and Women, Infants and Children (WIC). Contact the local or state social services or public aid office to find out how to apply for food stamps, AFDC, and WIC. Religious and charitable organizations may also offer food, clothing, transportation and general aid.

Some legal issues can get sticky when grandparents cannot get legal custody of the grandchildren. How they accept responsibility for the children can influence their rights. For example, in some instances, signing a form with a child welfare agency accepting sole responsibility for a child may end the rights to any foster care payments.

If the parent does not want to give up authority or there is a dispute with the parent, legal advice is warranted. Call a local or state bar association to locate a lawyer with family law knowledge, ask about pro bono work, or assistance fee, or reduced rates. Also, call local universities that have law schools and ask if they can provide any family law service.

Medicare and other medical insurance policies for adults typically do not cover medical expenses for grandchildren. However, some private insurance policies may cover the grandchildren under certain circumstances, such as adoption. Grandparents should contact their insurance carrier to find out if coverage is available.

Grandparents can also contact state or local public health offices or community health centers to find out if they have any low cost or free clinics or immunization programs for children.

Grandchildren and grandparents may need help dealing with emotional issues related to the change in family structure. The local mental health department or association, local family service agency, and private social workers can help. Grandparents might also contact local clergy or religious groups for emotional support.

Support groups and parenting classes can be valuable for grandparents. The Cooperative Extension Service often offers such as the North Suburban Cook County Cooperative Extension unit at (847)818-2901.

Oakton students compete in The College Bowl State Tournament

Three Oakton Community College students, who had never before competed, took second place in the qualifying round for the state tournament at the Skyway College Bowl competition, held recently at Moraine Valley Community College.

Oakton's College Bowl Team included Evanston residents Sean Rohde and Adrian Willoughby and Niles resident Marc Menet. Willoughby and Menet are freshmen; Rohde will graduate from Oakton in May. Menet was also named to the all-conference team, being one of four players to score the most number of points in the entire competition.

"Competing with the minimum of three players required, Oakton's College Bowl team fared well in the competition," said team advisor Lorraine Murray, part-time professor of political science at Oakton. The team now advances to the Skyway Conference regional competition, scheduled for April. If the team takes first place, it will be eligible to compete in the state-wide College Bowl competition.

The College Bowl competition is a timed, very fast-paced quiz event with questions across all academic disciplines similar to the old College Bowl show which appeared on television in the early 60's. The competition can be compared to the current game show "Jeopardy," but it is played as a team sport.

The College Bowl competition is a co-curricular activity sponsored by the Skyway Conference, which provides intercollegiate competition in athletics and academic and fine art events. The conference is comprised of seven community colleges, including Oakton, Marquette Valley, Elgin, Lake County, Waubesa, McHenry County and Morton College.

Eleven area routes planned for MS Walk

A total of 10,000 walkers, one for each person affected by MS in the 73-county-wide area served by the Chicago-Greater Illinois Chapter, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, is sought for the 1998 MS Walk presented by Mercedes-Benz on Sunday, April 19 in 11 communities.

Walkers in the Chicago-Greater Illinois Chapter's event will seek pledges from sponsors in support of their effort as they follow routes that vary from 7 to 11 miles. Participants may walk on their own or as part of teams composed of families, friends and coworkers. Check-in time for all Walks is between 8 and 9:30 a.m., with the official kickoff ceremonies at each route planned for 9 a.m.

The 7-mile long Chicago Lakefront Walk begins at Randolph Street and the lake. The other Walks will be held in DeKalb, Fox Valley (starting in St. Charles), Joliet at Pilcher Park; McHenry County in Crystal Lake; Morris at Gebhard Woods; at Naperville's Riverwalk; North Shore Suburban in Busse Woods Forest Preserve, Elk Grove Village/Schaumburg; South Suburban at Oak Forest; and in Rockford beginning at the YMCA Log Lodge. Multiple sclerosis is a chronic, often disabling disease that attacks a person's central nervous system. The progress, severity and number of symptoms vary from one person to another and may include slurred speech, double vision, unusual fatigue or paralysis. The disease is most often diagnosed in persons between 20 and 40 with some 200 new cases determined nationwide each week.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society founded in 1946, is the only national voluntary health organization in the United States devoted solely to supporting research on multiple sclerosis as well as supplying services to people with MS and their families through its 50-state network of chapters.

