Residents, municipalities cope with garbage strike

WENDY ELLIS

Area residents may have to come up with some creative ways to store their garbage, now that Chicago area garbage haulers have overwhelmingly turned down a contract offer and continue to strike against 17 area disposal firms. Public Works departments in Niles, Park Ridge and Morton Grove are rising to the task of handling commercial refuse problems, but most homeowners may be on their own for a while.

In Morton Grove trucks from the village public works department go out every 3 or 4 days to pick up garbage from local restaurants and grocery stores and haul it to the SWANCC landfill in Glenview, but residential pickup is on hold for now.

“We're going to be working on it,” said Public Works Director Andy DeMonte. “But of course, nobody expected it to go on this long.” DeMonte said picking up the commercial garbage is a public health issue. They do have suggestions for what residents can do to minimize the problem of growing garbage at home.

1. If you don't have to throw it away, hold on to it.
2. Recycle everything you can. All recyclables can be placed in one container. This includes newspapers and inserts, magazines, catalogues, phonebooks, junk mail, chipboard such as cereal boxes and paper towel rolls, cardboard that has been flattened and cut, plastic products, office paper, glass bottles and jars of all colors and metal products.
3. If you have a garbage disposal, use it whenever possible.
4. Separate food waste from other waste and store it either in a closed container or in garbage bags inside the garage or shed to keep animals away from it.

In Park Ridge Public Works Director Joseph Saccomanno says his people have been picking up overflow garbage from restaurant and businesses since last Friday, but only overflow. What the city collects gets put into two rented semi's which haul the refuse to SWANCC's transfer site on North River Road in Des Plaines. Residents in Park Ridge may get a little relief beginning Wednesday. The plan now is for city employees to begin doing overflow garbage pickup midweek. Overflow garbage is garbage that is put into 41 or 55 gallon garbage bags, sealed and left at the curb. The city workers will not pick up any garbage left in cans at the curb. Saccomanno says there's word that management personnel from ARC, the city's disposal company, may begin doing some regular garbage pickup in town around midweek as well.

Niles Public Works Director Teofilo Noriega, Jr. says his village rented four garbage trucks but could only get advice on how to use them from the employees at Groot. “We don't want our people to get hurt on the job,” said Noriega. The village has been picking up garbage from businesses and large residential complexes as well as densely populated residential areas. Niles garbage also gets hauled to the transfer station in Des Plaines. Noriega said a possible residential pickup is usually on Thursday and Fridays. “I don't know what will happen this week,” said Noriega. “We only have a few guys. We still have other stuff to do and now we put everything else on hold.” Noriega says local homeowners have been very nice about the garbage problem so far, storing their trash in the garage or shed. He's also glad the weather is on the cooler side these days. That definitely helps the situation.

Until there is a settlement in the contract dispute, the task of keeping garbage under control will fall to the public works employees in each local community. Morton Grove, Niles and Park Ridge are all members of the Suburban Waste Management Agency of Northern Cook County. For extra tips on how to keep garbage to a minimum, and how to store it safely, people can access their website at www.swancc.com.

Rainy conditions don’t stop Maine South in 42-14 win over New Trier

BY RYAN BISHOP

The weather conditions at New Trier Friday night were not conducive for Maine South’s highly-polling offensive game. Maine South’s Tony Zule answered with a rush to New Trier’s 39-yard line. The Hawks would fail to score on the occasion. However, Derek Walsh caught an eight-yard TD pass from Price with 5:30 to go in the first quarter. The 64-yard, 5-play touchdown drive was set up by DP Spencer’s pick-six to the NT 49-yard line.
