Grant resigns from Park Ridge Park Board

Park Ridge Park District Commissioner Josh Grant resigned effective Thursday, May 9, citing the time commitment required by his new position with the Niles Township High Schools.

Grant was elected in the 2003 Consolidated Election along with current Park Board President Marty Maloney and Commissioner Lauren Streff. He had long served as a basketball camp coordinator for the Park District at their Community Center.

The vacant position can be filled by a majority vote of the remaining five commissioners. They can go into closed session to discuss potential candidates for the vacancy, according to Park Ridge Public

Morton Grove residents call for tree-cutting moratorium

Board awaiting tree ordinance

Residents in attendance at the Morton Grove village board meeting Monday night urged the board to impose an immediate moratorium on tree removal within the village’s corporate limits in the wake of what some of those individuals called the clear-cutting of old growth trees on the site of planned Concord Homes townhouse/condo project.

In spite of urgings by several residents, the board opted not to approve a moratorium, waiting instead for Tr. Dan DiMaria and several community volunteers to make a recommendation on a comprehensive tree ordinance that would regulate the removal of trees within the village.

“We’re already working on it,” DiMaria told residents.

That was little comfort to Morton Grove Resident and Friends of the Forest Preserve Member John Thill who believes that the discussion would alert individuals within the village that now might be their last chance to remove a tree.

“How many trees are going to get cut down over the next week?” Thill asked the board.

Niles Parks, Federation working on conditions for transfer

BY ANDREW SCHNEIDER

The Niles Park District has already begun negotiations with the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago to transfer Shermer Park to them based on the JF Federation's evidence proposed to the Park District over the past year.

Although a minor portion of Maryhill Cemetery is currently owned by the JF Federation, this new board will like to thank the Village of Niles, cemetery officials and for the patience during construction.

“Now I'm sure I did the right thing”

If someone said five years ago that I was going to live in a retirement community, I would’ve said, “No way!” I had no intention of interest for me, and I’ve become part of the family. I go to current events, arts and crafts classes, and my favorite activity is music appreciation. The food is delicious and nutritious, and guess what! I’m eating properly! I think it’s one of the best places in the city.”

Homesickness: What can parents do

This summer, millions of children will get their first taste of independence at a summer resident camp. For many, it will be also be their first experience with homesickness. That doesn’t mean they have to feel helpless when homesickness strikes. The prescription for coping homesickness is a simple solution of preparation and patience.

University of California, Psychology Chris Thurber studied homesickness in 329 boys between the ages of 7 to 12 at an resident camp. According to his results, homesickness is the norm rather than the exception. A whopping 80 percent of the campers studied reported homesickness at least one day of camp. Thurber and the American Camping Association (ACA) suggest the following tips for parents to help their child deal with homesickness at camp:

• Encourage your child’s independence throughout the year. Practice separations, such as sleepovers at a friend’s house, can simulate the camp environment.
• Teach your child the process of cleaning a camp. The more the child owns the decision, the more comfortable the child will feel being at camp.
• Choose what camp will be like before your child leaves. Consider role-playing anticipated situations, such as using a flashlight to find the bathrooms.
• Read an agreement ahead of time on a calling schedule. If your child’s camp has no phone policy, honor it.
• Send a note or any packages ahead of time to arrive the first day of camp. Acknowledge, in a positive way, that you will miss your child. For example, you say “I am going to miss you, but I know that you will have a great time.”
• Don’t tantrum. Lack of a successful stay at camp is a material object sends the wrong message. The reward should be your child’s new found confidence and independence.
• Pack a personal item from home, such as a stuffed animal.
• When a “rescue call” comes from the child, offer calm reassurance and put the time frame into perspective. Avoid the temptation to call the child home.
• Talk candidly with the camp director to obtain his perspective on your child’s adjustment.
• Don’t feel guilty about encouraging your child to stay at camp. For many children, camp is a first step toward independence and plays an important role in their growth and development.
• Trust your instincts. While most children of homesickness will pass in a day or two, Thurber’s research shows that approximately seven percent of the cases are severe. If your child is not eating or sleeping because of anxiety or depression, it is time to go home. However, don’t feel like a failure if their may at camp is cut short. Focus on the positive and encourage your child to try camp again next year.

Keeping in Touch

Many discuss encouraging their campers to write home regularly to their parents, brothers, and sisters.

