Board cited for "arrogance & blatant disregard"

Dear Editor:
The Board of Education in the Skokie Township is being cited for its arrogance and disregard for the citizens of the township and its fine taxpayers.

The Board has shown a complete lack of concern for the taxpayers who are paying for the maintenance of our schools. The Board has not held a single public meeting to discuss the budget or any other issues, and has only been interested in the personal interests of its members.

This Board has failed to meet the expectations of the citizens who elected them. They have not been accountable to the taxpayers who are paying for their salaries.

We, the citizens of Skokie Township, demand that this Board be held accountable for its actions and that the taxpayers be given a voice in the decision-making process.

Sincerely,
[Signature]

Help available for early stage Alzheimer’s patients and families

Alzheimer’s disease evolves from changes in the brain that are hard to see and can be found only at autopsy. Symptoms include changes in memory, behavior, and judgment. The disease is progressive and fatal. There is no cure. First identified by Dr. Alois Alzheimer in 1907, the disease was named after him. The discovery was made by researchers at the University of Rochester. The disease is different from other forms of dementia, such as those caused by stroke or head injury. Alzheimer’s disease is the most common form of dementia in seniors. There are no current treatments that can cure or prevent the disease. However, there are treatments that can help manage symptoms. The first step is to identify symptoms and seek a diagnosis. Once a diagnosis is made, there are several treatments available that can help manage symptoms. The best way to manage symptoms is to consult with a healthcare provider. There are several organizations that can provide information about Alzheimer’s disease and its management. The Alzheimer’s Association provides information about Alzheimer’s disease and its management. The Alzheimer’s Association provides information about Alzheimer’s disease and its management. Kick this ball out of the laundry room

Protecting your children during home renovations

You've found a haberd, and you're about to throw your clothes in the washer. Just as you're about to click "start," you realize: what if I didn't ask? How did the kids get in the laundry room? And what will happen to all that laundry if I go in now?

There are two main reasons you should wash your clothes in a laundry ball: it will prevent your children from being caught in the dryer, and it will do a better job of cleaning clothes. In fact, a study by the University of Illinois found that washing clothes in a laundry ball reduced the amount of detergent needed by 50%.

One laundry ball alone will not prevent your children from being caught in the dryer, but it's a good place to start. You can also use a laundry ball to protect your children from being caught in the washer as well.

To use a laundry ball:
1. Fill the laundry ball with clothes.
2. Place the laundry ball into the washing machine.
3. Add detergent as usual.
4. Start the washing machine.

By using a laundry ball, you can ensure that your children will be safe while you wash their clothes. It's a simple solution to a problem that can be difficult to solve otherwise.

The ENFJ

Protecting your children during home renovations

As the summer days of opera- tions at the hospital come to a close, the nurses are eager to take advantage of the warm weather. But before they can do so, they need to protect their children from the dangers ofhome renovations.

The ENFJ is the perfect type for home renovations. They are natural leaders who enjoy taking charge of projects. They are also organized and detail-oriented, which makes them ideal for planning and executing home renovation projects.

When planning a home renovation, the ENFJ should:
1. Make a detailed plan of the work to be done.
2. Ensure that all materials are purchased and on site.
3. Hire a reputable contractor.
4. Keep the work area clean and organized.
5. Stay on top of the work to ensure it is being done correctly.

By following these tips, the ENFJ can ensure that their home renovation project is completed on time and on budget. They can also enjoy the fruits of their labor, knowing that their children will be safe and protected.

Do it yourself tips for a homeowner

Small home improvements can help make big profits

The project might be a kitchen addition or a living room renovation. The cost is not the main focus. The satisfaction of completing the project yourself is the reason to adhere.
