From the Left Hand

by Bud Besser

In Search Of A Column.....

I got a call last night from my Portland daughter. She was very excited. She told me her eight-year-old son was outside riding his bike for the first time.. He has the training wheels on the bike but he went out yesterday, got on the bike, and after much effort began riding the two-wheeler with the training wheels.

As you probably guessed he has a problem. He's a cerebral palsy child whose left side is weak. His left hand is closed and his left leg and ankle are weaker than its counterparts on the right side. Getting on this bike was a major effort. But he decided he was going to be a bike rider and yesterday was the beginning of his bicycle journey.

He has a great desire to succeed. Two weeks ago we had our 47-member family out for the day. While the beach and swimming are the centerpiece of the day, there's a continuous three-man-boy-girl basketball game going on all day long. And my new bicycle-riding grandson is at center court in most of the games. He's not only at center court but he poured in six baskets in a row from 20 to 25 feet which had all the basketball aficionados shaking their heads in disbelief.

Chicago girl drowns in Skokie pool

The drowning death of a 7-year-old Chicago girl Sunday was under investigation by Skokie police and officials of the Skokie Park District.

Despite the fact that the victim's mother, 11 lifeguards and about 100 people were at the Skokie Park District public pool at 4701 Oakton St. at the time of the accident, officials were at a loss to explain how the girl drowned or just when lifeguards noticed her and came to her aid.

Williams was pulled from the pool in an unconscious state

The actual anniversary will come in August of next year, but events will be sponsored throughout 1999, beginning in January, Blase said.

MG reduces permit fees for garage sales

by Kelly Bartochowski

At Monday night's Morton Grove Village Board meeting, trustees voted to reduce the permits for garage sales from $5 to $3 after petitions had been presented by residents regarding garage sales.

While the board explained that regulations had been imposed on success. Two weeks ago we had our 47-member family out for the day. While the beach and swimming are the centerpiece of the day, there's a continuous three-man-boy-girl basketball game going on all day long. And my new bicycle-riding grandson is at center court in most of the games. Fire in landscaper's trailer endangers MG gas station

by Rosemary Tiro

A spectacular blaze that ended up doing relatively little damage stopped traffic at the intersection of Waukegan Road and Dempster Street at about 8:20 a.m. Aug. 6.

The driver of a landscaping truck, realizing that the 18-foot trailer, filled with lawnmowers and gasoline cans he was pulling had caught fire, pulled it into the northeast corner of the Shell gasline station.

Niles Public Works will construct a new crosswalk at Oakton Street and Cumberland Avenue to ensure safe access for students to the new Emerson School.

CUB action prevents 847 area code change

by Rosemary Tiro

If you have ever contributed to The Citizens Utility Board, their recent intervention in the investigation of Ameritech's allotment of available phone numbers in the 847 area code will probably make you feel that it was money well spent.

The watchdog group has been insisting for several months that the phone numbers within the 847 area code have been doled out to the 33 eligible phone, cellular and pager companies, and that those companies, in turn, have been hoarding the numbers, making it appear that Ameritech will run out of numbers in the near future.

Now CUB officials have filed the findings of a study with the Illinois Commerce Commission that show conclusively that at least 4 million unassigned phone numbers remain and that the imposition of a new area code will not be necessary for at least four years.

According to the CUB investigation, many of the communications companies doing business in the 847 area code have filed for rate increases. The CUB has filed a complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission, asking that the rates be held until the new area code is implemented. The commission has agreed to consider the CUB's request.

Niles Park District to sponsor Blood Drive

Did you know...95% of the population will need blood by the age of 72, yet only 5% of the eligible population donate blood.

1 pint of blood will help save 3 lives.

Will someone be with me during the donation process?

A donor specialist stays with you during the entire donating procedure.

Can my blood be given to anyone?

Yes, if you and the patient have the same blood type.

What happens when I decide to give blood?

If you or someone you know has been through surgery, you know the importance of blood donations. With summer being the season for high-risk injuries, there has been a great need for blood donors. Give back to those who have helped you. Participate in the Niles Park District Blood Drive on August 21 at the Recreation Center, presented by LifeSource. The drive will begin at 11:50 a.m. We will take walk-ins, but prefer to schedule a time with you. If you are interested, please give Diana Skrybek a call at (847) 967-6633. The Recreation Center is located at 7877 Milwaukee Ave., in Niles.

