Residents file lawsuit against Morton Grove over Muslim Community Center

WENDY ELLIS

This is a sad day for the village of Morton Grove. Those are the sentiments of Village Trustee Dan Staackmann, as he listened to attorneys for a group of Morton Grove residents announce the filing of a federal lawsuit against the village last Friday. The lawsuit was filed because residents of the neighborhood surrounding the Muslim Education Center at 8601 Menard, have been upset over the parking situation during Friday afternoon worship services at the Muslim school, and what they view as the village’s failure to do anything about it. Douglas Cannon, attorney for the neighborhood group known as Morton Grove Organization, LLC, made the announcement outside Morton Grove Village Hall.

“It focuses on the lack of enforcement by the Village of Morton Grove of the basic fundamental laws and ordinances, that frankly, the village is obligated to enforce,” said Cannon. The attorney pointed out that the group has no argument with the Village Board of Trustees, but rather with Village Administrator Pro Tem Ralph Czerwinski, Police Chief George Incledon, Building Commissioner Edward Hildebrandt, and city attorney Gabriel Berrafato. Also mentioned as defendants in the suit are the Muslim Education Center and the Muslim Community Center, its governing body.

“The problem is clearly with the administration. With the Chief of Police, with the Administrator Pro Tem, with the Building Commissioner and other named private parties as defendants, who do not choose to exercise and enforce the law as it is written,” said Cannon. “That kind of parking should never be tolerated by a police force effectively in place.”

The Muslim Education Center has included religious instruction as part of its curriculum since the school opened 13 years ago, but recent years have brought increasing numbers of Muslim worshippers to the school on Friday afternoons when religious services are held in the gym. As many as 500 people can attend these services, and once the 70 space parking lot is full, worshipers park on the grassy area north of the school usually used for sports activities, and on neighborhood streets. The lawsuit also accused the city of allowing the religious services to go on, even though the MEC does not have a proper permit for them. The lawsuit asks that a (Continued on page 2).

In a previous police report filed Aug. 21, Katheryn Mehrtens, 38, said to an Urban Police officer that her dog and a friend were at a store and wanted to leave. Mehrtens told police that her dog was a service dog until she started to cause trouble. She clearly wanted to cause a scene, said Kotowsky. He also said that Mehrtens did not say the dog was a service dog until she started to cause a scene.

Kotowsky said he reviewed a surveillance tape after Mehrtens left the store. Mehrtens's attorney, Marie A. Chies, said in a statement that he had filed a complaint to the Illinois Commerce Department to file a complaint.

I was astounded to read in the August 28th Bugle Mr. Patriòk Kansoer's transition from the playful summer prayer, and why mosques rarely even approach 10% approached anywhere near 1,000, let alone 2,000 days. That too would be unattainable for Mr. Kansoer would show he does not understand that the Friday prayer in the afternoon is valid only to congregants, whereas the other 6 prayers on Friday can be prayed individually. That is why mosques always have a spike in attendance for the Friday afternoon prayer, and why mosques rarely even approach 10% of their Friday afternoon attendance for the other prayers. This is also inline why mosques always have a spike in attendance on Saturday, and churches on Sunday, and significantly lower attendance during the other days. I certainly hope my referenced statements of Mr. Kansoer have not alarmed Morton Grove residents into joining him in the lawsuit he is threatening to file to stop Muslims from worshipping at MEC. For that I would like to read the new editions. The ads, very BOLD print, catch the eye. Anyone pay for this? It is all, as it is well said. Certainly agree with Mary Lou Sandvik. We do not have the Family Library in Niles. The staff, as she says, always cheerful, polite, and seem too busy to assist. Mr. Kansoer needs.

With the start of a new school year, local counselors offer parents tips for students' success shared what advice they would give to parents in order to help their school year.

Linda Feldheim of Culver School recognizes how difficult change can be and may have a hard time making the transition to the more restricted school year.

If everybody can laugh a little more, it will help,’ Feldheim said.

Like said that parents should help their children develop new habits of purchasing supplies, clothes and other items.

She also suggested that parents should let their kids know that school is very important.

There will still be some time to play as well. Feldheim also believes parents should stress the importance of purchased supplies and the amount that need to be taken in order to reach a certain outcome.

"I would advise regulatory of schedules, such as homework time and bed time," said Judy Wittmus, that parents should encourage uper Sunday at the Niles Public Library was in super as it gets. Over 2,000 people passed through the doors Saturday afternoon, as the library kicked off its annual celebration of winter time.

The library closed on Sunday during the summer, but reopened from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sundays during the winter months.

