Lyke of the Chicago Archdiocese. The ceremony is normally held at Holy Name Cathedral, but renovations to the building forced church officials to look elsewhere.

"This takes a lot of planning, and we didn’t think the church would be available," said Andrew Lyon of the Chicago Archdiocese Family Ministries Office. "St. John was recommended because it had the capacity and ample parking. They are really willing the bend on this with their own music, their own ministers."

The Cathedral visiting St. John Brebeuf for Golden Wedding Anniversary Mass

"The Cathedral visited St. John Brebeuf last spring to celebrate the diocesan Christus Mass. Lyon and the Golden Anniversary Mass was important because it celebrated a significant milestone in people's lives. "Society tends to see marriage as a private thing, and there’s a tendency to think that if you reach 50 years, you’re really lucky," he said. "But we see marriage as the church as a very public institution that deserves to be celebrated. It’s essential."

Cardinal Francis George presided over a Mass at St. John Brebeuf Church in Morton Grove to honor couples celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary this year. Approximately 400 couples were expected to attend the annual Golden Wedding Anniversary Mass and publicly renew their vows, according to the Chicago Archdiocese. The ceremony is normally held at Holy Name Cathedral, but renovations to the building forced church officials to look elsewhere.

Blaze status hearing today

The federal corruption case of former Niles Mayor Nicholas Blagojevich is scheduled for a status hearing today.

Blagojevich was initially set to go to trial today, but the trial date was stricken and replaced with a status hearing in which a judge and lawyers will discuss the case. Federal prosecutors would not say if the change was indicative of a plea bargain.

When asked about his legal situation, Blagojevich said he was keeping everything up to his lawyers.

Federal agents arrested Blagojevich at his home in 2008 and accused him of using his office to enter into several business transactions, all while he was in office. Blagojevich has pleaded not guilty.

Blagojevich released from office Aug. 31 after serving 47 years as mayor, saying he was "clean" and was "winking early" to clear the way for new mayor conditions.

The Village Board elected Travis Robert Callister to finish out Blagojevich’s term, which expires in April. Callister has not said whether he would consider running for the job.

To know teacher Paul Carlson, students were "richly blessed"

By Annie Isaac

Friends and former students eulogized "Mr. Carlson," after a memorial service at Park Ridge Presbyterian Church.

Carlson, 73, who died Aug. 10 after a long battle with cancer, taught history and social studies for 30 years, almost all of them at Maine East High School in Park Ridge.

"He was big! He was corn-ball or casual about "You have been richly made history live and made an impression that will never be forgotten," Coppern said, recalling his "East Campus" of the 1960s, where she taught at a Spanish school. Before then, she served as a Spanish teacher at Evanston High School.

"I know first-hand that people were Spanish or people who were Spanish," she said. "It's a true"...
Cops warn of car burglaries
A spike in ourburglaries has the Niles Police Department distributing a list of tips to prevent minor-vehicle break-ins. Police say most car burglaries are crimes of opportunity that can be deterred by following a few simple rules:

- Always lock your vehicle when you are away from it.
- Always secure valuables in a locked compartment, in the trunk or under the seat, out of view.
- Purchase an alarm or place a sticker suggesting you have an alarm in the vehicle in plain view.
- Try to park your vehicle in a well-lit or well-tended area.
- Most thieves are looking for open vehicles and especially ones where the owner or occupant has left valuables in plain view, something to a police statement. "The thief wants to get in there and get out of there. If your door is locked and nothing is in view, chances are your vehicle will not be targeted. If you leave valuables in plain view, the chances of being targeted are greatly increased whether you park your vehicle or not."

For the first time this year if current trends continue, the number of vacant homes sold will greatly exceed the number sold during any similar period in the last 30 years.

"I am concerned about the municipalities, too, and I am showing more vacant homes than ever before!" said Jane Kurochik, a broker associated with Coldwell Banker in Northbrook who tracks the local North Shore market.

First-time buyers have tax option

"At the beginning of this year, the average price of the last 30 years was $82,000. But the average price of the last 12 months has been $121,000," Smith said. "If you were locked into that price, you would be really concerned."
Sept. 11 is day to remember

For some, Sept. 11, 2001, may not seem like that long ago.

