Fire Department to receive artifact of World Trade Center

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
jjohnson@pioneerlocal.com

A piece of the World Trade Center is coming to Maine Township.

The North Maine Fire Department is the recipient of a 6-foot-long, 4-inch wide, 50-pound piece of steel salvaged from the debris of New York City's World Trade Center. The department, which was awaiting the artifact's arrival last week, hopes to use it in a memorial, preferably within an existing Sept. 11 memorial at Ridgewood Cemetery in unincorporated Maine Township, the community the North Maine Fire Department serves.

"We're still in the planning stages of what we'll do once we have it," said North Maine Fire Marshall Arnie Witzke, who was instrumental in securing the artifact. "We're pretty confident we'll put it at Ridgewood for everybody to see and visit."

Pieces of the World Trade Center, destroyed in the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, are being shipped to fire departments, municipalities and various organizations around the world through the Sept. 11th Families' Association and the New York and New Jersey Port Authority. In the Chicago area, communities like Naperville, Carpentersville and Coal City have also received remnants, which they have incorporated into their own Sept. 11 memorials. In Coal City, two 5-foot-tall steel beams representing the Twin Towers stand outside the Coal City Fire Department's new fire station.

Witzke, along with North Maine District Fire Chief Mike Bronk, worked to request a World Trade Center remnant for unincorporated Maine Township after learning about the unique program from a firefighter in another municipality. Also involved were firefighter/paramedics Greg Zalewski and Nick Rusz.

"(We) said, 'We've got to do this. We've got to try for it,'" Witzke said.

An application was mailed last year and in January the department learned the request had been approved. Last week Witzke received an e-mail letting him know the steel artifact was about to be shipped.

The only cost to the department is the shipping fee, he said.

Once the package arrives, a public opening may take place, possibly during the May meeting of the Maine Township Town Board, Witzke said.

Bronk hopes the artifact will always be a reminder to the community of the thousands who died Sept. 11, 2001, including the nearly 400 firefighters attempting to rescue occupants of the Twin Towers.

"We felt like, whatever we can do to keep it alive and in the hearts of everybody, that's really what it's all about," he said.

Man fights off intruders in Niles home invasion

By TRACY GRUEN
Contributor

Police were looking for information regarding a home invasion that took place April 20 at a home on the 8800 block of Chester Avenue, in Niles.

A 37-year-old man said an unspecified number of intruders forced their way into his residence and tried to restrain him at 9 a.m. April 20. Police said the man and the offenders struggled with each other before the victim chased them from his home.

"It does not appear to be gang-related," said Niles police Sgt. Robert Tornabene. He said nothing was taken from the home.

The Niles Police Department was asking anyone who may have information regarding the invasion or similar incident to call the Investigation Division, (847) 588-6500.

Weel will request recount in Niles trustee election

By TRACY GRUEN
Contributor

Alan Weel has decided to request a recount of the votes in the race for Niles village trustee.

According to the official election results, Weel received 992 votes and Rosemary Palicki received 1,010 votes, an 18-vote difference.

"I'm going to request a discovery recount," Weel said.

He will select seven precincts he wants to have recounted.

"The margin is too slim to ignore it," Weel said.

Weel has until Monday to make his recount request official.

A discovery recount allows a losing candidate who comes within 5 percent of the winner to have a recount of as much as 25 percent of the precincts in the election, which is seven precincts in the Niles village trustee election.

Rosemary Palicki has stated that she hopes the results remain the same if they are recounted, but acknowledges Weel's prerogative to request a recount. She said it is important to have accurate election results.

Niles librarians head to London for royal wedding watching

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
jjohnson@pioneerlocal.com

While millions tune in long-distance Friday to the royal wedding of Prince William and Kate Middleton, librarian Cecilia Cygnar of the Niles Public Library is planning to celebrate the festivities alongside the people of London.

Cygnar, a self-described "anglophile," wasn't lucky enough to snag an invitation to the wedding itself, but she and librarian Mary Miller decided to fly to the United Kingdom with hopes of catching a glimpse of the street procession and, at the very least, attending a neighborhood party.

"I just felt like this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and I wanted to be there for the wedding," said Cygnar, who has traveled to London about 10 times previously.

"I just want to be in the town while this going on. The whole air of London is going to be different."

For weeks now, Cygnar and fellow royal watcher Monique Flasch, another Niles Library staffer, have been blogging about William and Kate's big day on http://royalweddingatniles.blogspot.com. The blog includes links to news articles on topics from the guest list and how to host a wedding viewing party, to the announcement of Kate's dress designer.

Cygnar, who made sure to pack a festive hat for the occasion to avoid being unfashionable among hat-loving Londoners, says seeing the future princess in her wedding gown as she travels down the streets of London would be "ideal."

"But even if I don't, I won't be disappointed because at least I can say I was in the city for the event," she added.

Cygnar planned to take "loads of pictures" and blog about the mood in London and the celebrations taking place.

Royal wedding parties set in Park Ridge

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
jjohnson@pioneerlocal.com

Not going to the wedding of Prince William and Kate Middleton? Don't be too disappointed — there are still opportunities to take part in the big day — in Park Ridge.

Grab your most festive hat and head over to the Park Ridge Non-Profit Center, 720 W. Garden St., where a viewing of the royal wedding celebration will begin at 5 a.m. Doors open at 4:30 a.m.

According to organizer Leigh Sasser, traditional English tea and sweets will be served while the wedding airs live on television.

"It just sounded like a fun way to get together with friends and watch this event," Sasser said.

The event is open to the public and donations will be accepted for Save Iannelli Studios.

A public viewing party is also taking place at Solari & Huntington jewelers at 100 1/2 Main St. in Uptown Park Ridge. Doors will open at 5 a.m. and English teas from Tea Lula, 11 S. Fairview, will be served alongside scones and other treats, according to organizer Susan Ferguson.

"I was just going to watch (the wedding) at home alone, but then I thought, 'What the heck. Let's invite the neighborhood,'" she said.

In anticipation of the big day, Ferguson was arranging a Cinderella-themed display in the store's window, as well as a display of Solari & Huntington's collection of sapphire jewelry in honor of the stone contained within Kate Middleton's famous ring.

"We don't have THE ring but we'll have a sapphire display celebrating her engagement ring," Ferguson said.

MAINE EAST HIGH SCHOOL

Preview of the prom

Maine East High School students got a preview of the most popular styles for prom during the school's ninth annual Prom Fashion Show on April 16.

The show, hosted by the Maine East Junior Class Council, featured dresses from David's Bridal and Deb, as well as tuxedoes from Savvi Formalwear. Forty student models stepped onto the catwalk for the event, which audience members paid $5 each to attend.

"Ultimately we use the funds to help subsidize the cost of prom for next year," explained faculty co-sponsor Dale Lasky.

In addition to giving students an idea of what to wear at their prom, the fashion show also provided class council members with entrepreneurial experience, Lasky said.

"This is an experience for the students to run an event like it's a real business," he said. "We do all the planning and all the marketing and we try to get all the donations.

"It's a great experience for our kids to learn to run an event like this."

SHERIFF'S REPORTS

The following incidents in unincorporated Maine Township were compiled by the Cook County Sheriff's Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest does not constitute a finding of guilt. Only a court of law can make that determination.

ASSAULT

Cesar Perez, 38, of the 10000 block of Holly Lane, unincorporated Maine Township, was charged with simple assault April 2. According to police a neighbor accused Perez of throwing a can of beer at him in the laundry room of their apartment building in the Crestwood complex. The victim told police Perez had been insulting him and words were exchanged between the two men before the alleged can-throwing incident occurred. The victim was not struck, police said.

BURGLARY

A resident of Crestwood condominiums and apartments on the 10000 block of Linda Lane told police he arrived home on March 31 to find his front door kicked in and the door frame on the living-room floor. A TV valued at $500, a $300 videogame system and about $100 worth of video games were reported stolen from the apartment.

BURGLARY TO VEHICLE

A vehicle was burglarized April 7 on the 9500 block of Park Lane.

A theft from a vehicle parked on the 8700 block of West Davis Street was reported April 10.

THEFT

A vehicle was reported stolen April 5 on the 9500 block of Park Lane and April 7 from Golf Terrace Apartments on the 9600 block of Golf Terrace.

A resident of Crestwood condominiums and apartments on the 10000 block of Holly Lane used an extension cord to illegally obtain electricity from the building's hallway, police said. The alleged theft was discovered by a rental agent on April 6. According to police the extension cord was plugged into a hallway outlet and ran under a door and into an apartment unit that had its electricity shut off by Commonwealth Edison about a month earlier. No arrests were immediately made.

PROPERTY DAMAGE

A vehicle was reported damaged April 2 at Crestwood condominiums and apartments on the 9900 block of Holly Lane. Another vehicle was reported damaged the same day at Potter and Golf Roads.

Property damage reports were filed April 4 at Crestwood condominiums and apartments on the 10000 block of Holly Lane; April 9 at Golf Terrace Apartments on the 9600 block of Golf Terrace; and April 10 on the 9400 block of Margail Avenue and the 9200 block of Delphia Street.

HIT-AND-RUN

A hit-and-run accident was reported April 1 at Ballard Road and Lincoln Drive.

FIRE

Improperly discarded charcoal caused a tree trunk to start on fire April 10 on the 8800 block of Carleah Drive, the North Maine Fire Department reported. Firefighters extinguished the fire.

HOLIDAY DISPLAY AT MAINE EAST

Sponsor's support for July 3 fireworks display fizzles out

The sponsor of the annual July 3rd fireworks show in Park Ridge for the Past two years said his company will not contribute money to this summer's pyrotechnics display.

Tony Svanascini, chief executive officer of AmericanEagle.com, said his decision to step down as a sponsor this year is tied to the city of Park Ridge's decision not to charge the Taste of Park Ridge organization for expenses the city incurs from that unrelated, mid-summer event.

"If Park Ridge doesn't need the 20-grand from them to run Taste of Park Ridge then they don't need it from me to pay for fireworks," Svanascini said.

AmericanEagle.com, which has an office in Uptown Park Ridge, donated $18,000 toward the fireworks program in 2009 and again in 2010. Svanascini said he agreed to fund the fireworks in 2009 after he was approached by former Mayor Howard Frimark and former Park Ridge Recreation and Park District Commissioner Dick Barton, who were looking for financial assistance.

If Taste of Park Ridge were to reimburse the city for costs related to putting on the event, Svanascini said he would be willing to resume his sponsorship of the July 3rd fireworks.

"I don't make any profit or money off doing the fireworks, and if I was, I wouldn't expect the city to pay for my expenses," he said.

The Park Ridge Recreation and Park District is the main organizer of the annual Independence Day fireworks at Maine East High School. Park district officials are now in talks with two new potential financial sponsors and are seeking bids from companies that put on pyrotechnic displays, spokeswoman Kathie Hahn said.

"We're really in the planning stages and securing the sponsors for the fireworks itself," Hahn said.

In addition, Mel Thillens, a newly elected Park Ridge Recreation and Park District commissioner, said the Park Ridge Indian Scouts have stepped up in an effort to help raise funds for the fireworks. The group plans to sell raffle tickets for $20 each in hopes of raising $10,000. The Park Ridge Chamber of Commerce is now seeking businesses willing to donate prizes for the raffle.

July 3 is the tentative date for the fireworks, Hahn said. Last year the event was moved up one day in an effort to save money.

Hahn said there was initially some uncertainty as to whether the fireworks would actually occur this year due to budgetary constraints.

NILES NORTH HIGH SCHOOL

Alum returns with from-the-heart performance

By PAT KROCHMAL
pkrochmal@pioneerlocal.com

Rohina Malik, a Chicago-based playwright, actress, solo performance artist and Niles North graduate, performed April 14 for students. Her one-woman show "Unveiled" features Malik in persona as five different hijab-wearing Muslim women. | Tamara Bell-Sun Times Media

Rohina Malik, a 1995 Niles North High School graduate who has been creating quite a stir in theater circles, demonstrated her talents April 14 at her alma mater.

The playwright, actress and solo artist of South Asian heritage who was born in London and emigrated to Skokie when she was 15, presented portions of her one-woman show, "Unveiled," to an audience of students and teachers.

Malik, whose mother came from the Bihar province of India and father from Punjab in Pakistan, is a Muslim. And she threads the rich customs of her ancestry and religion throughout her work.

"The characters are inspired by what happened after Sept. 11, 2001, based on what occurred in Sikh and Hindu communities. I started writing in 2008 and with each production, the scripts kept getting stronger," Malik said.

"The racial tension I experienced in London — and here, too — impacted me as a playwright and makes me want to tell it as a writer," she added.

Malik, 34, created "Unveiled" around the monologues of five Muslim women, each of whom welcomes the audience with tea. Each introduces herself with the story of her life, while also explaining her Muslim culture and the experiences she has had in this country since the tragedy of Sept. 11, 2001.

However, because of time factors, Malik performed only three of the monologues: "Maryam," a Pakistani-American seamstress who owns a dress shop on Chicago's Devon Avenue; "Shabana," a young rap artist of South Asian descent who was born and raised in London; and "Layla," a Chicago restaurant owner of Middle Eastern descent whose brother died trying to help people as the twin towers fell.

Maryam is a Pakistani-American who lives on Devon Avenue in Chicago. She speaks with a Pakistani-British accent, the accent of the upper and middle class who have attended private English schools in Pakistan, Malik said.

The dress-maker tells a future bride who has come to her for a wedding gown about what happened to her on the way to her best friend's wedding.

A guest from an American wedding not only demanded that she remove her hijab, the veil covering her head for religious reasons, but insulted her in front of her two young children.

From Miryam's monologue:

"I could have walked away and just ignored him, but, I didn't want to be a coward in front of my children. You see, everything I do, my children will do. If I let people treat me like garbage, my kids will do the same.

Student tackles new school activity with fishing club

Founder hopes to lure newbies to the sport, especially girls

By NICKY MARIA PRIOVOLOS
Contributor

Maine East High School now has its first fishing club.

The new club was started by 16-year-old Zachary Wallin, a junior at the school.

The school has added one more activity to its list of 90 student clubs and organizations.

The idea to for the fishing club first came to Wallin after his father told him about a fishing tournament for high school students hosted by the state of Illinois. In order to compete, he said, students must belong to a school fishing club.

The high school junior has been fishing all of his life, thanks to his father's interest in the sport. He said his interest in fishing increased during his freshman and sophomore years.

Wallin said the club plans to practice at local lakes within an hour's distance of the school. Members will be releasing the fish they catch during practice in order to keep populations healthy, Wallin said. In the future he hopes to arrange for professional fishermen to speak at club meetings.

Some of the club members, including Wallin, planned to participate in their first competitive tournament April 21 at Busse Woods.

The process to start the new club and coordinate everything took about three months, Wallin said. The teenager had to write up a "constitution" for the club and gather signatures of prospective members.

Mitch Melton, a biology teacher at Maine East, is the fishing club's sponsor. Wallin said it was difficult to find a sponsor. Wallin's sister, Alina, a student of Melton's, suggested the teacher.

"Mr. Melton has been fantastic with helping the school get into the tournament," Wallin said.

Wallin researched fishing and the tournament on the Internet and received sponsorship for the club's participation in the tournament by FishTech.

Though the club hasn't officially met yet, more than 60 students have signed up. Wallin said the club would hold its first meeting for all members after the April 21 tournament, in which some of the students will participate.

There are about three boys for every girl in the club, Wallin said. He said he doesn't see many girls fish, but "it would be nice if more of them picked up the activity."

Most of the club's participants are likely to be novices, Wallin said. Most will have their own fishing equipment. Those who don't will be able to borrow fishing poles and other necessities from fellow club members.

"I hope the club will increase in membership and get more people interested in fishing. Most of my peers do not fish much — even those in the club," Wallin said.

He is also looking forward to participating in more fishing tournaments with his peers.

DISTRICT 64 ALERT

Report: Girl followed by suspicious vehicle

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
jjohnson@pioneerlocal.com

A 13-year-old girl told Park Ridge police that she was followed twice by a vehicle while walking home from a friend's house.

The two incidents occurred in the vicinity of Hamlin and Woodland avenues, west of Wood and Park, on the city's north side, said Park Ridge Police Cmdr. Lou Jogmen.

On April 18, the girl reported to police that she had been followed by a "dirty," black pickup truck during the week of April 4 and again on the evening of April 18, Jogmen said. The truck reportedly contained some type of orange equipment in the truck bed. No description of the driver was provided.

During the first incident, the pickup truck turned around and drove away when the girl walked in the direction of a corner at Woodland Park, according to an announcement on Park Ridge-Niles School District 64's website. When the girl was walking home on April 18 and saw the truck following her for a second time, she ran to a neighbor's house and the truck made a three-point turn before driving away, Jogmen said.

Both of the reported incidents occurred between 7:30 and 8 p.m. Anyone with information was asked to call the Park Ridge Police Department at (847) 823-5252.

MAINE SOUTH HAWKS VARSITY FOOTBALL

Chief lauds good off the gridiron

By JENNIFER JOHNSON

Maine South High School's championship varsity football team received more honors this month, but this time it was for the players' work off the football field.

Park Ridge Police Chief Frank Kaminski awarded the team the Chief's Special Award for players' participation at last summer's National Night Out and for helping to raise money for Special Olympics.

"At National Night Out they stepped up to the plate and helped us co-host (the event) and helped us emphasize the issues of underage drinking," Kaminski said.

Team members also joined Police Department personnel in the past June's Torch Run for Special Olympics and a "plane pull" at O'Hare International Airport to raise money for the organization. The team competed against two-dozen other teams in the plane pull and came in third place, Kaminski said.

"You got a lot of horsepower here with these young guys," he said.

With help from the football team, the Police Department raised nearly $7,000 last year for Special Olympics, according to Channahon Police Chief Joe Peña, Director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Torch Run.

Kaminski said the partnership with the varsity football team was a "chance for the Police Department to interact with these fine men and for them to demonstrate leadership and caring for their community."

