Nearly 80,000 Homes Were Sold in Chicagoland During 2008.

Three candidates so far have agreed to participate in a March 12 mayoral debate hosted by Pioneer Press and the League of Women Voters. Acting Mayor Robert Colleen, Trustee Kim Biederman and political newcomer Kristyf "Chris" Hanusik have all made verbal commitments to participate.

The debate will be from 7:45 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday at The Bank of West Park District’s Oasis Waterpark clubhouse, 7777 W. Milwaukie Ave. A Comcast news channel of the event is pending.

Biederman won an early advantage for candidate debates.

"I think that this is the first open election for mayor in almost 50 years. I really appreciate the Northside newspaper hosting this debate," she said. "It’s important to give voters a chance to hear directly from candidates. I called for this debate because we need to do more to make village government more open and honest."

"I look forward to talking about my plans to open up the process to include more input from residents and offer accessible, honest leadership," Colleen, who was re-elected to the seat of trustee several months ago, has stated before.

He said he now looks forward to telling Niles residents about his goals to get Federal stimulus money for infrastructure projects and to revitalize Niles Village.

"I welcome the chance to be here and to talk to the residents," he said.

Hanusik, a political newcomer who has launched a one-woman race with Colleen and Biederman, is banking on introducing himself to residents.

"Debates allow candidates to discuss issues that are important to the community and its citizens," he said. "History has shown that debates also allow candidates to demonstrate their understanding of the problems or lack of understanding, which is more important to the voters than the themes.

"Finally, debating allows the voters to really meet candidates in the ‘real’ not behind concealed statements.

"I will do my best to work together on behalf of Niles," he said.

Maine East turns loose production of ‘Footloose’

Those who enjoy the combination of dancing with rock ‘n’ roll in the gorgeous stage settings of both Maine East High School student productions present the musical, ‘Footloose.’ Friday and Saturday, and March 12, 13 and 14.

During, a solo of Maine East Fine Arts Department, begins the freestyle of the story about a transplanted teenager who tries to break through a ban on dancing in the small town to which his family has moved.

There are a lot of great songs in this show. People don’t necessarily associate with this show,” said Edward J. Fishback, chairman of East’s Fine Arts Department and both producer and assistant director for the presentation.

‘The minis are great and the cast is high-energy, but it’s all geared to address the audience.

‘It’s not a typical band of the school’s opening, something’s wrong with you,” Fishback said. Karen D. Hill directs. Patricia B. Barrett serves as vocal director.

All shows will be in the Maine East auditorium. Regular performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday, and March 12 and 13. The March 14 performance is a senior-senior matinee beginning at 4 p.m.

Maine East High School is at 2601 W. Dempster St., Park Ridge.

Alyssa Paquirlgam and Erikka Mae Magpayo rehearse Friday for Maine East High School’s upcoming production of ‘Footloose.’

Demographics of homeless can provide clues for effective aid

By TONY KURTICA

The Nile Village Board approved a funding plan for a $1.2 million, two-phase plan to conduct a bi-annual count of homeless people in Suburban Cook County. The first phase, which is still pending, would cost $285 an hour for volunteers to staff the plaza.

The plan was presented by John Ives, president of Ives/Ryan Group, a landscape architecture firms based in Naperville.

Phase one of the project was proposed for this year and would entail landscape upgrades at the village's main administration building at 3000 S. Milwaukee Avenue, as well as the fitness center and the community entrance.

Real estate taxes may skyrocket as values fall in reassessment

By Nancy Morris

As Chicago's home values fall by almost half, some homeowners are finding themselves facing a tax increase. This is happening even as the real estate market bottoms out. The city's reassessment process, scheduled to begin this summer, will determine the tax value of homes and businesses. Officials estimate that the reassessment could change about 90,000 home values in the city.

The process of reassessment is designed to ensure that property assessments are fair and accurate. It involves the use of sophisticated valuation techniques to arrive at a fair market value for each property. The assessed value is then used to determine the property tax bill.

However, some homeowners are concerned about the impact of the reassessment on their property taxes. They fear that if the assessed value of their home falls, their tax bill will increase. This is because the tax rate is based on the assessed value of the property.

Don DeBartolo, a real estate attorney, says that homeowners should prepare for a possible tax increase. He advises homeowners to review their property tax bills and to contact their property tax commissioner if they have any questions.

Sandra Yang, a financial planner, says that homeowners should consider the possibility of a tax increase when they are planning their financial future. She suggests that homeowners should discuss their tax situation with their financial advisor or accountant.

The city's assessment process is expected to begin in July. Homeowners will be notified of their assessed value in August. They will have the opportunity to appeal their assessment if they disagree with it.

Real estate taxes are a significant source of revenue for the city of Chicago. The tax rate is set by the city council and is based on the assessed value of the property.

The city's reassessment process is scheduled to take place every six years. The next reassessment is expected to be completed in 2015.