All potential walkers planning to join the national organization in its mission of bringing an end to the devastating effects of multiple sclerosis may obtain registration forms, information about each route, suggestions for how to organize and promote participation as a team, pledge fulfillment tips and details of volunteer opportunities by calling the MS chapter at (312) 922-8000 or 1-(800)922-0484.

O'Shanter's goes back to golf, Scots roots

O'Shanter's Food and Spirits will soon be going back to its roots: back to its primary affiliation with a golf course, which in turn is affiliated with Scotland, Golf and fragility will be reinstated at the restaurant, which has been in the red since its opening in August of 1995.

Attempts will be made to make the restaurant more "golfer-friendly," which means a scaling back of the full-service bar to one featuring beer by the pitcher and wine by the glass in a setting where golfers can relax with a hot dog or hamburger after playing a round, according to Joe LoVerde, Niles Park District Executive Director.

The menu has been changed to a concession style, and prices have been reduced. LoVerde said. The revised menu will also save money for the Park District because they will not have to spend as much money on food for the scaled down operation, he added.

Joy Wallace etchings on view

"An Invitation to Dance with Your Dreams," an exhibit of hand-tinted etchings by printmaker Joy Wallace, is on view at Skokie Public Library through March 5.

Wallace's delicate fantasy prints are reminiscent of turn-of-the-century children's book illustrations. Wallace uses the age-old etching technique, creating original, one-of-a-kind works by hand coloring each individual print. Her work has been seen at numerous art fairs and galleries. A book and greeting card series with the artist's work are expected at the end of the year.

The work is on view during regular Library hours: Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

Refoliation project to stem river erosion at Tam

Although the Tam Golf Course is currently in good condition and has been covered during the winter by the grounds staff, course officials have discovered that the Chicago River's north branch, which meanders through the course, has been causing some soil erosion.

As an alternative to building a concrete riverbank wall, the Stream Bank Stabilization Process Project has been launched to halt the deterioration. Prairie grass, dogwoods and other plants have been installed and plant materials have been layered to build up the terrain and prevent further soil runoff.

The project, which was started by former operations manager Greg Genz under the direction of former Executive Director Tim Royster, cost $274,300, according to Mike Rea, Supt. of Niles Park Services.

Royster Applied to the Environmental Protection Agency for the necessary licenses. The project includes establishing a wetland near the golf course, officials said.

Rea said that the process is new and has just been developed during the last five years.

Landscape Resources of West Chicago is the contractor for the reforestation project.

Nicor Gas reports natural gas costs for February

Natural gas prices continue to go down. Mild weather has been a major factor in moving gas prices down each month since November. For Nicor Gas customers, the February '98 Gas Supply Charge (GSC) is 25.50 cents per therm. February's GSC is 14 percent lower than January of this year and is at the lowest level for any February in more than 10 years. The GSC for this time last year (February '97) was 43.79 cents per therm.

The Gas Supply Charge is the monthly average cost per therm of the natural gas purchased by Nicor Gas for our customers. We charge customers the same price we pay, with no markup. The GSC on bills may be different from the GSC reported here because a billing period usually spans more than one month. The GSC for a 30-day billing period is an average based on the number of days billed in each of those months.

Assistance options are available for Nicor Gas customers who may be having trouble paying their bills. By calling Nicor Gas, customers can arrange a payment plan, learn about our Sharing Program administered by the Salvation Army or the state's Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program.

Nicor Gas will continue to provide updates about gas costs through the heating season.

Illinois Insurance HOTLINE

Q: We're refinancing our mortgage. Our lender says we need flood insurance, but our home has never flooded before. Why do we need it now?

A: An FDIC insured financial institution can't lend money on a house in a flood hazard area unless there's flood insurance on the property. This is one of several mandates outlined in the federal Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973.

Flood hazard areas are identified on maps prepared by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, or FEMA. You can find a flood map at your local town hall or county building.

Flood damage isn't covered under most homeowners policies. The federal government developed the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), so property owners could buy insurance protection against flooding. Many insurance companies sell separate flood insurance policies also. A community must meet certain requirements before residents can buy flood insurance. In addition, there's a 5 day waiting period before coverage begins.

Your homeowners insurance agent can provide more information. In addition, the Hotline has literature about NFIP and tips to protect your property from flood damage.

Q: I'm interested in purchasing insurance to cover the cost of my prescriptions. Is this available?

