D63 plans to outsource school bands

BY WENDY ELLIS
wellis@buglenewspapers.com

East Maine School Dist. 63 may turn to private companies to provide a band program for its students. The district was forced to cut back all of its extra curricular activities and lay off 83 employees when a tax referendum failed last spring. Since then the district has been working with local park districts to put together a program that will allow some after school sports activities to continue, although with a fee.

Band, however, is out of the park district’s realm. Band parents have been working since the referendum defeat to find ways to raise enough money to keep the program going, but their efforts have so far proven unsuccessful. The Band program cost the district over $156,000 to operate, and to pass that cost along to the families of the 400 students who use it would be too expensive for most.

Now, however, the district is exploring the idea of outsourcing the band program. “These are companies that provide this sort of program for private schools and smaller districts,” said Superintendent Dr. Kathleen Williams. Going private is a fair deal for the district’s budget. “Parents would contract directly with the company,” she said. “The District would not be able to subsidize it at all.”

Dist. 63 has decided to try again this fall to pass the tax referendum that was defeated by just over 200 votes. It would put close to $4 million back into the district’s budget.

Three Park View teachers retire

Matt Cole, Pat Shike, and Marge Campbell, retired this year from East Elementary School District 70’s Park View School. Supt. Gary Zabalika congratulated the three teachers and praised them for their service.

“We can all appreciate the tremendous contribution these teachers have made to our students, faculty and community,” he said. “They will be missed.”

Matt Cole taught at Science Park View School for 12 years and coached the Science Olympiad Team to first place in the regional and national competitions on a regular basis.

“I love this place,” Cole said about Park View. “It’s the best.”

In retirement he plans to remain active in running the Regional Science Olympiad. He will also be helping with the national meet at the University of Illinois.

Pat Shike has taught at Park View for 33 years in grades three through six.

“As I told the Board of Education, I have seen many changes here,” she said. “But there has always been a sense of family at Park View. It’s the people who make the district strong.”

Shike will be married in October and plans to travel with her husband in retirement.

Marge Campbell taught for 39 and a half years of teaching experience at Park View. Campbell has taught second, third and fourth grades and served as a reading coordinator during her long tenure. She said she had a “good run” seeing student enrollment become quite large and then decline and now rise significantly. In retirement Campbell plans to travel and garden.

“I hope to have time to finally sit and read extensively,” she said.
Deadline for vehicle stickers extended

Niles North program wins grant

The groundbreaking new reading program at Niles North High School in Skokie, One Book, was created to help students focus on reading to read a book together throughout the course of the season. They held discussion groups and can be spotted reading together on the road to away games, but soon might be expanding to accommodate academic clubs, school government, and any other student groups that wants to participate in the program.

One Book, One Book program is geared towards local students graduating from Niles North’s college of Arts and Sciences with a bachelor of arts degree in English and secondary education. Jennifer Ann Snelling of Niles, graduated from the college of Arts and Sciences with a bachelor of arts degree in English and secondary education.

The policy, that was unanimously placed on the list.

They hold discussion groups and can be spotted reading together on the road to away games; they can be seen reading outside of the classroom,” said Nikki Zarefsky, the program’s coordinator that not only improves literacy, but team spirit, leadership.

Letters

MGO letters show position is ill-informed

Dear Editor,

I was interested in seeing so many letters from MGO members, but also to see that they believe the Village is willing to give everything to the MCC that they asked for in the beginning, including the Capron Park west parking lot. The letter written by the Village shows that the Village has not asked for or been given the option to review the plans of the MCC, and is not asked to approve the design of the mosque. The Village has not even been consulted on the subject of parking or design. That's why the Village has not given the MCC any help in finding a suitable location for the mosque.

Sincerely,

Take TA2 to Referendum

W e're getting close, folks. The City Council is getting ready to present the plan they made for the development of TA2 to the residents on Monday, July 19. We will then have the opportunity to vote on the proposal during the August 2 Referendum.

The debate will be long, painful process, not fitting in with the Village's parking plan would require a long, painful process, not fitting in with the Village's parking plan would require extraordinary compromise in mediation, the capacity was reduced to 85 percent from the 1,000理论上, the Village would have been able to build a 598 person mosque and a 598 person mosque in the same MOO. What she seems to have overlooked is that in the same MOO, MCC had originally asked for and is not located where MCC and engineers fell was most needed. Instead of consistent, "if the Village allows all the cars to fill their neighborhood. The neighborhood simply did not, and does not want a massive presence?" Guess what? The MCC did.

The plan for TA2, devised by the Council-administered PRC-Park Ridge City Council, currently stands in opposition to existing Park Ridge zoning code and the stated opinions of the United States Army Corps of Engineers.

The citizens of Park Ridge are not going to be aired and analyzed, for it res- ident-ly has that only due to the homeowner and family group of citizens formed in 1999 to encourage a dialogue between the community and from public input, what this seems very inconsistent to me. This code as basis for more open spared space. it has nothing to do with some imaginary construction of new schools. It has given to awarding grants for econ- omies. Our sincere thanks once again.

Las Vegas. Just the word brings forth thoughts of glitter and gambling, scars and nightclubs. Money flows in abundance, as there aren’t many Las Vegas “locals” — except a mayor in the Big City. How, you think the Big Four of pro sports is now the Big Five, then Las Vegas counts, as it doesn’t make a good cocktail when franchise. Why? Because ita main involves pro sports. Any real case for Las Vegas seems threatened or to be worked out, smart investment will not rest on status quo, and there is no Las Vegas franchise. The compromise position is for the NHL’s Art Ross Trophy as the remainder are outside of the pro sports. The NHL, Major League Baseball and the NBA. Most likely, neither would opt for an expansion team, but a town on the move could be a possibility. Reports have indicated that both膝盖 have Las Vegas as a last or on the long-range plan for expansion, or as a relocation option for the fourth major league. Any pro team for Las Vegas cannot figure into teams’ need for a new arena. And a Las Vegas team could be a great help for baseball and basketball, and the hometown revenues, downtown era. If a gambling restaurant cannot be worked out, answer is clear. There will not be an arena, and for the near future, Las Vegas could mean a major city outside of the majors.