How long does it take to give blood?

The actual donation time takes 8-10 minutes. The entire procedure takes approximately 45 minutes.

How much blood do they take? 450 ml or slightly less than one pint.

How quickly will my body replace the blood?

Fluids are replaced after 24 hours. After 4-6 weeks, your body has reproduced the cells and replaced lost minerals.

What happens to my blood after I donate?

LifeSource tests and processes it. Then the blood is distributed to area hospitals for patient transfusion.

There will be goodies to munch and movies to watch as you donate.

LifeSource Facts:

Giving blood is no more painful than a pinch on the arm.

Join us in this opportunity to help someone in need. It will make a difference in both your lives.

Documentary host seeks Niles history from residents

by Rosemary Tiro

Mat Matyas, host of Media One's Talk of the Town Show, is planning to compile a documentary on Niles history for the centennial celebration next year.

He is asking that all residents scour through their attics and basements, or maybe just their memories to come up with photos, artifacts or interesting stories of the history of Niles.

The tentative title for the documentary is "100 Years of Niles: The Making of a Village."

Taxpayer complaints delay 1997 tax bills

A reported 20 percent increase in the number of resident complaints about property assessments has created a backlog and may delay the mailing of 1997 tax bills.

The second installment bills will be mailed a full month later than usual, the third week of September. They are payable within 30 days before a penalty is assessed.

The number of complaints rose by 17,824, from 90,285 in 1994 to 108,109 in 1997. A spokesperson for Cook County Clerk David Orr said the increase in complaints will likely delay that of Appeals Board officials attributed the record number of complaints to an active market in Chicago's downtown area as well as to the booming economy.

A great deal of real estate activity, including enterprise zones, tax increment finance projects and housing developments have contributed to the rise in appeals, officials said.

Skokie, IDOT plan to move historic depot

by Rosemary Tiro

Skokie officials are considering moving the historic Skokie Swift Depot in the 5000 block of Dempster to a location just 130 feet east, provided the National Park Service approves the move and deems the 1924 building still eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

The installation of new offices for the Morton Grove American Legion Post #134 and its Auxiliary Unit has been set for 6:30 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 21 at the Post Memorial Home, 6140 Dempster.

To be induced as commander of the local Legion is Tom Williams.

His counterpart, who has served previously as president of the Unit, is Julie Karsten of Morton Grove.

Plans are being formulated by retiring president Pat Kim and outgoing commander Joe Heidrich.

The public is invited.

Morton Grove Legion sets installation

The move of the old station would free up space at the $3.7 million CTA station opened nearby in 1994. The older building may continue to be used as a Greyhound bus terminal after it is moved, Skokie officials said.

The brick building, one of only eight stations designed by Arthur U. Gerber in his "bungalow" style, is a rare example of an adaptation of Prairie School architecture to use in a public building. Horizontal lines with broad roof area and 12-foot overhangs along with cast stone columns are among the features that distinguish the building architecturally.

The station, once used by the North Shore "Electroliners" that traveled between Chicago and Milwaukee, was saved from the wrecker's ball by preservationists who intervened when Skokie planned to demolish the building in 1994 after the new depot became operational.

The lieutenant is a 1993 graduate of Niles West High School, Skokie.

For two days rental the inside 10 foot area is $30. For outside displays, a $20 donation covers a 16 foot spot for the two days.

Travel and learn on an Israel odyssey

Explore Israel, a land that has been the world stage for the religions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam, through Oakton Community College's travel study program, scheduled Sept. 14-27.

Learn about the ancient world through creative interpretations of the monuments and archaeological sites in this area while experiencing the diversity of cultures of contemporary Israel.

As part of this trip, travelers will learn about the 3,000 years of Jerusalem's history through tours of the city's ancient and modern Jewish Quarter. Hear about Israel's social structure at a specially arranged lecture at Hebrew University. At Masada, the last stronghold of Jewish zealots against Roman domination, discover its role as a symbol of Jewish defense and learn of its significance to modern Israel.