A: Consider these options. 1. Review your individual or group health insurance policy. There may be coverage, but a separate claim may be required for prescription-reimbursement. If there's no coverage, ask about adding it for an additional premium.

2. A few companies offer stand-alone prescription policies. Ask your health insurance agent to help you locate one.

3. Many pharmaceutical companies sponsor patient assistance programs. These programs provide drugs based on financial need. Ask your doctor for more information.

4. Look into mail-order prescription clubs. Although this isn't insurance, you may be able to save on the price of the prescription. Mail-order pharmacies can often lower the final cost by processing bulk orders. However, it's still wise to compare prices with your local pharmacy.

The Illinois Department of Insurance prescription drug information guide may help you. In addition, the PHRMA directory includes pharmaceutical companies with prescription drug patient assistance programs. Call the Hotline for information.

Illinois Insurance Hotline is a monthly column based on typical questions asked of the Illinois Inurance Hotline 1-800-444-3338, a toll-free consumer program funded by many insurance companies doing business in Illinois, and operated by the Illinois Insurance Information Service, a not-for-profit organization of major Illinois insurers. If you have insurance questions, or want to know more, call the Hotline, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Voice of Democracy winners chosen

Niles Memorial Post #7712, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its Ladies Auxiliary conducted a Voice of Democracy essay program at Notre Dame High School. This program is conducted in schools throughout the United States. It consists of writing and taping an essay whose theme this year was "My Voice In Our Democracy". Out of thirty-nine entries, three winners were chosen.

First place was Samuel Delgado, second place was Scott Collins, third place was Dan Constantini. Each young man was presented with a bond, a medal, and a certificate of merit at the January meeting by Commander Tom Davidson and President Roberta Fitch at the V.F.W. post home.

The first place winning essay was entered into the District judging. The winner there will go on to the State level. The winner on the State level will go on to National. This program is conducted to promote patriotism and give young people a chance to express themselves in a patriotic way.

IRA notification

Recent tax legislation (Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997) has created two new types of IRA's that significantly benefit you at retirement and, in some cases, before retirement. They are:

1) "Roth IRA": If contributions are held for at least 5 years, this IRA allows for withdrawals at 59-1/2 and after to be completely Tax-Free, unlike the traditional IRA, where withdrawals are taxed as ordinary income. Also, you do not have to begin taking money out at age 70-1/2; there are no mandatory distributions. (Married couples can not have an adjusted gross income above $150-160,000 in order to open a "Roth IRA.")

2) Education IRA: *(for parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, etc.) You can now put up to $500 per year/ per child into an IRA with the purpose of eventually using the money for college. When the child goes to college, you can withdraw the money Tax-Free and Penalty-Free. All the earnings over the years on your contributions are therefore never taxed. (Married couples can not have an adjusted gross income above $150-160,000 in order to open an Education IRA.)

Also, 3) Spousal IRA's: You can now contribute up to $2,000 per year in a Spousal IRA in both the traditional and the new "Roth IRA."

These two new IRA's represent dramatic changes to the traditional IRA. The ability to withdraw money at retirement without having to pay taxes on those withdrawals is a substantial benefit. Additionally, being able to put money into an IRA for your children's college expenses and withdrawing it tax-free will also prove to be a big savings. *Remember that you have until April 15 to make your '97 or '98 contributions.

ing the safety hazard should a motorist run into the tower and accidentally knock it over into the busy intersection and aesthetics as major reasons for its removal.

Blase contends that AT&T did not check into what was surrounding the tower before building it. Chicago officials "did not give a damn because it's on the periphery [of Chicago] and will cause more problems for Niles. Three of the four corners of the intersection are in Niles," Blase said. "If it [the tower] fell any way, especially to the south or west, it would hit houses or stores," Blase added.

Blase said that his battle with AT&T over the tower "has raised standards" of tower placement throughout the nation. AT&T is now much more cautious about where they're placing the towers, Blase said. "We said, 'Hold it. Don't go putting towers up just anywhere,'" Blase added. "They have their place, but don't just put them up anywhere," he concluded.

The communications giant, however, has remained adamant on the point, denying any safety problems but declining to comment on the aesthetics issue.

Part of the expense of moving the tower would be breaking a lease with the owner of the property where the tower is standing, Blase said. He estimated that the lease was for between $10,000 and $15,000 a year.

