NEIGHBORHOOD HAUNTS

Zombies Natalie Reczek, Maggie Grabowski and Cara Nastali, all 11, wait for the haunting to begin Saturday as teenagers and preteens joined in to create the Haunted Garage in the basement of the Howard Street Inn in Niles. The annual event allows members of the Niles Teen Center to dress up and scare visitors as they walk through the haunted maze. PAGE 9 (Allen Kaleta/For STNG)

Maison Township High School District 207 officials are facing deep cuts to staff and school programs, and with that, they may have to decide which entities will get hit the hardest. Ken Wallen, the district's superintendent, has said the district has already approved the fiscal mandates of the state and is preparing to make attempts at recognizing their own mandates which are not as severe until 2013. The plan, he says, involves reducing educational resources made on behalf of the union could mean teaching jobs.

District officials have a plan to start the process in November. The district is also looking at the idea to Maison Township High School District 207. As part of the process of selecting a new superintendent, Illinois Prairie Ridge School District 64 board members were empowered to hire a search consultant for the search process, according to district attorney Richard Blevins, superintendent, human resources, and afiliated human resources consultant.

According to the superintendent search consultant, John Hedin of the Spencer Group, the following items are one of the most important things the board does. Hedin added:

Dance Slam comes to State
Dance Slam, boasting to be "the world's largest event of its kind!" will showcase 150 teams and $20 for tickets, the hall is packed with people who have done all kinds of things to get in. The sale of the parent company of the Chicago Sun-Times and Pioneer Press was completed today, as a local group of investors led by investment banker James Tyree closed on the sale of the Sun-Times Media Holdings LLC. Tyree, chairman of Marvado Financial, has sought re-investors, all either Marvado executives or other interested parties.

“Our investor team believes there is tremendous opportunity and untapped potential in the Sun-Times Media portfolio of newspapers and Web sites, which combined serve an impressive 2.6 million readers each week, more than any of our competitors,” Tyree said. “We are pleased that these abilities will be locally owned and locally managed.”

Tyree has retained most of his investing partners, including James A. Rybak, who is president of Sun-Times Media Holdings. Rybak, who was a former partner in the Chicago law firm of Jenner & Block, will be chief executive officer of the parent company.

In the business arena, our investors are going to grow the company by seeking new revenue opportunities, in order to adapt and lead change in the rapidly transforming newspaper industry, and to become profitable,” Tyree said.

Tyree said the company of debt. Tyree said the partnership and new investment will be locally owned and locally managed.

Superdawg owners opening second location

Superdawg restaurant, 20 W. 88th St., opened for business Oct. 29 in its new location at 3512 N. Elston Ave., in Logan Square.

Before the opening, the Bermans took a tour of the new location from their father, Bud Berman, who started the business in 1954. "We always have Superdawgs - we're made of love, and we're only going to make love," said Bud Berman, who said his father, Max Berman, started the business in 1954.

At the new location, the Bermans will be serving the same menu as the original location, including the signature Superdawg, which consists of a grilled beef hot dog, a pickle, and a white onion.

"We've never changed our menu, which is why we're still here," said Bud Berman.

The new location will have 45 car hops and is expected to serve 5,000 customers per day.

The original location was founded by Max Berman and his wife, Thress Berman, in 1954. Scott Berman's parents, Paul and Reva Berman, have been involved in the business ever since.

"Our white onion is snickety," said Bud Berman.

"Most of our customers are from the neighborhood," said Scott Berman.

The restaurant is open from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. on weekdays, and from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. on weekends.

The annual 2009 Chicago Jewish Film Festival will be celebrated, with screenings from Oct. 8 to Nov. 20, at the Women’s Torah Emanu El, 1755 W. Anderson St., and the Woman’s Torah Kehilat B’nai Tikvah, 6300 W. Foster Ave., Chicago, tickets: $25; $22 seniors; $6 students and children.

Choosing Films for the Festival: “It’s long — and sometimes hard — process,” Rogers submitted. “Clearly, selection of ourLeave a comment in the film files located in the location of the least 2 computer

Bensimone, “We want a mix of different languages and kinds of film,” says Rogers. “We try to choose films that are well known, others who have won prizes at major festivals with new filmmakers, and others who have shown potential in previous projects with new filmmakers.”