We clearly remember what we were doing that day. We remember our children's fear, our own fear, and the United States was under attack. The World Trade Center and the Pentagon — symbols of American strength — were hit by hijacked airplanes, and another plane crashed near a small town outside Pittsburgh. Passengers who stopped Flight 93 from reaching a possible target in Washington, DC, possibly the White House or the Capitol.

The Sept. 11 attacks claimed the lives of nearly 3,000 people, jPanel. Pearl Harbor was the deadliest attack on U.S. soil.

For some of us younger readers, however, the events seven years ago may seem like the distant past. A high school freshman was only six years old when the attacks occurred.

The federal government has designated Sept. 11 as Patriot Day. The day, however, is more commonly known simply as 9/11. Some of us refer to the day as 9/11 just like the telephone number we call in an emergency.

Each year that passes since Sept. 11, 2001, seems like there are fewer public gatherings in recognition of the loss of life seven years ago and the courageous acts of September 11.

To some, this day is just another day on the calendar. To others, it is another chance to reflect on the events.

For others, it is simply a day to remember.

This year’s Sept. 11 events were somber.

I was just down this aisle. I saw one of those cardboard display holders with a box of real plastic Fisher-Price. So, I grabbed it. No, when I got to it, I didn’t find it in my hand, when a woman who was walking down sprung up and soaked, “That’s MINE!” and ripped it right out of my hands. Rather than have a confrontation in the aisle of Wal-Mart, I chose the high road and let her have her own way. We ended up getting a red plastic coated folder, and my daughter was ticked out of third grade for having the wrong item. It’s unfortunate that the moment of vigilance for school supplies has turned into a hair-pulling, race down the aisle, strained-out experience trying to find everything! Thanks for shining a humorous light on the subject.

A reader from Hoffman Estates

Van Marx notes: This is from my sister-in-law’s mom: Cheryl, I sighed along with your column: while I was editing it, I realized how many the first-day-of-schools were to shop for school supplies.

Swinging into the Staples drive at 5:30 p.m., I decided to see if we were there for it when the parking lot registered with its usual beloved Woodfield Mall just before Christmas.

Inside the stores, lines meandered through the aisles and around empty bins of the advertised free stuff. (One bin, however, was filled with packages of off-brand yellow No. 2 pencils — the kind no one ever wants. I picked up two free packages.) Still, there were no manual folders, no folders that weren’t “girl colored.”

No calculations with simple style numbers: 600 AP or 600 T3. The worst: the general pull over kids’ faces that end summer was definitely over. The best: their moms’ look of horror. The eight-week course meets 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Fridays starting Sept. 12. The fee is $30.

In his latest novel, Marcus Sakey writes about a childless couple who steal money to finance their fertility treatments.

Sakey said he initially decided to write in the crime fiction genre because "I wanted to tell the stories of a lot of people read and crime fiction is the most popular genre out there. Once I started working in it and reading it, I fell head-over-heels for it. I think it's such a strong medium for exploring social and philosophical ideas. At the same time telling a story that makes people step up late at night and make their trains stop."

Good People fits all those requirements. "I wanted to write a book exploring the way we live and our moral flexibility. When are things that we want that seem justifiable?" Sakey asked.

"Good People" is a novel that explores the perils of fertility treatments and their impact on a couple's life. The story follows two main characters, Rachel and Ben, who are struggling to have a child. They turn to fertility treatments to achieve their dream of becoming parents, but as time goes on, they start to question the morality of their actions.

Then they hear a murder alarm and discover their treated with nearly $400,000 in the apartment. "It's not money that they're going to use to head off an illness or to live a jet-set life" Sakey said. "It's just money that puts them back to a normal place where they can chase their dreams."

In researching his books, Sakey reads with Chicago going-pas-fo-orces, studied homilies in tears, grew shocked with Green Berets and watched an autopsy at a morgue. He knows that he can pick a deadbolt lock in 60 seconds. "People write incredibly useful research was finding that makes people stay up late at night and make their trains stop."

For this book, his research included questioning a friend who is a midwife Sakey said he knew he wanted to be a writer by the time he was 6 or 7, but the early results were disappointing. "I wrote short stories when I was younger and through college," he said. "They were pretty much read the whole way, so I put it aside for a while."

That writing period certainly helped. Sakey is definitely a "book-reading" writer. He is also highly disciplined, writing five days a week and demanding that he do five pages every single day. "I treat it like a job," he said.

