Historical society hopes to carve Indian heritage

BY RICK KAMBIC |
rkambic@pioneerlocal.com

Morton Grove's Historical Society is trying to raise $3,000 to create a wooden statue that resembles a Potawatomi eagle dancer, using a portion of the village's Indian Marker Tree that was trimmed in 2011.

The main stem of the Indian Marker Tree at the northeast corner of Beckwith Road and Nashville Avenue in Morton Grove once stood 50 feet tall before it was cut in July 2011. | BUZZ ORR-Sun-Times Media

The project has been in the works for two years, but plans are now in place to move forward with the sculpture this summer in case the remaining part of the tree does not survive.

For 250 years, the main stem of the tree stood nearly 50 feet tall, with a second stem bent at the roots by Native Americans to signal the way toward water and nearby villages. That trail is now known as Beckwith Road, and that second stem still hangs over the road from property adjacent to Nashville Avenue.

Historical society member Mary Busch says the tree was still used by traveling Indians for years after the first Morton Grove settlers arrived.

"Some of those early settlers would leave baskets of food near the tree to help the Indians who were traveling discretely at night," Busch said.

Residents throughout the years fought to protect the tree, but in 2011 the village decided to cut the main stem down to 20 feet. Experts said the tree had shallow roots and the extreme height posed a safety concern during windy storms.

Two months later, the main stem was reduced to six feet so the historical society could take a 14-foot log and create a wood sculpture.

Busch said the ongoing health of the second stem was uncertain after the trimming and the society wanted to forever remember the icon while there was still a good log to carve from.

If the historical society can raise $3,000, Busch said the sculpture will finally be carved by an artist during the Sept. 21 Autumn Festival and later mounted onto a concrete slab outside the historical museum and education center.

"The latest tribe to live on or near this land were the Potawatomi, and the historical society believes that legacy should be remembered too, especially since our early settlers apparently tried to help them," Busch said.

Village Arborist Bill Burns suggested a wood sculpture after he had a dying elm tree outside his house carved into a bear. Members of the historical society grabbed hold of his idea and have spent two years trying to make it a reality.

In those two years since the trimming, Busch said the second stem of the marker tree appears to have stayed healthy.

The tree was made a historic area in town and identified with a sign during the 1990s. ■

Niles Village Board honors Blackhawks

BY NATASHA WASINSKI | Contributor

Niles Trustee George Alpogianis ducked below his seat in the Council Chambers June 25 only to emerge a few seconds later in a red hockey sweater.

Bearing a Jonathan Toews' jersey, Alpogianis delivered a proclamation from the village congratulating the Blackhawks on their historic record-breaking season and Stanley Cup championship win.

The Hawks' stunning 3-2 comeback victory over the Boston Bruins one night before returned the Stanley Cup to Chicago and threw fans across the city and the surrounding suburbs into a frenzy.

The village's proclamation commended the team for serving as "a great role model to our youth by showing teamwork, courage, and perseverance to win," and acknowledged how "a global sport like hockey, and a team like the Blackhawks, could bring villages, communities, individuals, families and friends together and unite them in celebration."

"Go Hawks!" Alpogianis concluded.

Afterwards an overly optimistic Trustee John Jekot called dibs on announcing another Chicago team's long-awaited victory, noting: "I'll take the lead role when the Cubs win the championship." ■

Niles working on new village website

BY IGOR STUDENKOV | Contributor

By Internet standards, the Village of Niles' official website is a dinosaur.

While parts of it have been tinkered with over the years, it has had the same basic design and layout since April 2005.

But that is about to change. Throughout June, the Niles officials have taking first steps toward creating a new website. The village hopes that the new site will be easier to navigate and allow Niles residents and business to better communicate with the government.

Unlike the current version of the site, which was developed in-house by the village's Information Technology Department, the new version is being developed by CivicPlus, a web design company based in Manhattan, Kan. The new website is expected to be unveiled sometime in November.

The Niles Board of Trustees has been looking to redesign the village website for years. It was one of the objectives of the Niles 2030 Comprehensive Plan. But it wasn't until the March 26 board meeting that the board took steps to make it a reality, approving a Request for Proposal for a website developer.

The Department of Community Development and Management Information Systems Department looked through several bids and unanimously decided to approve CivicPlus. According to Ross Klicker, Village of Niles' Business Coordinator, a lot of it had to with the fact that they had the expertise the village was looking for.

"[CivicPlus] provides all the services we need," said Klicker. "CivicPlus specializes in municipal websites, so they have the experience."

The fact that their proposal came in under budget was also a major factor. The board budgeted $70,000 for the project; CivicPlus' bid promised to cover everything $64,920. Charles Ostman, the Director of the Department of Community Development, said that the village will hold on to remaining $5,080 just in case website CivicPlus has some unexpected expenses. Whatever is left over will be put toward the village surplus.

The Board of Trustees approved the contract with CivicPlus during the May 28 meeting. Klicker has been put in charge of overseeing the project. He explained that CivicPlus will be working from village guidelines, and every aspect of the design will be subject to village approval.

Klicker met with the company representatives on June 25 to discuss the specifics. While many details are a long way from being finalized, he readily shared what he will be looking for.

"Better communication between the village and our residents and businesses," he said. "Easier navigation, making it easier to find information they need."

When asked what he meant by "better communication," Klicker said that the website would make it easier for residents and businesses to reach out to village government and services.

The website will feature better social media integration. And while the redesign would require some restructuring, Klicker assured Niles Herald-Spectator that none of the currently available information will be lost in the process.

Whatever the design may look like, the final deadline has already been set.

Heavy rains deluge Niles, flooding roads, homes

BY NATASHA WASINSKI | Contributor

The fast-moving storm that swept through the Chicago area early Wednesday morning left its mark on Niles, submerging the village's arterial roads and side streets and dumping water into residents' homes.

Nearly 4 inches of rain fell early Wednesday, backing up the sewer system and caused village-wide flooding.

Niles Police Sgt. Robert Tornabene said all of the town's major roadways had closed at some point in the morning, including the intersection of Harlem Avenue and Howard Street, and Milwaukee Avenue between Dempster and Oakton streets.

A downed power line on Dempster near Alcott Avenue, and flooding on Greenwood Avenue, caused additional travel delays. Dispatched officers were still "running all over the place" by early afternoon to tend to the village's submerged streets, Tornabene said.

Traffic flow resumed by 4:30 p.m., according to police, though standing water continued to slowly drain from local parks and parking lots.

More than five feet of water inundated the Tam O'Shanter Golf Course. Water poured from the flooded green into the North Branch of the Chicago River, which had reached its height capacity.

"You can reach over and touch the water, it's that filled up," said Tony Espinoza, from the public works department.

District 71 Superintendent Amy Kruppe reported the designated retention areas around Culver Elementary School were effective in draining all rainwater.

"Our parking lot is set up so it takes the water," she said. "We did not have any large issues."

Other schools in Niles weren't as fortunate.

Gemini Junior High and Nelson Elementary both experienced some flooding, reported Scott Clay, superintendent of East Maine School District 63.

A massive pool of water remained in the grassy playing fields of Emerson Middle School well into the afternoon.

Across from the school on Fairview Avenue, brothers Scott Lesko and Matt Moreno threw out furniture and other household goods damaged by water.

Nearby Oakton Street was impassable by 8 a.m., said their mother, Gail Moreno, and the water spilled onto their block and up the driveway. The basement, first floor and garage of the family's ranch-style home flooded.

"This has happened before," Lesko, 30, said. "We just take it as an opportunity to get rid of all the crap we have."

Among the objects drenched in water Lesko found his high school and college diplomas.

Frank Troiani, a 35-year Niles public works employee who spent the day responding to residents' calls, noted the heavy rainfall didn't have anywhere else to go.

The backyard of his own house on Waukegan Road across from Civic Center Plaza "looked like a lake," he said.

"The ground's not going to take any more water," Troiani said. "When it rains that hard that fast, it runs off."

He added: "A 100-year rain every year – or every other month, lately – there's nothing you're going to do about it." ■

In floods' wake, Niles speeds stormwater fixes

BY NATASHA WASINSKI | Contributor

Village-wide flooding for the second time in two months has prompted Niles officials to seek speedier solutions for stormwater relief.

Village workers in Niles work to clear the storm drains on the 7000 block of Monroe Street on June 26. | JON DURR-For Sun-Times Media

Mayor Andrew Przybylo says the village is speeding up efforts to fight flooding in Niles, and is aiming to break ground on its stormwater relief project by March 2014.

Przybylo, village department heads and the Finance Committee set the plans after meeting Friday morning.

One year ago, the Village Board approved a $15 million stormwater improvement plan, which includes major sewer expansion work as well as financial assistance for residents to purchase helpful devices for flood control, such as an overhead sewer or check valve.

The village is currently in the planning and design phase for the program's first three capital projects: the installation of a new sewer near Cleveland Avenue east of Osceola Avenue, the improvement of sewers and storage capacity on Main Street near Milwaukee Avenue, and the construction of new detention basins.

Preliminary engineering was expected to be completed by August. Przybylo said the plan was "scheduled too futuristically in light of all these storms and the people who are suffering."

The fast-moving rains that swept through the Chicago area June 26 arrived on the heels of a torrential downpour in mid-April. Roadways, parks, schools and houses across Niles were inundated with water after both storms.

Przybylo said the earlier the engineering study is completed, the sooner the village can "start shoveling dirt, creating reservoirs, opening streets, and expanding the capacities of tunnels."

He said the village might be able to break ground by the beginning of next year's construction season.

Change can't come soon enough for some residents, particularly those who live near Maryhill Catholic Cemetery.

Clutching her small pooch close to her chest, Gina Dobrzanski paced outside her family's house in the hours after last Wednesday's intense thunderstorm.

She'd had enough.

For the second time this year, sewer water rose waist-high in the basement of the Dobrzanski family's home on Merrill Street near Main.

Feces and sewage waste came up from a toilet and busted pipe. A recently purchased water heater wasn't working. Neither was a dryer.

Dobrzanski said her mother broke down in tears after waking up to the mess at 5 a.m. The family was still cleaning by mid-afternoon.

"I just need air," Dobrzanski said. "I can't deal with this. ... This is not normal."

Dobrzanski lives on the southwest end of the cemetery, in the area targeted for a new sewer line. Work crews are currently tearing up her block to install a water main unrelated to sewer-system improvement.

Residents located north of the cemetery on Oak Avenue between Grand and Prospect streets experience similar problems in the aftermath of a storm.

Nearly 100 townhouse units sit on that site and many – like Dobrzanski's home – flood with backed-up sewage during downpours.

Newer construction on the other side of the street reportedly gets rainwater reaching the tops of basement stairs.

"We always flood," said Patricia Dalton, a 32-year resident of Niles. "This is nothing new."

After the last few storms, she has hired professionals to remove the waste and dirty water that seeps into her home during heavy storms.

Przybylo said reports of sewage backups aren't surprising.

"That can and will happen when a sewer system has a dual purpose ... in other words, sanitary and storm (drainage) were combined (in the past in Niles)," he said. "Then the world got sophisticated."

Dalton said not only are the flooded sewers destructive – she has lost countless number of photos and other personal mementos, and had to replaced a waterlogged furnace, water heater tank, washer and dryer – but also pose a health hazard.

She added: "The smell is atrocious."

Some claim their concerns have fallen on deaf ears at Village Hall.

"Everybody's all for talk," Dobrzanski said. "Excuses every time."

"I don't know what's happening with our basement but we're moving out next year."

For now, she's trying to finding a way to pay for the removal of mold that accumulated in her submerged basement.