Several members of the team were on hand to accept the Chief's Special Award on behalf of the entire team. Also present was Head Coach David Inserra.

MAINE EAST

Orchesis benefits Health Center

The Maine East Orchesis Dance Company presented "Dance for a Cause," the group's annual show, on April 15 and April 16.

Half of the proceeds from the show — which featured a variety of dance styles and original choreography by students — were donated to the Maine Township District 207 School-Based Health Center, located at Maine East.

Making a guest appearance were Maine South High School's Advanced Dance class students, who performed a professionally choreographed piece and two original pieces choreographed by Maine South dance instructor Jacqueline Sinclair.

Maine East Orchesis sponsor Kristin Seske also choreographed two pieces for the company members.

"So I looked that man straight in the eye and said: 'Sir, you need to get an education, because you're ignorant.'

"The man: 'F... you! You're in America, take that s... off your head.'

"Mariam: 'That's right I'm in America, where I have my constitutional right to practice my religion and dress how I like.'

"Man: 'You A-rabs are terrorists, go back to Afghanistan!'

"Maryam: 'Sir, let me educate you, Afghans are not Arabs. I'm not an Arab, or an Afghan, or a terrorist. I'm an American, a Pakistani-American.'

"Man: 'If you're American, then dress like one!'

"Maryam: 'I am dressed like one, veiled or unveiled, I am an American! And I'm not going to waste another second of my time talking to an ignorant loser like you.'"

In the performance, the man attempted to hit Maryam was arrested and charged with assault.

Malik said she draws on all of her experiences, as well as those she hears about from others for her material. That includes those she had as a student at DePaul University, as a wife and mother of four, and as a teacher at Alcuin Montessori school in Oak Park.

And that seems to work very well.

"Unveiled" had its world premiere at the 16th Street Theater, and has been produced at Victory Gardens and at the Next Theater in Evanston.

Malik also has worked with Rivendell Theatre Ensemble, Live Bait Theater and Teatro Vista. And she is currently focusing on another play under the commission of the Goodman Theatre.

"It is very, very gratifying to see someone as delightful, light-hearted and full of joy as Rohina succeed so well in something that it actually about something pretty unpleasant. She is dealing with a difficult topic, but her personality and warmth shows through," said Timothy Ortmann, the Niles North's theater instructor who taught Malik.

"It was very quiet during her performance. Truly, the students were touched. One boy came up to her and asked, 'Are all these stories based on truth?' He had a look in his eyes that said, 'How did you know my friend's or sister's story?'" he added.

Aliza Malyani, a 15-year-old sophomore from Morton Grove said Malik's presentation probably had greater meaning to her than most present, because she is a Muslim.

"In my culture, we don't have to wear a hijab, but I notice the way people look at me because of the color of my skin — especially after Sept. 11. I know the kind of fear and hatred that she was talking about," she added.

Rachel Sepiashvili, a 15-year-old sophomore from Skokie, said she also felt a real connection to Malik's presentation, because she is Jewish." I see the way people look at Orthodox Jews. It's hurtful. They're not doing anything weird, just following what they believe," Sepiashvili said.

"That's why I've found this so inspiring. I've never seen anything like it before."

Martin Hanna, an 18-year-old Skokie senior who is an Assyrian from Iraq, was encouraged by Malik, as well as her success. "Coming from a Middle Eastern background and doing theater, I connected with her I was inspired by her, because I want to do this in my life and watching her do it is a push forward. I won't let my nationality stop me," he said.

But Malik also noted that she owes much of her success to Ortman.

"He not only taught me what I needed to know," she added, "but he gave me confidence when I had none."

Missing Niles North teen found safe, unharmed

By MIKE ISAACS
misaacs@pioneerlocal.com

Zaineb S. Chaudhary

Skokie police April 20 said that a Niles North High School girl reported missing for more than a month was found and is safe and unharmed.

Zaineb S. Chaudhary, 16, had last been seen March 11 at Niles North. Chaudhary, from Pakistan, had last contacted friends on March 12 through a phone call and text message, police said.

But since then, she had not been heard from and family members had publicly asked for her safe return.

Police have said that reasons for the girl's disappearance were unknown despite reports about conflict within the family. Chaudhary was to be involved in an arranged marriage, they learned, but they could did not say that she ran away for that reason.

State police reported that Chaudhary may have run away from home to avoid a marriage that was arranged by her father in October in Pakistan.

Skokie police April 20 did not reveal the circumstances surrounding her disappearance. The local agency was still interviewing Chaudhary as to the exact circumstances that caused her absence from home for more than a month.

Since the teenager is a juvenile, police said, information specific to her activities and motives behind her disappearance will not be publicly released. Police said they did not anticipate any criminal charges related to the incident.

Skokie Police and the Illinois State Police followed up on numerous leads in their search for Chaudhary. Local, statewide and national resources that were used in the search included local law enforcement Critical Reach Bulletins, contacting agencies in other states and nationally through the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Skokie Police said they were working with local social-service agencies to assist Chaudhary and ensure that her family issues along with her mental and physical well-being are addressed appropriately.

POLICE BLOTTER

The following incidents were listed in the official reports of the Niles Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest does not constitute a finding of guilt. Only a court of law can make that determination.

THEFT/FORGERY

An unknown subject made an unauthorized withdrawal of $4,800 on April 14 and $3,600 on April 15 from the victim's bank account. The victim, a Niles resident, said she was complying with an e-mail request that appeared to be from her bank on Aug. 13, 2010, seeking her and her husband's full name, Social Security numbers, birthdays and address. On April 16 when the complainant was paying bills online she noticed the two unauthorized withdrawals.

YOUTH INCIDENT

The victim said he was chased by a male subject with a baseball bat on April 19 at Clifton and Davis Streets who was wearing a black "hoodie." The victim reportedly was at Golf Mill Park with his friend from school when two men wearing ski masks and black "hoodies" approached him and asked him for a lighter. The victim started to walk away and the subjects began to chase him and yell at him. The victim said he has no gang affiliation.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT

The victim said unknown subjects threw eggs at the front window of his home in the 8400 block of Oleander on April 16. The victim is concerned because he said that every holiday his home is a target for pranks.

BURGLARY TO AUTO

An unknown subject reportedly entered a 1995 Civic vehicle, disconnected the battery of the vehicle and took a Sony radar, GPS device and tools valued at $370 from the vehicle on April 14 in the 7700 block of Nordica.

THEFT/CRIMINAL TRESPASS

Carl McGee, 35, of 8028 Milwaukee Ave., was charged with theft and criminal trespassing to a residence on April 13. The subject allegedly sold items taken from a store at the Four Flaggs Shopping Center. The court date is May 20.

PETIT THEFT

Marta Drab, 44, of 400 Talcott Place, Park Ridge, was charged with retail theft in the 8500 block of Golf Rd. on April 13. The subject allegedly switched the price tag and put a tag labeled $99.87 on a dress worth $289.00.

UNLAWFUL USE OF CREDIT CARD

The victim who resides in the 6800 block of Milwaukee Avenue said unknown subjects made four separate purchases totaling $4,495 on her credit card between March 14 and March 15. The purchases were all airline ticket purchases made through the Internet.

THEFT OF GAS

A subject driving a 2003 Pontiac, pumped $20.03 worth of gas into his vehicle and fled westbound without paying for the gas on April 15 in the 8500 block of Dempster.

Medicare still popular despite GOP's ideas

PAUL SASSONE

Franklin Delano Roosevelt still is ahead in his 75-year-old battle with Republicans over Social Security.

The GOP has been lying low on Social Security since its last failed attempt to privatize the program. But they have come back with a plan to privatize Medicare.

Under this proposal, seniors would be given vouchers to buy health insurance. Over time, the vouchers would be worth less and thus seniors would have to pay more for health insurance. Workers now younger than 55 years old would be placed in a different program and at the end of 10 years, Medicare would end.

Well, surprise, surprise, surprise, a recent poll by the Washington Post and ABC News shows that most Americans don't want to do this.

They want Medicare to stay the way it is. Sixty-five percent said they strongly opposed cutting spending on Medicare.

And who can blame them?

They see their future better than apparently the GOP does.

The jobless rate for workers 65 and older is 5.7 percent, less than the national average, but higher for seniors than in any previous recession. In the recession of 1981, for instance, the unemployment rate for seniors was 4.3 percent.

There are more older people in the work force than ever, yet older workers are the first to be laid off and the last to be hired.

Fewer companies offer pensions, and the recession has eroded investments. Social Security and Medicare help, but they just aren't enough for many senior citizens to pay the mortgage and medical expenses.

Now, along comes the Republicans to tell older workers that Medicare is going to be reduced, privatized, eliminated.

It should not be surprising that people will not agree to their own impoverishment.

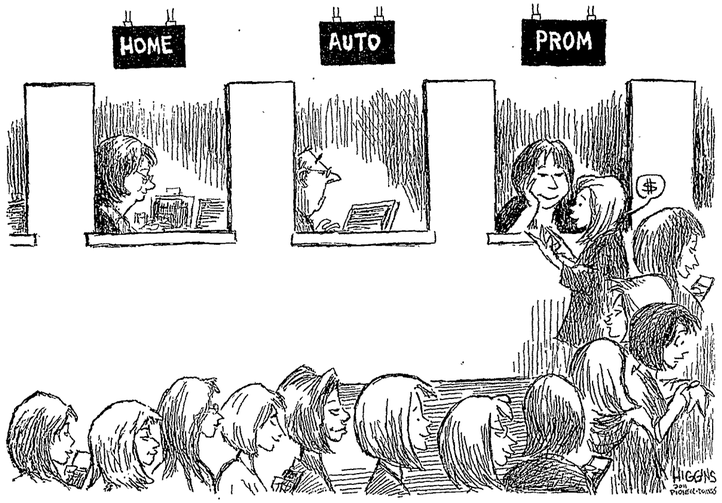
That same poll also showed no support for the GOP's plan to cut taxes for the wealthiest Americans. Seventy-two percent supported raising taxes on incomes higher than $250,000 a year.

Can that surprise anyone, even the GOP?

Doesn't surprise me.

And I bet it wouldn't surprise Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

1000 WORDS BY JACK HIGGINS



Son's Dells trip soaked in significance

CHERYL O'DONOVAN

VAN MOM STRIKES AGAIN

A friend invited my 12-year-old to accompany his family and him for a one-night stay at the Dells. My son strutted around, acting as though he'd dunked a shot before Derrick Rose.

As departure day approached, his enthusiasm waned.

He entered our bedroom and flung himself face-first into the soft bedding and said: "I don't want to go."

"But you've been looking forward to this for weeks," I said. "Did you two fight?"

He shook his head into the pillow.

"For last year's field trip, you were gone for two nights camping."

"I had Dad with me."

For my sons, the sun rises and sets on their grouchy, heroic father.

"I just want one of you to come with me," he said.

Ah, homesickness. I tried a gentle joke involving the dog. "Sweetheart, I don't think they'll let Kirby go."

The next morning, two hours before his Dells departure, I drove us to Starbucks. When he was little, I would buy his big brother and him blueberry muffins and lukewarm cocoa. They'd unearth the store's Lego collection and play contentedly, while I looked out the window at the blue sky and passing traffic ... and contemplated my own passing life.

Now as we approached the glass door, I noticed he's almost as tall as I am. Inside, I resisted the maple-frosted scone and opted for Greek yogurt, half-expecting Zorba to emerge, snapping his fingers.

For the first time, my son ordered a small coffee and added lots of cream and sugar.

"I'm like you, Mom." He took a sip. "I like coffee."

Later, back in our driveway, he settled into the other family's red Toyota, fastened his seatbelt and waved good-bye.

I think of times to come: watching him hoist a box of his things toward his college dormitory, or when he tells me he's met "The One." Someday, he'll step away and forget to look back. He'll be talking to his wife or holding the hand of his child.

At that moment, I'll know I've done my job and that he's independent, and a man and wonder why it gives me such joy and yet hurts so much.

Dog's star rising with Ruby's Tale

Ruby's Tale* book-signing
5-7 p.m., May 4, Barnes & Noble at Old Orchard, 55 Old Orchard Center, Skokie. (847) 676-2230.

By J.T. MORAND
jtmorand@pioneerlocal.com

Ruby greets visitors at one of the many book-signings for her biography, Ruby's Tale: A True Rags to Riches Story, by owner Patrick Bettendorf.

The chances of the pit bull puppy leading the life of a normal pet did not look good.

Eight years ago, when she and her brother were found in an abandoned house in St. Paul, Minn., she was emaciated and her fur was falling out.

Now, after being adopted by Patrick Bettendorf and his wife Lynn, Ruby is a celebrity. Her picture appears on Milk Bones boxes and she's been a guest on "The Bonnie Hunt Show." Ruby has also appeared on stage in community theater productions.

She also gives back to the community, working as a therapy dog and as a service dog.

But, it's the book, Ruby's Tale: A True Rags to Riches Story, written by Bettendorf, that is gaining her the most notoriety these days. It was chosen as one of ForeWord Reviews' Book of the Year Finalists for 2010. ForeWord Reviews is a magazine published six times a year for booksellers, librarians, publishing insiders and readers. Finalists for the Book of the Year Award were selected from 1,400 entries submitted by more than 350 independent publishers.

Bettendorf, who's written plays and hosted a show at a Twin Cities area radio station, was urged by family, friends, and people he knew in the media to pen Ruby's story.

Author Patrick Bettendorf and Ruby have been crossing the country by plane, promoting the dog's biography, Ruby's Tale: A True Rags to Riches Story.

Ruby will join Bettendorf at the Barnes & Noble at Old Orchard book-signing.

How did you end up with Ruby?

St. Paul animal control found her along with her brother in an abandoned house. They spent a few weeks in a "doggie hospital" before going to an animal rescue group. I have since tried to locate Ruby's brother, but poor record keeping has prevented me from finding him. Ruby was to be a foster dog for one weekend only in November 2003. She was approximately 6 months old.

What made you decide work as a service dog and actor was the right path for Ruby?

Having trained and worked with certified therapy dogs before, I knew she had the right temperament. Ruby received her Therapy Dog International certification in November, 2005. As my needs changed, we both went back to school where she earned her service dog credentials. Ruby's plays included "Cheaper by the Dozen," "Moon Over Miami," "Belles of the West." Ruby loved the fun, and even work, of stage plays. Little Ruby was flown out to Hollywood for an appearance on "The Bonnie Hunt Show." Bonnie loved Ruby! She was also brought to Chicago for a photo shoot. Both trips Ruby was pampered with limos, drivers and really nice hotels! Not bad for a dog nobody wanted and left to die!

How did she take to these experiences?

Ruby was my co-host at a radio station where I had an afternoon show, "Pat's Pot Luck." One afternoon Michele Bachmann was my guest. Ruby fell fast asleep in the chair next to Michele and as the Congresswoman's message became more impassioned, Ruby displayed that she was either a Democrat or an independent by snoring loudly and was easily picked up by the mike. Michele mad? Nope. Fleet of foot, she promised to work very hard to get Ruby's vote next election.

She seems pretty laid-back for having had such an awful start in life.

Even as a jolly, fun-loving

Skokie's Devonshire Children's Theatre presents "Once On This Island, Jr."

FAMILY FRIENDLY

Young actors use play to explore serious issues

Devonshire Children's Theatre journeys to the Caribbean for "Once On This Island, Jr.," 7 p.m. Friday, 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday, and 3 p.m. Sunday, April 29-May 1, at Devonshire Cultural Center, 4400 Greenwood Ave., Skokie.

Twenty-two children, ages 8-14, are featured in this Lynn Ahrens (book and lyrics) and Stephen Flaherty (music) musical, based on Rosa Guy's novel, "My Love, My Love." It tells of Ti Moune, a peasant girl who falls in love with a young man from a much higher class.

"Everybody onstage is there to tell a story," said director Dana Omar. Although Ti Moune is at the center, the emphasis is on "the beauty of the story, versus one character."

Omar indicated that working on the show inspired cast revelations. "It hits on a lot of subjects that normally they wouldn't explore," she said. Omar cited Papa Ge, the god of death. She said the cast has pondered, "How evil is he versus how necessary he is? The kids are realizing that death, unfortunately, is part of life."

Tickets are $8-$10.

Beautiful dreams

CAVE OF FORGOTTEN DREAMS
★ ★ ★ 1/2

Werner Herzog in "Cave of Forgotten Dreams."

Every picture tells a story, as Rod Stewart once noted, but he failed to mention that some stories are more interesting than others.

The good news about the fascinating documentary "Cave of Forgotten Dreams" is that pictures don't come with much more built-in interest than the perfectly preserved, 32,000-year-old cave paintings in France's Ice Age-era Chauvet Cave.

The partially bad news, if you have limited tolerance for whimsical weirdness, is that their story is being told by the legendarily strange German filmmaker Werner Herzog.

Since the cave was discovered in 1994, access to the interior has been strictly controlled (the entrance is now sealed by a metal bank-vault door) and few people, aside from a group of scientists, have been permitted to enter. A replica of the cave, with its numerous chambers of paintings, is being built near the site, but there's no way to replicate the sensation of standing where few have stood and seeing what few have seen for tens of thousands of years.

Herzog, who was clearly awestruck by his experience in the cave, manages to capture that sensation (think of it as an ancestral flashback) and that's enough to make "Cave of Forgotten Dreams" a must-see.

The paintings, twice as old as any previously discovered and complex enough to counter previous theories about the slow development of artistic expression in early man, are more striking than you might imagine. Vivid, life-like portraits include animals contemporary to Cro-Magnon man, in addition to a painting of a nude woman and a man's handprint outlined in red pigment.

Created over a period of 5,000 years and occasionally overlapping each other, many are remarkably sophisticated, using numerous techniques to suggest movement and dramatic action. The scientist in charge of research in the cave describes one in particular, a panel of horses that brings to mind Marc Chagall, as "one of the world's great works of art," and it's hard not to agree.