In addition, travelers will have an opportunity to visit a kibbutz to experience the unique Israeli collective settlement that is both a social and agricultural institution; take a tour of Galilee, "the land of the Bible," where shrines and ancient cities that provided the early foundation for Christianity serve as a storehouse of the Jewish spirit, and visit the Vulcan Institute to learn about the pioneering work of this famous institution in hydro-agriculture.

For more information about the trip to Israel, call Bea Corneissen at (847) 635-1812.

Back to school: New shoes, fresh supplies and an eye exam

Your children have new shoes, fresh boxes of crayons and positive attitudes about school. Have you done everything you can to help them have a successful year? If you haven't had your children see the eye doctor in the last several years, you - and your children - may be missing something.

One quarter of school-aged children have a vision problem. Of children ages 3-5, nearly one in 20 has a vision problem that could result in permanent vision loss if left untreated. Unfortunately, nearly 80 percent of preschoolers do not receive a vision screening. For children of all ages, back-to-school physicals often fail to include adequate tests to detect vision problems.

As if the risk of permanent vision loss wasn't enough, the link between learning and eyesight is compelling.

"The eyes really are the windows to the world," says Kent D. Stuckey, Prevent Blindness America's chair. "Imagine the 'window' for a child with uncorrected vision. Kids only know what they see, so the world appears to be a distorted, blurry picture."

Children have great coping skills, so they may learn to function fairly well within that distortion until they get to school. In the classroom, vision problems can lead to difficulty when work is written on blackboards or computer screens. Self-image is fragile in children. It may be damaged by excessive frustration at school. If vision is the problem, proper correction can come just in time to prevent permanently negative attitudes toward school.

"I've watched children who have struggled in the classroom really turn around - both their attitude and their achievements - when they suddenly have corrected vision," said Mary Dunfer, a second-grade teacher.

A professional examination for every child, including those who do not display any signs of eye trouble, is recommended shortly after birth, at 6 months of age, before entering school (age 4 or 5) and periodically throughout the school years. For more information on your child's eyesight, please call Prevent Blindness America at (800) 331-2020.

Morton Grove student's Australia trip

Amanda Sachs a student at Golf Middle School in Morton Grove, departed June 21st for Australia with 27 other students from Northern Cook County.

Amanda was chosen as a delegate from Illinois for The People to People Student Ambassador Program. Amanda's travel was a 23 hour trip from O'Hare to L.A. to Sydney to Brisbane. "Once in Brisbane where the weather was only 10 degrees, I stayed in a farm house, said Amanda. Then onto Rockhampton Australia's beef industry capital. We continued to Long Island which is only one island that makes up 100 of the Whitsunday Group, now, on to the Great Barrier Reef, one of seven natural wonders of the world. I studied coastal reef ecology, the coral reef system and had the opportunity to learn to snorkel. Off to the mainland heading south along the coast to Mackay, Australia's sugar capital.

Now, for some fun: boomerang throwing and crocodiles, have you ever held one? I have! We spent the day with native Aborigines culture, music and dancing.

In Yippoo, the Capricorn Caverns, onto the Sunshine Coast to learn about marine life, koalas and kangaroos. What a thrill to hold a real live koala.

In Queensland we learned about Australia's outback heritage. Making our way back to Brisbane we flew into Sydney. We had a chance to swim at the state of the art Aquatics Centre that will be used in the 2000 Olympics.

Sydney Opera House, Costello's for cutting and polishing Australia's national gemstone the opal, Australia's largest museum complex, the Powerhouse science, technology, decorative arts and social history, I could go on and on.

I met so many wonderful, warm people and made many new friends. I did not want to leave Australia, it was truly a great learning experience.

I would like to thank Carroll Alloys and Z Frank Chevrolet in Chicago and Wayfarers Mason Lodge in Evanston for being contributors toward my learning experience. It was truly a dream come true!"

Bonsai exhibit at Chicago Botanic Garden

More than 200 trees -- painstakingly shaped and trained to thrive in a dwarfed state, some in little more than a handful of soil -- will highlight the 21st annual Mid-America Bonsai Exhibit, August 14 through 16, at the Chicago Botanic Garden in Glencoe.