Kids act naturally

BY MYRNA PETLICIU

Tuesdays at the Nature Center

STILLS AND SPARKS: "Sailboat," "Tree," "Garden"

Most kids ages 3 and older accept wildlife as a normal part of their surroundings and use their imaginations to explore the natural world around them. However, there may be some kids who have not had the opportunity to experience nature as a child. In these cases, we need to create opportunities for them to learn about and appreciate the beauty of nature.

For example, we can take them on hikes or field trips to different areas of the park. We can also provide them with educational materials such as bird books or handouts on local flora and fauna. By doing so, we can help them develop a love for nature and a sense of responsibility towards the environment.

There are many ways we can engage kids in wildlife activities. We can organize nature scavenger hunts, wildlife identification games, or guided tours to introduce them to the wonders of nature. We can also encourage them to participate in conservation efforts such as planting trees or participating in local clean-up initiatives.

In conclusion, we need to make sure that every child has the opportunity to experience nature as a child. By doing so, we can help them develop a love for nature and a sense of responsibility towards the environment. We can create a generation of nature lovers who will work towards preserving and protecting the natural world for future generations.

WEEK 2: OPTIONS, UPGRADES AND INCENTIVES

Personalize your home

By Marcy Mam
SPECIAL TO SUN TIMES NEWS GROUP

One of the best parts of building a new home is selecting your ideal options and upgrades. Personalizing your house is what helps turn it into your dream home.

Kirk Homes is fully capable of indulging a buyer's need for personalizing a new home. During Kirk's 30th anniversary celebration, it is offering exceptional home buyers, including incentives totaling thousands of dollars on express homes for early delivery.

At Herrington Estates in Bolingbrook, homes include many unique features that are often available on options with other builders, such as nine-foot deep basements, nine-foot foundation ceilings, floor-floor exterior brick on all four sides, fully sodded home sites with front yard landscaping and two- or three-car garages. Two-story foyers, decorative columns, central air conditioning, 50-gallon water heaters and more are all included. Call (800) 771-0728, visit www.kirkhomes.com.

Below-market interest rates, generous incentives and assistance for those who have a home to sell or are putting luxury properties on the market, combined with payment of the closing costs. Buyers who may have thought current market conditions precluded a purchase can take advantage of incentives.

Home purchasers can take advantage of below-market interest rates through Kirk Homes' preferred lenders and may list the property at a lower-than-normal price with a market analysis from an area real estate company on their existing property and may list the property at a lower-than-normal price.

For more information visit www.kirkhomes.com.

Flexible floor plans, elegant architecture and extensive options make Kirk Homes' Herrington Estates in Bolingbrook a carefree answer to customization. The employee-owned company is celebrating its 30th anniversary during 2008. Pictured Is the MoraIne kitchen.

Despite crackdown, mortgage-lending fraud continues in Illinois

The developers of a 23-lot lake house development in Lake Chapin Shores, west of Waukegan, say they were defrauded by a mortgage broker. The developer, Todd Janssen, said he was the victim of a mortgage scam that cost him over $200,000.

Janssen said he was approached by a mortgage broker who offered to lend him money to purchase the land for the lake house development. The broker promised to finance the project, but never delivered on the loan.

Janssen said he was unaware of the scam until he discovered that the broker had obtained $200,000 in fraudulent loans from another source. The broker had used the funds to pay off his own debts and to make payments on his own home.

Janssen said he had been working on the project for over a year and had invested $100,000 of his own money. He said he was hoping to attract investors to the project, but was unable to do so due to the fraud.

Janssen said he had filed a police report and was considering legal action. He said he was determined to get his money back and to see the project through.

"This is a serious matter," Janssen said. "I have been defrauded and I intend to take action against the broker. I want my money back and I want to see this project through."

Janssen said he was not the only one to be defrauded. He said he had received a letter from another developer who had been defrauded by the same broker.

The developer of the lake house development said he was not aware of the fraud until he discovered it. He said he had been working with the broker for over a year and had invested $100,000 of his own money.

"I was taken for a ride," the developer said. "I was defrauded and I intend to take action against the broker. I want my money back and I want to see this project through."

Financing options an incentive to sell, buy

By Nancy Warn

A continued incentive to home buyers is the low rate of property taxes. Home buyers in the neighborhood will pay a tax rate of approximately 3%, while home owners in the entire North Shore area will pay a tax rate of 3.5%.