True to form, much of what Herzog does in "Cave of Forgotten Dreams" is a bit peculiar. His decision to shoot in 3-D is an annoying distraction for the most part, though it may have helped to present the paintings as they really appear on the contours of the cave walls.

He pads the film's final half-hour, after running out of paintings in Chauvet, by discussing nude figurines and ivory flutes found in other nearby caves. He goes out of his way to locate Chauvet-connected eccentrics, such as a scientist who worked previously as a circus performer and a man who wanders the area looking for new caves by sniffing cracks in the rock face for Paleolithic odors.

His narration periodically runs off the rails (during a moment of silence in the cave, Herzog wonders aloud if they are hearing their own hearts beating or the heartbeat of the previous, Paleolithic occupants). And he goes out of his way to tack on a bizarre coda involving mutant albino crocodiles in a nearby greenhouse warmed by coolant water from a nearby nuclear power plant.

Even so, Herzog's apparently genuine wonderment about the sudden appearance of figurative art in that culture — a development he equates with the birth of the soul — animates "Cave of Forgotten Dreams" in a way a staid, traditional documentary treatment could never match.

Still, Werner: Mutant albino crocodiles? Really?

OPENING FRIDAY:

CAVE OF FORGOTTEN DREAMS

★ ★ ★ 1/2

Legendary director Werner Herzog ("Fitzcarraldo," "Aguirre, The Wrath of God") secured exclusive permission to film in France's Chauvet Cave, home of the world's oldest cave paintings, for this documentary. Reviewed in this section. (90 min.) No MPAA rating.

FAST FIVE

A former cop (Paul Walker) and an ex-con (Vin Diesel) join forces to defeat a drug lord and a relentless federal agent. Justin Lin ("Fast and Furious") directed the latest installment in the hard-driving action series. (130 min.) Rated PG-13.

HOODWINKED TOO! HOOD VS. EVIL

Red Riding Hood and the wolf team up to investigate the disappearance of Hansel and Gretel in this sequel to the hit 2005 animated adventure. Rated PG for some mild rude humor, language and action.

PROM

Several intersecting stories of romantic relationships unfold as teenagers prepare for the annual school dance. Joe Nussbaum ("Sidney White") directed the comedy. (104 min.) Rated PG for mild language and a brief fight.

STILL PLAYING:

MADEA'S BIG HAPPY FAMILY

The tough-talking grandma (Tyler Perry) takes over when the grown-up daughters of her ailing niece fail to care for mom the way they should. Perry wrote and directed the comedy. Rated PG-13 for drug content, language and some mature thematic material.

WATER FOR ELEPHANTS

A veterinary student (Robert Pattinson) drops out of school after the death of his parents and joins a traveling circus during the Great Depression, caring for the animals and falling for a married woman (Reese Witherspoon). Francis Lawrence ("I am Legend") directed the romance, adapted from the best-seller by North Shore resident Sara Gruen. Rated PG-13 for moments of intense violence and sexual content.

THE CONSPIRATOR

A young Union war hero turned attorney (James McAvoy) reluctantly takes on the defense of a woman (Robin Wright) charged with conspiracy in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. Robert Redford directed the drama. (123 min.) Rated PG-13 for some violent content.

IN A BETTER WORLD

The friendship between two boys turns to tragedy when one involves the other in an act of revenge. Susanne Bier ("Things We Lost in the Fire") directed the Danish drama. Winner of last year's Golden Globe for Best Foreign Film. (119 min.) In Danish with subtitles. Rated R for violent and disturbing content involving preteens, and for language.

RIO

There's nothing particularly wrong with "Rio," despite the usual frustration over a Blue Sky Studios production that fails to live up to the standard of its "Ice Age" franchise. It's a sweet, wholesome, perfectly pleasant little pre-adolescent time-waster that passes its 96 minutes agreeably and reasonably entertainingly. But this 3-D animated comedy is decidedly short on pizzazz. "Rio" is the story of over-intellectual, mildly neurotic, afraid-of-flying Blu (Jesse Eisenberg of "The Social Network"), the world's last remaining male blue macaw, who is whisked off to Rio by geeky ornithologist Tulio (Brazilian star Rodrigo Santoro) along with Blu's bookish, overly bird-crazy and unattached owner Linda (Leslie Mann) to mate with feisty, freedom-loving wild thing Jewel (Anne Hathaway), the last remaining female blue. Soon, "Rio" turns into a typical screwball romance (with blue macaws) as Rio and Jewel run from evil smugglers who have chained them together, with Tulio and Linda following suit. Brazil-born director Carlos Saldanha tells Blu's story with the cool, emotionally detached, laid-back vibe of a samba. Unfortunately, while sambas might be great for dancing, they rarely offer much in the way of laughs. (Bl) (96 min.) Rated PG for mild off-color humor.

ARTHUR

The perpetually inebriated heir (Russell Brand) to a billion-dollar fortune risks losing his money by falling in love with a woman (Jennifer Garner) his family doesn't like. Northwestern grad Jason Winer (TV's "Modern Family") directed the remake of the 1981 hit. Rated PG-13 for alcohol use throughout, sexual content, language and some drug references.

HANNA

Few films begin as promisingly and end as disappointingly as this enigmatic, dazzlingly stylized, galvanically paced, ultimately frustrating and seemingly pointless ultra-violent action thriller. There's no denying, though, that "Hanna" is a blast while it's going strong. Director Joe Wright ("Atonement," "Pride and Prejudice," "The Soloist") apparently set out to prove he could apply the artfulness of his earlier films to this full-tilt pulp item about a teen girl (extravagantly talented 16-year-old Saoirse Ronan) raised by her rogue CIA agent father (Eric Bana) to become "the perfect soldier." And he goes a long way toward making that happen in the film's spectacular first half, before overindulging in freaky surrealism and allowing the story to dawdle and meander confusingly in the second. Cate Blanchett (looking cold, ruthless and plagued by mother issues) is a major plus as the CIA villainess who's out to capture or kill Daddy's deadly little girl. (Bl) Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, some sexual material and language.

SOUL SURFER

A teenage surfer girl (AnnaSophia Robb) must find the courage to return to the sport after losing an arm in a shark attack. Sean McNamara ("The Suite Life: The Movie") directed the drama. Rated PG for an intense accident sequence and some thematic material.

HOP

I was a teenage Easter Bunny? The adolescent son (Russell Brand) of the Big Bunny leaves home to realize his dream of becoming a drummer, just as he's about to take over the family business. Tim Hill ("Alvin and the Chipmunks") directed the animated family comedy. Rated PG for some mild rude humor.

INSIDIOUS

New residents (Patrick Wilson and Rose Byrne) of a haunted house try to save their son when he's targeted by evil spirits. Leigh Whannell and James Wan (the "Saw" franchise) wrote and directed the horror. (102 min.) Rated PG-13 for thematic material, violence, terror and frightening images, and brief strong language.

SOURCE CODE

A soldier (Jake Gyllenhaal) wakes up to find himself in the body of another man, with a mission to uncover the identity of a bomber who has threatened to blow up a train. Duncan Jones ("Moon") directed the sci-fi thriller. (93 min.) Rated PG-13 for some violence including disturbing images, and for language.

TRUST

Suburban parents (Clive Owen and Catherine Keener) are shocked to find their family threatened by their young daughter's new boyfriend when he turns out to be an Internet predator. David Schwimmer ("Run, Fatboy, Run") directed the thriller. (104 min.) Rated R for disturbing material involving the rape of a teen, language, sexual content and some violence.

WINTER IN WARTIME

★ ★ ★ 1/2

A 14-year-old boy comes of age – painfully – during the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands in World War II. Based on an autobiographical young-adult novel by Dutch physicist/statesman Jan Terlouw, "Winter in Wartime" tells the story of young Michiel (Martijn Lakemeier), whose eagerness to leave behind his boyhood and join the resistance quickly gets him into situations that threaten his life. Adapter/director Martin Koolhoven does a nice job of telling the story from Michiel's point of view and illustrating how his view of things rarely corresponds with the way things really are: Particularly his disdain for his father the mayor's (Raymond Thiry in an excellent performance) carefully weighed policy of cooperation with the Germans and his hero-worship of his resistance-fighting uncle Ben (Yorick van Wageningen). Michiel eventually gets his wish about giving up his childhood, though the event that finally moves him toward manhood is a shocking and tragic development. (In Dutch with subtitles.) Rated R for some language.

FILM CLIPS

OPENING FRIDAY:

CAVE OF FORGOTTEN DREAMS

★ ★ ★ 1/2

Legendary director Werner Herzog ("Fitzcarraldo," "Aguirre, The Wrath of God") secured exclusive permission to film in France's Chauvet Cave, home of the world's oldest cave paintings, for this documentary. Reviewed in this section. (90 min.) No MPAA rating.

FAST FIVE

A former cop (Paul Walker) and an ex-con (Vin Diesel) join forces to defeat a drug lord and a relentless federal agent. Justin Lin ("Fast and Furious") directed the latest installment in the hard-driving action series. (130 min.) Rated PG-13.

HOODWINKED TOO! HOOD VS. EVIL

Red Riding Hood and the wolf team up to investigate the disappearance of Hansel and Gretel in this sequel to the hit 2005 animated adventure. Rated PG for some mild rude humor, language and action.

PROM

Several intersecting stories of romantic relationships unfold as teenagers prepare for the annual school dance. Joe Nussbaum ("Sidney White") directed the comedy. (104 min.) Rated PG for mild language and a brief fight.

STILL PLAYING:

MADEA'S BIG HAPPY FAMILY

The tough-talking grandma (Tyler Perry) takes over when the grown-up daughters of her ailing niece fail to care for mom the way they should. Perry wrote and directed the comedy. Rated PG-13 for drug content, language and some mature thematic material.

WATER FOR ELEPHANTS

A veterinary student (Robert Pattinson) drops out of school after the death of his parents and joins a traveling circus during the Great Depression, caring for the animals and falling for a married woman (Reese Witherspoon). Francis Lawrence ("I am Legend") directed the romance, adapted from the best-seller by North Shore resident Sara Gruen. Rated PG-13 for moments of intense violence and sexual content.

THE CONSPIRATOR

A young Union war hero turned attorney (James McAvoy) reluctantly takes on the defense of a woman (Robin Wright) charged with conspiracy in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. Robert Redford directed the drama. (123 min.) Rated PG-13 for some violent content.

IN A BETTER WORLD

The friendship between two boys turns to tragedy when one involves the other in an act of revenge. Susanne Bier ("Things We Lost in the Fire") directed the Danish drama. Winner of last year's Golden Globe for Best Foreign Film. (119 min.) In Danish with subtitles. Rated R for violent and disturbing content involving preteens, and for language.

There's nothing particularly wrong with "Rio," despite the usual frustration over a Blue Sky Studios production that fails to live up to the standard of its "Ice Age" franchise. It's a sweet, wholesome, perfectly pleasant little pre-adolescent time-waster that passes its 96 minutes agreeably and reasonably entertainingly. But this 3-D animated comedy is decidedly short on pizzazz. "Rio" is the story of over-intellectual, mildly neurotic, afraid-of-flying Blu (Jesse Eisenberg of "The Social Network"), the world's last remaining male blue macaw, who is whisked off to Rio by geeky ornithologist Tulio (Brazilian star Rodrigo Santoro) along with Blu's bookish, overly bird-crazy and unattached owner Linda (Leslie Mann) to mate with feisty, freedom-loving wild thing Jewel (Anne Hathaway), the last remaining female blue. Soon, "Rio" turns into a typical screwball romance (with blue macaws) as Rio and Jewel run from evil smugglers who have chained them together, with Tulio and Linda following suit. Brazil-born director Carlos Saldanha tells Blu's story with the cool, emotionally detached, laid-back vibe of a samba. Unfortunately, while sambas might be great for dancing, they rarely offer much in the way of laughs. (BI) (96 min.) Rated PG for mild off-color humor.

ARTHUR

The perpetually inebriated heir (Russell Brand) to a billion-dollar fortune risks losing his money by falling in love with a woman (Jennifer Garner) his family doesn't like. Northwestern grad Jason Winer (TV's "Modern Family") directed the remake of the 1981 hit. Rated PG-13 for alcohol use throughout, sexual content, language and some drug references.

Few films begin as promisingly and end as disappointingly as this enigmatic, dazzlingly stylized, galvanically paced, ultimately frustrating and seemingly pointless ultra-violent action thriller. There's no denying, though, that "Hanna" is a blast while it's going strong. Director Joe Wright ("Atonement," "Pride and Prejudice," "The Soloist") apparently set out to prove he could apply the artfulness of his earlier films to this full-tilt pulp item about a teen girl (extravagantly talented 16-year-old Saoirse Ronan) raised by her rogue CIA agent father (Eric Bana) to become "the perfect soldier." And he goes a long way toward making that happen in the film's spectacular first half, before overindulging in freaky surrealism and allowing the story to dawdle and meander confusingly in the second. Cate Blanchett (looking cold, ruthless and plagued by mother issues) is a major plus as the CIA villainess who's out to capture or kill Daddy's deadly little girl. (BI) Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, some sexual material and language.

SOUL SURFER

A teenage surfer girl (AnnaSophia Robb) must find the courage to return to the sport after losing an arm in a shark attack. Sean McNamara ("The Suite Life: The Movie") directed the drama. Rated PG for an intense accident sequence and some thematic material.

HOP

I was a teenage Easter Bunny? The adolescent son (Russell Brand) of the Big Bunny leaves home to realize his dream of becoming a drummer, just as he's about to take over the family business. Tim Hill ("Alvin and the Chipmunks") directed the animated family comedy. Rated PG for some mild rude humor.

INSIDIOUS

New residents (Patrick Wilson and Rose Byrne) of a haunted house try to save their son when he's targeted by evil spirits. Leigh Whannell and James Wan (the "Saw" franchise) wrote and directed the horror. (102 min.) Rated PG-13 for thematic material, violence, terror and frightening images, and brief strong language.

SOURCE CODE

A soldier (Jake Gyllenhaal) wakes up to find himself in the body of another man, with a mission to uncover the identity of a bomber who has threatened to blow up a train. Duncan Jones ("Moon") directed the sci-fi thriller. (93 min.) Rated PG-13 for some violence including disturbing images, and for language.

TRUST

Suburban parents (Clive Owen and Catherine Keener) are shocked to find their family threatened by their young daughter's new boyfriend when he turns out to be an Internet predator. David Schwimmer ("Run, Fatboy, Run") directed the thriller. (104 min.) Rated R for disturbing material involving the rape of a teen, language, sexual content and some violence.

WINTER IN WARTIME

★ ★ ★ 1/2

A 14-year-old boy comes of age – painfully – during the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands in World War II. Based on an autobiographical young-adult novel by Dutch physicist/statesman Jan Terlouw, "Winter in Wartime" tells the story of young Michiel (Martijn Lakemeier), whose eagerness to leave behind his boyhood and join the resistance quickly gets him into situations that threaten his life. Adapter/director Martin Koolhoven does a nice job of telling the story from Michiel's point of view and illustrating how his view of things rarely corresponds with the way things really are: Particularly his disdain for his father the mayor's (Raymond Thiry in an excellent performance) carefully weighed policy of cooperation with the Germans and his hero-worship of his resistance-fighting uncle Ben (Yorick van Wageningen). Michiel eventually gets his wish about giving up his childhood, though the event that finally moves him toward manhood is a shocking and tragic development. (In Dutch with subtitles.) Rated R for some language.

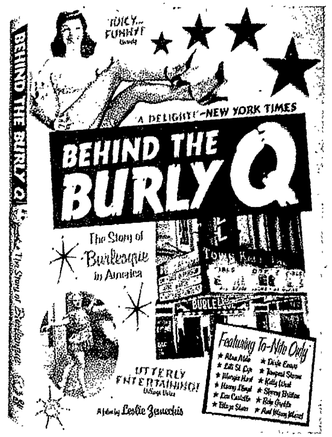
'Behind the Burly Q' on DVD

By BRUCE INGRAM
Film Critic



NEW THIS WEEK:

BEHIND THE BURLY Q
★ ★ ★ 1/2

This documentary by actress-turned-writer/director Leslie Zemeckis (wife of executive producer and celebrated director Robert Zemeckis) only touches lightly on the larger social issues surrounding the rise and fall of burlesque — the most popular form of entertainment in the early 20th century — but it scores nicely with reminiscence. Zemeckis has assembled an impressive roster of burlesque stars, including the exotic-dancing superstars Tempest Storm and Blaze Starr. Alan Alda also contributes entertaining stories of traveling as a kid with his father, who worked as a straight man in comedy acts. With its countless stories of gangsters, romances, heartbreak, heroism, titillation, tragedy and triumph, "Behind the Burly Q" is a top-of-the-bill diversion. (BI) No MPAA rating. (First Run Features)

The melodrama eventually goes over the top and the political posturing, on both sides of the communist/capitalist fence, is generally heavy-handed and simple-minded, but "Mao's Last Dancer" still satisfies if you're looking for a good cry — or a dazzling celebration of dance. "Last Dancer" is based on the best-selling memoir by Li Cunxin, who trained as a ballet dancer during China's Cultural Revolution and became an international star after defecting to America during the disco era (a major change of pace from Red China). Whether or not Li's story gets your tear ducts pumping is almost irrelevant because this film is really all about the dancing — and everything that takes place in tights is spectacular. Particularly Chi Cao, a principal dancer with the Birmingham Royal Ballet, who does a perfectly adequate job conveying Li's numerous dramatic trials, but absolutely drives a truck through the ballet sequences. Directed by Bruce Beresford ("Driving Miss Daisy") from a script by Jan Sardi ("Shine"). (BI) (117 min.) Rated PG for a brief violent image, some sensuality, language and incidental smoking. (Twentieth Century Fox)

RECENT RELEASES:

There's one big problem with writer/director Sofia Coppola's ("Lost in Translation") story about a movie star (Stephen Dorff) wallowing in ennui in a Beverly Hills hotel: The film itself is empty, pointless and painfully dull. (BI) Rated R for sexual content, nudity and language. (Universal)

RABBIT HOLE
★ ★ ★ 1/2

A tough film that's surprisingly engaging thanks to frequent humorous touches by director (and Northwestern University grad) John Cameron Mitchell ("Hedwig and the Angry Inch"). A formerly happily married couple (Nicole Kidman, Oscar-nominated, and Aaron Eckhart), whose four-year-old child was recently killed in an accident, try to work their way through the emotional devastation. (BI) Rated PG-13 for mature thematic material, some drug use and language. (Lionsgate)

ALSO NEW THIS WEEK:

BOB DYLAN REVISITED

On the eve of Dylan's 70th birthday, a documentary retrospective of his five-decade career, featuring numerous insider interviews with musicians, producers, songwriters and friends. (MVD Visual)

THE DILEMMA

When a man (Vince Vaughn) discovers that the wife (Winona Ryder) of his best friend (Kevin James) is having an affair, he agonizes about whether or not to tell him. Ron Howard directed the comedy. Extras include seven deleted scenes and an alternative ending. Rated PG-13 for mature thematic elements involving sexual content. (Universal)

THE GREEN HORNET

When a slacker (Seth Rogen) inherits his father's media empire, he uses his new fortune to fight crime with the help of his father's mysterious Asian bodyguard (Jay Chou). Michel Gondry ("Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind") directed the action comedy from a script co-written by Rogen. Extras include a gag reel and deleted scenes. Rated PG-13 for sequences of violent action, language, sensuality and drug content. (Sony)

A SOMEWHAT GENTLE MAN

A dark comedy from Norway about an aging gangster (Stellan Skarsgard) who does his best to turn away offers of illicit employment after being released from prison. But what he's really concerned about is losing his hair. (Strand Releasing)

WAITING FOR FOREVER

A quirky street performer in Hollywood reunites with his childhood sweetheart, now a troubled actress, in this comedy romance. Rated PG-13 for some violent content, brief language and thematic material. (Fox)

Young musicians play with a French flair

Hilel Kagan and musicians of the Canzonetta from the North Shore and Toulouse Conservatoire from France.