The $2,000 her mother received in federal aid through FEMA this past spring was not enough to cover the estimated $10,000 in damages and cleanup from the April flood.

Przybylo said the village is "well over-budget" on its own flood-control assistance.

He said officials had set aside $450,000 for the cost-sharing program, which provides some relief to residents who purchase overhead sewers that can cost $8,000 to $10,000.

Homeowners who qualify receive grants totaling half of the improvement costs with a maximum of $4,000 given per home.

If everyone who was eligible applied today, the village's share of the costs would likely be "well over $1 million," Przybylo said

He would like to see applications processed more rapidly under that program, too.

"In this environment, the village is understaffed for these folks who need help," he said. "But we have to take care of these people and expedite (the process)."

The deadline to register for FEMA assistance is July 9.

Elisabeth Mistretta contributed to this report.

SUSPICIOUS INCIDENT

Police detained a 43-year-old man on the evening of June 21 after he was seen throwing away a black bag at the Village Crossing shopping center on the 6500 block of Touhy Avenue. A search of the bag revealed a black back pack that contained two books, food and a knife, police said. The man was also reportedly found in possession of a set of wire cutters and two cell phones. He was released without charges, but the wire cutters were retained by officers.

BURGLARY

A resident of an apartment on the 7900 block of Caldwell Avenue told police that on June 22 he discovered a jar of quarters empty and rolls of quarters totaling $97.50 missing from his bedroom drawer. The man also noticed his window pane was broken and that there pry marks on the frame, police said.

BURGLARY TO VEHICLE

An iPad and GPS device were stolen between June 22 and June 23 from an unlocked vehicle parked on the 9400 block of Washington Street.

THEFT

On June 19 someone entered the men's restroom inside a business on the 7900 block of Milwaukee Avenue, turned off the water and removed two toilet values from each of the stalls. ■

Library to open new entrance, install self-checkout

Getting into the library and checking out a book will soon be much easier in Morton Grove.

Using a $23,000 state grant, officials at the Morton Grove Public Library plan to install a electronic self-checkout station and permanently reopen the Lincoln Avenue entrance by this fall.

Currently, patrons can enter through a foyer on that side of the building but cannot leave that way. The interior double doors serve as an emergency exit and incoming foot traffic is funneled from the exterior doors through a narrow hallway and into the lobby. That hallway cannot handle two-way traffic, library officials say.

"I get the more complaints about the Lincoln Avenue entryway than any other topic," Library Director Pam Leffler said. "We have some structural problems in our way, but we hope to meet two patron needs with one project."

Because patrons only have one exit, the circulation desk checks out materials on the east side of the building, next to the Baxter Auditorium.

Leffler said the new automated self-checkout machine would be installed next to that foyer in lieu of establishing another circulation desk.

"People haven't mentioned (self-checkout) to us all that often but mostly we're constantly addressing convenience-related issues," Leffler said. "Self-checkout would allow patrons with only a few items to skip past those big families or people who spend considerable time inquiring about missing items or fines."

The majority of the $23,000 grant will go toward the machine, with leftover money set to help the library's early literacy programming, Leffler said.

Reopening that Lincoln Avenue entrance will involve additional "petty money" that Leffler said she's trying to "squirrel away" whenever day-to-day expenses get reduced.

Security is one main reason why those doors are not currently used. Leffler said past administrators allegedly had financial or logistical problems installing security gates that monitor theft of property.

After doing some research, Leffler said insurance rates would go down if the library installed cameras throughout the library, including at the entrances.

Theft of materials is actually lower than normal, she continued, and more residents are asking for study or meeting rooms than specific items to check out. The cameras would therefore address personal safety and also prevent library property from being damaged by visitors who do not check items out.

Once that camera system is installed, the Lincoln Avenue entryway should reopen.

Asbestos in the walls is the biggest obstacle, Leffler said. The library has a lack of electrical outlets for both the camera network and the new self-checkout machine, and drilling through the walls to create new wiring would expose the asbestos, she continued.

"The board is very devoted to making this building work," Leffler said. "They know it isn't perfect, but they understand the economic reality we face and are supportive of staff's efforts even though they might be slow or unconventional."

In the months leading up to the project, library maintenance workers will brainstorm and test ways to safely extend electricity to key parts of the library — most likely via secured pipes discretely mounted on walls.

Library Board President Mark Albers said Leffler presented the project last year and has the full support of the board. He said the only delay is a need to finish other projects, such as new carpeting. ■

How Illinois lawmakers voted in Congress for the week ending June 28, 2013

Major roll call votes in the Senate

IMMIGRATION PLAN

Senators voted, 68-32, to open a 13-year route to citizenship for 11 million undocumented immigrants who entered the U.S. by the end of 2011; surge law enforcement and electronic surveillance on the U.S.-Mexico border; tighten the Canadian border; crack down on foreign visitors who overstay their visas; require all states to adopt the E-Verify system by which employers check on the legality of new workers; streamline family visas to reduce backlogs in reuniting kin in the U.S.; establish new or streamlined employment visas for low-skilled and high-tech workers and create a new program for temporarily admitting 112,000 or more seasonal farm workers each year. A "yes" vote was to send S 744 to the House. Sen. Richard Durbin: Yes; Sen. Mark Kirk: Yes

BORDER SECURITY

Voting 69-29, senators amended S 744 (above) to further tighten the southern border against illegal crossings. A "yes" vote was to double the number of Border Patrol agents (to 40,000), require the government to build 700 miles of fencing, deploy drones and lay a blanket of electronic surveillance, at a 10-year cost of $46 billion. These and other security steps would have to be completed before any undocumented immigrant could achieve permanent residency. Sen. Richard Durbin: Yes; Sen. Mark Kirk: Yes

Major roll call votes in the House

1. DODD-FRANK RULES

Members voted, 256-171, to pass a GOP bill to implement a new U.S.-Mexico treaty for Gulf of Mexico drilling in a way that exempts oil firms from transparency rules in the 2010 Dodd-Frank financial-regulation law. Those rules require companies to publicly disclose how much they pay the U.S. government or foreign governments for rights to extract oil, gas and minerals. They are included in a pact signed by the U.S. and Mexico in February 2012 to open 1.5 million acres spanning their nautical boundary in the western gulf to energy development. A "yes" vote was to send the GOP bill to the Senate. (HR 1613).

2. BP OIL SPILL

Members voted, 194-232, to defeat a Democratic bid to require safety and environmental lessons from the BP oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico to be applied to gulf drilling that occurs under HR 1613 (above). U.S. regulations already have been tightened in response to the BP disaster in 2010. This motion by Democrats also sought to require companies responsible for spills to pay all cleanup costs. The U.S.-Mexico treaty allows each nation to answer to its own environmental and safety laws. A "yes" vote backed the Democratic motion.

Caucus warns 'draconian' cuts to CPS will reduce test scores

The City Council's Progressive Caucus came out swinging Thursday against "draconian" budget cuts at Chicago Public Schools. The cuts, they warned, would increase class size, reduce test scores and leave schools without essentials.

"We are alarmed by the stripping of basic necessities which define a school. The neighborhood schools have been reduced to beggars, lacking such essentials as sanitation supplies, library book funds, field trip money, playground supervision," the eight-member caucus said in a prepared statement.

The aldermen noted that "at least 850" school employees will lose their jobs. Some principals have been forced into the untenable position of combining classes to eliminate teachers.

"Class sizes will increase. ... Compounding this problem is the fact that next year, teachers will be evaluated largely upon the basis of their students' test scores. However, with bigger class sizes, less individual attention, and fewer enhancements to the curriculum, test score decline seems inevitable," the Progressive Caucus said in a statement.

"Injustice is written into the new budgets. ... Children will find some of their most enjoyable activities, subjects and extracurriculars deleted next year." ■

Illinois' bad credit costing taxpayers millions of dollars

Like your cousin who doesn't pay his bills on time and squanders money he doesn't have, Illinois is paying the price — in both cash and reputation — for years of ignored warnings about its pension crisis, the worst in the nation.

Largely because of its unfunded retirement plans, Illinois has replaced longtime bottom-dweller California as having the lowest credit rating of any state. So when Illinois tries to borrow money, it faces the same problem as the spendthrift cousin: far higher interest rates.

The state's financial failings are so well-known, they have inspired a name on Wall Street — the "Illinois effect," a reference to the fact that cities, universities and other bond-issuing entities here must pay more in interest, even if they are responsible spenders.

"There are investors who won't buy Illinois or bonds with Illinois labels at any price. They just see it as toxic," said Brian Battle, director at Performance Trust Capital Partners, a Chicago-based investment firm. That means the state pays "the biggest penalty by a long, long shot."

Battle compared the Illinois situation to someone who has a good job and plenty of revenue. But "we just spend like crazy, don't pay our credit cards and haven't saved for retirement," he said. ■

Judges: Social Security pushes approval of claims

Driven to reduce a huge backlog of disability claims, Social Security is pushing judges to award benefits to people who may not deserve them, several current and former judges told Congress Thursday.

Larry Butler, an administrative law judge from Fort Myers, Fla., called the system "paying down the backlog."

A former Social Security judge, J.E. Sullivan, said, "The only thing that matters in the adjudication process is signing that final decision." Sullivan is now an administrative law judge for the Department of Transportation.

The House Oversight and Government Reform Committee is investigating why many judges have high approval rates for claims already rejected twice by field offices or state agencies. Two current and two former judges spoke at a subcommittee hearing.

The number of people receiving Social Security disability benefits has increased by 44 percent over the past decade, pushing the trust fund that supports the program to the brink of insolvency.

Social Security officials say the primary reason for the increase is a surge in baby boomers who are more prone to disability as they age. ■

VIEWPOINT | Pioneer Press

Few pension choices

When it comes to solving the state's monstrous pension problem, we'd all do well to turn an old cliche on its head.

In the real world, there are just a few — not many — ways to skin the cat we affectionately call the state's $98 billion unfunded pension liability. And the sooner the state legislative committee tasked with wrangling that pension debt comes to terms with that reality, the better.

The theme of the committee's first hearing last week was to move beyond the two polarizing proposals that dominated the spring legislative session.

The two sides were dug in all spring, and the inevitable happened at the end of the session: nothing.

There are only a handful of ways to dramatically reduce pension costs: You can reduce retirees' cost-of-living increases — that's where the big savings are — and/or raise the retirement age and increase employee contributions. Give or take a few smaller tricks, that's it.

Instead of scouring the universe for new ideas, how about starting there? ■

1,000 WORDS | Jack Higgins

Many have fought for our freedom

The Fourth of July is one of my favorite holidays. I love the parades, fireworks, celebrations, games and cookouts that come with the holiday.

RANDY BLASER

But I also love the holiday for what it means. It is Independence Day. We get to govern ourselves. We are free to come and go as we please. It is one of the greatest days in human history.

But I also know what freedom costs.

We are free because of the sacrifices of so many who came before us. It flows from Bunker Hill, where my ancestor Seth Makepeace, at age 16 and a member of the Massachusetts militia, stood guard and withstood the cannon barrage from British warships in Boston Harbor, to the town of Abbottabad, Pakistan, where members of Seal Team Six brought justice to terrorist leader Osama bin Laden.

Nearly all Americans are connected to this long trail of service and sacrifice to the nation, whether they personally served or not, because of individual family members who have done so. All of us have fathers, grandfathers, uncles, cousins who have served the nation and are part of that great story.

Whether Vietnam (my older cousins), or Korea (my dad), or World War II (my dad's older brother), we all have memories of freedom's cost.

I have been thinking of those ancestors who participated in the great march of freedom a great deal lately, because of what I will be doing on the day before the Fourth.

