School Board divided on OLR closing

BY ALLEN KALETA

The regular meeting of the Our Lady of Ransom School Board, Monday night, March 15 gave some board members a chance to vent emotions that have been building up for years and others a chance to explain why they think Fr. John Hall, pastor of Our Lady of Ransom, should be removed.

During her President's Comments section of the agenda, School Board President Patti Roush dished out a list of frustrations with the school board and the parish.

"I'm really disappointed about the public outcry from the people that don't support the parish," said Roush. "I'm disappointed in all of us for our lack of insight. This should have been addressed seven years ago."

Roush said she was disappointed by what she called "secret meetings" that have been going on throughout the parish that she said were convened to set the record straight but did not have other people there to provide input.

Roush also said a lack of support by parents and parishioners over the last few years also may have contributed to the school's closing.

"I did not see anyone else stepping up to be president of this school board," she said.

Roush, also said members of the school board declined to be part of the viability study that eventually led to the closing of the school.

But other members of the school board felt Fr. Hall was the underlying cause of the problems within the school board and the parish.

"We have the wrong pastor in this school," said Board Member Story Continues...

Bugle, Maine Township begin food drive

Locations in Niles, Park Ridge, Morton Grove available to donate food

The Bugle and Maine Township announced a cooperative effort today (Thursday) to urge members of the community to donate food to the Maine Township Emergency Food Pantry.

Historically, the early spring is a time when food donations to local pantries decrease.

“People always donate around the holidays,” said Carol Langan, coordinator of the food drive.

Opinion

Dear Editor,

As a proud alumna and current parent of OLR, I am extremely saddened to hear of the closure of Mother Cabrini High School. Although this is not a result of any one individual, it is a collective result of many factors. First of all, property taxes in Chicago, especially in areas like the South Side, are skyrocketing. At the same time, parents have been pulling their children from Catholic schools, even those in the suburbs. This has made it more difficult for these schools to maintain their enrollment numbers. Over the years, Mother Cabrini has overcome difficulties on both a personal and public (OLR) basis, and has experienced a growing enrollment. Since his day of inception as our Pastor, he has been an individual who has pulled their children from OLR. Upon my graduation in 1991, the private schools such as OLR no longer can remain competitive with the many parents in the area, they believe that if they are to pay for the public schools, they want to take advantage of them. Now, most private schools such as OLR no longer can remain competitive with the area's many public schools. Bloomingdale Bank & Trust passed away this week and we thought to buy the OLR, but we realized that the interest on OLR was much higher than the interest on OLR.

Sincerely,

Business

Monmouth Grove's La Pizza-Ria has deep roots in the community.

BY PATRICK RENNELL

La Pizza-Ria has only been open in Monmouth Grove for about six months, but the pizza has been on the scene much longer. The business was founded by Sam Gray, who has been in the pizza business for more than five decades. According to Gray, the restaurant started in the basement of his family home, which was located on the corner of Niles and Delaware. It's true that Gray's restaurant has been in business for a long time, but what's even more interesting is that the restaurant has been in business for a long time. It's true that Gray's restaurant has been in business for a long time, but what's even more interesting is that the restaurant has been in business for a long time.

A 15 PERSON CONSULTING FIRM PLANS TO GROW.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Be Still My Restless Legs

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I get to bed the right, almost as soon as I can see it, I develop periodic limb movements in my legs, and they keep me from falling asleep. If I do fall asleep, I wake in the middle of the night with the same feelings waking me. I have to get up and walk around. I am losing hours of precious sleep, and I am getting all of this. - W.B.

ANSWER: Your symptoms fit the profile of restless leg syndrome — RLS. It is not a rare bird. More than 12 million other North Americans endure what you are enduring.

People describe the sensations as feeling like an army of ants is crawling in the legs, like pins and needles, or as though a carbohydrate is flowing through the legs. This almost always happens when a person has down or rests in a chair. In addition to the sensations, many people's legs feel twitchy, and for some the legs repeatedly kick their bedmates. These movements are called PLMD — periodic limb movement disorder.

The sleep disruption caused by RLS makes people chronically tired. In some RLS patients, an anemia or a low blood iron level exists. For them, iron supplements and the problem. Others might have kidney disease, nerve troubles or diabetes.

Be sure to consult your doctor if you are directed at the primary problem. Most, however, have an associated illness.

There are a few self-help remedies for RLS. Take a hot bath before going to bed. After (or during) the bath, massage your legs. For RLS, take a hot bath before going to bed. After (or during) the bath, massage your legs. Medicines used for Parkinson's disease, nerve troubles or diabetes.