Talks between the village and the corporation are ongoing, according to Worley, who added that AT&T now wants to take the concerns of Niles into consideration.

However, before anyone gets their hopes up, the Federal Communications Commission ruled in 1996 that construction of poles in business districts cannot be prohibited on the basis of aesthetic arguments. As it stands, the pole is in a district zoned for business and is more than 50 feet from residential property.

While many Chicago and Niles residents have protested the tower, others admit the towers are a sign of the times and a necessary evil if cellular users are to be able to continue using their now indispensable mobile phones and pagers.

A Glenview resident said, "The sign looks worse than the tower. You can't even see the tower. Looking at this big ugly sign, you're going to run into the car in front of you. You know the tower's there, but you don't really look at it."

Hundreds of such towers are sprouting up throughout the area and the country. The FCC projects the number of wireless towers will grow from 40,000 in 1997 to 125,000 by 2006.

About 300 AT&T towers dot the Chicago area landscape now, along with hundreds of others from competing cellular phone carriers.

However, Worley said that AT&T will continue to work with the Village of Niles to iron out their seemingly irreconcilable differences over the tower.

hope for his recovery immediately after the attack. The bullet that entered his abdomen remains lodged near his spine and may hamper his work as a union laborer, Koscielni said.

Foggia, who is out on bail, was arraigned Feb. 18 in Skokie District Court. He has been charged with aggravated battery with a firearm. If convicted, Foggia faces a minimum sentence of six years in prison without parole for the attack, which occurred after Koscielni complained about loud music emanating from Foggia's apartment.

Static or reduced monies received from the state are not keeping up with the increased demands for funds the increased numbers put on the district, Dhandina said.

Markavitch said that although many teachers and staff members will retire before 2003, retirements would probably slow after that.

The School Board accepted the retirements of 47 teachers and administrators who have declared their intention to leave the district between 2000 and 2003. The Board also voted to accept the resignation of Markavitch.

Also numbered among the retirees are David Schusteff, Niles North principal, Barry Brodsky, Niles West administration director, Tom Merskel, Niles West math and science director and Larry Erickson, dean at Niles West High School.

A total of 30 of the current 315 teachers in the district have announced their intention to retire within the next six years, officials said.

At least one board member, Sam Borek, voted against the retirements at the December meeting, terming the benefits the retirees will receive "excessive."

An additional annuity, which is part of Markavitch's retirement package, ranked board member Sharon Deemar, who voted against it, but ok'd the rest of the retirements.

Many educators are retiring now so they can cash in on the retirement package offered in the current contract, which will expire in 2003. The same package may not be available in future contracts, officials said.

A retirement package similar to the one obtained by teachers in the 1996 contract settlement has been extended to administrators, which has always been the custom in the district, according to Borek, who was board president when the contract was ratified.

The current contract provides for 20 percent salary increases in each of a retiring teacher's last two years, provided that they have been in the district for at least 10 years.

Administrators receive the same increases, but have to have been in the district only five years, but the percentage of the increases is then prorated.

For example, Markavitch, who will have been in the district only nine years when she retires in 2003, will receive a salary increase of 18 percent in 2002 and another 18 percent increase in 2003.

Anderson, Merskel and Schusteff all will have more than 10 years with the district when they retire and will get the full 20 percent increases in each of their last two years before retirement, according to the contract.

The early notice of their intention to retire along with the key educational staff that will remain in the district should make the turnover of personnel go smoothly, Markavitch predicted.

Men turning 26 in 1998

Young men who will turn 26 in 1998 will be reaching an important milestone, according to the Selective Service System.

Beginning on January 1, 1998 men who were required to register with Selective Service in 1990 will be turning 26 and will no longer be eligible for induction should a draft be re-instituted. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept late registrations after a man reaches his 26th birthday.

Richard E. Northern, Illinois Selective Service System State Director, warned that with few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will permanently forfeit his eligibility for certain benefits, such as federal student aid, job training, and in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon.

Some states also require registration for state student aid, entrance to state-supported colleges and universities, state employment, and permission to practice law.

Illinois has two Selective Service statutes. One requires Selective Service registration as a pre-condition for state student financial aid, and the other requires registration as a pre-condition for state employment.