Ill. corner a soar spot for mighty bald eagle

by MAURICE F. FORSELL

The birds are drawn here thanks to a trip of hilly rivers and streets, the Great Smoky Mountains, and Mississippi. They fly down from Canada to the fall because they cover the waves up north. It's possible to go place enough to see the eagle's breast, which is an object of fascination. You will notice that the eagle's tail is long and pointed, which makes it easier for them to fly. A pair of binoculars and your feet are just the right height for watching them. It's thrilling to watch them soar, and the water below is quite clear, making it possible to see the fish in the river.

In winter, skiing in Michigan can be a lot more than just downhill. The resort town of Saugatuck has a special charm, with its cobblestone streets and cozy cafes. Pensacola celebrates 450th birthday

PARTY Yearlong celebration for city on western edge of Florida Panhandle

By Melissa Million

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Long before the UK's West Coast saw its first European settlement, Pensacola was being celebrated by Spain as the capital of its newly won territory — and its identity was being shaped by the Spanish, French, British and indigenous people who joined in the festivities.

The celebration, known as the "Primer Encuentro," or "First Meeting," is a nod to the city's early days, when Spanish explorers first arrived in the Pensacola area in 1518. The event included a religious ceremony, a military parade and a feast, all aimed at solidifying the Spanish claim to the territory.

Today, the city of Pensacola is celebrating the 450th anniversary of its founding, with a yearlong series of events and activities designed to honor its rich history and diverse cultural heritage.

"It's a celebration of the past, present and future of Pensacola," said Mayor Grover Robinson. "It's an opportunity for us to come together as a community and reflect on our history, while also looking forward to what we can achieve in the future."

The yearlong celebration includes a variety of events, such as historic reenactments, music and art festivals, educational programs and cultural events. Fans of the city's rich history can visit the Pensacola History Museum, which features exhibits on the city's early days, or take a tour of the Pensacola Lighthouse, which has been a prominent landmark since its construction in 1858.

"The celebration is a chance for people to come together and appreciate the history of Pensacola," said Robinson. "It's a chance for us to celebrate the city's past, while also looking forward to its future."

Honda's 2009 Ridgeline revives brings improvements

BY JEFF TAYLOR

I was not a big fan of the midsize truck Honda Ridgeline when it debuted three years ago. Now, after a mid-cycle refresh, it is a much better vehicle to consider. The Ridegline is a true half-truck, half-truck. I still don't feel like the Ridgeline is a full-blown truck but it doesn't lack the same capabilities. It is getting better.

In the grille world, it's all about unique looks, ground clearance, payload and towing capacity which the Ridgeline doesn't really excel. In this guide, I am comparing the Ridgesline and a traditional midsize truck in contrast.

If you're familiar with the Honda Ridgeline, you won't notice too many changes upon first glance, but there are differences. The front and rear styling updates for the 2009 Ridgeline are in line with other Honda family members, especially the Pilot crossover.

The Ridgeline's updated grille and front bumper help to reduce the wind noise. The wiper blade area has been increased and the engine is also more efficient. The center stack's dummy Matthew is replaced with a prominent new console on the Ridgeline.

Because the Ridgeline is based on a body-on-frame pickup, it gets a torque curve that is up to 10 pound-feet better than a full-size truck. It's the engine produces 3 more horsepower and 247 pound-feet of torque at 4,300 rpm. Ridgeline also gets better fuel economy as 2008.

The engine produces 3 more horsepower and 247 pound-feet of torque while extending high rpm horsepower for a broad, confidence-inspiring power band. For those who carry more, have more interior room, return better than full-size trucks, it should do better than full-size trucks in the mileage department for what you are getting in terms of comfort and features.

The Honda Ridgeline is really the un-truck of the two, providing the comfort and features of a midsize SUV, it is competitive with some full-size trucks in the market. The Honda is the only half-truck. The Honda is a good alternative to a conventional truck for those who want the advantages of a truck without the drawbacks.

In the rear styling update, put the 2009 Ridgeline more in line with other Honda family members, especially the Pilot crossover. The rear styling updates put the 2009 Ridgeline more in line with the Pilot crossover. The rear styling updates put the 2009 Ridgeline more in line with the Pilot crossover.

DETROIT—The General Motors Co. yesterday revealed that it booked a $9.6 billion fourth-quarter loss, the third consecutive quarter of record losses that has left the company scrambling to find ways to shore up its ailing finances.

The automaker, which reported a $4.4 billion fourth-quarter loss but burned through $13 billion in losses last year, is so desperate to show a profit in the first quarter of 2009 that it has announced an agreement with the United Auto Workers union to extend its labor contract, which expired last August. The United Auto Workers union has also agreed to take a 10 percent cut in wages.

The company also announced it will end production at two of its four North American plants by the end of the year, including its Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant, which produces the Chevrolet Malibu.