Canzonetta, a North Shore organization of high school string players, directed by Hilel Kagan, will present a joint concert with college-age students from the Toulouse Conservatoire in France on Saturday afternoon, April 30.

The program features music of Charpentier, Saint-Saens, Bizet, Pierne and Ravel and is one in a series of annual joint programs that has been going on between Kagan's and young French string players for several years.

Kagan's French connection didn't blossom into a full-fledged cultural exchange until about six years ago, but his association began much earlier. "Canzonetta was created as a sort of child of Concertante de Chicago," explained Kagan, referring to a chamber-sized ensemble that he established in 1985 and conducted for 20 years until it disbanded. Concerts were given for a time in Chicago and Glencoe, but eventually were performed only in the DePaul University Concert Hall in Chicago.

It was through a Concertante program that the intercontinental connection was made.

Shared enthusiasm

"Marion Kurylo is a French composer and music theory teacher who was living in Chicago for a while," Kagan said. "She came to our all-French program in 2004." The concert included music by two composers from her home town, and she and Kagan discovered a mutual enthusiasm for the development of young musicians.

Eventually Kurylo moved back to Lille, in the north of France and resumed her duties at the nearby Conservatoire de Roubaix. From there she and Kagan arranged an exchange between the student orchestra at Roubaix and his newly formed Canzonetta, which had became a program of the Wilmette Park District.

Hilel Kagan, co-artistic director of the Canzonetta.

The French students from Roubaix gave their first concert in Wilmette in November of 2007, staying in the homes of Hilel's young musicians, who came from Wilmette, Winnetka, Skokie, Morton Grove, Park Ridge, Highland Park and Chicago.

"There was such a wonderful cultural aspect to have the students staying in one another's homes," said violinist Helia Schramm, Kagan's wife and co-artistic director of Canzonettta. "And when our musicians went there, they enjoyed living in French homes."

Exchanging visits

In all, French students have come to the United States twice and the Canzonetta group has visited France twice. During the French visits, Kagan conducted master classes for French students.

The most recent exchange was in April of 2010, but this time the Canzonetta players went to the Toulouse Conservatoire in the south of France and the orchestras played an all-American program. "Marion joined the faculty and is teaching theory there now," Kagan explained. "Toulouse is a much larger town and its conservatory is one of the most prestigious in France."

The French musicians coming to the North Shore this week will be up to 21 years or age, while their American counterparts are up to 18 years old. "There will be about 11 or 12 players from each group," said Schramm said. "It is a nice size for a string chamber orchestra."

On the podium for the all-French program will be Gerard Duran, director of the Toulouse Conservatoire, who is conducting the rehearsals this week.

'Hairspray' cast all set to present the lively classic

It feels like there's enough energy onstage during the North Shore Theater of Wilmette's production of "Hairspray" to power several suburbs. That's not surprising given that it's directed and choreographed by Kirsten Markham, an enthusiastic, energetic professional.

Markham has choreographed around 50 shows but this is her first directing assignment. She could have fooled us.

Challenging themes

The Des Plaines resident took on the challenge because she loves "Hairspray," which is set in the big-haired, racially polarized '60s. "It's a feel good show," she said. "But, in addition, it sends the message that we are all trying to just fit in and everybody has to accept each other for who they are. It touches on a little bit of the racism that was going on."

Tommy Thurston and Linda Andrews star in "Hairspray." | Photo by Brian J. Markham

Linda Andrews of Palatine plays Tracy Turnblad, the chubby teen determined to become a regular dancer on "The Corny Collins Show." She has to deal with insults and abuse before that dream becomes a reality.

"This is a wonderful story about diversity and equality—and the underdog winning," Andrews said. "It's a wonderful part with fun, pop music that is super great to sing, and the dance songs are also amazing."

Andrews, who studied musical theater at Harper College, previously played the role of Tracy with the Up and Coming Theatre. She is a fan of the 1988 John Waters film on which the Broadway musical is based.

Sauk Village resident Joshua N. Banks plays Seaweed J. Stubbs, an African-American befriended by Tracy during her time in detention at school. Tracy's best friend Penny Pingleton (Annie Jo Fischer) instantly falls in love with him.

Like Tracy, Seaweed is a great dancer who dreams of being on "The Corny Collins Show," but he only gets that honor once a year on Negro Day.

"Seaweed has always been a dream part of mine," said Banks, whose performing credits include work with Walt Disney World Entertainment. "I really like him. He's just a groovy character. He really embodies the upbeat spirit of African-Americans during that time."

Banks, who is currently studying fashion design, said he also enjoys the dynamics between Seaweed and his mother, Motormouth Maybelle (Pascale M. Troullot, who is also music director), and his younger sister, Little Inez (Aerin Mitchell).

Change of heartthrob

Tracy's romantic interest, Link Larkin, is played by Tommy Thurston, an Ohio native who moved to Chicago last year. "He's a goofy character," declared the Bowling Green State University musical theater graduate. "In the beginning of the show, he's this pompous heartthrob that everybody wants to be. We find out later in the show that he's just like anybody else. He's this loveable, dorky guy who's putting on this act to become famous."

"It's a very big show," director/choreographer Markham said. "There's 15 numbers that have either dancing or staging, in addition to the scenes."

It's also a big show in terms of costuming demands. Every female cast members is wigged. Resident costume designer Martha Shuford made half of the period-perfect costumes.

"We have a very close-knit, tight working staff," said Robert E. Bierie, performing arts supervisor at the Wilmette Park District, who serves as lighting designer and technical director, and also conducts the orchestra. "I think that's reflected on the stage."

Ruby

puppy, Ruby has always had a very unflappable, staid side. A very compliant dog. For example, our seat assignment was screwed up on our trip back from California. Instead of a bulkhead seat, where Ruby could lay at my feet, we were stuck in the middle. I had to lay her on her side and slide her under the seat in front of me. There she stayed without complaint or panic.

Good dog owners are tight with their dogs and can almost guess what their pets are thinking. What do you think Ruby would say about her life so far?

As she approaches her eighth year, Ruby is indeed content, sometimes on the lazy side, having earned the right. The little diva harbors no ill feelings, doesn't have to. She thinks living well is the best revenge. Yes she is pampered, but not spoiled. After all, she still has to maintain a set of behaviors in public as a service dog. She is the alpha dog among our "pack" of four other dogs. Ruby rose to the position not by sharp fang and fierce claw, but by outwitting, outplaying and outlasting all others in our "tribe."

Do you feel the story clears up misconceptions about the pit bull breed?

The book really wasn't written to change anyone's mind. It's about a rescue dog who happens to be a pit bull. No denying her breed and, of course, there were issues we had to deal with because of those misconceptions. I think it may help show that a good dog starts at the owner's end of the leash. A responsible owner! Ruby is a great dog, but she is not the exception to the breed. There are legions of wonderful pit bulls out there, doing no harm and in many cases much good in our communities.

Park Ridge orchestra celebrates Mozart

'Homage to Mozart'
Park Ridge Civic Orchestra. Pickwick Theatre, 5 S. Prospect, Park Ridge. 2:30 p.m. May 1. $25, $20 for students and senior citizens. Complimentary reception follows performance. Visit www.parkridgecivicorchestra.org or call (847) 692-PRCO or (847) 823-[illegible]

By SARA BURROWS
Contributor

The Park Ridge Civic Orchestra winds up its 17th season with an all-Mozart concert on May 1. It will be an all-Mozart afternoon, with the orchestra and three choruses performing the composer's Requiem Mass in D Minor (K. 626), and popular "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

The orchestra's founder and conductor, Edgar Muenzer, will be on the podium. The four soloists are Sarah Hibbard, soprano: Jessye Wright, contralto; Peder Reiff, tenor: and Peter Van De Graaff (of WFMT), bass.

"Everyone is a returning performer," says Nancy Muenzer, the conductor's wife, who serves as publicist for the orchestra.

Choral music

The program pieces are heavily vocal works, so the Algoma Festival Choir from Canada will join the Park Ridge Community Church Chancel Choir and the orchestra's own chorus making a total of some 80 voices.

"We have a chorus, and we like to give them something to do," says Edgar Muenzer.

They will be busy. The Requiem has 14 sections, but most of them were not fully written by Mozart. "He died before he could finish it," explains Muenzer, and notes that the work has an interesting, controversial history.

Mozart

The Requiem was commissioned by Count Franz von Walsegg, who paid Mozart half the fee with the agreement that he'd receive the other half when the work was complete. Some authorities believe the count, an amateur musician, liked to pass off work from other composers as his own.

However Mozart's death left his wife and two young children in dire need of money, so she recruited Mozart's assistant, Franz Xaver Sussmayr, to complete the work and collect the money for her. Some authorities believe that another composer, Joseph von Eybler, also had a hand in completing the Requiem.

"So all the sections are marked," says Muenzer, "with an 'M' for Mozart, an 'S' for Sussmayr or an 'E' for Eybler."

Peder Reiff

Today, from one part of the Requieum to the next, says Muenzer, it's difficult for most people to tell who wrote what. "You can't hear the differences."

Within the work, he says, "My favorite section is the 'Lacrimoso,' which means tears, or weeping. I think it's the most beautiful part of the Requiem."

Summer sounds

Muenzer chose "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" for its pure, musical beauty, he explains in his program notes. Its four movements seem to reflect on the beauties of a balmy summer evening. Perhaps, Muenzer suggests, since the title is in the composer's native German, rather than the Italian he often used for his works, Mozart wrote it for his own pleasure.

Nancy Muenzer notes that the pleasures of the afternoon concert won't be just musical. "There's a complimentary reception immediately after the concert, and everyone in the audience is invited to come and mingle with the artists," she said.

The reception will be on the second floor at the Pickwick Theatre, the venerable Park Ridge landmark, following the concert in the auditorium.

"It will be a lovely afternoon," she adds. "There's always good reason to listen to Mozart."

These are the reasons Kia has become one of the most successful brand names in North America: Sorento, Sportage, Sedona, Forte, Optima, Rio and Soul. Here's what's new for 2011.

Sorento

Kia's 2011 Sorento compact utility vehicle was actually launched in January 2010 and was fully redesigned. It has quickly become Kia's best-selling vehicle in the United States.

Available in three trim levels — LX, EX and SX — the 2011 Sorento comes with two different engine choices: a 2.4-liter inline four-cylinder (175 horsepower, 169 pound-feet of torque) or a 3.5-liter V-6 (276 horsepower, 248 pound-feet of torque). Both engines are mated to a six-speed automatic overdrive transmission with Sportmatic (a six-speed manual is also available).

Prices start at $20,995 for the base Kia or $33,895 for an SX with a V-6 engine.

Sportage

This compact crossover utility vehicle and longest-running Kia nameplate has a new design and an AWD system.

The five-passenger Sportage comes in three trim levels: base, LX and EX. Currently the only engine available is the 2.4-liter DOHC four-cylinder with continuously variable valve timing (176 horsepower, 168 pound-feet of torque). Sometime during the first quarter of 2011, Kia will offer a 2.0-liter turbo four-cylinder: It will deliver 260+ horsepower.

The base Sportage with a manual transmission is $18,295 and the top-of-the-line EX with a six-speed automatic begins at $23,295.

Sedona

This minivan is a dandy: a Top Safety Pick by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety and multiple five-star crash safety ratings from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

An all-new 3.5-liter V-6 produces 271 horsepower and 248 pound-feet of torque. Base price for the LX begins at $24,595 and $29,195 for the EX.

Forte/Forte 5-Door/Forte Koup

Three members form this family: Forte (a sedan), Forte 5-Door (a hatchback) and Forte Koup (a coupe).

The Forte is available in three trim levels: LX, EX and SX. The 5-Door and the Koup are available in two: EX and SX. All three models are available with two power plants: a 2.0-liter DOHC inline four-cylinder with CVVT (156 horsepower, 144 pound-feet of torque) and a 2.4-liter (173 horsepower, 168 pound-feet of torque). They're mated to either a six-speed manual overdrive or a six-speed automatic overdrive transmission.

Forte's base price for an LX with the 2.0-liter manual-transmission power plant is $14,995 and goes up to $18,895 for the SX with a 2.4-liter and automatic transmission. The Forte 5-Door starts at $16,895 for a base EX and heads up to $19,395 for an SX model with the 2.4-liter/automatic transmission. The Forte Koup's base price is $16,995 for an EX with manual transmission and a 2.0-liter engine and rises to $19,395 for an SX with the 2.4-liter/automatic transmission.

Optima (right)

With its smooth-flowing lines that mimic European luxury vehicles, the all-new 2011 midsize Optima sedan is Kia's flagship.

The five-passenger front-wheel drive Optima is loaded with luxury and safety features. It comes in three trim levels: LX, EX and SX. Base engine is a 2.4-liter GDI four-cylinder with a manual transmission (200 horsepower, 186 pound-feet of torque). The 2.0-liter four-cylinder turbo offerst 274 horsepower and 269 pound-feet of torque. It's only available with an automatic transmission.

The Optima runs from $18,995 for a base LX with a manual transmission to $25,995 for an Optima SX with an automatic.

Rio/Rio5

Rio and Rio5 are Kia's smallest vehicles; they come in four- and five-door models. All Rios come with a DOHC 1.6-liter inline four-cylinder with CVVT (110 horsepower, 107 pound-feet of torque).

Rio has three trim levels: base, LX and SX. The 2011 Rio base is $12,295 (manual transmission); the LX with automatic starts at $14,995; and the SX with automatic starts at $16,095.

Rio5 has two trim levels: LX and SX. An LX with automatic transmission begins at $15,095 and the SX with automatic starts at $16,395.

Soul

This iconic vehicle is offered as Soul, Soul+, Soul! and Soul Sport.

Two engines are available: a 1.6-liter inline four-cylinder (122 horsepower, 115 pound-feet of torque) or a 2.0-liter inline four-cylinder (142 horsepower, 137 pound-feet of torque). The smaller engine is available only with a five-speed manual overdrive, while the 2.0-liter is available with the manual or a four-speed automatic overdrive transmission.

Pricing for the Soul base with a 1.6-liter/manual transmission starts at $13,300. Soul+ with a 2.0-liter engine and automatic transmission begins at $16,495; Soul! with a 2.0-liter/automatic begins at $18,495 and the Soul Sport with the same power plant starts at $18,495.

Anyone who wishes to purchase a ranch home in an environmentally-sensitive rural community, yet who craves the convenience of easy access to transportation arteries, shopping centers, restaurants and recreational activities, may want to pay a visit to Henning Estates in rural Huntley.

Economic reports are coming out on a daily basis that seems to show the economy is set to start rebounding in 2011. Reports indicate that unemployment is receding, stock markets are rebounding and manufacturers are starting to crank up. Month after month the economy seems to be slowly recovering, and yet interest rates continue to remain at or near a historic low of just under 5 percent for a 30-year fixed rate mortgage.

Move-in ready

WHERE WE LIVE | Gurnee community offering new construction properties

BY JEREMY SCHNITKER
blockshopper.com

While the majority of homes in the Providence Oaks subdivision in Gurnee were built around 15 years ago, remaining lots in the community that occupies 30 wooded acres have been developed over the past five years by local builder Ron Brount of BBB Enterprises.

One of those is a four-bedroom, 3.5-bath home at 692 Framingham Court. Finished and ready for occupancy, the 3,000-square-foot property is being listed by Jeff Matheson of Century 21 Kreuser & Seiler for $499,900.

The home features a Craftsman-style exterior that includes a three-car garage with two front garage doors and one side load. Inside, there is a spacious kitchen with granite countertops, a small work island, stainless steel appliances and custom cherry cabinets.

An adjacent eating area overlooks the large wooded lot and is adjacent to the covered rear porch. The family room is highlighted by the wood-burning stone fireplace that offers access to the rear deck.

The master bedroom has a trey ceiling, his-and-hers walk-in closets, a master bath with jetted tub and a separate shower.