Lenten Services at Norwood Park Church

Lenten midweek worship services at Norwood Park Lutheran Church, 5917 North Nina Avenue, Chicago, will focus on "The Way." "The Way" to which this series refers is Jesus' way toward crucifixion, the way of the Cross. Just as Christian art has historically paused at various "stations" along the way, so these services invite worshippers to contemplate a different sense each week.

Ash Wednesday services on February 25 initiate this Lenten observance with the Imposition of Ashes and Holy Eucharist at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Thereafter, Lenten midweek services will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. on March 4, 11, 18, 25 and April 1.

A special new custom which commences at Norwood Park Lutheran Church includes the use of a Lenten Banner onto which worshippers will attach prayer requests onto small crosses to be affixed to the banner with these words, "Lord, hear my prayer." At Easter, these crosses with their prayer intercessions, will be transformed into butterflies with these words attached, "Lord, you are my hope."

Anyone desiring more information about these services or who wish to attend a Lenten bible study on the parables of Jesus to be offered on Sundays in Lent, are encouraged to call the office and speak with Pastor Johnson (773) 631-2860.

Norwood Park Lutheran Church is located north of the Kennedy near Harlem Avenue and Talcott Road, and is affiliated with the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Niles Twp. makes March primary endorsements

Based on a vote by its volunteer membership, the Niles Township Regular Republican Organization has made its endorsements in contested races in the March 17 Republican primary.

The organization endorsed State Comptroller Loleta Dierickson in her bid for the U.S. Senate.

"Our volunteers felt that Loleta, with her record as a state legislator, member of Governor Edgar's cabinet, and, now, as the state's chief fiscal officer, is the candidate who best represents the views of our community and is the Republican party's best candidate to end Carol Mosely-Braun's dismal tenure as U.S. Senator," said Niles Township Republican Committeeman Shel Marcus.

In other contested statewide GOP primaries, the organization endorsed Secretary of State George Ryan for Governor, State Rep. Robert Churchill (R-Lake Villa) for Secretary of State, and Elgin businessman Harry Seigle for State Comptroller.

The organization also voted to endorse former Niles Township School District 219 Board of Education member John Lartz for Cook County Board of Review in the First District. This is the first election in which the members of the Board of Review, formerly known as the Board of Tax Appeals, will be elected on a district-basis instead of on a countywide basis.

In contested judicial primaries, the organization voted to endorse John K. Madden for Illinois Appellate Court Judge, and Victor E. Blackwell, Catherine D. Sanders, Mary Ann Jennings, Floyd D. Perkins, and John E. McNeal for Cook County Circuit Judge.

This is the first time since 1962 that a "blue-ribbon" slate of judicial candidates has been put together and endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee as "qualified." Marcus said that he urges voters to nominate them in March and elect them in November.

"All candidates in contested primaries were invited to speak with our members. We had an open discussion of all of the candidates and then our volunteers voted by secret ballot," said Marcus. "In order to be endorsed, a candidate had to receive at least 60 percent of the vote."

"There are several Democrats who have filed as candidates in the Republican primary so it's important for Republicans in Niles Township to vote for the endorsed candidates in the March 17th Republican primary," Marcus said.

"These endorsed candidates are highly qualified for the offices they are seeking and have the best chance to be elected against the Democrats in November," Marcus said.

McCormack vows not to accept gifts

When I announced my candidacy for State Senator recently, I explained that ethics and campaign finance reform will be two of the key issues I will focus on. I am pleased that the General Assembly recently passed a new law that puts tighter controls on the awarding of state contracts.

However, there were several solid proposals to ban gifts to all state employees, including those in the executive, legislative and judicial branches. This ban is necessary after a Springfield company, Management Services of Illinois, lavished gifts of lobster and free trips to state employees and then over billed the state by millions of dollars for a no-bid contract. The company's president was then convicted on federal charges. In general, there is a culture in state government that it is all right to accept free gifts. I have pledged to never accept any gifts from lobbyists as a candidate or as Senator.

It is unfortunate that the incumbent I am running against, Walter Dudyecz, voted against the gift ban in the Rules Committee

McCormack vows not to accept gifts

(Senate Bill 1007, October 30, 1997). His vote killed the possibility of the Senate voting on a gift ban. Senator Dudyecz must think that expensive gifts from lobbyists do not affect his vote. I believe that taxpayers and average citizens think otherwise.

Sincerely,

Michael McCormack,
Democratic candidate for State Senator, 7th District.