Members of the Midwest Bonsai Society and exhibitors from around the country will display their prize trees and compete for ribbon awards. Admission to the 21st annual Mid-America Bonsai Exhibit is free. The show will be held at the Chicago Botanic Garden Education Building and adjoining outdoor gardens.

For visitors interested in learning more about bonsai (pronounced bone-sigh), demonstrations will be conducted on Friday afternoon through Sunday. Each is $5 plus cost of plant material and container. Workshops will be limited in size, so early reservations are recommended.

The Mid-America Bonsai Exhibit is open noon to 5 p.m. on Friday. On Saturday and Sunday, hours are 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Admission to the bonsai show, other exhibits, building and grounds is free. There is a $5 parking fee on Friday and $6 on the weekend.

Demonstrations are scheduled on Saturday at 10:30 a.m. by guest judge, Kathy Shaner, who can call (847) 295-1380.

Condo lifestyle, a bridge to the past for mature buyers

While maintenance-free living in adult-oriented spaces may be the 20-magnitude star attracting mature buyers to condominium homes, there is something subtle -- almost subliminal -- making them happy that they did.

Weiss says that most buyers at Hidden Lakes Condominiums, the company's newest development in Lincolnshire, are empty nesters and strong bonds are being formed, as they have been at other Weiss condominium developments.

"The dynamics are really interesting," says Weiss. "While there are instances where old friends really do follow each other to condominiums, strangers quickly bond because of what they share."

"First of all, everybody is new, so nobody feels like an outsider trying to break into an established clan. And they all understand that a condominium building is a form of government where people with shared interests pursue common goals. They want to make it work and they want to make it work together. They are sharing a new experience and they like it.

"But chemistry seems to be regenerating when they become part of a condominium community, particularly if it is one where most people are about the same age."

Tomato leaf diseases flourish in moist weather

Are your tomato plants beginning to look a little "under the weather?" They might very well be given current weather conditions. When temperatures hover around 75 to 85 degrees with lots of moisture in the air, it favors the development of fungal disease on your tomato plants, said Darin Eastburn, University of Illinois plant pathologist.

Early Blight and Septoria are two common fungal diseases that attack the leaves and stems of your tomato plants. If it has been very rainy or humid or heavy dew sits on the plants for several hours in the morning, these diseases can thrive.

"You might begin to notice both Septoria and Early Blight as brown spots on lower plant leaves but they can and usually do spread to the rest of the foliage. The leaves will turn yellow and then drop off. These diseases can occur anytime during the growing season, but typically are more severe when the plants are producing fruit. While they probably won't kill your plants outright, they may reduce your yield," said Eastburn.

To tell the difference between these two fungal diseases, you need to look closely at the damaged leaves. Early Blight lesions range in size up to 1/2 inch in diameter. The distinctive feature of these spots is concentric circles, known as target spots.

Eastburn predicts this will be a bountiful year for Early Blight. "When it's warm and wet it's a big year for Early Blight. When it's cool and wet, conditions are better for Septoria."

Septoria lesions first appear as small, water-soaked spots on the lower leaves that darken over time. They are much smaller than Early Blight spots -- about 1/8 inch in diameter -- and more numerous. In the center are black dots that resemble pepper, said Eastburn.

Whether your plants suffer from Septoria or Early Blight, controlling the disease is the same. To lessen its spread on afflicted plants, remove any damaged leaves. It also helps to be careful when watering your tomatoes. Try not to water the foliage -- just water the soil. If you do sprinkle water on the plants, be sure to do it early in the morning so that the leaves will dry quickly.

"If you want to use a fungicide, it's best to apply it shortly after you notice the problem. You don't have much time, though. It takes only about a week for symptoms to appear after the foliage is infected," explained Eastburn.

The fungicides maneb and mancozeb, sold under several different product names, are protectants that prevent further damage, but do not eradicate the disease. Be careful to follow recommended rates and cover all the foliage. And, keep in mind that you need to wait five days before you can harvest any tomatoes after spraying. Generally though, fungicides are safer than insecticides because our physiology is so different from fungi.

"Because the disease spores can overwinter in your garden, you should practice sanitation and crop rotation. Sanitation means, at the end of the season make sure to remove and dispose of all the tomato plant debris from the garden. Don't even compost it. And don't save seeds from diseased plants," said Eastburn.