The property is near access to Belvedere Road and access to Interstate Highway 94.

Collective countertops: A work island sits in the middle of the spacious kitchen (above), which has stainless steel appliances and ample cabinetry. The Gurnee home is on the market for $499,000. | SUBMITTED PHOTOS

"Many people searching for a new home community that offers the peaceful serenity found in the rural countryside, assume that it must be located in the middle of nowhere, and difficult to reach by car or train," said Peter LeSueur, co-founder of Henning Estates. "Well, our community offers all of the benefits you seek with no downside whatsoever."

Within 10 minutes of backing out of the driveway, families can be shopping at major retail outlets, grocery stores, fast-fod restaurants, and pharmacies. An array of medical facilities, schools, golf courses, churches, fine dining restaurants and parks are only minutes away.

Families who live at Henning Estates also have access to Chicago via various road networks and train lines. Residents can commute on the Union Pacific Northwest Line Metra trains, or by car via the full I-90 Tollway interchange. With these transportation opportunities homeowners will be able to reach employment opportunities in communities such as Hoffman Estates or Schaumburg and Chicago.

And with the purchase price of a semi-custom ranch home starting in the low $300,000s, Henning Estates offers environmentally-conscious homebuyers a great opportunity to secure the home of their dreams.

At Henning Estates, 80 percent of the one-third-acre homesites are suitable for the construction of a home on a walk-out or look-out basement. For peace and tranquility, each home-site backs up to a pond, mature woods or natural tall grass prairies. Henning Estates is designed with the latest techniques for land conservation.

"We made an effort to make sure that the back yard of every home opens up to some sort of green space," said LeSueur. "Sometimes it might be a pond, other times it might be mature stands of trees and then again it could be a natural tall grass prairie. The result of this effort is that homeowners will very seldom ever look out their back windows and see the back yard of another home."

All houses built by Rock Creek Homes in Henning Estates offer architectural elevations, which could include brick, stone, cedar, and architecturally interesting rooflines. Each 1,800- to 2,260-square-foot ranch home will include two or 2½ baths, two to three bedrooms, separate breakfast area, a grand family room, formal dining room, and attached two-car garage.

Standards include a basement, hardwood floors, stainless steel appliances, vaulted ceilings, energy efficient furnace and air conditioning, insulated windows, finished insulated garages, staggered maple cabinets, ceramic floor tile in baths, luxury master baths, and landscaped front yards. Optional amenities such as stone hearth fireplaces, walk-out basements, three-car garages, stamped concrete patios, and additional bedroom options are also available.

"We have the lifestyle, the lot sizes and the stair-free homes that you have been dreaming of and at a price you won't believe," said LeSueur. "Plus with the opening of two decorated ranch models within our land conservation inspired community, families can see what living here is all about."

To reach Henning Estates, take Route 20 west from the I-90 Tollway for two miles and then turn right (east) on Church Road. The community entrance is on the north side of Church Road about a quarter mile from Route 20. The models and sale center are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. or by appointment. Old Boy Scout camp up for grabs

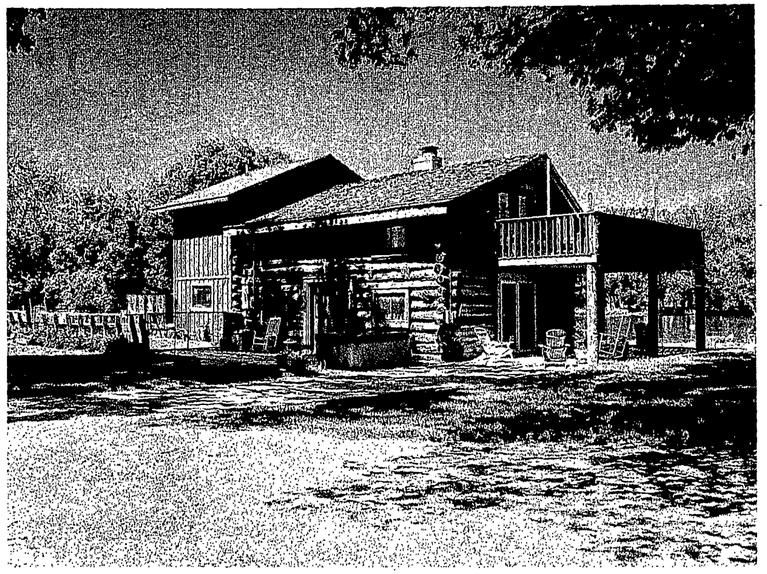
Rock River retreat offers rare opportunity



By the water: 10695 Edgemere Terrace is a circa 1920s-era waterfront log cabin nestled on 12-plus secluded, wooded acres along the Rock River. | SUBMITTED PHOTO

The property 10695 Edgemere Terrace in Roscoe comprises 12-plus wooded acres and features 1,500 feet of frontage along the beautiful Rock River, a private boat dock and reinforced shoreline.

It also is a piece oh history, a place where countless boys learned skills, acquired a positive attitude and prepared for adult life ahead.

Now it is looking for a buyer, who not o nly wants a secluded spot on the river but also to share in a piece of local history, with the amenities of a location in the greater Rockford area near numerous golf courses and state parks, and minutes to shopping and conveniences.

This secluded waterfront estate is being exclusively marketed by @Properties agent, Shannon Burruss, and is being offered at $1.15 million.

According to Rotarian Walter Dundore, 10 Beloit Rotary Club members who signed a note from the Beloit State Bank in 1921, purchasing a parcel of land along the Rock River, south of Beloit. This land was donated to the Boy Scouts and called "Camp Rotary" after the Rotarians who used their own personal funds to purchase the land.

It was part of the Rotary Club's mission to support the Boy Scouts, whose purpose was, "to help boys to understand and realize the fundamental aims of the school, the church and the home; to use leisure time in preparation for constructive American citizenship." This land became the center of outdoor activities for the Boy Scouts.

On July 10, 1924, the Beloit Club was incorporated, taking ownership of the campsite along the Rock River in Winnebago County, Illinois. The site sits south of Rockton, between Rockton and Roscoe, on the Rock River. Upon the 10-acre site a dining room and kitchen were erected, a pump installed, and later the services of the Beloit Legion and Fireman were enlisted to construct several log cabins, a concrete swimming pool and an electric light plant. Here the Beloit area Boy Scouts enjoyed many summers of uninterrupted comradeship, learned to live with one another and to frolic safely in the enclosed pool. They enjoyed nightly campfires and communing with the stars and planets on clear nights.

As the number of boys grew, and the Beloit Boy Scouts unit spanned three counties in the area, they outgrew "Camp Rotary." For three years the camp was sed by the Beloit Recreational Department as a day camp where 50 boys chosen by school teachers trucked back and forth daily from Beloit.

In the 1930s, the Beloit YMCA's Men's Club proposed rehabilitating the old campsite to use it for their own camp. For more than 30 years, the YMCA summer program bussed boys in and out.

In the 1970s the land came under private ownership and later operated a training facility for horses. Current owners Alice and Nova Vinson have resided on the property for more than a decade.

The circa 1920s-era log cabin with lofted ceilings and open floor plan easily converts to a lodge, bunkhouse or multiple bedrooms. The historic cabin has Egyptian travertine and Turkish marble imported stonework including beautiful custom flooring with decorative inlays throughout the first floor, luxurious custom baths and a master suite with a large wrap around deck. The spacious master suite with 12-foot ceilings overlooks an unparalleled view of the Rock River and adjacent forested river bank. The bright and airy vintage kitchen also offers stunning views of the river.

Log cabin living: The warm and inviting spacious master suite features soaring 12-foot ceilings, one of the stunning features of this home with an open concept floor plan. | SUBMITTED PHOTO

The 20-by-40-foot in-ground pool, deck and screened bayou outdoor kitchen offers filtered water, gas and electricity for cooking.

This secluded wooded acreage is inhabited by a diverse variety of wildlife and offers boating, hiking, hunting, fishing and numerous trails for horses, ATVs or snowmobiles. The Vinsons' equine property currently is home to two horses, and features pastures and a stable. The "Mess Hall" is now the stable. The stables and pastures with electric fencing (and solar back up) are the ideal home for equines and equestrians alike.

Over the years, Alice and Nova welcomed visitors year-round while they operated the separate private two-story coachhouse as a bed and breakfast. The secluded coachhouse with its private balcony offers views of the forested property.

When Shannon first met the Vinson's and asked why they would ever want to sell their private oasis they replied that "the years we've spent here have been the happiest years of our lives. We have lived our first dream. If we weren't retiring and returning to our family in Brazil to live out our second dream, we would never leave this beautiful place."

Burruss said that Jean Combs and Paul Kerr of the Beloit Historical society supplied her with the Rotary Club programs, articles and other informatin of the property.

For more information or to schedule an appointment for a private showing, contact Shannon Burruss at 773-612-5161, email shannonb@atproperties.com, or visit 10695EdgemereTerrace.info.

Housing market nationwide is sprouting with the arrival of spring

ON THE HOME FRONT
DON DEBAT

The arrival of spring has home sales sprouting again in the Chicago area and across the nation, experts say.

Many home buyers are realizing that they may never again see prices and interest rates combined at these low level, and first-time buyers are beginning to understand that this could be a "last change opportunity" to purchase a home before both prices and mortgage rates increase, according to realty agents polled by HouseHunt.com.

"Market conditions are perfect for any home purchaser who has the down payment, ability to qualify for a loan and plans on living in a home for at least five years," said Mike Bearded, president and CEO of HouseHunt.com. "Long-term interest rates are low, choices are abundant and in many areas, owning a home is cheaper than renting."

Here are some of the findings of the HouseHunt.com agent survey:

- The percentage of first-time buyers rose to 42 percent in the first quarter of 2011 from 37 percent from the fourth quarter of 2010.
- Forty-six percent of the agents reported sellers received 95 percent or more of their asking price during the first quarter of 2011.
- Sixty-two percent of the agents reported that listings are getting multiple offers from buyers. This is the second highest percentage recorded in more than two years.

The Chicago metropolitan real estate market also appears to be picking up. In March, more homes were sold and at higher prices than in February of this year, according to a RE/MAX Northern Illinois analysis of sales data compiled by Midwest Real Estate Date, LLC.

Overall, however, the 2011 housing market still lags behind the brisk pace set during the first six months of 2010 when a federal tax credit helped stimulate sales.

"Compared to February, March sales rose 40 percent to 5,272 units," reported Jim Merrion, regional director of the RE/Max Northern Illinois network. "Sales prices also were higher in March, with both the average price and median price up about 5 percent from the February level."

March sales traditionally are stronger than those in February. "Over the last six years, the average increase in unit sales from February to March has been 42 percent, so what we experienced this year is fairly typical," Merrion said.

According to Merrion, the local housing market is tracking close to expectations, and he anticipates even better results ahead.

"The improved affordability of homes has helped demand bounce back this spring after a winter season where cold, snowy weather had a negative impact on home sales," said Merrion. "I wouldn't be surprised to see sales in April and May come much closer to last year's numbers than I expected at the beginning of this year."

The percentage of home sales represented by distressed properties, including foreclosures and short sales, fell slightly from 51.5 percent in February to 49.2 percent in March.

For the metro area as a whole, home prices in March were noticeably lower than they were a year earlier. The median price (meaning half of homes sold for more and half for less) for a detached home was $173,000, down 8.9 percent from $189,900 a year earlier, while the median price of an attached home (primarily condominium apartments and townhouses) declined 24.4 percent to $132,000.

Even though sales were lower than a year ago, the market for detached homes continued to outperform the market for attached homes in most respects during March. Total sales of detached homes were 14.4 percent lower than in March 2010, while attached home sales were down 20.7 percent on the same basis, according to the RE/MAX analysis.

"We do expect more price stability to take hold as the spring market progresses and more buyers decide to move ahead," said Merrion. "Given where homes prices are compared to a year ago and considering that interest rates for mortgages remain extremely attractive, the buying opportunities are exceptional, and we believe that message is getting through to many renters who are seeing new leases with hefty increases attached."

Northfield Group offers $10,000 savings on Millbrook Pointe townhomes

Homebuyers can take advantage of a $10,000 credit now being offered at Millbrook Pointe, an upscale all brick townhome and rowhome community located next to Restaurant Row in Wheeling

Buyers can choose a three-or four-bedroom home with up to 2,700 square feet starting at $259,000 when the $10,000 credit is applied. Buyers can use this incentive in a variety of ways to meet individual needs

"The choice is yours," said Northfield Group President Gary Levitas. "Since every buyer is different, we're allowing you to choose the best way to spend your incentive money. For instance, you can lower the asking price, cover closing costs, purchase upgrades or lower interest rates."

"But time is limited and contracts must be signed by May 15th in order to enjoy this extraordinary one-time bonus," he said.

"Today's historic low mortgage rates and affordable pricing make this the best time to purchase a home," said Levitas. "Those who take advantage of current desirable market conditions and special financing will benefit in the near future, once second phase construction begins and prices increase."

At Millbrook Pointe, visitors may be impressed by the innovative floor plans and the two new models that have been added to the lineup. Spacious townhomes are designed to feel like single-family homes. With up to 2,700 square feet of space, they have an abundance of windows that let the outdoors in. Kitchens are roomy and accommodate center islands, while master bedrooms are quite sizeable and are separated from the other bedrooms, giving the owner added privacy.

Since every buyer has their own set of preferences, Northfield Group offers buyers customization within the footprint of the floor plan. Owners have redesigned a floor plan layout, modified their kitchen, revamped a bathroom, enlarged a bedroom, plus made a host of other changes.

For those who require a home immediately, there are a few townhomes and rowhomes available for immediate occupancy. Designed with carefully selected upgraded finishes and trendy products, these homes are available at fantastic values.

Buyers can choose from two upscale townhome plans. One offers four bedrooms and 3½ baths with a first-floor master suite. The other is a three-bedroom, 2¼-bath traditional layout. Features include separate living room with a Juliette balcony, two-story great room, kitchen with granite countertops and a center island, vaulted ceilings, outdoor deck, and 9-foot basement.

In addition to the townhomes, buyers can opt for a three-story rowhome design featuring two or three bedrooms and 2½ baths. Two plans showcase a family room that can be converted to a guest suite, an open kitchen with island, separate living room and dining room, master bedroom with private balcony.

Evanston writer reconnects with Unforgettable past

Paul McComas

In the preface to his latest book, Evanston author Paul McComas notes that he has, in a sense, been working toward its publication his entire life.

Unforgettable: Harrowing Futures, Horrors, & (Dark) Humor, a collection of 51 science fiction, fantasy and horror tales, contains one story written when McComas was 10, another when he was 13 (around the time he started making 8mm films such as "Godzilla, Spaceslime!" with his friends), and an excerpted novella from his high-school years.

The collection also contains 20-or-so assorted tales written during the '80s and mid-'90s, before McComas began to segue toward performance art and poetry and more mainstream fiction, such as his short-story collection Twenty Questions and his semi-autobiographical novel Planet of the Dates — about a geeky Milwaukee kid who makes monster movies as a way of meeting girls.

McComas, currently in the midst of a multi-city promotional tour for Unforgettable, will read selections from the collection at 7 p.m. May 5 in the Evanston Public Library, 1703 Orrington Ave. (It's worth noting that his readings are noted for their entertainment value.)

Book request

Most of the early stories in the collection were unpublished and unread except by friends, family and readers of several self-published fanzines, and had more or less been permanently filed when publisher Steve Sullivan asked McComas to compile a genre collection.

"I don't think of myself as a genre writer," said McComas, though he added that his genre fiction and film gave him his earliest inspiration to create — and that genre elements still have a way of working their way into his current work. "But I'd never encountered this phenomenon of a publisher asking a writer to do a book. I found that wonderfully motivating.

One year later, after writing a score or so new sci-fi, horror and fantasy tales, many with a little help from his friends, and "revising, honing, improving" his old work, Unforgettable was ready to make an indelible impression.

McComas turned to 14 writers he admires (including his wife Heather McComas, Eileen Maksym, Eric Diekhans and Laurence Minsky of Evanston and Marie Thourson of Wilmette) to co-write 16 of the new stories in Unforgettable.

Along the way, he realized that the stories he conjured up today tended to share settings, themes and ideas that were not so different from those that appealed to his younger self, tough stuff about future dystopias and post-apocalyptic travails, eased somewhat by streaks of dark humor.

"I've always been drawn, even as a kid, to the notion of futurism as prophetic voice, science-fiction as cautionary tale," McComas said. "The 'Planet of the Apes' movies were a big part of my life as a pre-teen and teen. I lived and breathed them. And, of course, those films weren't just imaginative adventure stories; they were about the state of America at that time: militarism, race relations, class-rule, you name it.

Genre and meaning

"The best genre stories have an allegorical nature. They have something to say about the status quo and the shape of things to come. And they use genre tropes and trappings to ask the eternal questions: What is it to be human? What is the purpose of life? Where does life end? That's always appealed to me."

It appeals to McComas enough that he has worked several years on writing a novel with William Nolan, the best-selling author of Logan's Run and many, many more books. Nolan encouraged McComas as a young writer and they stayed in touch over the years, finally deciding to collaborate on Logan's Search, the fourth entry in the "Logan" series, which should appear next year around the same time as a big-budget remake of the 1976 movie version of "Logan's Run."

Like the work he did on Unforgettable, writing Logan's Search with Nolan gave McComas the chance to fulfill some of his earliest aspirations.

"I was able to return to genre writing with all of the skills I've learned since more or less setting it aside," he said. "It's been a remarkable opportunity: A chance to re-engage with my first love."

Autistic daughter inspires professional mother to speak out

BY TERRA COONEY

Special to Pioneer Press

The word "mother" invokes four thoughts in Carmen Solano-De Carrier — love, patience, protection and guidance.

"I firmly believe [that the reason] we have kids is to show them love, protect them, guide them through life and have the patience to see them grow up," shares the wife and mother of three.