This year's event was designed to offer something for everybody.

With popcorn clutched tight, young visitors could enjoy a variety of activities, including games, puppet shows, and art projects.

Super Sunday is a great way for families to get involved in various activities.

I personally believe that the public library is a fantastic resource for children.

I am very excited to see how this event will continue to grow and evolve over the years.

"It's a beautiful day, considering we had a very mild winter," said Judy Wittmus.

"We got a very favorable reaction, before the youngsters trekked to the library."

WHAT'S IN STORE FOR THE BUGLE?

From the editor's pen

When I started working at The Bugle about a month ago, our publisher, Rich Masterson, set a high bar for my performance. He wanted me to write a new Bugle, one that reaches the readers in Niles, Morton Grove, and now Park Ridge. I must say, I feel that I have exceeded that expectation.

The Niles Park District acquired the golf course in 1979. A local group called the Friends of the Park, fought to preserve the golf course and was successful. Original town from the 1920s still exist along the golf course and the number six hole on the golf course is the same hole from the initial 18 holes.

Levi said they are creating a panorama that will feature architecture of the golf course, history, and the present day condition. The Niles Park District acquired the golf course in 1979. A local group called the Friends of the Park, fought to preserve the golf course and was successful.

What’s in store for The Bugle?

A group of women from the Morton Grove Chamber of Commerce held a meeting on Saturday, October 25, to discuss upcoming events. Among the topics discussed was the possibility of a chamber newsletter.

The group also discussed the idea of a chamber directory. The directory would list all members of the chamber and their services. The newsletter would be a great way to get information out to the membership.

A SPORTING VIEW: The Power Game

By Chris Ruhm

The week, Notre Dame looks off its Big Ten football schedule traveling to the University of Michigan for a huge game — against the Wolverines. Being an alert reader, you are probably saying "ahh" right about now, because you know that Notre Dame is not a member of the Big Ten. Yet the Fighting Irish will have an effect this year on the Big Ten, the Big East and maybe even the ACC — perhaps as much by what they do off the field as what they do on it.

That being said, Notre Dame's addition to the Big Ten caused quite a stir. With the addition of Notre Dame, it will also have a rematch with Michigan State, which is a new Big Ten member. The ACC could use a 12th team, which would make the Notre Dame contest carry over to the ACC. Yet the aforementioned C-USA could lose Miami and Virginia Tech to the ACC, and Notre Dame could just remain as an offer in 1999, could make it dominate college football power conference.

Notre Dame could remain as an independent quietly, ignored by its peers but certainly respected. Any offer for Notre Dame will be the type to want to have independence behind it. To the success of the Fighting Irish reflects alone, that, too, will have an effect on what other schools and conferences do. That's what Notre Dame is about, and it is already helping Notre Dame to match competing in other sports. An addition of Notre Dame football would make the

Hay Caramba likes taste of Uptown Park Ridge

TRACY YOSHIDA

Hay Caramba - Hay Caramba Mexican restaurant at 146 S. Edgerton in Park Ridge is expected to move to 132 S. Prospect in Park Ridge sometime next year. "We are working on the drawings and applying for a permit," said owner, Bill Saavedra. "We're moving because I bought the property," said Saavedra. "It's a better location." Saavedra believes that business will increase at the new location. Hay Caramba has been located in Park Ridge for 12 years. "It's still good," said Saavedra, about business in the current location. "It's not the way it used to be." In addition to being in a different location, the new restaurant will be larger, containing about 4,500 sq. ft. compared to the 2,900 sq. ft. it currently has. Saavedra said that they were initially considering having condiments connected to the building, but he said that they would have been too expensive to build.

The new restaurant will continue operating with the same menu and it will maintain its sit down casual style.

Perfect weather helps pack Oktoberfest

WENDY FILD

Fifteen degree weekend weather brought the crowds out to the 13th annual Park Ridge Oktoberfest and Carnival this past weekend. "This is the second best year we've had," said Southpark Merchant Association's Pat Foster, who estimates this year's event brought at least 6,500 people out to the three day carnival. "Having been moved off the green two years ago because of heavy rains, the city closed down a stretch of Talbot for the second year in a row to make way for the Carnival ride. "We boost a lot from last year, about parking and what rides go well next to others," said Foster.