On July 3, I will be sitting with other parents and relatives in the review stands at Camp Pendleton in San Diego, Calif. That's where my oldest son will be graduating from boot camp for the U.S. Marines.

I have to admit that at first I was quite ambivalent about my son joining the Marines.

For one, it's dangerous. They are the first to fight.

For two, I have the typical biases that afflict so many of my Baby Boomer peers about military service. Our memories of Vietnam are negative. Most did all we could to stay out of that war. It is no accident that after World War II we elected seven veterans as president and have yet to elect a commander-in-chief who is a Vietnam veteran.

But the Marines are the best, and my son wants to be the best.

So while you're reading this, I will be at Camp Pendleton, where I get to be the parent of a U.S. Marine. Then my fears and biases will be washed away by pride in my son and the nation he chose to serve.

Have a Happy Fourth of July! ■

PAUL SASSONE

It's the 4th of July.

Know what that means?

It means it is yet another golden opportunity for the gasoline companies to gouge us.

For some reason known only to conspirators in the Oil Industry-Industrial Complex, gasoline prices change from day to day. And around holidays the change is usually up.

Will it be up for the 4th of July?

I don't know. I'm writing this before that holiday.

So, like you, I'm wondering:

Should I fill up now on the assumption that gasoline prices will only go up as we near the 4th itself?

Or, should I take a bearish stance and wait to fill up on the possibility that gasoline prices will decrease?

Wait, wait ...

Who am I kidding?

I haven't filled up for years.

Illinois has the highest gasoline prices in America. Last time I bought gasoline I paid more in the neighborhood of $4.50 a gallon.

I can't afford to fill up, or live in that neighborhood.

Why do we Illinoisans (Illinoisers?) always get the sharp end of the stick?

Now we are at the bottom for gasoline prices. Which is to say we are at the top.

And maybe that's the way we ought to look at it.

Hey! We Illinoisers (Illinoisans) are at the top of the list of people who pay too much for gasoline.

We're Number One!

As in everything, it's all in how you look at it.

Like, does it really matter how much gasoline costs per gallon?

What if you bought just $5 worth at your next stop at the gas station?

You'd only be paying $5 instead of in the neighborhood of $4.50 a gallon.

Paying $5 is what drivers did years and years ago.

Of course, you'll be paying $5 nine or 10 times a week just to keep your car running.

> I can't afford to fill up, or live in that neighborhood.

But how can you put a price on such comforting self-delusion, right?

Or, if living in a dream world isn't your cup of tea, you could just declare your energy independence on the 4th of July and stay home.

It's too noisy out there, anyway.

Happy holiday. ■

Storm spawns 'lake' in Niles

Just add water!

We always get this in our yard - though we don't mind. It is better than the poor people that get it in their basements. The lake usually spans over 180 ft by 100 ft and is up to 4 ft at the deepest part.

The block is 8100 Prospect Street in Niles. You should see the street when the flooding starts - it takes over the entire intersection at Monroe and Prospect. It happens every big storm - again, as long as it doesn't hit my basement, I am fine.

Enjoy the sunshine while it lasts!

Education in Focus

Coming to you live from Park View School

BY RICK KAMBIC | rkambic@pioneerlocal.com

The increasing use of technology at Morton Grove's Park View School has led to a new media outlet: Double View.

Five middle school students in Elizabeth Schommer's broadcasting elective class are scripting, shooting, editing and merging scenes to create two all-inclusive video shows this summer.

"Technology is becoming a big part of students' education everywhere," Schommer said. "The schools have incorporated it into their classrooms; The critical challenge is to make the learning fun and to keep knowledgeable. Technology changes very rapidly."

Broadcasting, she continued, teaches the students basic skills of camera positioning, video editing and detailed writing. Secondarily, Schommer said the students learn to work together and get introduced to public speaking.

"We were a little stiff and had a lot of pauses when we first started shooting," said Ethan DaSilva, an anchor of the first show. "Mrs. Schommer told us to give more expression but stay professional. We did a lot of takes because we made a lot of simple mistakes. It takes a lot of work."

During the small summer school class, the students rotate and each one does every job. The first few weeks were spent learning how to use the equipment, learning broadcasting terms and creating ideas for segments.

On June 26, the first complete run of a show was finished. It was directed by Mia Catalla, anchored by DaSilva and Sidra Khatoon, with Anna Hatzopoulos behind the camera and Kayla Bailey editing footage.

Aside from news reporting, two special segments were recorded. Hatzopoulos showed viewers how to bake an apple crisp, while Catalla did a sports interview with Kat Harrison, who coaches various levels of volleyball, basketball, soccer and cheerleading at Park View.

The group's second show will include special segments on fashion and music. Khatoon plans to shoot footage in a jewelry class and Hatzopoulos plans to interview music teachers and students at Park View.

"I wanted all the students to have responsibility and creativity," Schommer said, noting that behind-the-scenes roles will also change. She also hopes to get the two shows broadcast on Morton Grove's public access station.

"I thought we were going to just learn about using a camera," Hatzopoulos said. "I didn't realize what was in the background mattered, and how many things need edited in a video to make it look good."

District 70 Superintendent Phil Collins was hired last year and immediately put an emphasis on incorporating technology into classrooms, including the use of iPads, video cameras and laptops to be used for projects and regular presentations.

Schommer substitute-taught in the district for two years and was just hired to fill a one-year leave of absence as a fifth-grade teacher. She's not sure if her broadcasting class can become an elective class during the regular school year, but she plans to stay long enough to advocate for it and a broadcasting club.

Before earning a master's degree in education,

Schommer got a bachelor's degree in electronic media from the University of Dayton. She spent three years in the video production business before deciding to become a teacher.

Just prior to her transition, Schommer and her cousin Justin Allen pitched a TV show to NBC and were allowed to film a pilot. The show was about five friends living in a one-bedroom apartment in Chicago as struggling college graduates trying to find jobs.

The show wasn't picked up, but Allen's career later blossomed and he's now the senior producer of a Dallas morning show called "Eye Opener."

Schommer said Allen is going to Skype with the class in a few weeks and give a walking tour of the set, while also answering questions from the students.

"The students will get to see how everything they're doing now can be done for a job," Schommer said. "I hope to give them something they can relate to and to aspire toward. Even if it's not broadcasting, those skills and work ethic are universal." ■

HOROSCOPES

For the week of July 10 to July 16

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Your persistence pays off as the information you demanded starts to come through. The pace is slow at first, but it begins to speed up as the week draws to a close.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
An unwelcome bit of news jolts the Bovine, who would prefer that things proceed smoothly. But it's at most a momentary setback. A Leo brings more welcome tidings.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
You need to pay close attention to the details before making a commitment. Don't accept anything that seems questionable, unless you get an answer that can be backed up.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Congratulations on getting that project up and running. But as exciting as it is, don't let it carry you away. Make sure you set aside time to spend with family and friends.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Be sure you're part of the discussion involving your suggestions. Your presence ensures that you can defend your work, if necessary. It also helps gain your colleagues' support.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
A misunderstanding needs to be dealt with, or it can grow and cause more problems later on. Be the bigger person and take the first step to clear the air.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
Set some strict guidelines for yourself so your heavier-than-usual work schedule doesn't overwhelm the time you need to spend relaxing with loved ones.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
You might feel a little uncomfortable being among people you hardly know. But remember that today's strangers can become tomorrow's valuable contacts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Reward yourself for all that you've accomplished despite some annoying situations that got in your way. Enjoy a well-earned getaway with someone special.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Realizing that someone else is taking credit for what you did is bound to get anyone's goat, but especially yours. Be patient. The truth soon comes out.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
Forget about opposites attracting. What you need is to find someone who thinks like you and will support your ideas, even if others say they're too radical.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Workplace problems can affect your financial plans. Be prudent and avoid running up bills or making commitments until things begin to ease up by the 26th.

BORN THIS WEEK:
Your intuition helps you communicate easily with people and understand their needs.

Communities rally to support sick owner

BY RICK KAMBIC | rkambic@pioneerlocal.com

Friends, business associates and customers came out in droves to support the family of Frank Silvio during an all-day fundraiser on June 28 at the Dairy Queen on Dempster Street in Niles.

Silvio lives in Niles and is an owner of Maier's Bakery in Morton Grove. The 37-year-old man has battled cancer for two years and has progressively gotten worse, friends said.

Karen Amato owns the Niles Dairy Queen, and volunteered to donate all profit generated on June 28 to help the Silvio family with medical bills and to start a scholarship fund for his two young children.

"My sister went to high school with him and I've known him as a fellow local business owner," Amato said. "He is one of the nicest men I've ever known. He would do anything for anyone. I never saw him say 'no.'"

The event was organized by Kristina Otte, who said Silvio was instrumental in helping her start the Morton Grove Farmer's Market in 2009.

Frank Silvio, owner of Maier's Bakery in Morton Grove, fell ill to cancer two years ago. Now, business and community leaders are fundrasing for his family. | SUN-TIMES MEDIA FILES

"Frank became like a brother to me," Otte said. "He recognized my determination to provide fresh food and he made sure I didn't stand alone. A lot of people know him that way. He really gets to know you, and now everyone is worried about him."

Otte said Silvio builds warm friendships with anyone who walks into the bakery.

This isn't Silvio's first case of cancer. Otte said he had cancer as a teenager in high school and was even paralyzed at one point, but it mysteriously went into remission while he was overseas in Europe.

"He thought it was a miracle," Otte said. "He's been a man of god ever since."

St. Martha's Church in Morton Grove and St. John Brebeuf Church in Niles were instrumental in driving people to the fundraiser, Otte said. While some people ordered ice cream, others bought cases of Dilly Bars to pass out at work. Some even stopped in to put money in a donation bucket.

Silvio is best known throughout Niles and Morton Grove for his chocolate donuts.

"Frank is popular for having given out his fantastic chocolate donuts at all the parades and community events," Amato said. "There isn't a single person who hasn't liked his donuts. Maier's Bakery is a highly-anticipated spot in the parades."

As a member of both the Niles and Morton Grove chambers of commerce, Silvio built many connections.

"The businesses in Morton Grove is big into sticking together," said Debbie Juris, executive director of the Morton Grove chamber. "They always rise to the occasion and they care about one another."

Juris also worked at the Niles chamber for several years and grew up in Niles. She said she knew Silvio as a kid and he grew up with her oldest sons.

"When my oldest son passed away, people came together to help us and it made a big difference," Juris said. "Frank has fought a good fight. He's a great kid, with a great family, and he runs a perfect small business. He's in our hearts."

Otte said Silvio was opposed to the fundraiser because he didn't want to bother his friends, but he later caved in. Otte said about 50 people sent monetary donations prior to the event because they couldn't attend.

Any donations will still be accepted by calling Otte at (847) 583-1160.

Amato said she hopes other businesses step up and host similar fundraisers for Silvio. ■

Patients find the right balance at physical therapy clinic

BY JENNIFER JOHNSON | jjohnson@pioneerlocal.com

Growing up with a neurologist for a father inspired at least one aspect of Sara Koveleski Kraut's Park Ridge business.

Clients with neurological conditions, like Parkinson's Disease or Multiple Sclerosis, or inner ear and balance disorders like vertigo can find some relief through the therapy Kraut and her staff provide at Advanced Physical Therapy and Health Services, a speciality that, according to Kraut, is rather unique.

"That's where we saw a niche and that's where we wanted to fulfill it," Kraut said of her clinic's focus on neurological and vestibular disorders. "Being exposed to medical things growing up, I had a natural curiosity for it, but even in physical therapy school the neurological component was spurred by interest. I wanted to open a clinic that not only did orthopedic stuff, but also focused on neurology and vertigo."