Examples are the combination medicine carbidopa-levodopa, or the single-ingredient medicines pergolide, bromocriptine and the newer Parkinson's drug, pramipexole. Contact the Restless Leg Syndromes Foundation at 1-877-RLS-HELP, or home on its Web site, www.rls.org.

Readers can obtain the pamphlet on restless leg syndrome and night eating, "the Bandit," by writing: Dr. Donohue - Web, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (to cash) for $4.50.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Two years ago, my son met a darling girl. I recently learned she has bipolar disease. She has destroyed a beautiful canvas, computer and dishes in fits of rage, and she has hit, bit and kicked me. She refuses to take medicine. My husband and I are afraid she might kill her bedmate. We want to answer individual letters. It is not a rare bird. More than 12 million other North Americans endure what you are enduring.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE HEARING IMPAIRED

Beltone Electronics Corporation in Chicago is an integral part of the largest hearing aid provider in the world. Beltone is also the oldest name in the hearing aid industry. This translates to the best service, the best name recognition and the best quality products.

Without these three factors we never would have reached such heights.

The next time you are tempted to order a hearing aid by mail and later feel you were ripped off, take a moment to think what you have just purchased. It was a fraud. Safety is the best argument for the defense.

After making up a twelve point deficit, they had been down 60-48 heading into the fourth quarter, the Niles West Wolves (13-1) came up inches short on a last second shot, falling in a 67-66 loss to the Evanston Wildkins (12-2).

The break in the game came half way through the 3rd quarter when Gregor West from Evanston broke open a tie game. West kept it in front of a Niles shot pace, and with time expiring in the 1st half just put down a two-hand dunk.

The Evanston crowd enroded and charged by the decay, the Wildkins scored nine more unanswered points to give them an eleven point lead. The Wolves tried to climb back into the game during the lead but with time expiring, tied it up on a long shot that banked in. With twelve second points spread heading into the North most of the crowd questioned whether Niles West could make up the huge deficit.

The Wolves came out living, and on their first possession Larry Lord hit the Wahalla down low for a quick score.

The game narrowed back and forth until Sean Odzic caught fire. Odzic hit five three pointers and scored seventeen total points in the quarter to put the Wolves in a position to win the game. With 3.9 seconds remaining, Rudolph Moe hit his sixth of the night to cut the lead to three for the Wildkins up 5.

Storming down the court, the Wolves front court that would need the game to continue with only five to play, the ball came from Lord and with Evanston shying in the face he turned and charged three.

At the half traveled toward the.

Now, the easily courted off completely silent and everything seemed to slow down as the crowd waited for the shot to fall. When the ball bounded off the rim, off by inches, the Evanston front exploded, more relieved that they had been on this anything else.

Odzic would finish the game with 23 points, and Lord finished with 15. Way of Evanston finished with 23 points, while Moe had 19 in the final quarter.

Niles West’s Larry Lord prepares to take off in the second half.

Niles West boys varsity basketball will take on the Evanston Wildkins in the Stagg Holiday Classic Thursday night.

The game will be played at 7:00 p.m. at the Stagg Holiday Classic.

Perhaps we were more successful than others when he decided to form a new jazz band, and hundreds of people showed up for auditions. That was back in 1993, not long after Surace had moved to the Chicago area from Florida, where he'd spent 17 years as a jazz director at Jacksonville State University. Armed with a portfolio of music he didn't want to go wanting, Surace put out the call.

"I had so many hopeful and enthusiastic people interested, it was overwhelming," said Surace, who has been the director of the band for 15 years. "In the Swing" band ever since. Until about a year ago, the band was known as the Morton Grove Park District Community Band, because the park district provided them with practice space. Then the band moved to the Morton Grove Park District Community Art Center, which has been around for decades. "Seven pieces would be a large orchestra," said Surace, "so we've been able to do more with fewer people."

Balancing Outlook Pays Off for Investors

If you've been investing for a short while, you've already managed to get an education on Wall Street... for free. This year, you might be wondering: 'What's next?'

It's not too late to start enjoying the benefits of a well-balanced approach to investing, even if you've never thought about it before. As you know, a diversified investment portfolio is the cornerstone of a successful retirement plan. In fact, a balanced portfolio can help you reach your retirement goals, even if you're just starting out.

Diversification is the key to reducing risk. By spreading your investments across different asset classes, you can benefit from the growth of one asset class while offsetting the losses in another. A well-diversified portfolio can help you withstand market swings, regardless of which way the market is going.

Moreover, diversification can help you preserve your retirement savings. In today's volatile markets, it's more important than ever to have a well-balanced portfolio that's designed to meet your specific financial goals.