POTTER/CLARK

The festival features world premieres of some of the best films made in Israel in the past two years, including the film “Voices from El Sayed,” set in the picturesque Israeli Negev desert, the Bedouin village El Sayed has the loveliest music and especially for the children, the story of a young girl, the daughter of a young farmer, who dreams of becoming a professional musician. The film portrays a vibrant, young community in a small village, where music and dance are an integral part of the daily life. The film tells the story of Yehuda, a young boy who dreams of becoming a professional musician, and his journey to find his place in the world.

The film also includes the documentary “The Plot,” about the origin of the plot, which has been used in more than 200 movies, and how it is being preserved by the Jewish community. Rogers said: “It is a great story of resilience, and the people of the plot have been fighting hard to keep their tradition alive.”

The audience for the film is expected to be large, with many people interested in the story. The film will be followed by a Q&A with the filmmakers and the cast.

Dining out on a diet

Dining out at restaurants is a fact of life. A recent study revealed that Americans consume 70% of their meals away from home. With the prevalence of chain restaurants and commercially offered foods, it has become a way of life. In a time of unprecedented health crises and obesity problems, restaurants are an unavoidable part of life. However, with larger portion sizes and a greater amount of sodium and fat, among other drawbacks, eating out poses challenges for those watching their weight. Consider these five options when dining out at restaurant.

1. A sandwich made of the lighter bread, such as whole wheat or the multi-grain bread found at a number of chains, such as Outback Steakhouse, can contain as little as 250 calories. A deli sandwich at Panera Bread has 300 calories.

2. A salad made of the lighter dressing, such as a low-calorie dressing made with olive oil, can contain as little as 200 calories. A Caesar salad at Olive Garden has 690 calories.

3. A pasta dish, such as the penne pasta at Olive Garden, can contain as little as 250 calories. A pasta dish at Olive Garden has 2,000 calories.

4. A dessert, such as the chocolate mousse at Olive Garden, can contain as little as 200 calories. A dessert at Olive Garden has 2,500 calories.

5. A coffee, such as a latte, can contain as little as 200 calories. A coffee at Olive Garden has 3,000 calories.

The public's desire to eat outside

The public's desire to eat outside is growing. According to a recent survey, 75% of Americans said they would be willing to try a new restaurant if they could eat outside. This trend is likely to continue as more people become aware of the health benefits of eating outside. According to a recent study, people who eat outside are more likely to be physically active and less likely to be overweight.

Conclusion

Dining out on a diet can be a challenge, but with the right choices, it can be done. By following these tips, you can enjoy a meal out without worrying about your health.

BMW proves diesel is not a dirty word

BY JOHN STEIN
SearchChicago Autos Editor

Talking about my impressions of the BMW 335d requires some preemptive damage control, especially when the word "diesel" (yes, the "d" is in the name) comes up in the conversation.

The American perception of diesel engines is well earned, with trucks giving our noses plenty of reasons to hate them and early versions of diesel cars reminding our ears just how loud these engines could be — especially on early winter mornings. But the new diesels have arrived and the BMW 335d is a great example of how far they have come. New diesels no longer assault the senses.

Why go diesel? For starters, remember $4.50 per gallon gas prices? The auto manufacturers do and good mileage ratings are constantly on their minds. Diesel engines deliver excellent fuel efficiency — a plus when gas prices rise.

Then there is the small matter of this being a BMW — that means it should deliver sports car-like excitement. Let me put enthusiasts at ease — this BMW delivers.

Probably the best part of the BMW 335d is that you have little indication that it is powered by a diesel engine. But there are some hints. First, the engine is a bit louder than most... continued on page 4

FOUNDESS’ DREAM CAN BE A REALITY

By Kat McFarl Executive Director

When new employees join the Food Depository, I share two stories with them as part of their orientation. The first is the story of John Van Aiken, the individual who founded the first food bank, St. Mary’s Food Bank in Phoenix, in 1967. The second is the story of the Food Depository’s own beginning—of six individuals from different walks of life coming together in a church basement in 1979 with a dream of ending hunger.