And so she did. Advanced Physical Therapy recently marked 10 years in Park Ridge at 444 N. Northwest Hwy., growing from a one-therapist clinic to a staff of five.

"I like the whole idea of physical therapy where it's more natural healing and exercise," Kraut said of her desire to pursue this line of work. "I've always been big into fitness and health and having the opportunity to help people recover and get back to their normal functioning and daily activities turned me on to it."

After working as a physical therapist at an outpatient clinic for two years, Kraut decided to open up her own business.

"I wanted it to be patient-centered," she said. "I didn't want the focus to be on how many patients you could see each day and how much money you can make."

All of Advanced Physical Therapy's clients are referred by physicians. Typical ailments the therapists at Advanced Physical Therapy see are orthopedic conditions, like back and neck pain, and problems with shoulders, ankles, feet, hips and knees. The clinic also sees a number of patients with Parkinson's Disease, Multiple Sclerosis, and gait and balance disorders.

Nancy Valles of Park Ridge has been seeing Kraut for therapy to help strengthen a weak right leg.

"I'm trying to build endurance, stamina and balance," Valles explained.

It's a slow process, she admitted, but the therapy seems to be working.

"Sara is very attentive to your needs," Valles said.

Other services offered at Advanced Physical Therapy include personal training, Pilates and massage therapy from licensed massage therapists.

Massage, said Kraut, can be helpful for relaxation, but it also releases tension, improves general mobility and muscular issues and can be beneficial to those who suffer from headaches.

A small workout room with exercise equipment greets clients when they arrive is available for them to use as part of their therapy, either as a way to start an exercise program or continue it after an injury or medical condition.

Kraut is also travels the country teaching other physical therapists. Her primary focus is on utilizing Pilates in rehab and physical therapy for Parkinson's patients.

"I teach other therapists how to properly evaluate and treat people with Parkinson's," she explained. ■

MOMMY ON A SHOESTRING

Fresh Watermelon Milk Tea Boba

Blood Orange Jalapeño Margarita

Johanna Cook

When Johanna Cook of mommacuisine.com first started her Summer Cooking Tour, she had no idea it would be such a hit.

"I knew I wanted to do something different," Cook said, "so I created a tour where I could visit local farmers markets and demonstrate how to make simple dishes using local ingredients."

Two years and 15 markets later, Cook is not slowing down. This year she is touring farmers markets around the area sharing her unique recipes for busy parents. I recently chatted with Cook about her experience and asked her to share some of her favorite recipes for cool and chic cocktails and mocktails.

PEACH BELLINI MILKSHAKE

Don't be fooled by the name — this is not your mother's milkshake. Cook adds sparkling wine to the base of this drink, which adds a touch of crispness and prevents the shake from tasting too sweet.

You need:

2 cups vanilla bean ice cream
¼ cup peach nectar (or puree)
⅓ cup sparkling white wine
¼ cup milk

Directions:

Blend ingredients together and serve. Makes 2 servings.

FRESH WATERMELON MILK TEA BOBA

Cook loves this drink, which is both festive and flavorful, and no alcohol means it's kid-friendly. It's also a fun drink to make with your kids, who will love seeing the boba, a type of tapioca, plump up into tiny pearls.

You need:

5 cups chopped watermelon (blended until smooth)
1 cup dried boba (available at Asian markets and specialty stores)
4 cups water
5 cups steeped black tea (lukewarm)
¼ cup condensed milk
Ice

Directions:

Bring 4 cups of water to a boil and then add boba.

Boil until the boba has plumped up and has a soft interior.

Remove boba from hot water and place in a bowl with room temperature water (will prevent the pearls from sticking).

In a large pitcher, mix the blended watermelon juice, black tea and condensed milk. Stir until the milk has mixed fully with the tea and juice.

Fill each glass with ¼ cup of boba pearls, add ice and top with fresh watermelon milk tea. Makes 3-4 servings.

Tip: When serving this drink to kids, I like to add a very thin straw to prevent the pearls from slipping through. I then give them a spoon to eat the pearls after they have consumed the drink.

Join the fun!

BLOOD ORANGE JALAPEÑO MARGARITA

Originally created for Cinco de Mayo, this recipe calls for jalapeño-infused tequila that Cook created herself. Simply soak 2 teaspoons of dried jalapeños in 2 cups of tequila for several hours (about five). If you don't have dried jalapeños, Cook recommends muddling fresh ones. Just make sure you de-vein the pepper thoroughly and take out all the seeds.

You need:

2 tablespoons jalapeño-infused tequila
2 teaspoons agave nectar
Juice of two limes
Juice of one blood orange
Ice

Directions:

Shake ingredients together with ice and serve. Makes 2-3 servings.

STRAWBERRY ALMOND MILK

This recipe pays homage to a childhood classic with a twist. Instead of using artificial ingredients to create the strawberry flavor, Cook goes for the real thing by incorporating locally grown, fresh berries.

You need:

1 cup fresh strawberries (sliced)
½ cup sugar (honey will also work)
½ cup water
1 capful of vanilla extract
4 cups of ice-cold almond milk (unsweetened)

Directions:

Create strawberry syrup by boiling water, strawberries, sugar and vanilla in a saucepan for about 15 minutes.

Place syrup in blender and blend until smooth. Allow time to cool.

Stir syrup into ice-cold almond milk and serve immediately. Makes 3-4 servings.

The secret's in the (barbecue) sauce

The Barbecue Pulled Chicken at Convito Cafe & Market in Wilmette is made with Jersey Mary's barbecue sauce. The recipe for the sauce was developed by the mother of the restaurant's assistant manager, Roberta Trenbeth.

BY VERONICA HINKE | Contributor

Outdoor gourmets are firing up their grills for the July 4 holiday and most agree on one thing — the secret to a successful barbecue is in the sauce.

Ask brothers Dave and Larry Raymond. In 1982, Dave entered their barbecue sauce recipe in Mike Royko's storied Ribfest competition. They didn't win. "The judges were late," Dave Raymond recalls, "my ribs were toasted — and so was I." But three years later, their sauce took second place out of 700 entries in the famous showdown. "I put a bow on top and that's what I gave for Christmas," he says. Later, he and a friend sold bottles of the sauce under what has long been a household name: Sweet Baby Ray's.

"Anybody that makes their own ribs should have their own barbecue sauce," Dave Raymond says. "Get a niece or nephew to make a label and package the sauce in Mason jars for Christmas presents. People will give the jars back to get more. Pretty soon, you'll be able to charge for the sauce."

By 2003 when Dave Raymond sold the company, Sweet Baby Ray's was worth $37 million.

So it's no wonder that when Jeff Shapiro, owner of Real Urban Barbecue in Vernon Hills and Highland Park, recently planned a tour of barbecue spots in Austin, Texas, he turned to the barbecue sauce genius for a list of recommendations. Dave Raymond suggested Smitty's Market, Franklin Barbecue, The Salt Lick and others. Shapiro and his wife Nancy will visit the restaurants over the July 4 weekend from their home in Highland Park, or as Jeff jokes, Highland Pork. "We've redefined the city," he says.

Shapiro's aptly-named "Firecracker" barbecue sauce will be on the menu at Real Urban Barbecue for July. Each month, Shapiro adapts his standard tomato-based barbecue sauce (see sidebar recipe) to introduce a new flavor. Last month, root beer barbecue sauce was featured. In October, he made pumpkin-flavored barbecue sauce. He makes Firecracker by adding a little sriracha sauce, chili peppers, chili oil and chili paste.

"It's a little bolder," Shapiro says. "It goes nicely with everything from double-smoked brisket to burnt ends."

But some stick with tried and true barbecue sauce. Evanston resident Roberta Trenbeth stayed true to her mother's barbecue sauce recipe — without changing a single ingredient — when she bottled it up and marketed it. Her sauce, Jersey Mary, is sold nationwide, including at Convito Café & Market in Wilmette, where Trenbeth is an assistant manager.

Trenbeth recalls how, while she grew up on Chicago's South Side, her late mother, Mary Jekus, developed the recipe. The low-sugar sauce is thin, but still produces a thickening coat of flavor on meat. "It caramelizes really nicely in the oven," Trenbeth says.

The sauce, nostalgically named Jersey Mary because her mother grew up in New Jersey, seasons everything from meats to desserts to Bloody Marys. Trenbeth and her husband Rich will enjoy the drinks with family at home after the parade in Evanston on July 4. For recipes savory and sweet featuring barbecue sauce, see jerseymary.com/index.html.

Barbecue Sauce Base Recipe

2 cups ketchup
½ cup dark brown sugar
2 tablespoons of cider vinegar
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons of molasses
1 teaspoon of fresh squeezed lemon juice
½ teaspoon of cracked black pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon onion powder
3 hits of Tabasco

Combine ingredients and bring to boil. Simmer for 10 minutes, then let cool and serve.

Once the base of the sauce is complete, toss in blueberries, cherries, favorite seasonal produce, or herbs and spices.

RED NECK TACOS
Hoe Cakes Recipe:
Shuck and grill six cobs of corn. Remove corn kernels from cob.

Mix corn kernels with the following until a dough forms:
1 cup self-rising flour
1 cup self-rising cornmeal
2 eggs
3 tablespoons sugar
¾ cup buttermilk
1/3 cup and 1 tablespoon water
¼ cup vegetable oil

Pre-heat griddle to 375-400 degrees and lightly grease with vegetable oil.

Ladle five ounce portions onto griddle and cook until bottom is golden brown. Flip and repeat on other side. Top with favorite smoked meat and drizzle with barbecue sauce.

Stop Stereotyping: Overcome Your Worst Diversity Enemy

By: Sondra Thiederman, Monster Contributing Writer

Perceiving individuals accurately is an important skill for anyone who wants to get hired and be successful once on the job. And while most people strive to understand those who are different, the tendency to stereotype can skew perceptions. Still, it's important to comprehend the difference between a stereotype and a reasonable generality about a group of people.

The thing that distinguishes a stereotype from other types of generalities is that stereotypes are inflexible. When we generalize, for example, that all men may like sports, that women tend to be nurturing or that people from parts of Asia generally value saving face, we are making working generalities. These are flexible, and we clearly recognize they do not apply to all members of those groups.

Stereotypes are different from working generalities in that they are applied inflexibly to all members of a group. It is one thing to say, "Some gay men are artistic," and another to declare with certainty that, "All gay men are artistic." The latter statement, and ones like it, are just plain inaccurate. In fact, anthropologists have established that there are more differences within groups than between them. For those of us who like life and relationships to be simple, this is bad news and might make us a bit uncomfortable, but the brutal reality is that inflexible stereotypes will always be wrong.

Given that stereotypes are so wrong, it is odd how quickly we learn them. Our family, friends, coworkers and the media all easily implant these inflexible categories on our impressionable minds and hearts. The most powerful source of stereotypes, however, is our own negative experiences.

The reason negative experiences are more apt to create stereotypes is that we want so much to keep from repeating them. A child touches a hot stove and feels pain. From that experience, he generalizes all hot stoves will cause pain. This learning mechanism works great with hot stoves but is less effective with people and human behavior. Just because one man is sexist does not mean all are. Just because one disabled person takes advantage of status does not mean they all will. Just because one white person is racist does not mean all are.

Let Go

Even the most enlightened among us resist giving up the stereotypes that make us feel more secure and in control. Here's how to let go:

• Identify Stereotypes: One challenge to ridding ourselves of stereotypes is the fact that we are unaware of what they are. Identifying your stereotypes is easier than you think. It is a matter of monitoring your thoughts when you hear an ethnic last name, see a skin color, hear an accent, see a disability, learn that a person is gay, etc.