To figure out the right financing, you'll need to determine the budget for your project. It's important to know how long will it take you to pay for the money you receive from your project if you want to be successful. Here's a breakdown of how much it will cost you:

- Can I afford it? If you can
- How much will it cost you?
- Is it worth it? If you want to

Covering Up Siding Problems Causes Future Headaches

(NAPSI)-Bob and Janet Comae's first home was built for them in the suburbs of Atlanta. Go, to their native-wood siding was the siding of choice for many of the homes in their neighborhood, and so the Comae's went to protect the outside of their home. But within five years, Bob began to notice some unusual water accumulating on her home.

“Free a dynasty, my house looked like this,” he said. “But when you walk through that door, you could tell that the siding was of poor quality and the peeling was nothing. It was obvious that it didn’t do the job it was supposed to do because of the sun and humidity of the area.”

How To Beat The Heat Of High Cooling Costs

BY DEAN JOHNSON

(NAPSI)-Who gets hit by the heat, test, Americans love it very much! Not everyone agrees. A recent study found that average household cooling costs have increased 50% in the past five years. In the hottest day of the year, it is crucial to consider energy efficiency, and how to reduce the impact of global warming on the environment. (e) 2004 King Features Syndicate, Inc.
Siding

Bob's house, the hardboard as well as the exterior siding, was probably the worst and the actual structure of the home would have sustained serious damage. "If it had left it up there for another five years, the home would have had serious structural damage," Temmel suggested that owners replace the siding with James Hardie siding. These siding products will not rot or crack, are non-combustible, and resist damage from salt, acid, moisture and flying debris. These products currently possess more than 2.5 billion hours in the Columbus, Ohio, area (a hardboard house the hardboard siding that Temmel suggested have had serious structural damage."

Another five years the home would have been "covering up a siding problem just as you use for common damage and a major expense in the future."

Covering up hardboard siding, instead of replacing it, can lead to a host of problems.

Cooling Costs

So how can you take the heat out of living utility bills without sacrifice during indoor comfort? First of all, there are many ways to keep your utility bills in check while adding value, which is a real benefit to the serious home owner. Twenty percent of householders report heating or cooling their home two hours, or more times a week, according to the Energy Star program. In many cases, multiple members of the household are in control of the thermostat.

All those fingers fiddling with thermostatic settings cost money. It's time to install and use a programmable thermostat. You can program these wonders with automatic adjustment of your home's temperature when you're sleeping and away from home. Install these devices away from heat sources and in a cool part of your home.

The base thermostat maintains a precise temperature and comes with a preset program that's easy to customize and will save your settings after a power outage.

If you can't remember how to install and use your programmable thermostat, visit the manufacturer's Web site or call the installer. For example, the operating manuals for Emerson's White-Rodgers line of thermostats are posted on their Web site at www.whiterodgers.com.

Tips for planning your backyard paradise

(NET) - You don't need to spend a fortune on a backyard project. You don't even need to be a master carpenter. In fact, with a little time and investment, you can be a do-it-yourselfer and dramatically impact the appearance of your back yard and add to its long-term value.

To finish a project as large as adding a new backyard deck or a small as window box planters, Less "Mr. Fix-It" Manfredini, a professional builder and author of the new book "Home Smarts," suggests concentrating on just one project at a time.

"Considering just one item off your to-do list gives you an attainable, quick, easy win for your home," Manfredini said.

No matter whether the budget is less than $1,000, or more than $5,000, sound projects and enjoyment will go to any backyard paradise.

"Wood is a building material that always looks more expensive than it costs," Manfredini said. "It is also very easy to work with and can adapt to any project you plan.

Backyard improvements using wood also are appealing to home owners. According to the National Association of Realtors, wood gardens have been popular for some time, and will add immediate curb appeal.

Manfredini recommends building a window box planter less than $250, to go 25 feet in your yard and add color to your outdoor space. The project is so easy to build that it is like building a box in one to two hours, and for around $15. Another box planter is a great starter project because it is not too costly and can be constructed in your yard in a few hours. You can use it to grow everything from tomatoes and herbs to your own personal herb garden, and it can add cost worth to your yard. The boxes are so easy to build that you could be building a box in one to two hours, and for around $15. SEER

One project that Manfredini recommends is a heat pump. A heat pump is a perfect addition to your home, it really pays to have a contractor inspect and service your air conditioning and heating systems properly to make sure it's operating at peak performance.

To help your contractor is licensed, well-trained, and experienced. Look for firms whose employees are certified by the North American Technologists Excellence (NATE) training academy.

And for those who are do-it-yourselfers, Manfredini recommends visiting the website for manufacturers' websites to buy and install. This can be an enjoyable and rewarding experience for those interested in do-it-yourself projects.

Manfredini has posted free plant plans for your backyard projects. From sporting goods to plants, tools, and equipment, there are many different ways to get your garden started and enjoy the benefits of backyard projects.

"If you're looking for a new way to improve your garden, you can visit our website to learn more about our services and products," Manfredini said. "We also have free plant plans for your backyard projects, so you can start planning your garden today!"