It is a hope-filled message, of individuals coming together, committed to an idea, and accomplishing great things despite enormous obstacles.

It is a message that we, as a community, need to heed today. As we look at our record levels of hunger and poverty, we need to remember the powerful story of how the world can change. The odds of four people who didn’t know each other well coming together and forming an organization that, in a mere 30 years, would distribute more than 58 million pounds of food to our community’s hungry are a story we must never forget.

As we do our part to end hunger, we must also do our part to address the root causes of poverty and inequality. We must work together to create a world where everyone has access to nutritious food, education, and opportunity.

So let us never forget the power of connections and the strength of a community working together for a shared goal.

“BECAUSE OF YOU, WE SERVE SUPER BOWLS EVERY DAY OF THE YEAR.”

-Devin Hester, Chicago Bears

“BECAUSE OF YOU, FORECAST IS FOR HOPE.”

-Steve Berens, CEO

“BECAUSE OF YOU, EVERY FAMILY IN CHICAGO HAS HOPE.”

-Maureenberns, M.D, Dines, CEO

One Chicago's Community Foodbank, a program of the Chicago Community Trust, is dedicated to ending hunger and promoting food security in Chicago and the surrounding suburbs. With the support of community partners, the Food Depository has distributed more than 58 million pounds of food to our community’s hungry, and we are committed to continuing this important work.

Support the Food Depository today, and help us end hunger in Chicago. Together, we can make a difference.

Mr. Van Hengel, a Wisconsin native who had held a series of jobs since leaving the Midwest, set up a clearinghouse for food donations in an old bakery that had been Willed to St. Mary's Church. A volunteer compared the effort to a bank where food was withdrawn and deposited. St. Mary's Food Bank was born. A food bank in Pasadena, Calif., soon followed, and food banks began springing up across the country. In 1976, Mr. Van Hengel founded America's Second Harvest, the nation's network of food banks now known as Feeding America, later left America's Second Harvest to help set up food banks in countries around the world. Mr. Van Hengel died in 2005 at the age of 83.

FIRST FOOD BANK INSPIRED HUNDREDS MORE

The spirit of John Van Hengel is alive at food banks throughout the United States—and the world today. Mr. Van Hengel founded the first food bank in 1967 in Phoenix after meeting people who picked through grocery store garbage bins to find sustenance. The stores were discarding items that were still edible, and Mr. Van Hengel, a soup kitchen volunteer, wanted to find a way to safely distribute the food to people in need.

Mr. Van Hengel, a Wisconsin native who had held a series of jobs before leaving the following, set up a deal with a local bakery. The bakery started a food bank for residents of St. Mary's Church. The bakery continued the effort to a bakery where food was withdrawn and deposited. St. Mary's Food Bank was born. A food bank in Pasadena, Calif., soon followed, and food banks began springing up across the country.

In 1976, Mr. Van Hengel founded America's Second Harvest, the nation's network of food banks now known as Feeding America, which left America's Second Harvest to help set up food banks in countries around the world. Mr. Van Hengel died in 2005 at the age of 83.

How these are 305 food banks in the United States and hundreds worldwide. The Global Food Banking Network, inspired by Mr. Van Hengel's vision, is modeled after a food bank established in Phoenix in 1967. Ball Santa denied warehouse space for the fledgling organization in the historic South Side neighborhood. In 1992.

The Food Depository has grown through the years—first 471,000 pounds of food and 85 member agencies in its first year to 58 million pounds of food and 600 member agencies last year—on all the while building up a deep network of partners in the community. The Food Depository now runs 275 member agencies in the market of people facing food insecurity in the area. It is the support of the community, though, that may be most amazing—its the movement of Chicagoans that are the bedrock.
Passage of Good Samaritan Law spurred growth

The Greater Chicago Food Depository has fed 5.1 million of hungry people in the Chicago area since its inception in 1979. The passage of "Good Samaritan" legislation in 1981 paved the way for the Depository to continue its mission, thanks to the New Church of God. This legislation allowed a church to store food and distribute it to the needy without fear of liability. The law enabled the Depository to store large quantities of food in a warehouse, which was critical for expanding its network of food pantries. As a result, the number of agencies that received food from the Depository increased from 15 to over 375 in the first year after the law was passed.