• Look for Consistency: Do you have the same reaction to members of a given group each time you encounter them? Ask yourself: "Do I have these reactions before or after I have a chance to know the individual?" If the answer is before, these are your stereotypes. Practice labeling these automatic responses as stereotypes and reminding yourself that they have little validity as accurate indicators of an individual's character, skills or personality.

• Push Stereotypes Aside: After you have identified your stereotypes, learn to shove them aside long enough to see individuals for who they are. Stereotyping is a habit. Just as it is learned through repetition, it can be unlearned through practice. Each time a thought you have identified as a stereotype appears, push it aside. Do not judge yourself harshly; after all, it is just a thought and not an action.

Without stereotypes blocking your view, you will be able to see individuals accurately, not as mere reflections of your preconception. The more you do this, the more experiences you will have with individuals who do not conform to your stereotypes and, in turn, the less credibility those stereotypes will have.

To apply for free benefits, households must complete the attached application as soon as possible, sign it and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school and District 64 web page. Households should answer all applicable questions on the form. An application cannot be processed and approved by the school if it does not contain all the required information. The required information is:

SNAP/TANF HOUSEHOLDS: If the school provided you a letter that stated your child(ren) is eligible for free meals via the direct certification process, you do not have to complete this application to receive free meal benefits. You do not have to complete this application to receive meal benefits. Households that currently received Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) or Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) for their child(ren), only have to list the child(ren)'s name and SNAP or TANF case number and sign the application. Applications listing LINK and medical card number cannot be used for free meals.

ALL OTHER HOUSEHOLDS: If a household's income is at or below the level shown on the income scale, children are eligible for free meals. Households must provide the following information: (1) the names of all household members, (2) the last four social security numbers of the adult household member signing the application, or indicate if the adult does not have a social security number, (3) the amount of income each household member received last month where it comes from (wages, child support, etc.), (4) the signature of an adult household member.

School or other officials may verify the information provided on the application at any time during the school year.

Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not eligible now but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size, or a household member becomes unemployed, they should fill out an application at that time.

In certain cases foster children are eligible for meal benefits regardless of the household income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for meal benefits for them, they should complete the application.

Households dissatisfied with the ruling of the official may wish to discuss it with the school. Households also have the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing to the following official: Joel Martin, 164 South Prospect Avenue, Park Ridge, Illinois 60068, 847-318-4300.

This summer's hot spots aren't found on the city's streets — they're printed on the dresses and flowing tops of Chicago's stylish women. The fun, flirty and feminine polka dot is summer's jack-of-all-trades: Small dots (like those seen in Diane Von Furstenberg's spring collection) radiate coquettish vibes, while larger ones (like Nina Ricci's sexy dots on sheer fabric) grab attention. To stay balanced, pair spotted separates with simple prints or solids, and trade in geometric jewelry in favor of beads or long strings of pearls that echo the round shape. Take our pointers and you'll be spot on wherever you go.

Jenny counsels a reader on what to do when a loved one is headed down the wrong road

Dear Jenny: I have a friend who once meant the world to me. He was the first person to show me it's OK to trust because there really are good people in this world. He was the first person I called my best friend. But lately, I've seen him head down a really bad road. I'm trying my best to be there and help him with what he's going through, but I just feel like I can't reach him sometimes. And when I do, the next day, he goes right back to being that same lost person. It hurts to see him hurt. I want to help, but I don't know what to do.

—Zach from Southern Calif.

Jenny says: First of all, you're a great friend for reaching out and asking how to help your friend. The best thing you can do is just be there for him. As long as your friend does not drag you down that dark road along with him, you can stay present enough to be there when he needs you. I think we can all relate to going through periods of feeling lost and hopeless, but time is an amazing healer. His road to the good path might just be on a slower time frame than others.

Right now, try not to judge him for his choices. Instead, enlighten him with positive reinforcement, emphasizing his good qualities and reminding him why you think he's an amazing friend.

When we feel bad about ourselves it's easy to slip down the rabbit hole. Unfortunately, some people actually have to hit the bottom in order to find their way out.

Sometimes the only way to help a friend is to still be there when they get out. There is nothing wrong with loving someone from a distance while they are working on their journey. Keep doing what you are doing and be sure to keep shining the light on his dark path.

Chef and decorator-to-the-stars Jaime Laurita cooks up a delicious Sunday in the city

BY ZAK STEMER

Jaime Laurita is something of a lifestyle alchemist. The Chicago resident — and brother of "Real Housewives of New Jersey" star Caroline Manzo — has spent the past several years combining his passions for cooking and design to create his own gold standard: a fashionable food line. Launched this year, the Chef Jaime Laurita brand (Chefjaimelaurita.com) has already grown to include everything from pasta to Prosecco to olive oil. "I want to be the Tiffany of the food business," says Laurita. "Everything should be really good-looking and high quality."

Laurita certainly isn't short on inspiration. He has trotted the globe as chef to A-listers like Sarah McLachlan — even co-authoring her cookbook, "Plenty" — and designed backstage environments for Madonna, Sting and The Police. But Italy is a constant muse for the global chef. "I'm finding mom-and-pop vineyards and pasta producers in Italy, and making deals to bring their products over here so people can enjoy their passion and their work," he says.

His two pillar products, Bello Boy Rose Petals Moscato and The Perfect Prosecco, have developed a loyal following. "They've become available in the last six months, and they're becoming so popular that it's hard to keep up," Laurita says. "It's a great problem to have." The bottles, carried at Binny's and in grocers like Mariano's and Sunset Foods, aren't just about the taste — they're about the story. "The Bello Boy is the Italian guy you can depend on. He's Mr. Right," says Laurita. "On every bottle it says 'Feel love and gratitude.' Those are the two ingredients I never forget to put inside."

For Laurita, it's essential that every product stamped with his name exudes his personality. "Everything in my world has that little bit of extra glamour," he explains. "Steven Tyler told me that all you need to do is let your freak flag fly, and that really stuck in my head. I dream big. I put myself in it 100 percent."

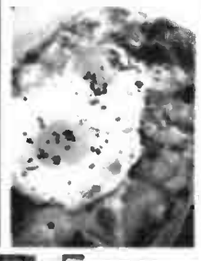
sunday in the life

8:30 A.M.
Laurita and his partner, Rich Lane, start the morning with a yoga lesson from their favorite instructor, Veronica Bruce (inset), at Ebb and Flow (1834 W. North) or Om On the Range (3759 N. Ravenswood).