John De Carrier, 44, dotes on his wife's amazing ability to juggle life, family and career. The family, consisting of son, Michael, 25, and daughters Eva, 21, and Mia, 8, currently resides in Northfield because the community provides accessible services for Mia, who has autism. Northfield is part of the Northern Suburban Special Education District (N.S.S.E.D.), which has helped the family through all of their necessary support.

Though she raised two children before Mia, Solano-De Carrier, 49, says she only learned half of what she needed to know before becoming a parent of an autistic child. Her first lesson was to learn to put her emotions aside. She then built a team around Mia, including a speech therapist, occupational therapist, a neurodevelopment pediatrician, and at times, a behavioral therapist. This was key, while the family hasn't stopped searching for knowledge and trying things to help the youngest in their brood.

Solano-De Carrier is co-owner of a company that oversees and manages ten McDonald's restaurants in the city of Chicago. She employs more than 500 employees and acts as their mentor, teacher, coach and, at times, quasi-mother. Many abused women are in the area she operates her business, and they seek Solano-De Carrier's advice. She conducts seminars in her restaurants for high school students on what it takes to be successful and how to break-through barriers.

Because kids are her passion, Solano-De Carrier loves to involve herself in charities for kids. She is on the board of directors of the Ronald McDonald House Charities of Northwest Chicagoland & Northwest Indiana (RMHC-CNI), helping families of children that are sick. Among many other charitable efforts, she is involved with the Easter Seals Metropolitan Chicago, an organization that places a large focus on autism. Her husband sits on the board of directors.

The family has established the Mia De Carrier Charitable Fund, to provide private matched donations to various organizations. Through the fund, grown with the help of friends and family in lieu of gifts for Christmas and Mia's birthday, groups such as Autism Speaks are supported. In 2012, the De Carrier family plans to create the Mia De Carrier Scholarship to be awarded through Casa Central and the Erie Neighborhood House; both groups deal primarily with the low-income portion of the Hispanic community through social programs.

"The words tired, frustrated and overwhelmed are not in her vocabulary," shares John about his wife, who tries her best to be a role model to her kids.

Her proof is in her pride when people comment on her well-mannered and happy children. Mia is known to have a great sense of humor and a smile, which is not always easily achieved in an autistic child. That, to Solano-De Carrier is credit of the environment the family has provided. To celebrate Mother's Day this year, the family will have breakfast at home together.

"I celebrate my biggest joys in life — them! And, in turn, they celebrate me. It's a special day for us," she says.

CURE365 founder raised more than $100,000 for epilepsy research

BY TERRA COONEY

Special to Pioneer Press

Amy Cooke has three kids, three jobs and a whole lot on her plate. This outstanding mother is proud of her family and the ways in which they've worked as a unit to be a strong support for one another, and for Danny. Danny, 21, is Cooke's oldest son. At age 15, he was diagnosed with epilepsy. Though life seemed to flip upside down with the news, says Cooke, all five of them, including Katy, 19, and Timmy, 15, as well as husband, Greg, 52, pulled together to be sure that the family dynamic worked.

"We learned to be there and be on call, and my other children had to grow up fast," Cooke shares. "My kids are amazing to me. They are independent and very loving."

Cooke founded an organization called CURE365, a fundraising group to support Citizens United for Research in Epilepsy (CURE). Cooke gathered about 18 of her closest friends to start a board to organize a family fun night at North Avenue Beach in Chicago. Back in 2007, that first year, the goal was to raise $50,000 for a research grant; 200 people attended, which raised $70,000. Cooke's group has raised more than $100,000 for epilepsy research in the past few years. Send donations to CURE365 at 2306 Indian Ridge Dr., Glenview, IL 60026. CURE365 will mail a tax deduction letter to donors.

Cooke says she includes the community and the kids in these fundraising events. She loves that, through involvement, people can learn about epilepsy and strip away some of the fear and the unknown.

"Helping others, giving of time, energy and resources... will take you far in life," Cooke, 49, shares. "I hope that I have instilled such values, as to give more than to receive, in my children."

Cooke and her husband have taught their children to move forward despite adversity.

Though she says it was difficult to send two of her children off to college, she was happy to have taught her kids to live life to the fullest, regardless of what hurdles they encounter.

Looking at Danny, you can't tell that he has epilepsy. Cooke says he can ride a bike, play volleyball and, because he has been medically controlled for about three years, drive. Danny will be graduating from college in May.

"Dynamically, he is on track, and I think part of that is the strong family we have," shares the mother.

While Cooke balances her time working for a tax accountant, and also as an aerobic instructor, her job as a medical technologist gives her access to the field that helps to answer some of the questions she continues to ask about epilepsy. Not only does she make time for work and her family, but also she gives back in many ways. Cooke will be walking in the Y-ME Race at your Pace walk for breast cancer in downtown Chicago on Mother's Day with her daughter and friends.

Breast cancer survivor offers hope, advice

BY KIM ELSHAM

Special to Pioneer Press

Karen Preston operates on the belief that people exist to help others and that everyone has something to contribute. One look at her resume proves her commitment to this. From training others professionally to running cancer support groups from her home and volunteering at least six hours a week on a telephone hotline, Preston puts a compassionate touch on everything she does.

Preston grew up an only child in Gary, Ind., and only knew hard work. She pushed herself in her studies through high school and college. She eventually earned a master's degree in English from the University of Notre Dame.

She built a successful 26-year career at the Walgreen's, where she worked her way through the training and process development departments of the company's human resources division. She ultimately became the director of performance development in 2003. During the last few years at Walgreen's, Preston helped plan a distribution center for workers with cognitive disabilities, which finally launched in 2006.

Following a breast cancer diagnosis in 1995, she started a support group through her church, Saint Mary Parish in Buffalo Grove, in 1998. Her group has multiple components: a prayer team, an email distribution list for information and support group meetings in Preston's home.

> "Talk about role models; I come from a line of amazing women."
> LORRAINE KASZNIA, 43, Park Ridge

"This is a wonderful group of people who enrich my life just getting to know them," Preston says. "They're so wonderful when you have somebody who's dealing with active cancer and still volunteering."

In 2006, the Archdiocese recognized her compassion and hard work and presented Preston with a Christifidelis Award, an annual award recognizing service within parishes throughout the diocese.

Helping others comes naturally to Preston, a mother of four and grandmother of two.

"I have believed my entire life that we're put here on this earth with the expectation that we will be there for one another and try to do what we can," she says.

"I've seen it so many times, from making a meal, to running an organization," Preston says. "I've seen in all of my kids a passion for something beyond themselves as well," she continues, citing examples of her oldest son, Brian, who helps counsel drug addicts, and her middle son, Kurt, who stays involved in environmental concerns.

Following her retirement from Walgreen's in 2006, Preston got involved with the Y-ME National Breast Cancer Organization and now volunteers on the hotline for three-hour telephone shifts about twice a week. For the past three and a half years, she has provided emotional support, information and resources to callers. She is now a match counselor for the hotline, which involves training and teaching new volunteers, and is helping Y-ME update its training program.

She even inspired her own mother, Dorothy Weiskopf, 92, to volunteer. Weiskopf, who lives in a senior facility in Vernon Hills, helps run orientations for new residents at the facility.

"Talk about role models; I come from a line of amazing women," says Preston's oldest daughter, Lorraine Kasznia, 43, of Park Ridge.

The biggest life lessons she learned from her mother weren't presented through mantras or parables, but by example.

"She always gives 110 percent in everything she does," Kasznia says. "She never does anything halfway. That's what I've learned from my mom."

Military mom sends hugs

BY KIM ELSHAM

Special to Pioneer Press

"My mom is a cyclone," says Maria Schreiber, 47, of La Grange. "She's in her mid-60s and still not afraid to tackle the very new or the very daunting."

Indeed, Schreiber's mom, Sara Dutton, 64, of Wadsworth, keeps busy traveling the country to visit her five children and nine grandchildren. With visits scheduled to see one family in Los Angeles, one in Atlanta and another in upstate New York, Dutton's schedule seems overwhelming, but according to Schreiber, her mother has never met a challenge she couldn't overcome.

Dutton was a mother to three young children when her husband passed away. She became the sole provider for her children and set to work. She earned her associate's degree and landed an engineering job with General Motors. (Dutton eventually went on to complete her bachelor's degree in Computer Information Systems.) Her family didn't have much while she raised them in Chicago, but Schreiber recalls many happy memories with visits to museums and the Chicago Public Library (now the Harold Washington branch).

"She always taught us the power of words and education, and that being the vehicle and the transport to a better life," Schreiber says.

Dutton remarried, and her family grew to five children. However, her full house didn't stop there. Schreiber, the oldest of Dutton's kids, remembers her home as a multiple-kid home, and Duttons agrees that she always welcomed anyone she could. When her middle son, T.J., was on the hockey team in college, she hosted a dinner during Christmas break.

"One year, it was my son and a friend, the next year the whole team came," she says. "After that, junior hockey players would start to sneak in."

The tradition continued for two more years after her son graduated, and Dutton says she had the meal down to a science.

"[I would make] 100 parker house rolls, four bags of salad, a ham, and a huge homemade sheet cake," she said. "Those boys were like eating machines."

She continues giving little pieces of home to others through a non-profit organization she founded called Bear Hugs from Mom. In 2003, T.J. joined the army, which deployed him to Iraq the following year. During his first tour, he received many letters and care packages from family and friends and shared any excess with his fellow soldiers. When Dutton learned that many soldiers barely received letters or any packages, she volunteered to adopt T.J.'s platoon. This generosity bloomed into her forming Bear Hugs from Mom, through which charitable donations help provide care packages to an entire platoon while deployed. Thanks to Dutton's work, soldiers receive essentials such as batteries, wet wipes and mist cooling fans, as well as little pieces of home such as DVDs, chips and nacho cheese and ping-pong balls and paddles.

Dutton is now serving her sixth platoon.

"They call me 'Mom,'" she says. "I find that very endearing. I think of them like my children. They always tell me it means so much for them to know that people care about them."

A Mother's Day Gift Guide

BY TRACY EVANS BOYD
Special to Pioneer Press

On Mother's Day, we pause to give moms the credit they are due. Here are gift ideas for all the irreplaceable women in your life.

The Overworked Mom:

For the selfless mom, whose day knows no end, treat her to a gift card for some treasured pampered time. Offer to pitch in double-duty on chores while she's away.

New moms might appreciate a 30-day unlimited gym and yoga class pass at Oasis Women's Fitness & Spa in LaGrange Park. For ultimate pampering, treat her to a spa day filled with therapeutic massages, anti-aging facials or the increasingly popular Shellac nail treatment for chip-proof manicures at Northfield's Teddie Kossof Salon & Spa. A low-commitment option: A neck massage, scalp treatment and blowout can be the perfect way to prepare for date night.

"Our menu of services is designed to be a la carte, to keep things open and customizable, which provides a higher level of service to our gift buyers as well," says Alan Kossof, salon director.

For Mother Nature:

This is the mom who stocks her family's pantry with organic foods, spends weekends tending to her garden and smiles a little warmer with the first signs of spring. Allow the great outdoors to inspire and treat her to a gardening kneeler, an herbal tea basket or bath products with plant derivatives.

Shop stores such as Oak Park's Bramble where, according to owner Danah Fisher, the nature-inspired, feminine gifts are ideal for all generations of moms. A popular nook features bath goods, such as grape seed oil-infused Napa Soap Company products in enticing varieties, including goat's milk and chamomile or figs and zinfandel. Pair the soaps with a lavender headache pillow or a bath mitt for a complete gift. The store can also customize a basket.

For the Sweet Mom:

Even moms deserve to give in to the occasional craving; cap off her day with a celebratory cake. If she's addicted to her morning cup of java, give a gift that starts her day with a smile.

Many bakeries, such as Deerfields Bakery & Cafe in Schaumberg, Deerfield and Buffalo Grove, offer petite cakes ideal for feeding a small family. Choose a 7-inch cake, perfect for the family table or surprise her with her own 4-inch flower-inspired mum cake. The bakery offers creations just how mom likes it, whether it's one of the new flavors such as spice cake or peanut butter torte, the popular red velvet or even a gluten-free variety.

If indulgence is a steaming cup of Joe, treat her to new java experiences with a coffee of the month membership. Look for clubs at stores such as Fresh Market with locations in Wilmette, Geneva and Lake Forest will deliver three, six or twelve months of exotic beans to her door. Pair the gift with a decorative tea towel, gourmet scones or hand-painted mugs from the kids.

For the Hot Momma:

This is the mom that juggles a full schedule in style. She is effortlessly fashionable at the grocery store, at soccer practice or on the job. Select a gift that provides a trendy addition to her wardrobe.

At Onomali in Glenview, freshwater pearls such as Honora are an affordable, everyday style. The strands, ranging in length from 16 to 52 inches, are versatile and come in colors that reflect annual fashion trends.

For the Memorable Mom:

Ask any mom, and she'll insist that just spending time with her loved ones is gift enough. Consider capturing your great memories together in a handmade gift.

At the scrapbooking and craft shop Defining Moments in Wilmette, inspiration to create personalized gifts such as picture frames comes in the form of endless options of 3-D stickers, ribbons, rhinestones and scrapbook papers.

"Instead of buying clothes, jewelry has a fancier feel," says owner Nikl Sinthavanuchit, who names cherry red as this year's favorite pearl. "Freshwater pearls are not like the old pearls. You can wear them with jeans and a T-shirt."

For the Memorable Mom:

Ask any mom, and she'll insist that just spending time with her loved ones is gift enough. Consider capturing your great memories together in a handmade gift.

At the scrapbooking and craft shop Defining Moments in Wilmette, inspiration to create personalized gifts such as picture frames comes in the form of endless options of 3-D stickers, ribbons, rhinestones and scrapbook papers.

"It's that innate desire to make something for mom," says owner Jocelyn Tobias, who hosts gift-making parties at the store with her artist daughter. "When mom is the recipient, she can really appreciate all the time and thought that goes into such a gift."

For the time-strapped, the store also offers complete kits to create customizable gifts like recipe boxes.

Add a little humor; consider a unique card. Bigfunnycards.com hopes to make an impact with customizable cards created from your own digital photos and printed on 100 percent recyclable corrugated plastic. Available as large as four feet tale, the cards help say 'I love you' in a big way.

HOROSCOPES

For the week of May 4 — May 10

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're the first sign in the Zodiac and like to take the lead wherever you go. But this time, you'd be wise to follow someone who has much to teach you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your adversary hasn't given up trying to undermine you. Continue to stay cool – someone in authority knows what's happening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Spring brings a positive aspect for relationships. Paired Twins grow closer, while the single set finds new romance – perhaps with a Leo or Libra.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Wavering aspects this week mean weighing your words carefully to avoid misunderstandings.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You could soon be on a new career path in pursuit of those long-standing goals, but don't cut any current ties until you're sure you're ready to make the change.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A former colleague wants to re-establish an old professional connection. It would be wise to make the contact, at least until you know what he or she is planning.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A relationship that survived some rocky moments could be facing a new challenge. Deal with the problem openly, honestly and without delay. Good luck.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A recent and much-appreciated change in the workplace inspires you to make some changes in your personal life as well. Start with a plan to travel more.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A friend needs your kind and caring advice, but you need to know what he or she is hiding from you before you agree to get involved.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your circle of friends continues to widen. Expect to hear from someone in your past who hopes to re-establish your once-close relationship.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your aspects favor the arts. Indulge in whatever artistic expression you enjoy most. A workplace situation will, I'm pleased to say, continue to improve.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Warning! Your tendency to let things slide until the last minute could have a negative effect on a relationship that you hope can develop into something meaningful.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are both emotional and sensible. You enjoy being with people. Good career choices include teaching, performing and the clergy.

Death Notices

Sayre, William Buxton

Bill Sayre, 86, of Arlington Heights, formerly of Park Ridge, Illinois died April 11, 2011. Services will be held May 7, 2011 at 10:00 AM at the Southminster Presbyterian Church, 916 E. Central Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60005. Bill was born August 7, 1924 in New Virginia, Iowa to Raymond and Ruth Buxton Sayre. He grew up on a farm in Southern Iowa near Indianola and after high school graduation, chose to serve his country by enlisting in the U.S. Marine Corps. He was assigned to the C-Battery, 9th Artillery Battalion, 3rd Amphibious Corps and stationed at Guadalcanal in 1944. He continued to serve in the Pacific Theater through the battles on Okinawa where he was a Forward Observer and one of the first Marines to hit the beach.

After WWII, he returned to Iowa State University where he graduated with the highest honors and a degree in Economics. In college, Bill was united in marriage to Ruthann Hermanson, also from Iowa. After graduating in 1947, they returned to Ackworth, Iowa where he managed his family farm in addition to several other farms, providing farm management, consultation and appraisal services. While in Iowa, Bill was chosen Vice President of the Iowa Pork Producers and was a member of The National Pork Producers Board for several decades. Additionally, Bill was an active Republican, Delegate to the National Convention, and Campaign Manager for a successful gubernatorial candidate.

In 1964, Bill accepted an offer from Continental Bank of Chicago to join their Agricultural staff and was in charge of the Farm and Ranch property held in their Trust Department. Later, he was promoted to Vice President and named the Senior Officer for all property held in trusts and estates and continued in this position until taking early retirement in 1984.

Continental Bank had offices in London and Geneva and Bill developed a program in which high net worth Western Europeans could establish trusts that invested in U.S. real estate developing and servicing. This business involved several trips each year to London and many European countries and Ruthann accompanied Bill on many of these.

Living in Chicago, Bill was active in the Wilmette Trinity Methodist church and was trustee and chairman of the property committee for many years. He and two others also organized the Chicago Cook County 4-H Foundation, which served 30,000 school age children. In 1986, Bill resigned as President and he and Ruthann moved to Palm Springs with plans to retire.

In California, Bill's intent to retire failed, however, as former customers at Continental Bank and new customers in California and Japan requested his property management expertise. This activity continued for over ten years until Bill and Ruthann decided to "officially" retire in Park Ridge, Illinois in 1998.