Next year, try to rotate your tomatoes to a different location. If you can move them 30 feet from where they were, that might slow down the disease enough to make a difference, said Eastburn, especially with Septoria, which only travels in trails of water and splashing rain. Early Blight spores blow in the wind, so they are harder to avoid.

And finally, next time you are shopping for transplants, said Eastburn, look at them closely. Make sure you start with clean, healthy tomato plants.

The Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Illinois provides educational programs and unbiased research based information to help Illinois residents improve their quality of life, develop skills and solve problems, by "helping you put knowledge to work."

Coaches need a game plan to defeat the opposition. When it comes to the termite game, homeowners need inside information to win the fight.

Homeowners can now monitor swarm activity through the Internet.

A "swarm map" is updated weekly on the website of Termix (www.terminix.com), a leading termite control company.

The map shows areas, by state and region, where termite swarming has been reported. It can be localized down to zip code level.

However, swarms are only the visible evidence of infestation. "Because most wood in a home is hidden, termites are often hard at work without the homeowner's knowledge," said John Chapman, a Terminix entomologist.

Chapman offers these suggestions to reduce the attractiveness of your home to termite infestation:

Make sure firewood and other wood debris are not stacked against the home.

Grade the soil around the foundation so it carries water away from the house; termites need moisture to survive. Keep gutters and downspouts in good repair.

Set any wooden posts, such as deck supports, on concrete pads so they don't have direct contact with the ground.

Use pressure-treated wood if the wood will contact or come close to the ground.

Avoid having exterior veneers and stucco extend below grade level. Six-to-eight inches of clearance should be maintained.

Contact a termite control company for professional services when building a new home or addition to protect this significant investment. Annual inspections are also recommended.

A new baiting technology offered by Terminix -- now makes it possible to eliminate or control entire termite colonies. The SentriCote Termite Colony Elimination System uses underground stations containing wood to monitor termite activity in the soil around a home.

When termites are intercepted in a station, the wood is removed and replaced with bait to control the population. As more and more individual termites are affected, the colony is weakened. The process may take six months or longer, because a colony consists of thousands of termites.

The system does not require drilling holes in interior floors, foundations, or exterior patios and walkways. Therefore, it's less intrusive than traditional methods of termite control.

Terminix, founded in 1927, operates 502 service centers in 44 states. For more information, call 1(800)TERMINIX(837-6464).

lief. He catches the ball with one hand, and then supporting the ball with the deformed hand balances the ball with his good shooting hand and wings it at the basket. Six for six ain't bad. This boy thinks he can do it and he does it. That's why those training wheels will be off in a short time and he'll be biking along with all the other kids in the neighborhood.

In the recent months Frank Sinatra and Buffalo Bob died. It was sort of the end of two eras, not for one but for two generations.

Sinatra was a guy from the 1940's. He was the "over 65" generation's guy. Howdy Doody's Buffalo Bob was the Baby Boomers' guy. He helped grow the "Under-Fifty" generation of the fifties and sixties.

Ironically, Sinatra was the wise guy, the ratpacker who flaunted his booze and his "broads" (his word) at the world. Our "over 65" generation played off the Sinatra swagger. During World War II GI was the cocky wise-cracking devil-may-care soldier who out-Sinatra'd Sinatra. The fly boys swaggered and boozed it up everytime they came back to their base. Well, at least that was the caricature of the World War II GI. It was all a myth, just as Sinatra and the ratpack were a myth. But we all fed on it, swaggered a bit and told the world how sure we were of ourselves and our mission. And this swagger generation came back home and settled down and lived very quiet conservative lives for the next fifty years.

The Boomers had the mild-mannered Buffalo Bob alongside them during their first 20 years. And as mild as Howdy Doody was, his followers became the people who took to the streets and changed the face of this country with their Civil Rights marches, their feminist movement and their resistance to the VietNam War.

Their 1960 confrontations at the Democratic convention turned this country on its ear and yet, this picture of the out-of-control youngsters was also a caricature. The Howdy Doody generation is now 50 years old and they too settled into a very conservative lifestyle, raising kids and settling down to the same work ethic.