Senator Rock, who played a key role in the passage of the Good Samaritan Law, recalls the unexpected growth of the Depository. "It was overwhelming and the speed at which it happened was unexpected," he said. "We didn't expect the food to grow so quickly," recalls one of the bill's legislative creators, former Illinois Senate President Phil Rock.

Over time, the Depository expanded its reach, opening new branches and increasing its capacity to serve more people. The Depository's mission was to feed the hungry and provide a safe and nutritious food supply. The Good Samaritan Law protected the Depository and the people who worked there from legal liabilities and concerns about liability issues.

The Depository's growth was driven by its commitment to serving the community and its mandate to fight hunger in Chicago. As the Depository continued to grow, it became an influential player in the food bank network, helping to distribute food to millions of people in need.

The Depository's success was not limited to Illinois. It became a model for food banks across the country, inspiring others to adopt similar approaches to feeding the hungry. Today, the Depository continues to serve as a leader in the fight against hunger, working to ensure that everyone has access to adequate nutrition.
Volunteers reap rewards as they serve the needy

Mike's partnership saved the Food Depository. In 1982, serving 3,000 people a day, the agency struggled with the basics, said Mike. "We had a couple of the coldest winters in recorded history," he says. "And the old boiler would fail almost like clockwork." He and his team were forced to uncomfortably keep food warm under the floorboards, a challenge Dave Chandler faced the previous year. The Food Depository's leadership had a hard act to follow: the founding directors, Dave says, "had the Midas Touch."They had once distributed 300,000 pounds of food a year; by 1982, that number had grown to more than 6 million pounds.

By the time Mike took the helm in 2006, the Food Depository had built a food-for-your-needs program that reached 2 million families each year. Citing the success of the original Food Depository, Dave says, "Mike always showed up for the game and would never leave a foul tip in the game." And the agency thrived under his leadership. "I'm delighted that the Food Depository has prospered and grown under your leadership," Dave told Mike in 2010.

Lucille Wilson

When Lucille Wilson began reading to the Greater Chicago Food Depository nearly 30 years ago, there were few in other positions as well as in the new food bank.

"Everybody had to pitch in," Lucille says. "Everybody did a little work in its time that had to be done to keep the agency going.

Lucille, a widow in the Agency Relations Department, retired from the Food Depository. During her tenure, the organization grew from an operation with more than 130 employees.

"I think the spirit is still the same," Lucille says. "We carried out very nobly and in a family, and I think we still have that.

Lucille, a mother of four, grandmother of three and great-grandmother of one, also is a member of the diocese of Chicago's Catholic Church and a member of its community service committee.

"I've seen really great people who have done good, and who have gone on to great things," Lucille says.

"I think the spirit is still there," Lucille says. "Now compared to then is just an explosion.

The former Food Depository staffer now leads Cleveland Foodbank

Anne Goodman thought her tenure at the Greater Chicago Food Depository and the food banking world would be a brief one.

"When I came to the Food Depository [in 1994], I thought it would be for a year," Anne says. "But I got passionate about it really quickly once I really understood what it did."

Five years later, Anne left her position with the Food Depository to return to her native Ohio as executive director of the Cleveland Foodbank. Anne is a $10 million capital campaign that resulted in the opening of a new community food distribution center in 2005. Cleveland Foodbank was named Food Bank of the Year by Feeding America in 2006.

"I think the spirit is still there," Lucille says. "That's a long way from No. 7."
In honor of the Greater Chicago Food Depository's 30th anniversary, we asked our volunteers, member agencies and neighbors to share their experiences and memories.

Here's what they had to say:

My wife and I are in our 14th year of regular Wednesday night volunteering. Over the years we have seen the growth of this fine organization and the thankful words of it performs. We have met many dedicated staff members and volunteers. God bless Bob Strube and the other founders.