One of the most interesting consulting assignments occurred when the U.S. Department of Agriculture requested Bill to serve as a consultant to the Yeltsin Government in Russia, advising them on the privatization of agriculture. This involved several trips to Moscow starting in 1988. Meetings were held in the Russian White House with the Prime Minister and the Minister for Privatization. Throughout Bill's career, he was actively involved with the national office of the Alpha Gamma Rho (AGR) fraternity and served as a long term board member and National Grand President for two terms. He also was actively engaged in several other organizations including: American Society of Agricultural Consultants, Farm Foundation, Chicago Farmers and the Union League Club of Chicago.

His sisters, Alice Sayre and Helen Coolidge, preceded Bill Sayre in death. He is survived by his wife, Ruthann; brother, John and children Bill of Bristol, Vermont; Ann of Skokie, Illinois; Mary of Park Ridge, Illinois; and Elizabeth of Chicago; and six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Young 'pitchman' devoted to public service

By KARIE ANGELL LUC
Contributor

With his long wavy locks, OurNeighbor Jonathan Mullins looks like he could be the next Shaun White on a snowboard or maybe a beach dude with sun-bleached blond hair.

Surf or turf, this Greenbriar School third-grader has done both on family vacations with his two younger twin brothers, Sam and David, who will turn 7 next month and also have long blond hair.

"Ummm, it was pretty fun ... They should clean, cover and contain."

'I knew for a fact I wasn't going to die'

Boy looks back on car accident that nearly killed him

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
jjohnson@pioneerlocal.com

Daniel DeFilippis, before the March 17 car accident that left him with a head injury. Now on the mend, DeFilippis says he is thankful to family, friends and even strangers for their outpouring of support. | Photo courtesy of Ashley Smith

Daniel DeFilippis has no memory of the accident that nearly took his life, but he is aware of one important thing: March 17, 2011, wasn't meant to be his last day.

"They say before you die your life flashes before your eyes," the Park Ridge teenager said. "That didn't happen to me, so I knew for a fact I wasn't going to die."

DeFilippis, who recently turned 16, was struck by a car at 7:30 p.m. March 17 while crossing Northwest Highway at Western Avenue. According to Park Ridge police the circumstances leading up to the accident remain a mystery due to lack of independent witnesses or evidence pinpointing the exact location of impact. DeFilippis says he doesn't remember the accident. The last thing he recalls of that day was going to school in the morning.

"The accident cause will be listed as inconclusive," Police Cmdr. Lou Jogmen said. "This is one of the very few crashes where we're lacking concrete evidence."

The Police Department is awaiting toxicology tests on the driver but at the time of the accident there was no indication she was intoxicated, Jogmen said. No tickets have been issued and a complete report of the Major Crash Unit's investigation had not yet been released this week.

According to DeFilippis' sister, Ashley Smith, police told the family that the impact caused DeFilippis' head to hit the windshield of the car before he fell to the street and was dragged for about 10 feet. When paramedics transported him to Advocate Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, DeFilippis was in critical condition.

The accident left DeFilippis with brain swelling, a broken nose and a broken cheekbone, Smith said. He spent time in intensive care and reportedly struggled with memory loss when he regained consciousness.

"He wouldn't remember the days before, when me and him had full-length conversations and laughs in his hospital bed," Smith said.

"I'm still having trouble with my brain and I'm still getting really tired easily," DeFilippis acknowledged. "I'm still having a hard time engaging in conversation with people. I know what to say but I can't say it."

Even the shoes he was wearing that day, which sit in a box containing the clothing emergency responders cut in order to treat him at the scene, look unfamiliar, DeFilippis said. In the days following the accident DeFilippis found himself unable to write, use a fork or even walk on his own.

"I didn't remember how to do simple math problems; I could barely remember how to spell," he recalled. "It was bad. But now it's coming back."

Doctors expect DeFilippis to make nearly a complete recovery, his sister said. The Maine East High School sophomore also hopes to return to school soon, even if it is only for two days a week. He is buoyed by the outpouring of love he says he has received from family, friends and even people he has never met who have signed cards, sent him get-well messages via his Facebook page and even held vigil for him in the hospital.

"From what my parents told me, when I was in the hospital ICU, 20 to 30 kids were in the waiting room," DeFilippis said.

He also credits the emergency responders for getting to the scene as quickly as they did.

"I'm just thankful for so much right now," DeFilippis said.

Smith hopes her brother's story causes drivers and pedestrians slow down and be more aware of the dangers roadways can pose.

"It seems that nowadays everyone is in a rush to do everything and no one takes the time to stop, look around and appreciate what we have flying around us," she said.

Haiti native, New Trier employee puts on benefit concert

By PAT KROCHMAL
pkrochmal@pioneerlocal.com

Carlo Felix, a New Trier employee, sings to raise money for Haitians still suffering from the effects of earthquakes there. | Courtesy of Carlo Felix

Carlo Felix, a one-of-a-kind New Trier employee and Niles resident, is using his singing talent to raise money for people in earthquake-stricken Haiti.

He organized a benefit concert that took place April 9 in which he performed, as did the school's concert choir and pep band.

"I was born in Haiti, and last year I lost eight family members in the earthquake. While we were fortunate to have found them and buried them, as well as to say our last good-byes, there were tens of thousands — if not hundreds of thousands — who had no one to claim them," said Felix, who handles the school's maintenance.

"As of right now, we still have 1.2 million living under tents in very deplorable conditions. So my intent is to help the kids without families and without hope, because ultimately, they will be the ones that are looked after last," he added.

Felix said he hoped to raise between $20,000 and $25,000 for the cause.

No matter what amount is raised, it will be a help, but it is even more important to establish a support system that will provide aid for the next five to six years, Felix said.

"People have to understand that one or two quick contributions aren't going to go far when so much is needed. We also need to establish that the money will go to orphanages or to church groups who are doing things there — people who are doing things outside of the government — and working directly to help the little people," Felix said.

He added that there are two groups there now who have been doing "fantastic work" for about 13 years.

"I would like to give the money we raise to them, so the money is sitting there for them when they actually need it," Felix said.

"New Trier also has work they are doing there. They are rebuilding schools and libraries, and are doing a lot of other projects there as a district, so we would like to send funds for all of those fronts," he added.

Felix left Haiti in 1967 when he was 14 years old. First, he and his sister, Jocelyn Felix, settled in Evanston with their mother, Elisa, and stepfather Wilner Laude. The teenagers graduated from Evanston Township High School.

Then, the family moved to Glencoe for larger quarters, since siblings Jude, Lisa and Cindy Laude, now adults, followed.

"I started played music shortly after I arrived, got a summer job and bought a $36 guitar from Sears ... I learned that music is one of the universal languages that we possess as people — and one of my favorite things in the world," he added.

Felix and his musical group, called The Crazy Bunch, presented mostly jazz and ballads, such as Sinatra standards.

"I want the people who come to take home with them that this was a good concert, but also to take home with them the people of Haiti in their hearts and minds," he said before the event.

Heartland: The Cookbook by Judith Fertig

Cookbook celebrates heartland food

By TOM WITOM
Contributor

The Midwest may not have as many farms as it once did, but the territory from Kansas to Ohio and Wisconsin to Missouri is still considered the Breadbasket of America.

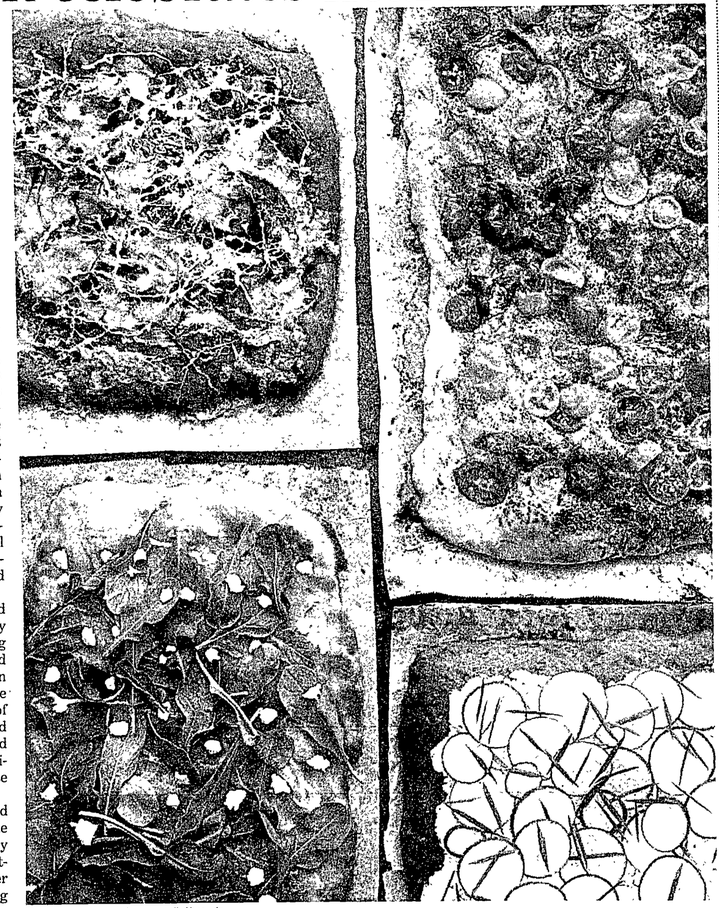
In the newly published Heartland: The Cookbook (Andrews McMeel, $35), food writer Judith Fertig celebrates the region's bounty and recognizes its hardworking, ethnically diverse population.

"The Heartland holds us, comforts us, makes us stand up straight. Even if we leave, it still claims a place in our hearts," Fertig, a proud Midwesterner, writes in the book's introduction. She talks about our love affair with food, from locally made artisanal cheese and farm-raised meat to foraged wild greens and hand-crafted microbrew.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT & TABLE

Included along with stunning food and scenic photography on nearly every page are 150 recipes covering breakfast foods, dinner courses and desserts as well as a chapter on bread-making and a ready reference to online resources for the likes of heritage game, fresh lake trout and premium flour. Dinkel's Bakery and Goose Island Brewing Co., two Chicago institutions, are among those listed.

While Fertig cites our deep-rooted culinary traditions of the past, she also recognizes busy 21st century lifestyles. Her recipes are straightforward and keep an eye on shorter prep times and simpler cooking methods than those of yesteryear.



Four seasonal variations on flatbreads

Flatbreads, long a staple as an appetizer or main dish, have recently become trendy fare. Fertig serves up four "seasonal" varieties — tangy radish rye, heirloom tomato-basil, sausage and cheese and winter prosciutto and arugula. But in truth they all make good eating any time of year.

The prosciutto- and arugula-topped version uses a half-batch of Fertig's No-Knead Clover Honey Dough. Plan on allowing at least two hours rising time for the dough, which also works when baking challah, coffee cakes and rolls. If you only need what's required for a single 10-by-16-inch flatbread, remember to reduce the proportion of ingredients (including water) as appropriate.

Winter Prosciutto and Arugula Flatbread

1/2 batch No-Knead Clover Honey Dough (see below)
2 T. olive oil
8 slices prosciutto
2 cups arugula
8 oz. goat cheese, crumbled

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees F. Place about 2 cups of hot water in a broiler pan on the lower rack. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.

With wet hands, pat the dough into a 16- by 10-inch oval on the prepared baking sheet. Brush the olive oil over the flatbread.

Bake for 20 to 22 minutes, or until risen, browned and firm to the touch. Let cool on the baking sheet.

Arrange the prosciutto and arugula on top of the flatbread, then top with the goat cheese. To serve, cut into slices.

No-Knead Clover Honey Dough*

(Full batch serves 24-32)

6 1/2 cups bread flour, plus more for dusting
2 tablespoons instant or bread machine yeast
1 1/2 tablespoons fine kosher salt
1 cup clover or other amber honey
1/4 cup vegetable or canola oil
2 large eggs
Warm water (about 100 degrees F)

Spoon the flour into a measuring cup, level with a knife or your finger, then dump the flour into a 16-cup mixing bowl.

Add the yeast and salt to the flour. Stir together with a wooden spoon or a Danish dough whisk. Mix the honey, oil and eggs together in a 4-cup measuring cup. Add enough warm water to reach the 4-cup mark and stir together. Pour the honey mixture into the flour mixture, stir to combine, then beat for 40 strokes, scraping the bottom and the sides of the bowl, until the dough forms a lumpy, sticky mass.

Cover with plastic wrap and let rise at room temperature (72 degrees F) for two hours, or until the dough has risen to about 2 inches below the rim of the bowl and has a spongelike appearance.

Use that day or place the dough, covered with plastic, in the refrigerator for up to three days before baking. If you like, write the date on the plastic wrap so you know the bake-by date for your dough.

*Note: This is for a full recipe. The flatbread recipe calls for using half of this dough.

Wolves team meeting pays dividends

Wolves win Bronze bracket at Downers S.

VOLLEYBALL — Niles West head coach Drew Roche said that his team's strong showing during the Downers Grove South Invite on Saturday likely resulted from a team meeting two nights earlier.

The pow-wow was called after the Wolves opened the tournament by losing to Oak Park-River Forest 25-21, 25-16 and to Glenbard East 25-22, 25-17 on April 21, dropping Niles West to the Bronze division — the tourney's lowest — for Saturday's action.

"After those two matches, we had a team meeting and kind of hashed things out," Roche said. "A lot of players got to say things that were on their mind and had been holding back. I think we all kind of got on the same page as players and coaches. Saturday was a clean slate, and the kids played together as a team, which we had not seen in a while. They had energy and showed a little extra hustle. They paid closer attention to fundamentals and really put it together."

The fired-up Wolves won three straight two-set matches and earned the Bronze crown, despite playing shorthanded.

Niles West opened with a 25-10, 25-18 win over Joliet. Wolves senior Paul Nasui and junior Nathan Celinski each had five kills, while senior Younas Tekeste pounded four kills.

The Wolves then defeated conference foe Evanston 25-21, 25-18 as Nasui led the way with six kills. Niles West senior Patrick O'Connor had five kills, and seniors Patrick Cristi and Mikko Jimenez shoveled 11 digs apiece.

Niles West closed out play with a 26-24, 25-20 win over Loyola. Nasui had an impressive 12 kills in the match, while Cristi registered 13 digs.

"Cristi (a libero) played phenomenal defense all day," Roche said. "(Senior) Patrick Zelasko played outside (hitter) for us most of the day and did a good job, and Nesui was the other outside — and was our go-to player pretty much."

Recap: Niles West dropped to 0-2 in the CSL South with an 18-25, 25-10, 25-13 loss to Maine South on April 20.

"In the first game, we controlled the tempo and were on the offensive, and we showed we could beat them; we proved that to ourselves," Roche said. "For whatever reason, in Games 2 and 3, Maine South was able to dictate, and on offense we couldn't recover. It was like we spent all our energy in the first game and we didn't have anything left for Game 2 or 3."

Nasui had a team-high seven kills in the contest, while O'Connor collected five.

Up next: The Wolves were scheduled to host Evanston on Wednesday, and will visit Glenbrook South at 6 p.m. today. Northside Prep comes to Skokie at 6 p.m. May 2.

Extra attacker gives defense a surprising boost

SOCCER — After experimenting with formations, lineups and tactics during the early part of the campaign, Niles North head coach Dan Edminster is starting to establish his team's look.

The Vikings (4-9-2, 1-0 CSL North) recently instituted a 3-4-3 formation and the three-man backline has done an impressive job.

Edminster is just waiting for the offense, with an extra attacker, to start putting the ball in the net. But a strong defense certainly has given the Vikings a firm foundation on which to build.

"We're still changing and moving girls to different spots, but we're starting to jell as a team," Edminster said. "We've been solid in the back. We've changed the system multiple times since the beginning of the year. But a 3-4-3 has been kind of working in our favor.

"The girls in the back are stepping up and playing huge for us. The (results) don't reflect that because we're not finding the net early in the season. The more we'll score, the more it will relieve pressure on the back."

The team's back currently features junior Berina Gradjan, freshman Sara Beladi and senior Maria Acosta. Edminster drops a midfielder to defense if the opponent plays three forwards.

The coach said Beladi has been a revelation this season.

"She is playing the most consistent," he said. "For a freshman, it looks like she's been playing for years. She hits hard and plays hard. She's just solid, which is nice. She's young and learning on the fly. But she's picked up so much from the other girls and has been huge in the back.

"(Acosta) also has been very consistent and has been kind of tough to beat. She's playing smart in the back, which is what we need."

Senior Monica Rosenberg and freshman Itsy Hernandez have platooned in goal.

Up top, Niles North has featured a three-pronged attack, with seniors Tiffany Ebeling, Deborah Steinberg and Jeanine Taerbaum. Edminster said Taerbaum has elevated her game.

Meanwhile, junior Camila Marquez has been a versatile performer, playing center midfield, defense and wing.

Recap: The Vikings finished 1-2-1 and came in fourth at last weekend's Glenbrook South Tournament.

Niles North opened with a 2-1 loss to Crystal Lake South April 21. Senior Lily Hernandez scored the lone Viking goal.

Saturday's tripleheader began with a 0-0 tie against Kenosha (Wis.) Bradford, followed by a 2-1 win over Chicago U-High. Gradjan scored both Niles North goals during the 70-minute matches.

In the third-place game, which lasted 60 minutes, Glenbrook South blanked Niles North 1-0.

By the end of the tournament, injuries had reduced the Vikings to just two substitutes.

"We played very well, but we were injured and had a lot of girls banged up," Edminster said. "I told the girls after the Glenbrook South game that I appreciated their effort, that they worked hard and played their tails off and deserved any praise coming to them.

"They had (scoring) chances, but in some cases couldn't finish. But they played three solid teams ... It helps us build to the postseason playoffs, which is why we do these tournaments."