The merchants also sponsored this year's car show, which was a huge success. "They expected about 20 cars, and they got around 40," said Foster. Twenty trophies were handed out, including two for Best of Show. Best of Show were awarded to Bob Ferguson in his 1956 Chevy. Wheeling car buff Tom Pecoraro paid $13,000 for the Chevy in 1976. "It's still good," said Saavedra, about business in the current location. "It's not the way it used to be." In addition to being in a different location, the new restaurant will be larger, containing about 4,500 sq. ft. compared to the 2,900 sq. ft. it currently has. Park District, City close to $1 million agreement

Park Ridge Park District Commissioner Bob Touma and Park Ridge City Manager Tim Schuenke both say they had "optimistic" toward an agreement that is likely to resolve the city providing $1 million for capital improvements at History and Hedges park.

The park district requested that 60% of the last new value revenue from the TIF district property be reimbursed by the city plus an additional 40% of $1 million. Touma said the park district felt they deserved more than the 60%, because the city was saving the city more than $1 million by allowing them to use History for a concert venue.

"In our report, we discovered more than five schools," said Touma. "We can save the city $1 million. We're trying to do the good job.

"Our attorney has advised us not to go with a percentage," said Schuenke, who said the city will likely provide $1 million for capital improvements at the parks. Some of the money will go toward fixing the tennis courts, the parking lot on Norwood and the sidewalk on Busse at Hinkley Park. Other improvements will take place at History.

"As of this time, we have no doubt free look down agreement, but we are optimistic," shared Touma. "I'm equally optimistic," said Schuenke. "I'm sure we can get it done.''

The Maine South Hawks looked to impress the crowd last Saturday in a home game against the Warren Bears. The Hawks improved their record to 2-0 with a 34-14 win over the Bears.

The fourth quarter allowed Warren to take advantage of one of Price's few mistakes, when Warren Defensive Back Marvin Brandt intercepted an attenuation 7-0 yard pass for the Bear's first score of the day. The Hawks would respond a few plays later by Philadelphia, rallying to score on Price's third touchdown run by junior Andy Conner. A third down run by Warren multiplier touchdown from junior Jimmy Foster put the Bears up by 10 with 17 seconds left in the game, completing a 22-yard pass up the middle to senior wide receiver Mike Labus.

Maine South running back Andy Cupps finds daylight for a first down in their game against Warren, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 6.

Tracy Chevalier was gone before she had a chance to be 2001's best seller Girl With a Pearl Earring, a skillfully executed novel of 17th-century Holland in the context of the Restoration of the Stuarts. The Virgin Blue, recently written prior to "Girl," is also a historical tale, but with something of a personal appeal.

Ellis Turner is an American trying to start a new life with her husband near a small French town. Torn between her new neighborhood, the Ellis boys by driving us past, attempting to meet her French ancestry, the Ellis finds herself haunted by disturbing dreams, although she can remember little of them—only strange words, an overwhelming sense of fear and an indescribably beautiful blue.

Isabelle Traouer is a French woman of the 16th century, also something of a recluse in her village. She has her family approved by religious tradition and forced to make a new home where she can live in peace. Surrounded by danger and opportunity, bubble-clings to a long-ago vision of beauty — a glimpse of an indescribably beautiful blue.

Striking similarities in the lives of these two women are slowly revealed in the readers. Ellis Turner and Isabelle Traouer both seem eerily similar. They are close friends in separate worlds until the secret is revealed. The book begins with a historical novel of love and rivalry, both solid and desperately hopeful.

Keeping Pests Out

Q: We've developed a bit of a pest problem in our house, and we're not sure what to do next. What can we do to protect our home from pests?

A: The first step is to check the home environment around the house - cracks or crevices in the foundation, the location of certain items, or unsecured access points to the house (such as cracks in the foundation).

Check your home, inside and out, and create an entry point. Roots don't damage the foundation, but what caused this problem? Now, note the location of potential protected access points to the house (such as cracks in the foundation). The abundance of multi-legged pests can be caused by anything from a change in the environment to an increase in the number of pests in your house.

Check out foliage near the foundation, and create an entry point. Bugs suddenly appear, a change in climate, or a change in your home's environment, may be the reasons why. The best defense is offense, and you can protect your home from pests by reducing the abundance of pests in your home.

Make sure that your home is free of pests, and that you reduce the abundance of pests in your home. Bugs do not live in your house, but they do live in your garden. Bugs do not live in your house, but they do live in your garden. Bugs do not live in your house, but they do live in your garden.

Donna's Day Family Fun by Donna Black

It's a sunny day, outside in the garden. There's a little girl and a little boy sitting on the grass. The girl is holding a book and the boy is holding a toy. The garden is beautiful, full of flowers and plants.

Home tip for the week: Keep a list of pests and make sure to address any issues as they arise.