Tom Buschman, sales director of Norwood Builders, said the tax credit is a great incentive for home buyers. "The lower property taxes during the first 12 months can make a significant difference in the overall cost of a home," he said.

The credit is available to home buyers who purchase a home before July 1, 2009, which means that home buyers have until that date to take advantage of the credit and save on their property taxes.

Norwood Builders is offering a $7,500 tax credit on the purchase of a new home. The credit is available for home buyers who purchase a home before July 1, 2009, and it can be applied to the purchase of a new home in the neighborhood.

Saab 9-3 Convertible cuts a mean profile

by JILL CIMINILLO

Saab has clung to the soft top. Wind noise is minimized, but the trunk, leaving a polished exterior line. Trunk space does shrink when the top is down, but it's nice. The soft top folds completely into the cargo area, combined with the optional sand-colored convertible top, it looks rad. They are pieced together with black tape. Not a fan.

Though the first 9-3 I drove had its manual trans, the test vehicle had slick arctic white paint and automatic, it looks rad. They are pieced together with black tape. Not a fan.

The test vehicle added every option except the navigation system. Thus, the as-tested price of the 9-3 Aero model, under $40,700 for the 2.0T model. An up-level Acto model, such as the test vehicle, has a base price of $46,385. Ouch.

Adding a convertible into the equation adds another $40,000 to the price tag, with a base price of $45,000 for the 9-3 9-3 Aero Convertible. With the top down, it looks like a mean profile. thankful, I happened to be driving a 2008 Saab 9-3 Aero Convertible. With the top down, snaky runners into a car and head for breakfast. Thankfully, I happened to be driving a 2008 Saab 9-3 Aero Convertible. With the top down, snaky runners into a car and head for breakfast.

The 9-3 family is how perfectly I fit in the car. From the perfect driving position and felt that the 9-3 would be a mean profile.\n

Chicago Law Firm Reveals Important Facts You Should Know About Living Trusts

Have you heard about the big controversy going on? People are calling it the "Living Trust Revolution", and it's about a subject of paramount importance to almost everyone. Knowing the insider details could mean...

...Saving Thousands of Dollars For You and Your Family!

The people causing the controversy are mainly probate lawyers who are concerned about a recent trend in estate planning. You know what probate is, don't you? It's that legal process you've heard all the horror stories about, that your family has to go through when you die.

What they do in probate court is decide if your will is valid, handle disputes, distribute the assets, and tie up any loose ends. The problem with it is... it can be incredibly expensive, time consuming, and an unwelcome invasion of privacy.

The first thing they do, when your case enters probate court, is make it public record. Every curious neighbor, disgruntled relative, and con artist around is welcome to examine every detail of your finances - and what you left to whom. Then, there's the paperwork, and bureaucratic hassle involved that causes the average case to take nine months to two years, and many take several years.

When your beneficiaries finally get the property that's rightfully theirs, they have to pay out a percentage of it in lawyer's fees.

The reason many probate lawyers are so concerned is because a drastically increasing number of people are managing to pass their entire estates - even millions of dollars - to their loved ones with no probate whatsoever. And it's totally legal!

How are they able to avoid probate? Most of them are using a simple document that's actually been around for centuries. You've probably even heard of it. It's called a Revocable Inter Vivos or Living Trust, and it's been getting a lot of attention lately.

Here's How It Works...

When you set up your living trust, you transfer the title of all your assets (stocks, bonds, real estate, etc.) from your name to the name of the trust. You then name yourself as the trustee and beneficiary. That gives you, and you alone, total and complete control of all your assets. You can buy, sell, trade, do whatever you want - just like you do now.

Here's the difference, and the real beauty of it. When you die, there will be no assets left in your name and, therefore, no probate for your family to endure. Whomever you name as your successor trustee will immediately gain control of your assets to distribute them according to your exact instructions... with no waiting, no public record, and no lawyer's fees!

Sadly, most Americans are led to believe that a simple will is all they need. Yet, a will gives no probate protection whatsoever.

A Fate Perhaps Worse Than Death!

However, there's another, maybe even more important reason to have a living trust. More and more, the biggest problem you face as you grow older, is not so much what happens when you die, but what happens when you can’t take care of yourself. An increasing number of Americans each year are suffering accidents, strokes, and affictions such as Alzheimer’s disease that are forcing them out of control of their lives and finances.

Don’t Think It Can’t Happen to You!