Do's:

• Give your child pre-outlined, stamped envelopes or postcards so they can keep you informed of camp activities.
• Ask the camp director if electronic messages are available for campers. If so, remind your child to stay in touch with you through emails, texts, or the camp’s web site.
• Send a note or postcard is admins to the camp as often as a personal touch of home when your child arrives.
• Take a young teenager to camp so they can experience what the facility has not forgotten them. In your correspondence, assure the camper that you know he or she is having a good time and express enthusiasm for the camp’s activities.

Don’ts:

• Although there are belongings in keeping youngsters informed of what’s going on at home, don’t go overboard about the young adventurer right now. Start them resting something back home. Directors advise parents not to be overzealous about their son or daughter’s children in the same manner.
• Don’t worry. Your natural inclination will be to at least a few days at the end of camp you’re in tears.
• Don’t pressure. Your natural inclination will be to at least a few days at the end of camp you’re in tears.
• Don’t pressure. Your natural inclination will be to at least a few days at the end of camp you’re in tears. Instead, remind your child to enjoy the good times they have had and will remember those.

A summer of fun, a lifetime of memories!

The Flag Code, which formalizes and unifies the traditional ways in which we give respect to the flag, also contains specific instructions on when the flag is not to be used. They are:

- The flag should never be used as a drapery, or for covering a speaker’s desk, draping a platform, or for any decoration in general. Bunting of blue, white and red is approved for those purposes.
- The flag should never be dipped to any person or thing. It is flown at half-staff only on the occasion of the death of the President of the United States, of the Vice-President, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and of the Secretary of State; of the death of any Chief of a department of the Government, any Member of Congress, of the Secretary of any of the military or naval forces, or of any veteran who served in the Armed Forces and who has been decorated with a service decoration or medal.
- The flag should be respectfully displayed on all buildings of every kind, on every Navy vessel, and at every public gathering in the United States and its territories and outlying areas.
- The flag should be displayed on all Government buildings and installations and on all vessels of the United States of America. It should be displayed everywhere on the Nation’s monuments and memorials. It should be displayed on the headquarters building and on all buildings of the Government of each State, Territory, and possession of the United States.
- The flag should be displayed on all public buildings on the occasion of public festivals and parades, upon the occasion of the observance of national observances, and upon the occasion of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution of the United States.

The Flag Code also contains instructions on how the flag should be handled and displayed:

- The flag should be moved by hand, not by merely tossing or waving it.
- The flag should be flown at half-staff only when a President of the United States, a Vice-President, a Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, a Secretary of State, a Member of Congress, or a Secretary of any of the military or naval forces, dies.
- The flag should never be used as a cover for a casket or for any other purpose.
- The flag should never be used as a decoration on any building or structure.
- The flag should never be used as a decoration on any vehicle.
- The flag should never be used as a decoration on any object.

The Flag Code also contains instructions on the proper care of the flag:

- The flag should be washed every six months, or when it is noticeably dirty, or when it is not in good condition.
- The flag should be folded neatly and stored in a dry place.
- The flag should never be used as a decoration on any object.

The Flag Code also contains instructions on how the flag should be folded:

- The flag should be folded into quarters and then into eighths, or a triangular fold, and then into eighths again.
- The flag should be folded into thirds and then into eighths, or a triangular fold, and then into eighths again.

"Stone White and Russian Red," by Doris Mayakowsky, Black Cat, 320 pages. $24.95, makes one wonder why his world's are so different. But, independently, imagine it. As the story unfolds, we see Lee's world of reading, and not only the basic human values and the need for life. In "White," Lee's world is a thing of wonder, and the need for life. In "White," the world is a thing of wonder, and the need for life.

"The Man Who Knew Too Much," by Alan Paton, is a good read. The story is about a man who is not quite sure what to do with the world he lives in. He wants to help the world, and to let things be as they are. He has a strong sense of justice, and he wants to help the world. much stress from heat and dry soil. The plants will still need to be watered. It may take you a while to get used to the actual timing of when they need to be watered.

The plants can still be over-watered when the soil pores that are supposed to have air in them have been filled with excess water. They won’t be over-watered due to the water absorbing granules in the soil. If you are planting grass from sod or soil, these products will help you keep soil moisture at a proper level. If you are planting trees, shrubs, perennials or large beds of annuals, you should consider using one of these products. Potted plants and other container plants will also benefit.

I want to prefer the products that can be mixed into soil in a wide area, in rows before the soil mix is available to water. I would suggest using one of these products on its shelf. Reviewing the description is the best in time to plant these plants so don’t delay.

Don’t reach to always water these plants as well. And don’t forget to use a sprinkler that shoots enough water. (The kids will play in the sprinkler when it doesn’t work.)