It's very easy to stereotype a generation. Our parents and grandparents were the "toppers" of the twenties. But those wild-eyed boozers who carried gin flasks under their coats also settled in and created a pretty good country to live in. The Sinatra swaggers, the Howdy Doody followers and the Flapper generation all did their thing, which was grossly exaggerated, and then settled down and created a pretty good place for all of us.

There's the beginning of a craze which is likely to sweep the country during the next year and a half as we approach the year 2000. A book publisher released his list of the Best 100 novels of the 20th century. A group of older writers and historians compiled the list. Since they're mostly in their seventies and eighties they chose novels of the 20's, 30's and 40's. Most women novelists were not included and most novelists were of the 60's, 70's and 80's were omitted from their lists.

In the next 18 months expect to see other lists of 100. There'll be the 100 best American athletes of the 1900's, the 100 best recipes, the 100 best songs, movies (it's already been published), actors, politicians and on and on. Why only 100? Who knows? One hundred is a nice round figure and we like round figures, whether they're like Marilyn Monroe's or just plain round numbers.

Good definition:

Some was suggested the lottery is a tax on people who do poorly in high school math.

Good quote:

On a Monday night TV show a lawyer told his friend, "I'm 'upper' ordinary but not extraordinary."

A Henny Youngman story:

In answer to a question how did Henny stay married to the same wife for fifty years, he answered, "I made sure I always kept the romance in our marriage. Every week I sent my wife candy. And we made sure we went out to dinner twice a week complete with flowers on the table and romantic music accompanying the meal."

"I went out on Wednesdays and she went out on Saturdays," Noreiga said.

Many may be taken aback to learn the origin of the term "taken aback" is nautical. A ship is "taken aback" when the sails are suddenly carried by the wind back against the mast.

Freshmen and transfer students entering one of the Niles Township high schools are required to submit records of a physical examination and up-to-date immunizations prior to Orientation Days, Aug. 18 and 19.

Students who do not have the appropriate physical, immunization and emergency forms on file will not receive their books or school IDs in time for the opening of school on Aug. 25. Once school is open, according to state law, no student will be admitted to school until the forms have been provided.

The number of allowable permits per year have been increased from 2 to 3 for not-for-profit organizations and religious organizations provided necessary documentation is presented. Such documentation would be a Tax Exemption Certificate from the Internal Revenue Service or appropriate incorporation documents from the Illinois Secretary of State.

Additionally, the penalty for violating provisions has been reduced to $200 from $500 with a maximum fine of $750 from $500 due to statutory standards.

CUB action ...

Phone industry officials were planning to impose a 224 area code overlay in late January, so that, in effect, two area codes would be in use in the area and each call would necessitate 11-digit dialing.

The CUB study indicates that 1.6 million phone numbers should have been returned following the ICC order in May.

Not only are millions of numbers still available, according to Cohen, but he foresees a time in the not-too-distant future when demand for additional numbers will cease. The rapid advance of communications technology, he says, will finally satisfy the hunger for more numbers when phone users will be able to have just one number for all their phones, faxes, computers and pagers, Cohen said.

Getting through the next few years is the challenge at hand, Cohen said. He urges consumers to be vigilant in watching the workings of Ameritech, which is trying to foist unnecessary new-area codes on area consumers.

An Ameritech spokesperson, Lisa Kim, however, termed the CUB charges bogus stating that Ameritech returned its excess numbers last year. AT&T, the other major distributor of 847 city so could get our plans approved," Noreiga said. A Niles consultant, a representative of the Illinois Department of Transportation and city officials worked out the plan to incorporate the park into the design.

Kamura added that the damage and fire would have been far worse if the landscape truck driver had pulled the blazing trailer under the gas station canopy where it would have endangered autos at the gasoline pumps.

Kamura said the station's gas tanks are all underground, however. "No underground tank has ever exploded due to a fire," he said.

"When we pulled up, the trailer was fully involved in flames," signs were not necessary Public Works officials said.

Two crosswalks one on Cumberland south of Monroe and another on Monroe east of Cumberland, along with a crossing guard and crosswalk and advance school crossing signs should be adequate in providing safe access to the new building, officials said.

Crossing guards will also be assigned to crosswalks at Prospect Avenue and Oakton Street, Cumberland Avenue and Oakton Street and Normal and Cumberland, according to plans.