Gary Houston, Illinois State Senator

The Food Depository was the first organization I volunteered for when I moved into the Chicago area, serving on the steering committee for the Bag Hunger Auction and eventually co-chairing the event. The Food Depository taught me a lot about the local needs of the hungry and the need to treat every client and volunteer with respect. The professionalism and efficiency I encountered at the Food Depository have truly set the bar for every other organization I'm involved with.

Esther Schmeck, 30 Years Volunteer

The Food Depository has distributed approximately 700 million pounds of food through the years. Here are some comparisons to put 375,000 tons of food in perspective.

- 1 billion No. 1-size, 11-ounce cans.
- 750 million boxes of cereal.
- 667 million jars of peanut butter.
- 564 million potatoes.
- 75 million pounds of bread.
- 62,500 produce mobile deliveries.
- 37,500 tractor-trailer loads.
- 3,409 Cloud Gate sculptures, aka "The Bean.
- 20,000 forklift loads.
- 1,000 Food Depository warehouses.

The Food Depository purchased a 90,000-square-foot warehouse near Midway Airport from the Chicago Board of Education for $600,000. The new facility introduced an era of greater efficiency and expanded capacity. The warehouse is now home to a gourmet food business.

The Midwest Clubs' building is on the National Register of Historic Places. The Food Depository's main warehouse included the club's old swimming pool, so food was stored on the surrounding pool deck. The building now houses apartments and a health center.

On my very first volunteer trip, a Food Depository employee smiled at me and said, "You'll be back, won't you?" I had to agree. I loved the sense of accomplishment. I loved finding out how many pounds of food our team had packed (and how close we were to the all-time record), and feeling like I'd done something so much more meaningful than just send out another report from my desk. Congratulations on the 30 years—and especially during these really, really tough economic times, thank you, thank you for what you do to support those in our community who really need the help.

Recycled glass countertops latest trend in 'green' decor

Global warming has become a top priority for many homeowners, leading to a surge in recycled materials. One of these materials is glass, which is being used in countertops. At a U.S. manufacturer of recycled glass, they report a 60% increase in sales of their glass countertops. The rise in demand is due to the growing awareness of sustainability and the desire to reduce waste.

The glass is sourced from a variety of sources, including old glass bottles and jars. The process involves melting the glass, which is then shaped into countertops. The result is a durable and aesthetically pleasing surface that is eco-friendly.

Stylish, sustainable fall interior design ideas can be 'green'

When you think of the colors associated with fall, green might not come to mind. However, green can be a great choice for fall interior design. It is a refreshing and calming color that can create a warm and inviting atmosphere.

Adding green to your home can be as simple as incorporating green accessories or using green in your decor. Green can be found in nature, such as leaves, grass, and flowers. It can also be found in materials, such as green paint and green ceramics.

For example, you could add green to your home by using green paint in your kitchen or bathroom. You could also use green accessories, such as green vases or green throw pillows. Green can also be used in your decor, such as using green curtains or green rugs.

Adding green to your home can also be environmentally friendly. By using green paint or green accessories, you are reducing the amount of waste that is produced. Additionally, by using green materials, you are reducing the amount of energy that is used.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Lots of the things you've been wanting need to be set aside for now. You can't do it all at once, so you might as well think of the things you might want to do and set them aside until another time can be found to do them.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)
You need to be patient and give people the time they need in order to work through their problems. You may not always like what you see, but it will take time to solve these problems.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20)
A situation may be going on behind your back that you need to address. You may want to keep this quiet, but a situation like this needs to be dealt with before it becomes a bigger problem.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22)
People may be feeling a bit isolated right now. You may have to work harder to connect with them, but it's important to keep trying. This may not be the easiest period, but it will pass.

Leo (July 23 to August 22)
You may feel like you're being let down by someone you trust. However, the truth is often more complicated than it seems. Stay calm and try to understand what's going on.

Virgo (August 23 to September 22)
You may feel like you're not getting enough support from others. However, you're actually doing more than you realize. Keep working hard and you'll see the results soon.