10:30

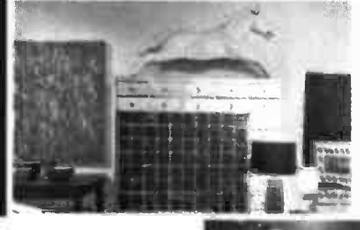
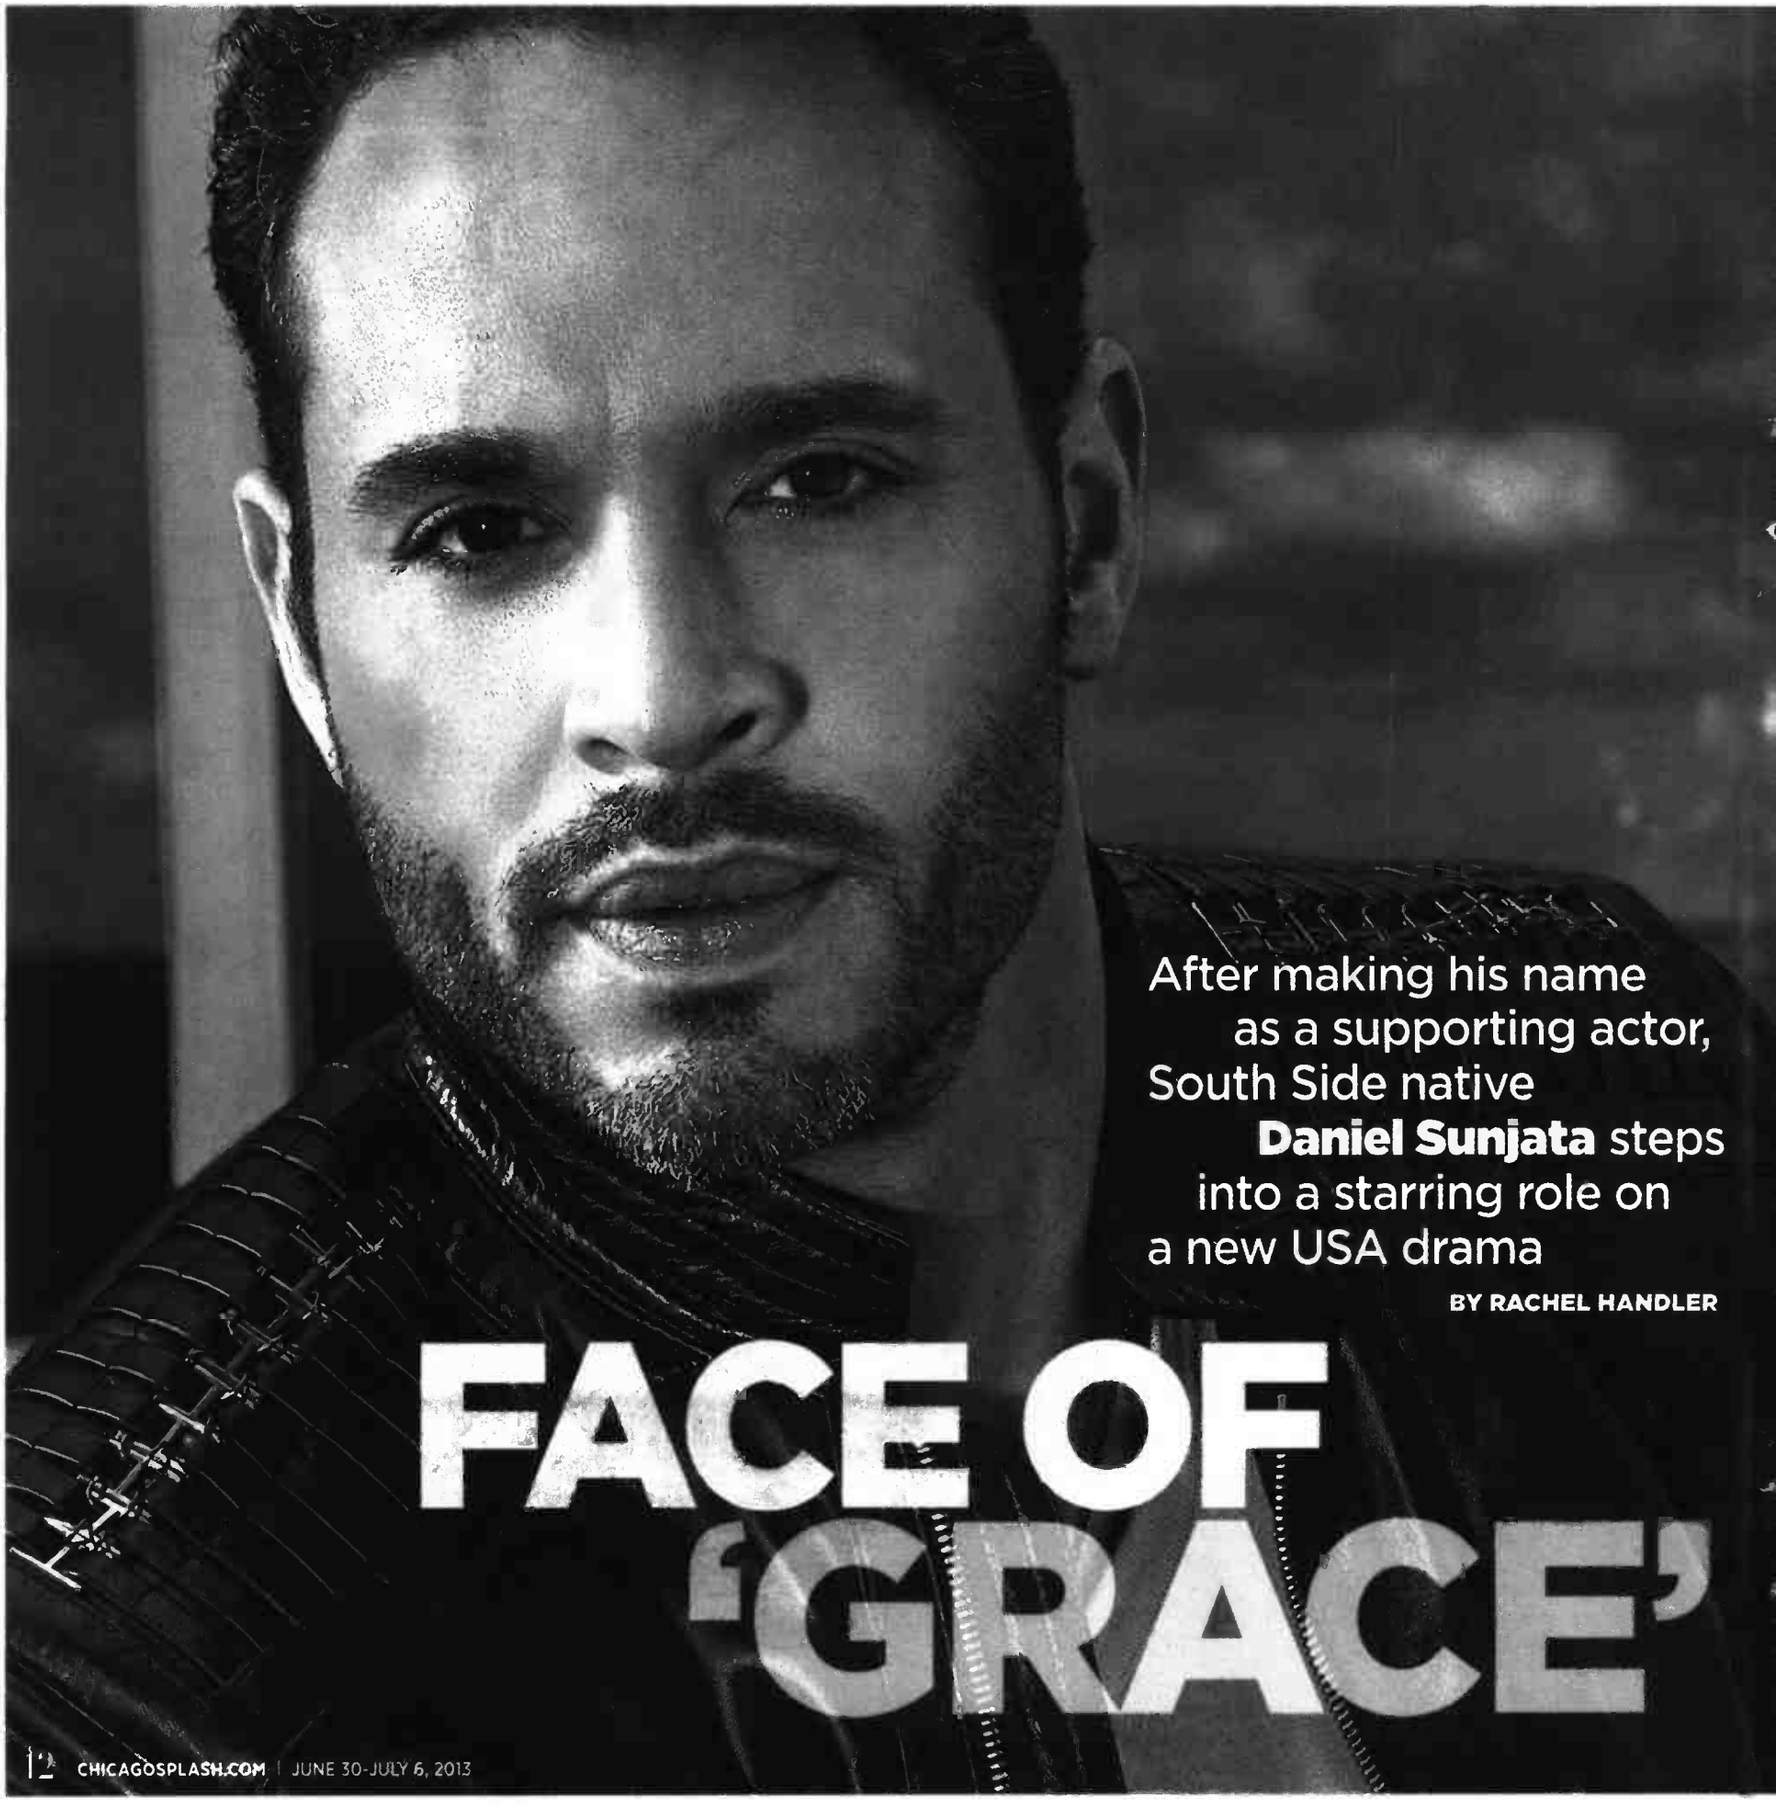
1 P.M.
To stock up on groceries, the chef goes to Mariano's (40 S. Halsted) for organic produce and cheese, and to check on his stock of Bello Boy Moscato.

2 P.M.
Laurita and Lane bike north up to Hollywood Beach (W. Hollywood and the lake) for a relaxing afternoon. "The eye candy there is priceless," Laurita laughs.



4 P.M.
Time for some retail therapy. Laurita hits Andersonville stores like Scout (left, 5221 N. Clark) and The Haymaker Shop (5507 N. Clark).

6 P.M.
For dinner Laurita heads to his old stomping grounds: Spiaggia (980 N. Michigan). "It's a place that's near and dear to my heart," he says. "It's where I got my start as a chef in Chicago."



After making his name as a supporting actor, South Side native Daniel Sunjata steps into a starring role on a new USA drama

BY RACHEL HANDLER

FACE OF 'GRACE'

Daniel Sunjata fell in love with the movies the first time he saw "Star Wars" at the age of 7. The film inspired him so much that, from his home on Chicago's South Side, he drafted a letter to director George Lucas. "Dear Mr. Lucas," he wrote, "I love your movies, and I'd like to make my own 'Star Wars' movie. Can I borrow your actors and camera equipment? I'm willing to give you my entire life savings: $123.23." Sunjata, now 41, never did make that film. But the letter resurfaced at a crucial juncture later in his life. "I was in college, deciding whether or not it was a good idea to change my major from business administration to theater, and I found that letter," he recalls. "I think the universe was dropping bread crumbs in front of me. That letter came back to me at a time when I really needed guidance as to what to do with my life."

Aaron Tveit and Daniel Sunjata in "Graceland"

It's safe to say that Sunjata chose wisely. Guided by that irrepressible ambition and assisted by chiseled good looks and impressive range, the actor has lined up role after high-profile role over the course of his 15-year career. He spent seven years playing opposite Denis Leary as heartthrob firefighter Franco Rivera in the FX series "Rescue Me," stared down Meryl Streep in "The Devil Wears Prada" and battled evil with Morgan Freeman in "The Dark Knight Rises." He's also had guest stints on hit shows like "Sex and the City," "30 Rock" and "Grey's Anatomy."

Now, Sunjata is finally taking his own place in the spotlight: He's starring as brooding, undercover narcotics agent Paul Briggs on USA's newest series, "Graceland," which debuted earlier this month.

"It's interesting how many people think you to be an overnight success when they see you on TV doing something substantive, as opposed to a guest role," Sunjata says of landing the lead. "But I've been in the game for quite some time. And while I'm proud of the fact that I've always been able to pay my bills with my passion, I have wanted more. So it's a wonderful gift."

Sunjata says he was attracted to "Graceland" immediately, both because of its creator (Jeff Eastin of "White Collar") and the unique premise. The series follows a group of undercover DEA, Customs and FBI agents living together in a Malibu beach house — and because it's based on actual events that took place in the '90s, the cast was able to gather intel from the agents who had overseen the real Graceland years before. "They indulged our actor-y questions," jokes Sunjata.

Sunjata had to do some convincing in order to land the role of Briggs in the first place. "At first, they were imagining more of a Matthew McConaughey, longhaired beach bum type [for the role]," says Sunjata. "And listening to that description, the name 'Daniel Sunjata' isn't the first person that pops to mind." Luckily, he aced the audition — and Eastin deleted the references to Briggs' beachy mane. "That long hair just wouldn't look right on me, man," he laughs.

Much to his dismay, Sunjata couldn't get Eastin to shed the veteran FBI agent's passion for watersports. "What I learned from shooting the show is, not only can I not surf, but I will never be able to surf," he says. While filming the pilot episode just off of Santa Monica Pier, "I started feeling sick at the beginning of the very first take," he says. "We were out there for about 45 minutes, and I definitely churned the water with my lunch. Thankfully not on camera."

Despite his surfing struggles, Sunjata has an athletic background. During his stint as a star linebacker at Mount Carmel High School, he imagined being recruited by a Big Ten college. When it didn't happen, Sunjata says, "I started entertaining the possibility of doing something else with my life."

At first, that meant a business degree, something he says he "chose arbitrarily because it sounded dependable." But after a semester spent struggling through calculus at Florida A&M, Sunjata started to question his decision. "I imagined my life 10 years down the road, working 70 hours a week on Wall Street, making six figures, having a house in the Hamptons and being absolutely miserable," he says. "So I thought, 'OK, I'm young, what's my dream?' "

While considering that question, Sunjata spotted an audition notice for a student-directed play, and despite being "nervous as all get-out," tried out and got the part. Though he only performed the play a handful of times in front of a sparse audience, "I had the time of my life," he says. That's when he stumbled upon the letter he'd penned to Lucas in a box of his childhood belongings.

Sunjata promptly transferred to the theater department, and after graduation trained at NYU's Tisch School of the Arts. After a brief period of unemployment in the late 1990s, he began picking up parts in plays like Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and the Tony-Award-winning "Take Me Out," plus guest spots on "Law and Order: SVU" and "Sex and the City."

The actor says he's still recognized more for his role as Carrie Bradshaw's would-be suitor than for any other character he's played. "On the street, I still get, 'Weren't you that sailor?' " he says. He credits his current success in part to the series. "I'm not a big believer in 'the big break.' It happens to so few people, probably as many that win the lottery. I got lucky enough to book a few relatively high-profile jobs close together."

The most memorable? The role of fashion designer James Holt in "The Devil Wears Prada." "That was the most surreal moment of my career," he says. "I could not stop thinking, 'You're acting in front of Meryl Streep. You're acting in front of Meryl Streep. What's your next line?' " he says. "That was the only time I was starstruck out of my game to the point where I had to collect myself in order to do my job."

Now that he's reached a high point in his career, Sunjata says he relies on his Chicago roots to stay grounded. He comes home as often as he can to reconnect with his family, which is scattered in cities like Aurora and Oswego. "We're very traditional in the sense that we just spend a lot of time at home together. It's so great to chill on the couch with my dad and watch a Bears game, because I'm away for so much of the time," he says.