Up Next: After facing Highland Park on Tuesday, the Vikings are scheduled to host Deerfield at 7 p.m. today. They visit Leyden at noon on Saturday before traveling to Glenbrook North at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Heading to State The Niles North bass fishing team beat out 12 teams and 18 boats for the Skokie Lagoons Sectional championship on Saturday in chilly, 47-degree temperatures. The Vikings' Jeff Wu caught the only fish, weighing 1-pound, 8 ounces, to advance to the State Meet May 6-7 at Carlyle Lake. Team members are, front row from left: boat driver Hugh Flack, head coach Carol Herlocker, Wu, Michael Lochner and Vince Civito; back row: Dimitris Panagopoulos, assistant coaches Bashar Jazrawi and Pat Steeno, and boat driver Dave Leffelman.

North rolls to Silver title

By DAN SHALIN

BOYS VOLLEYBALL — After dropping its opening match, Niles North bounced back in style by winning eight of its next nine sets at the Downers Grove South Invite on April 21.

In the process, the Vikings captured the Silver title at the three-bracket tournament.

After coming back to defeat Oak Lawn 22-25, 25-13, 25-22, North swept its next six games, defeating Glenbrook South 25-23, 25-23, Hinsdale South 25-16, 27-25 and Glenbard East 25-21, 26-24. The Vikings improved to 13-8.

"We've been up and down, but were on an upswing (Saturday)," said Niles North assistant coach Allen Tom. "The kids came in with a lot of energy. In the past, we've won the first (set), and then let down a little, and would go to three (sets). But we were able to close out all those teams in two, which was really nice."

Leading the way once again was senior Andre Shaw, who finished the invite with 35 kills, five aces and 10 blocks.

Shaw got a late start on the season because he was a key member of the school's sectional-champion basketball team. But he quickly returned to last season's all-conference form and has taken his game to another level.

"He's definitely gotten back, and he's got more (to offer than) before," Tom said. "Before, he could hit in the middle. Now, he can hit in all three spots: outside, middle and right side. In the past, he had trouble hitting from (outside and right side), but now he's more comfortable hitting from those areas."

Shaw also is the team's emotional leader. He has been looking to push his volleyball teammates to the same heights that he and the Vikings reached on the basketball floor.

"He's mentioned how much fun going to sectional was, and he wants us to do the same thing," Tom said. "He's telling guys to play with energy and making sure they are working hard to get to their goal."

Also coming up with big tournaments for North were senior outside hitters Hershel Pat (15 kills) and Jed Nulud (20 kills, 4 aces, 6 blocks).

"(Nulud) was our most consistent player throughout the tournament," Tom said. "He's an outside hitter, one of our few jump servers and primary passers. He attacks for us from the back row. He's just very consistent and does not make too many errors. When he had a chance to attack, he did. When it was not there, he made something happen by keeping the ball in play and saving the ball."

The spark to the Vikings' successful showing was their come-from-behind win over Oak Lawn which propelled them into the Silver bracket.

"We lost that first (set), but really came back to beat them in the second before squeaking it out in the third," the assistant coach said. "After that, we just took care of business."

Recap: The Vikings improved to 2-0 in the CSL North with a 25-16, 16-25, 25-18 win over Deerfield on April 20.

Up Next: Niles North was scheduled to host Glenbrook North on Tuesday and will visit Highland Park at 6 p.m. today. Lake Forest Academy comes to Skokie at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Streak ends for Vikes, extends for Demons

Warda 3-for-3, drives in 3 runs

By MIKE BUDA
Contributor

BASEBALL – Both Niles North and Maine East endured lengthy losing streaks during the first month of the season.

But both squads hope to get on track as the CSL North portion of their schedules commence.

In the race to see who secures a conference win first, the Vikings (9-9, 1-2) knocked off the Blue Demons (2-8, 0-3) 8-2 in Skokie on April 21.

Another big day from senior shortstop Adam Warda helped to end Niles North's seven-game losing skid after the Vikings began the season at 8-2. Warda went 3-for-3 with a triple and three RBI, while Clark Fox went 2-for-3 with a three-run homer and three RBI.

"You don't have the luxury of having that player too often," said Vikings head coach Ed Toledo. "I think he's a great kid, a talented kid and for as talented a kid as he is, his work ethic is even beyond that."

Warda, who is hitting close to .500, recently signed to play with Southern Illinois. He gives a lot of credit to his Vikings' teammates.

"They're always supporting me when I'm up there, and they give me that push to keep going," Warda said.

Opposing teams don't give Warda much to hit, but he's learned not to become overly aggressive at the plate.

"He's gotten more comfortable understanding that they're going to pitch him differently because he is our best player. Now he's starting to take what they give him and not try to do more than he can do with those pitches," Toledo said. "Early on he wasn't frustrated, but he was a little impatient with some of those pitches."

Warda is excited about playing for the Salukis, but he is staying focused on this season.

"I want to do something here; I want to win a regional title before I leave as a senior," said Warda. "It's been a goal, and I (would be) happy to complete that goal."

Maine East lost its sixth straight game and is struggling to score runs.

"We need to be more consistent, and we need to start swinging the bats," said first-year head coach Ron Clark. "I think we'll be fine, pitching- and defense-wise, but we need to start hitting like we're capable of. I see great things in practice, but we're not transferring it here into games."

The Blue Demons rely heavily on 6-foot-3 junior twins Andrew and Tyler Glowacki. When neither is pitching, Tyler plays shortstop and Andrew patrols second base.

"They know each other very well," Clark said. "They're very interchangeable, very versatile players that could probably play any position on the field."

Both Glowackis are still learning on the varsity level.

"Tyler may be a little ahead right now of Andrew in pitching and hitting, but not by much," Clark said. "We're counting on them both heavily to pitch for us this year and play a lot of innings and in the middle infield too."

In the loss to Niles North, Andrew went 1-for-2 with an RBI and a walk. Tyler contributed a walk and a stolen base.

Tyler started on the mound and went three innings with four walks, five strikeouts, four hits and five runs. Andrew pitched the last three innings and gave up two runs on three hits while striking out four and walking four.

The twins' connection helps them when they play in the middle of the infield.

"We just know where each other's going to be each play," Andrew said. "When we go to turn a double play, we don't have to tell the other person if it's going to be a throw or flip because we already know each others' tendencies."

But they understand that each situation requires mutual understanding.

"When he's at second and I'm at shortstop, we communicate before and after every pitch to see what we're going to do and how we're going to do it," Tyler said.

Loubriel steers state-tested relays

By DAN SHALIN
Contributor

BOYS TRACK – Niles West team members and coaches rave about senior Seve Loubriel's leadership qualities and his work ethic.

"He's the hardest-working guy on our relay," said senior Santiago Ochoa, who joined Loubriel on the unit that captured last spring's IHSA Class 3A state title in the 400-meter relay. "(Seve) likes to push everybody like the big daddy. He's been working hard, lifting weights and pushing us in practice. He's gotten faster and made a big improvement. We're really confident with him."

Loubriel directed the Wolves offense at quarterback last fall, and Ochoa — also a teammate on the gridiron — said that Loubriel has simply carried his leadership skills from the huddle to the track.

Wolves track coach Chris Vivone concurs.

"Seve is probably the best captain I've had since I've been coaching at Niles West. He's an extension of the coaching staff," Vivone said. "He keeps it fun with the kids, but he's a great leader. He starts it off making sure that nobody is goofing around and that they focus on warmups. With the hamstring troubles we've had, it's been key for us to have a really good warmup. We made sure (Seve) knew that. He has made sure the kids are focused from the get-go, from the beginning of practices, and that kids work extremely hard in the weight room."

Loubriel clearly has put in the hard work himself, in the weight room and on the track.

After running the third leg of the state championship relay last season, Loubriel has added the 800 relay, which also is looking to repeat as state champs. He has posted a time of 21.9 in the open 200, which eclipses the state cut of 22.0 MT and 22.24 FAT.

"If I had to pick one guy who has gotten a lot faster, it would be Seve. He's done a phenomenal job in the weight room and at sprint practice. It has shown in his times," Vivone said. "He'll be on both those relays and, you never know, maybe we can get him down (to State) in the open 200. But obviously, we want to get those two relays down. He's a huge part of that."

Ochoa still aching

Many of the pieces are in place for another significant postseason run by the relays. But there remains one major roadblock: Ochoa's left hamstring.

Loubriel has improved significantly, junior Lavell Jordan has returned to anchor both relays, and junior Mike Wright — brother of former Niles West star Chris Wright — has replaced the graduated Gabe Nash as the relay's lead man.

However, Ochoa has been out the entire outdoor season after aggravating a hamstring injury during the indoor campaign.

The damage, which also kept him out for a good portion of the football season, first gave him problems during the 2010 track season.

Ochoa, who also finished fifth in the 100 at State last year, has been undergoing regular therapy.

Vivone said he hopes to get Ochoa back on the track in the near future, likely having him run 400s in order to build up to the sprints.

The coach said the adversity gives him an even greater appreciation for what the relays achieved last season.

"I think all the kids thought, 'Hey, no problem, we have four of the five guys coming back,' " Vivone said. "But right now, we're not running the times we did last year at this time. A huge part of it is because Santiago is not in there. It will be very tough for us to get out of our sectional because there are a lot of good teams. Everything has to go right for us."

As the time ticks down on his career, Ochoa obviously is frustrated by his ongoing injuries struggles.

"Since the season started, one of the main goals has been to go Downstate and repeat (as relay champions), even try to win one of the (team) trophies (for top three)," Ochoa said. "All the relay guys have been getting stronger and their times have dropped. Now it's on me. We'll see when I can come back. I'm the missing piece to the puzzle. Hopefully, I'll get fit."

Recap: Niles West followed up its title at the Homewood-Flossmoor Invite on April 16 by capturing the eight-team Don Relays at Notre Dame on Thursday.

Shiheiber finds little time for relaxation

By DAN SHALIN
Contributor

BOYS GYMNASTICS — The term "downtime" may not be in Niles West senior Elias Shiheiber's vocabulary.

"I guess you can say I want to do a lot of things and that I'm never satisfied with doing one thing," he said. "I get bored quickly and have to do something. I'm always looking to keep myself busy."

Busy indeed. And successful. Shiheiber's work on high bar has him in contention for a spot in next month's IHSA State Meet.

"He has been nothing short of amazing as far as his performances," said West gymnastics head coach Steve Foerch. "He doesn't do the sport year-round and had no knowledge or experience in the sport before Niles West. But I firmly believe he'll be a state qualifier for us. He's a driven kid who knows what he wants and goes after it. He's not afraid of hard work, which is rare to find nowadays. He's a Renaissance kid as far as I'm concerned."

Over the winter, Shiheiber was the captain of the Wolves' regional championship wrestling team. He was named all-conference and for the second straight year, he advanced to sectionals.

A four-year member of the football program, even though he goes just 5-foot-5 and 150 pounds, Shiheiber played fullback, nose tackle and linebacker last fall. He was named a Central Suburban League Scholar for his academic achievements.

Want more?

Shiheiber also sings for the school's award-winning a cappella group Echo Effect, which just competed at the National Championships in New York City. He plays French horn in the school band and is an Eagle Scout, as well.

Shiheiber plans to attend Southern Illinois University and study aviation technology.

"He'll be good at that, too," Foerch predicted.

Shiheiber said he might try out for SIU's choir. However, he said sports are probably out of the question.

"My body can't take it," he said. "I feel like an old man sometimes."

With the end of his competitive athletic career in site, Shiheiber is working even harder to achieve his state meet dream.

"I came really close to making it Downstate in wrestling — one place away," he said. "I want to try to go Downstate for gymnastics. I've been working at it for four years, working with coaches Foerch, (Adrian) Batista and (Ray) Payne on high bar, floor and vault. It's my last sport, and I'm trying to go all out."

Foerch said Shiheiber knows no other way.

"He is a 12-semester athlete, which speaks volumes about his tenacity," the coach said. "Of all the kids (currently in gymnastics), he is the one true competitor. He takes competition like it's fun. He doesn't get scared, nervous or intimidated. He goes out and competes. It's refreshing. I've had that before, but not in a while. He sets the bar really high for the rest of the team as far as how to compete and behave as a young man. It's been fun to coach him. We'll miss him next year."

Recap: The Wolves (125 points) finished seventh during the 12-team Niles North Cress Invite on April 21.

Shiheiber finished ninth on high bar (7.7). Niles West junior Casey Mahoney-Muno placed eighth on vault (9.125), and junior Josh Nicolasin was 10th on rings (8.0).

Up next: The Wolves will compete in the CSL conference meet at Evanston at 6:30 p.m. today.

Old friends lend hand at relays

ND runner-up at 8-team invite

BOYS TRACK – After a one-year, construction-imposed hiatus, the Don Relays were back at Notre Dame on April 21.

The return of the event meant a homecoming for several former Notre Dame student-athletes, who helped run the meet.

ND's 14th-year head coach Mike Jankowski said he appreciated the assistance and enjoyed seeing familiar faces.

He also felt it benefited his current athletes to mingle with former competitors.

"It was a terrific thing for my guys on the team now," Jankowski said. "I think it's good for the kids to see there is life beyond high school. It's a great part of their experience. For those guys to come back and help is a good thing."

The current Dons turned in a strong performance, scoring 119 points in finishing second to Niles West (140) at the eight-team invite. Notre Dame actually led after 12 of the 16 events.

Notre Dame enjoyed a strong day in field events, with senior Peter Bird winning the discus (132-feet-7) and placing second in shot put (45-10). Senior teammate Mike Kane took the top spot in shot (45-10.5).

"They did really extraordinary," Jankowski said. "We usually get a slow start in those events, especially in the shot put, because we don't have (indoor facilities). So we worked on technique, and in the weight room, and (the performances) were really nice to see."

ND senior Joe Szukala won high jump (5-10) and finished fifth in long jump (18-3), senior Joe Michaels place first in pole vault (11-0), and junior Colton Kelly finished fifth in discus (115-8).

In relays, the squad of seniors Todd Brady, Andy Bastian and Anthony Abate, and sophomore Mike Gibson placed second in the 3200 relay (8:43.3); and juniors Josh Maloney and Rocco Fagiano, senior Jack McAndrew and freshman Chris James took second in the 400 relay (44.8).

Additionally, the team of sophomore Ryan Zoeller, McAndrew, freshman Dan Thorrens and Szukala nabbed second in the low hurdle shuttle (55.0); and the group of James, senior Joe Michaels, Zoeller and freshman Tim O'Hara placed second in the 800 relay (1:37.0).

Relays earning fourth place included the distance medley (sophomore Matt Siemianowski, junior David Contreras, and seniors Matt Sommers and Tim Curley) in 12:3; and the 1600 (Sommers, Curley, and seniors Narcis Duhalmu and Mike Cunningham) in 3:48.3.

Despite running in the slow heat, James finished second in the 100 dash (11.3). Brady was third in the 1600 (4:50.1) and Bastian placed sixth in the 1600 (4:57.6).

Jankowski said one aspect of the meet he enjoyed was how his athletes pitched in, even running races in which they rarely compete.

"That happened repeatedly during the course of the evening," the coach said. "The meet ran fast, and some guys were recovered for their next events and others were not. So (sometimes) we needed someone else to jump in. There were several different occasions where guys stepped up and jumped into an event. That was cool to see from a coaching standpoint. I couldn't have been more proud."

Magbanua maps college career

Gymnast preps for cheerleading team at Ky.

GYMNASTICS — Niles North fans hope to see basketball star Abel Nader play in the NCAA Tournament some day.

But they may spot another senior Viking in a couple of years.

Senior gymnast Manny Magbanua hopes to join the University of Kentucky cheerleading squad, which is a scholarship activity at the college.

Magbanua, a rings specialist on the gymnastics team, has spent two seasons as a football and basketball cheerleader at Niles North. He was one of six boys on the squad last fall.

While cheerleading and gymnastics require similar levels of athleticism and strength, there are significant differences.

"Cheerleading is more about teamwork," he said. "You need to hit your routine, but it's not based on individualism like in gymnastics. In gymnastics, you can work hard by yourself and get better. In cheerleading, you need the whole team to be with you. Everyone has to be on the same page. It doesn't work if only one of you gets better. The whole team has to take a step forward."

Magbanua's dream of stepping up to the college ranks is on hold for a season. After impressing at a recent tryout in Lexington, Ky., he was told there might be a spot open on the Wildcats for 2012-13.

"They have so many returnees next season, and there is not enough space on the roster," Magbanua said. "But I was told to try again next year because the majority of those returnees are going to be seniors. There will be plenty of spots (next year)."

Magbanua plans to attend Oakton for a year while preparing for the 2012 tryouts.

Before then, the senior wants to end his high-school gymnastics career in style by qualifying for the IHSA State Meet, May 12-14 at Lincoln-Way East.

The gymnast only recently returned to action after missing a few meets with a rotator cuff injury. That forced Magbanua to cut out events like floor exercise and high bar while concentrating exclusively on rings. Since his return against Glenbrook North on April 19, Magbanua has scaled back his ring routines. He hopes to re-introduce certain skills in the coming weeks, but likely will have to fight through pain.

"My goal is to make state finals. But because of my shoulder, I'm at least hoping to make it past sectionals," Magbanua said. "It's not fully healed, and I have conference coming up. I should let it rest for a month, but I don't have a month. So, I'll just rehab to get it stronger and see where it is next week and go from there."

Although Magbanua is without his entire bag of tricks, Niles North head coach Rick Meyer believes the gymnast has what it takes to reach State.

"Even if he doesn't get everything back, I still think it will be more than enough to get Downstate," Meyer said. "Getting into (the state) meet has been the goal all along. If things go well over the next couple of weeks, maybe he can even make some noise down there. Of course, everything is contingent upon his health."

Recap: Host Niles North scored 127.8 and finished sixth in the 12-team Niles Niles John Cress Invite Thursday. Senior Brian Oh came in fourth on pommel horse (8.6), while Magbanua placed sixth on rings (8.55).

The Vikings celebrated senior night with their season-high of 134.3 to defeat Glenbrook North (127.6) April 19.

Up next: Niles North will compete in the CSL Meet at Evanston, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.