In such a situation, before you or your family could even touch their lives and finances. The good news is, after Probate: Death Taxes!

For the past few years, we have been bombarded with TV and radio reports and newspaper articles discussing the repeal of the infamous estate or “Death” tax. It wasn’t all that long ago the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 was passed, changing some 441 tax laws and making estate planning much more complex and confusing. The good news is that the amount we can give tax-free increases, steadily from $2,000,000 until the year 2010, when we can give away an unlimited amount. But wait! In 2011 the tax goes from 0% to 37% (and up to 55%) of everything over $1 million (the same exemption provided in 2002). What the “Government Giveth, It Now Hath Taken Away.” This makes for a lot of confusion that requires the expertise of a professional estate planning attorney to protect your estate.

No other estate planning tool can give you all these advantages. That’s why financial experts, the press, and the public are all talking about living trusts. It’s thanks to only a small number of innovative law firms that the living trust is gaining the popularity it deserves.

The Experience That Matters!

Because living trusts are becoming more popular, many lawyers - and even non-lawyers with no experience - are trying to exploit their benefits. Don’t be fooled! Just because people are lawyers doesn’t mean they have the experience in researching and preparing quality trust and probate sensitive estate plans. The law firm of Przybylo & Kubiatowski has the experience that matters. They have prepared many living trust estate plans for Illinois residents for many years. The firm is staffed with experienced attorneys and paralegals - trained in the complex areas of probate, trust, and tax law - and they will be there when you need them. Attorney Chester Przybylo (pronounced pri-ba-low) is a charter member of the American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys, a national membership organization of estate planning attorneys. He is also a founding member of the National Network of Estate Planning Attorneys. These two prestigious organizations are dedicated to keeping its members up-to-date on the latest estate planning laws and techniques so they can provide sound legal advice and superb service to their clients.

Attend a Free Living Trust Seminar

If you’re concerned about avoiding probate, costly guardianship proceedings and minimizing the taxes your family will have to pay at your death, you’ll want to attend a free living trust seminar. After the seminar, you’ll have the information you need to make an informed and intelligent decision on these extremely important matters for yourself and for your family. Then, you’ll have the peace of mind to concentrate on life.

Are You Ready for this?
Fact not Myth. In the time available, we will show you ways to:

- Pay NO capital Gains Taxes on the sale of your assets.
- Avoid taxes on Social Security benefits and retirement plan withdrawals.
- Avoid becoming poverty stricken if you go to a nursing home on Medicaid.
- Protect your assets from predators and creditors.
- Keep your estate out of probate - (Wills guarantee probate, not avoid probate).
- Control your assets even if you become mentally incompetent.
- Mitigate estate taxes on larger estates.

A Living Trust done properly, is a magnificent estate planning tool. If you have a Living Trust now, especially if you have had it for some time, come in and find out why your trust provisions may be obsolete and inadequate for your needs.

Learn from a qualified estate planning attorney how your required documents should be prepared to take advantage of these benefits.

Adventures in search of the elusive & legendary Book of Kells

The Book of Kells, an eighth-century illustrated Irish Gospel manuscript, is going on a global tour. For the first time ever, the original Book of Kells will be on display in the United States at The Newberry Library. The Book of Kells, which is considered among the most beautiful books ever created, is a wondrous achievement of art and symbolism.

In Kells, County Dublin, Ireland, bishops ordered the Book of Kells to be created. This magnificent manuscript contains the four gospels of the New Testament. Its lavish illustrations and exquisite calligraphy are a sight to behold.

The Book of Kells is on display at The Newberry Library from May 17 to September 6, 2009. For more information, visit www.thebookofkells.com.

"The cure to anything is salt: sweat, tears, or the sea," proclaimed Dr. Seuss, the Danish author of "Oh, The Places You'll Go!" for her book about her tempestuous marriage.

Glenview native MaryEllen "Molly" McGrath knows about her tempestuous marriage. Her studies at the Culinary Institute of America in New York and her work in the kitchens of several upscale, casual American restaurants. It has no additives, but it's the type of salt that allows it to absorb flavor and texture, an essential ingredient in recipes.

"Salt should really only be used as a seasoning, not a flavor," McGrath said. Her expertise with salt is reflected in her gourmet renditions of caldo verde, a traditional Portuguese soup. McGrath replaces the traditional white flour with a type of salt, known as coarse salt, which is required by Jewish dietary laws. She'll no doubt be the star of the show at her first cooking contest.