He's also kept his strong emotional ties to the city. "I truly do love Chicago; my roots are there. But in particular, what I love and miss the most are the people," he says. "Which is why the exponential rise in violence — particularly among the city's poor and working classes — has got to cease. I'd like to see Chicago's leadership be proactive about getting tough on the circumstances which give rise to crime in the first place. Fighting fire with fire usually just results in more fire. We need water instead."

Though his heart lies in Chicago, Sunjata spends most of his time in LA, where he's fueled by the same burning ambition he has had since childhood. Even with "Graceland" on summer hiatus, he's not looking to take a break. "When actors aren't working, they're looking for work," he says. "Maybe I can squeeze something between now and what will hopefully be the second season of 'Graceland.' It depends on what the universe sends my way."

WHERE YOU'VE SEEN DANIEL

Sunjata has graced screens big and small for more than a decade. You might recognize him from:

"Sex and The City" as sailor-on-leave Louis Leroy

"The Devil Wears Prada" as fashion designer James Holt

"Ghosts of Girlfriends Past" as Jennifer Garner's would-be husband, Brad

"Grey's Anatomy" as the flirtatious nurse Eli

"Smash" as script doctor Peter Gilman

Princess bride

BY AMALIE DRURY

No pressure, brides-to-be, but all eyes are about to be on you — and the photos will last a lifetime. But an upcoming wedding is the best inspiration to look and feel your best. To help, we've rounded up a few Splash-approved beauty experts to get you in top form for the big day. Cue the wedding belles.

SHAPE UP

There are endless ways to slim down for your wedding, thanks to the multitude of gyms and fitness studios that have taken hold across the city. Burn maximum calories at stadium cycling studio Flywheel (Chicago.flywheelsports.com) — check out the puddle of sweat under your bike after 45 minutes of hyper-intense riding — or at a Shred415 session, where great soundtracks and cheerleader-esque instructors make the treadmill and weight-pumping intervals much less intimidating (Shred415.com). If high decibels and boot-camp-style encouragement aren't your thing, we love the serene workouts at barre studios like The Dailey Method (Thedaileymethod.com), which helps achieve a willowy physique with light weights and conditioning techniques that refine muscles without adding bulk. (TDM offers a bridal package that costs $450 for three months of unlimited classes.) For fast, tailored-to-you results, a personal trainer can keep tabs on progress and help you avoid injury by >> >> monitoring your form every step of the way. Equinox coach Nicole Kupish recommends starting approximately 18 weeks ahead of your wedding if you want to lose 15 to 20 pounds. With a trainer, "hitting a plateau is not an option," says Kupish, who advises at least two sessions per week combined with a cardio component you do on your own. (High-level trainers at Equinox cost $130 per hour; Equinox.com.) Separate consultations are scheduled to address nutrition — the most important component in weight loss. "You can't out-exercise a bad diet, no matter how hard you try," Kupish says.

SLIM DOWN

You're working out and eating right, but you don't want to take any chances on that Oscar de la Renta confection fitting like a dream. "Yes, you can go down a full dress size," with liposuction, says Chicago plastic surgeon Dr. Julius Few (875 N. Michigan, Fewinstitute.com). According to Few, brides who are candidates for the fat-removal surgery should schedule it at least six months ahead of the wedding. (If you're already thin, the results will be subtle.) Worried your arms might jiggle in that strapless dress? Try laser-assisted liposuction to the upper arms — a newer technology with a shorter, two-day recovery time — followed by several post-op radio frequency treatments to speed healing and help reduce swelling ($5,000-$6,000).

FACE FORWARD

If your skin is in good shape — no serious breakouts, redness or dryness — Dr. Amy Forman Taub of Advanced Dermatology (275 Parkway, suite 521, Lincolnshire, Advdermatology.com) suggests starting on wedding-ready skincare two to three months before the event. For a healthy glow, adopt a regimen that includes what Dr. Taub calls the "Core 4": sunscreen, an antioxidant formula, an exfoliant and a product that promotes the growth of new skin cells. If skin needs a more extensive overhaul, Taub recommends five to seven months of treatments like Photorejuvenation ($350-$500 per session) to reduce redness, pore size or pigmentation, or Sublative Rejuvenation ($750 per session) to diminish scarring. Or, address all issues in one fell swoop with a laser resurfacing treatment that helps with scarring, fine lines and wrinkles and starts at $2,500 — though it'll necessitate up to two weeks of post-procedure downtime. Whatever your skin strategy, don't underestimate the positive effects of de-stressing activities — like exercise — on your skin. "Try to relax," says Taub. "Don't worry over every last detail."

LASH OUT

If you don't have patience for nightly prescription treatments (with no guarantee of results), there are more immediate ways to get lush lashes before you bat them at the altar. At Johnathan Breitung salon and spa (3226 N. Lincoln, Johnathanbreitungsalon.com), the Butterfly Kisses Lash Lift ($100) perms your lashes into a pretty curl and tints them darker for added drama. Results last about four to six weeks — schedule your appointment two weeks before your wedding so the curl has time to settle in. And though lying on a table as someone fiddles with your eyes for an hour isn't exactly glamorous, the fact that you can skip the eyelash curler — and maybe even the mascara — for the wedding and honeymoon is well worth it.

SAY CHEESE

Wedding photos last forever — so your smile should radiate more than any centerpiece or chandelier. Try Zoom White Speed treatments, available at Weller Dental and Whitening Center (1050 N. State, Wellerdental.com). Treatments run about $400, but check for seasonal specials, which can sometimes lower the price to as little as $250. Dr. Jeffrey Weller recommends brides have the 90-minute procedure done about two weeks before the wedding so any "balancing of color" has time to occur. Porcelain veneers are another option, but they can be costly (up to $1,700 per tooth); for a less-expensive approach, Dr. Weller can perform simple tooth and soft tissue re-contouring treatments ($150 to $1,200) to give your smile better symmetry.

Kyla McCarthy & Tim Smithe Jr.

MIDDAY IN PARIS

For any would-be groom, meeting future in-laws is a nerve-racking experience. But for Tim Smithe Jr., getting on the good side of Chicago's Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy was an added challenge — one he welcomed when it came to winning the heart of the top cop's daughter, Kyla. Luckily, Dad approved. "He was happy I wound up with a good Midwestern boy," says McCarthy. With his blessing, McCarthy and Smithe planned three wedding celebrations in three different cities, kicking off the festivities in Chicago March 29 at Harry Caray's (33 W. Kinzie). Five generations of Smithes showed up for the bash, including grandfather Walter E. Sr., who began the Smithe family furniture business in 1945. The following month, Smithe and McCarthy flew to the bride's native New York to celebrate in Rockland County, then dashed back to Chicago June 1 — the same day as McCarthy's grandparents' 61st anniversary — to exchange vows at the courthouse. After signing their marriage license, they immediately joined family for brunch at the Ritz-Carlton Chicago (160 E. Pearson) before jetting off to Paris for an eight-day honeymoon. The pair concluded the revelry by reciting their vows under the Eiffel Tower and visiting the Pont des Arts bridge. "I came to Chicago wanting to try out a new city, but now it's changed my life," says McCarthy. "I can't believe it happened like this." — Katerina Bizios

NEW HEIGHTS

The Signature Room at the 95th celebrates its 20th birthday with a fresh chef and a throwback menu

BY SAMANTHA LANDE

When a restaurant is perched 1,000 feet above downtown Chicago, it's bound to become a dining destination. But The Signature Room at the 95th has become much more than that — after 20 years, it's become a landmark.

That's not to say the restaurant has relied solely on its prime location. The spot is known for timeless takes on classics like French onion soup, Waldorf salad and beef Wellington. And in October, owners Nick Pyknis and Rick Roman hired a new chef, Rosalia Barron, who has revamped the menus to reflect her "straightforward cooking style" and a keen focus on seasonal ingredients.

To celebrate its 20th anniversary, Barron has been studying original Signature Room menus, and plans to offer some "throwback" menu items in July (along with throwback pricing of $6.95 for the Thursday lunch buffet). "I want to bring back classics like clams casino and cherries jubilee," Barron says. "I'll stick to the same ingredients and cooking methods, but with more modern techniques and plating."

Haven't been up to the 95th floor in a while? Here's what else to expect at the Signature Room:

Chef stats: Barron, a native of Mexico City, most recently served as a corporate chef for the Levy Restaurant Group. She came to the Signature Room in October as the first female executive chef of the restaurant. Prior to that, she worked with culinary rock stars Rick Bayless and Carrie Nahabedian.

Duck trio

Vibe: The dining room may be formal — white tablecloths abound — but the atmosphere isn't stuffy. Above the floor-to-ceiling windows sit bright, animated murals celebrating local attractions. And the open staircase, connecting the Signature Lounge on the 96th floor to the dining room, is a prime spot for soaking in the impeccable views.

Cuisine: "We use local ingredients whenever possible, and I have a very close relationship with our farmers," Barron says. "I focus on simple, fresh ingredients." Case in point: Tomato Mountain Farm in Brooklyn, Wis., is growing a special Sun Gold tomato for Barron to use in her upcoming dish at the Green City Market BBQ, helping her achieve the perfect bright yellow color and flavor she desires.

Best seat in the house: Choosing a seat closest to one of the windows is a no-brainer when you have a breathtaking view of the city. Luckily, there are several of those prime tables.

Must-try dish: The menu is full of succulent entrees, but the tender, flavorful short ribs ($15) are hard to pass up. Barron seasons the ribs with salt and pepper, then marinates them overnight. In the morning, she sears them before braising for six hours. The short ribs are finished off with a polenta made of chicken stock, garlic, thyme and Parmesan, sauteed wild mushrooms and crispy leeks.

Giving back: The Signature Room team has always believed in philanthropy. In 1993, members launched their charity-of-the-month program, which to date has donated more than $1 million total tow 200 Chicago-area organizations. In July, proceeds will go to EdgeAlliance Homeless Veterans' Housing.

Millennials want to settle down in homes different from their parents' pads

BY LISA SKOLNIK

When looking for residences, those from the millennial generation prefer value to pizzazz, says a new survey by Wakefield Research for Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate. In contrast to what their boomer parents sought, they're looking for places that are packed with essentials instead of luxuries, such as transmutable spaces that can be customized, tech-friendly systems and high-efficiency mechanics and appliances — all on top of sustainable design and details. Plus, they want those places to be in pedestrian-friendly downtown neighborhoods with nearby public transportation, restaurants, shops, offices and services.

These findings are "totally on target," says Amanda Bell (inset, call 773-706-7442), Baird & Warner broker and, at 32 years old, a member of the millennial generation. "We've witnessed the housing slump, and seeing the market come back so fast, we're wary and really careful about how we spend our money. We're looking for value and resale potential, and rather than the best home on the block, we're interested in the neighborhood and the quality of the space so we can make a place our own." She notes that second bedrooms and parking spaces are prized features for resale down the line, even if they aren't a necessity at purchase time. All these qualities make 1000 W. Washington unit 331, a fully renovated, 1,000-square-foot timber loft with a 20-foot-wide open-plan living area, hardwood floors, stainless steel appliances, a private deck and a spacious, spa-like bathroom — right in the thick of the West Loop — a good and affordable option at $250,000. A parking space is extra for $19,900 (call Baird & Warner broker Nicholas Colagiovanni, 312-501-5151).

WHY BUY?

With housing prices and interest rates now at incredibly low levels (compared to highs just five years ago), "mortgage payments can be cheaper than rent," notes Prudential Rubloff broker Brad Lippitz. "And that means good apartments go fast." New to market — and sure to go soon — is this two-bedroom, one-bath, fully renovated 1920 apartment with an open living and dining area and a parking space at 6307 N. Glenwood (unit 3N) in Edgewater for $229,000 (call Lippitz at 773-404-1144).