Libra (September 23 to October 22)
A new opportunity may be coming your way. However, you need to think carefully about whether it's the right thing for you. Make sure you have all the information you need before making a decision.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21)
You may feel like you're being left out of things. However, you might be the one causing the problem. Take a step back and think about what you're doing.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21)
You may not be getting as much support as you need. However, you're actually doing more than you realize. Keep working hard and you'll see the results soon.

Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
A change in your work or health may be needed. However, you need to take it slow and think things through before making any major changes.

Warning: These stories are scary

Editor’s Note: Every year, children read these stories. This year the students at our school sent us their favorite stories. Our winners appear below. For more artwork, go to pioneerlocal.com

FIRST PLACE:

Chupacabra Attack!

A boy and his little parents went to Mexico. They let the dog go free to visit the parents. They did not know what would happen next. When they went back home, they were surprised to find their dog had transformed into a Chupacabra. The dog was now a mix of a dog and a Chupacabra. The boy was shocked to see his dog changed. He didn’t know what to do. He called the police and they came to help. They found that the Chupacabra was not a threat to humans. They let the Chupacabra go back to Mexico. The boy was happy to have his dog back.

SECOND PLACE:

The Ghost in the Dark

On Halloween, I was dressed up as a ghost and my parents decided to go to a haunted house. My name is Haley and my favorite holiday is Halloween. I love to dress up and make others jump. This year, my parents decided to take me to a haunted house. We were both excited. When we entered the house, we saw a ghost. It was a little girl. She was wearing a dress and holding a pumpkin. She was laughing at us. We were scared and ran out of the house.

THIRD PLACE:

Vampire

I sang the doodle 2 rap: "I stepped into a terrifying room. I gave me the grace to go back. But I can’t go back. Will you help me?"

1ST PLACE:

Pichu! Pichu! Pichu!

The plane had started playing a powerful song. "My eyes, my eyes. I can’t see. My eyes," it kept repeating. The plane was on fire. The only one that could help was Pichu. Pichu was a small, green, and cute Pokémon. He was the only one who could help. He used his powers to put out the fire and save the plane. Everyone was happy to see Pichu save the day.

2ND PLACE:

The cat was playing in the grass. It was a beautiful and playful cat. Suddenly, a big monster appeared. It was a ghost. The cat was scared and tried to run away. But the ghost was faster. It caught the cat and took it away. The cat was never seen again.

3RD PLACE:

Your Parents Back!

"Wan! Your parents back!" the ghost shouted. The girl was scared. She ran to the door and opened it. Her parents were behind her. They were happy to see her. The ghost disappeared and the girl was safe.

Scores look to enter the playoffs looking for their first taste of the playoffs. By DM SMUUK

JCA hands ND Catholic a season-opener.

Brook South (7-2) at 7 p.m. Dons (6-8, 4-3) will take on the winless Wildcats for their third straight win when they host St. Francis (2-10, 0-6) at 7 p.m. Friday for the Class 8A playoffs.

Non-Diocese had slammed Brook South's (7-2, 2-0) defense last week. The Wildcats scored 29 points on the night.

No. 2 seed Maine West holds off Niles North

Four years ago, Maine West won the Class 8A championship. Maine North was runner-up.

Michigan State University-bound punter Mike I-lonnessey said, "It's nice to lace up this Titans, going on the road to Glenbrook North."

"On the road to Glenbrook North," I-lonnessey said. "We didn't get a lot of reps at Catholic, but we can handle, for sure."

"This is our season," I-lonnessey said. "It was our season from start to finish."

"We didn't get a lot of reps at Catholic. But Maine West is our season."

"Last year, we didn't have time to prepare."

FOOTBALL - On a day when the scores were signaling for the final time, the Waukegan junior varsity football team, which has been shut out seven times this season, was the one that finally scored.

The Vikings limped into the season finale with a 3-7 record after losing their last three games by a combined score of 103-7. But they bounced back for a 20-17 victory over the visiting Wolves.

"We got our legs back," said Waukegan quarterback Matt-Olson 5-15, 104 yards, 1 TD. "I think we executed the game plan well." It was his first varsity start.