The first year a soup recipe wins... Soup

McGrath studied under renowned chef Moricke Johnson, with her greenroom filled with invitations to events, a tradition from her days living in Minneapolis-based Baxt & Booth, which is owned and operated by her friend, chef and restaurant owner, Charles Henn.

"The key to any soup is the base: sweat, tears, or the sea," McGrath said. The base, in this case, is the combination of coarse salt and water. It has no additives, but it's the type of salt that allows it to absorb flavor and texture, an essential ingredient in recipes.

MaryEllen "Molly" McGrath's creamy potato soup

MaryEllen McGrath's prize-winning recipe for this savory potato soup has a surprising ingredient: kosher salt. Her studies at the Culinary Institute of America in New York and her work in the kitchens of several upscale, casual American restaurants.

"Many chefs, cooks, and grill masters enjoy using kosher salt because it's easier to measure by feel," McGrath said. The large flakes make it cook more evenly than other salts and kosher salt because its flavor is more intense. McGrath's other point is that it's harder to keep kosher because it's harder to keep kosher and kosher salt is required by Jewish dietary laws.

Mortgage rates fall for 3rd week in row By Helen Low • Bankrate.com

Mortgage rates fell for a third week in a row as oil prices have been falling this week. The benchmark 30-year fixed mortgage rate fell last week to 5.375 percent, according to Bankrate.com's national survey of lenders, the first time this year that the mortgage rate fell below 5.40 percent. The 15-year fixed-rate mortgage also fell last week, dropping to 4.5625 percent from 4.625 percent last week. The 5/1 adjustable-rate mortgage fell from 5.5625 percent to 5.500 percent.

The move lower in mortgage rates comes as oil prices continue to fall, falling from $65 a barrel last week to $50 a barrel this week. Oil prices have been falling as a result of the economic slowdown and the increased supply of oil from OPEC countries. The fall in oil prices has also helped to lower inflation expectations, which has led to lower mortgage rates.

The move lower in mortgage rates is also being driven by the weak economic data that has been released in recent weeks. The August employment report, which was released today, showed that the economy shed 51,000 jobs, a bigger job loss than expected. The unemployment rate also rose to 4.8 percent, which is the highest level in five years. This weak economic data has led to lower expectations for economic growth, which has led to lower mortgage rates.

In addition to the weak economic data, there are also signs that the housing market is starting to cool. Sales of existing homes have been falling for the past two months, and there are signs that the housing market is starting to cool. This cooling in the housing market has led to lower mortgage rates.

Overall, the move lower in mortgage rates is being driven by the weak economic data and the cooling in the housing market. These factors have led to lower expectations for economic growth and lower expectations for inflation, which has led to lower mortgage rates.

Maine East can’t hold on to early momentum

By JIM EDISON

Both Ridgewood’s and Maine East’s football teams desperately needed a victory Friday night when the two schools squared off in Park Ridge.

And while it is unfair to say which team wanted it more, Ridgewood Rebels (0-2) ultimately had more offensive weapons and scored a 21-20 nonconference victory over the host Demons.

With the score tied at 16-16 at halftime, Maine East (1-1) was outscored 15-4 in the third quarter and the Rebels rode their special teams to a victory.

"Tonight when Maine East scored on the opening kickoff, I thought, ‘Oh no, we’re going to lose again. But then we came right back again."

East, which has not won a game in three seasons, did indeed have this game targeted as a victory.

But when Jeremy Umansky’s (105 yards on 22 carries) run back opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown, the Maine East football showed their excitement.

Both teams traded touchdowns in the second quarter and the game was tied at 8-8 at halftime.

When Brindise, who ended electrifying play to start third quarter hurt us."

But Ridgewood’s big three kickoffs for touchdowns returned two kickoffs for touchdowns Cabot and the Rebels added two more touchdowns as Mike Asens started on a 25-yard return and Devlin Pighee (166 yards on 22 carries) broke loose on a 75-yard scamper into the end zone making it 12-22.

Ridgewood coach Chris Cabot praised the Demons return game.

By Mario Meyers showed his ability completing 12-18 passes for 180 yards.

"Tonight when Maine East scored on the opening kickoff, I thought, ‘Oh no, we’re going to lose again. But then we came right back again."