DISPATCHES FROM OUR CHICAGOAN IN HOLLYWOOD, LIZ CROKIN

Ryan Gosling's premiere no-show

Ryan Gosling skipped the LA Film Festival's premiere of his new movie, "God Forgives," and a source tells me he regrets taking on the project.

The only thing more disappointing than not meeting Ryan was watching a movie that I naively anticipated to be like "The Notebook," but instead was an extremely violent and dark movie about a drug smuggler in Thailand. A source tells me Ryan did not show up because the film was panned at the Sundance Film Festival.

"He was embarrassed to show up to the premiere because his film got booed at Sundance," the source said. "He didn't want to deal with another unhappy audience."

It was a dark film, but the hunky actor still did a fine job in it. I think his fans will forgive him.

Battle over the baby name

The public anxiously waited for days to find out the name of Kim Kardashian and Kanye West's baby girl. It turns out, the delay was due to a secret battle over the name.

George Clooney and Stacy Keibler

An insider tells this column that the new parents feuded over potential names for their baby girl and ultimately, Kanye won with his first choice, North.

"Kim wanted to name her baby girl with a K-letter name," the source revealed. "Kanye did not. They butted heads for days. There was no way he was going to agree to a 'K' name."

It took Kanye some time to sell Kim on the name North.

"North was not Kim's first choice," the insider continued. "Kim and her mom, Kris Jenner, fought for a different name, but Kanye wouldn't budge."

The source said that the name has a lot of symbolic meaning, including the direction the slaves migrated during the Civil War. The source notes that it's no coincidence that Kanye addresses slavery in his new album.

"There was lots of inspiration there for the name North," said the source.

George & Stacy's secret date!

George Clooney and Stacy Keibler have faced breakup reports and have not been spotted out together for a while — until now.

My spy saw the two reunite at a taco dive called Plancha in Los Angeles.

"They both looked happy and they were eating tacos," an insider revealed.

Both George and Stacy have been accused in the press of cheating, but their relationship is still hanging on.

"It's not completely over yet," the source said. "There are still feelings there."

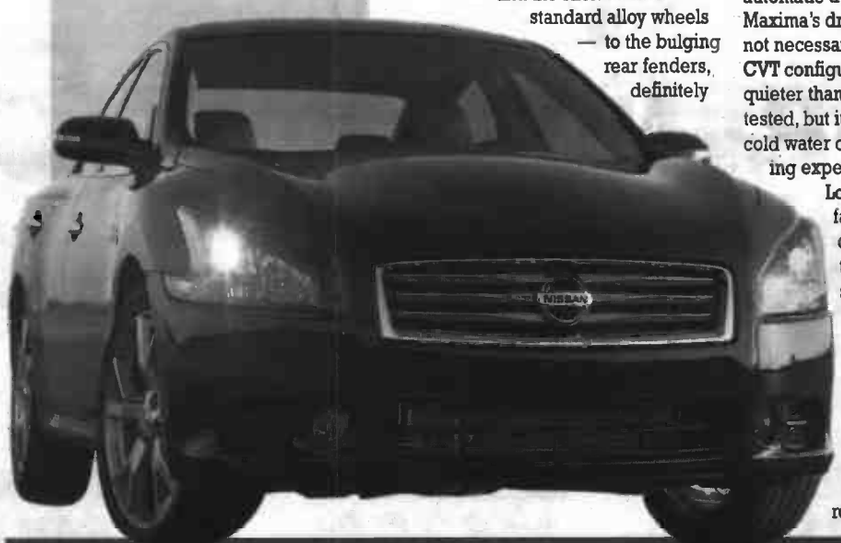
Nissan Maxima creates synergy between balanced and bold

BY JOHN STEIN
For Sun-Times Media

NISSAN MAXIMA

ENGINE: 3.5-liter V6
TRANSMISSION: CVT
DRIVETRAIN: front-wheel drive
FUEL ECONOMY: 19 city/26 highway
BASE PRICE: $31,000
AS TESTED: $40,005
WEBSITE:nissanusa.com



The 2013 Nissan Maxima provides a very interesting and attractive exterior, which manages to say bold without saying it too loudly. It's a fine line between boring and bold, and Maxima makes it happen with just the right mix of upscale quality and stylish fun.

The low-slung front grille is somewhat understated, but movement from the front fascia over the sloping roofline — and the slick 18-inch standard alloy wheels — to the bulging rear fenders, definitely changes from an calm tone to a much more aggressive look.

Traditionally, those who prefer a large sedan with a sportier drive chose the Maxima over its slimmed-down cousin, Altima. The new Maxima provides a Sport Package ($3,250), which includes a sport-tuned suspension and 19-inch aluminum-alloy wheels, which more than suffice to fill the need for speed.

With its 3.5-liter V6 engine and continuously variable automatic transmission, the Maxima's drive is good, but not necessarily thrilling. The CVT configuration is definitely quieter than others I have tested, but it does toss a bit of cold water on the overall driving experience.

Longtime Maxima fans may be a bit disappointed with the CVT transmission, but many drivers, in fact, most drivers, will not mind it at all. I found it easily handled routine driving around town and was usually pretty responsive to immediate calls for acceleration at highway speeds. The Environmental Protection Agency-estimated 19/26 miles per gallon city/highway is achieved while using premium gas.

My Maxima tester offered many features, such as a $700 Monitor Package that added the Rear View Monitor and a seven-inch color screen; an SV Value Package ($1,000) provides heated front seats, heated steering wheel and heated side mirrors. A Technology Package ($1,850) featured a navigation system and Bluetooth streaming audio. With a starting price of $33,570, including a $790 destination charge, my Maxima SV had a starting price is $35,870, and ultimately it landed at $40,005.

The Maxima is a large sedan and it provides a roomy cabin that is comfortable and accommodating. Front seats provided power adjustments, supple leather surfaces and a seat cushion extender for additional thigh support. The steering wheel had a comfortable leather grip and, as part of the SV Value Package, a heated steering wheel. Rear seating was roomy for tall occupants, and it easily accommodated three adults.

The center stack provides the perfect blend of technology and intuitive balance. I found the buttons were well marked and easy-to-use. The brushed-metal trim around the controls was attractive and a bit bolder than most of the other interior accents.

This is a relatively upscale interior and the fit and finish, including soft-touch surfaces, was outstanding. The huge standard moonroof creates a bright and roomy feel for the cabin.

The Maxima has standard front-wheel drive, four-wheel-disc antilock brakes with brake assist, an electronic stability system with traction control, active front head restraints and six airbags, including side curtains for both rows. Optional features are xenon high-intensity-discharge headlights and a backup camera, which is part of the Monitor Package ($700).

Overall, the Maxima is an exceptional vehicle that provides competitive value compared to others in the segment and it delivers a semi-luxury feel with an exterior look that is quietly bold and performance-inspired.

'Comedy of Errors' tours outdoors

BY MYRNA PETLICKI | Contributor

Performing in a park can have its hazards, from airplane noise to stray soccer balls to people inadvertently wandering onto the "set."

Julie Johnson, Stephen Yandell and Sammi Grant are part of the cast of Spectralia Theatre's "The Comedy of Errors."

That doesn't faze Northbrook native Julie Johnson, Buffalo Grove native Sammi Grant or Skokie resident Steven Yandell — outdoor performing veterans. They are all enjoying being part of Spectralia Theatre's Bard in the Parks production of "The Comedy of Errors," which is touring Chicago parks in cooperation with Friends of the Parks and the Chicago Park District.

Johnson and her husband Don are managing artistic directors of Spectralia. He created the 90-minute adaptation of Shakespeare's shortest play. She plays Adriana, the wife of Antipholous, a twin in this tale of confused identities.

Johnson has a history with the role of Adriana. "Back in 2005, I auditioned for a production of 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' which was the first Bard in the Parks production," she related.

Don Johnson, who was then a friend, was one of three people casting the show. "It was the first time I was auditioning for him," Johnson said. She chose one of Adriana's monologues from "The Comedy of Errors."

"I went to do my monologue — which I worked very hard on — and I completely forgot the whole thing," she said. "It was horrifying. I had never been in that situation before.'" She checked her script, finally remembered her lines and was cast as Titania.

Johnson and her husband decided to stage "The Comedy of Errors" with Julie as Adriana because they are celebrating their fifth anniversary this summer. "We thought, why not go back to that moment in time that really brought us together?" she said.

Sammi Grant plays Adriana's servant Luce, and she also serves as text coach.

Grant earned a bachelor of fine arts degree in acting from Illinois Wesleyan University in 2012. After graduating, she performed in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at a theater in Maryland, and then returned to Chicago where she did dialect coaching for Circle Theatre and Metropolis Performing Arts Center, among other venues. "This is my Chicago premiere," Grant said.

Although Grant is legally blind, it doesn't hinder her performing career. She either scans a script into her computer and has the computer read the script to her or, because she has a little vision in her left eye, uses a specialized machine which allows her to read. It helps that Grant has an outstanding memory. "I have to be memorized before the rehearsal because I can't read a script while I'm rehearsing," she explained.

Steve Yandell, a junior at Loyola University, has been doing theater since he was around 9 when he performed the role of the title character in "Amahl and the Night Visitors," with the Community Church Players in Wilmette. Most recently, he played Valere in Loyola's production of "Tartuffe."

Yandell is playing three roles in "The Comedy of Errors."

"Everyone has a best friend who wants the best for you and is willing to take his lumps to get it for you," Yandell said of his first role, Balthazar. "He's a genuinely good guy who might not go about things in the best way possible."

Yandell also plays the Second Merchant and the Town Jailer.

Even though outdoor theater has its hazards, all three actors are enthusiastic about that setting.

"I love performing outdoors because you can see the audience," Johnson said. "It makes me think of what theater probably was like in the very early days before artificial lighting."

Get a 'Taste' of cupcakes, crepes, and goat

If you've got goat meat and bananas foster cupcakes on your culinary bucket list, there's no time like the present to cross those out.

The Taste of Chicago returns to Grant Park July 10-14. | AP PHOTO

You'll find both at the 33rd annual Taste of Chicago, which returns July 10-14 in Grant Park.

In addition to the 35 food vendors seven pop-up restaurants will be located on Columbus Drive.

New to the festival this year are 14 food trucks, with up to seven trucks a night selling entrees and desserts. They will park on the easternmost concrete path (parallel to Lake Shore Drive) and begin selling one hour before the evening concerts at the Petrillo Band Shell.

Other amenities at the Taste include the Dominick's Cooking Corner, Bud Light Stage of local music, the Family Village for children and the Petrillo Music Shell main stage entertainment, which has free lawn seating. Concert headliners are: fun, July 10; Robin Thicke, July 11; Robert Plant Presents the Sensational Space Shifters, July 12; Jill Scott, July 13; and Neon Trees, July 14.

Here are a sampling of restaurants that represent the old (Eli's) and new (Flip Crepe) at the 2013 Taste of Chicago. In addition to the main items, each restaurant will do two or three smaller, cheaper "taste" portions.

Bobak Sausage Co.; 5725 S. Archer Ave.; (773) 735-5334; www.bobak.com.

What to expect: Maxwell Street Polish sausage with grilled onions, steak sausage, summer seasoned grilled drumsticks and breaded pizza balls.

Cost/booth: Between 5-8 tickets; booth 1

Bobak's Sausage, founded in 1967, is a USDA meat processor of old world sausages and deli meats.

"Our Maxwell Polish is what we're known for. We've done that every year we've been in the Taste," said Amanda Pawlak, marketing assistant. "Our steak sausage is our new line of all-beef sausage; we make it all-natural. Our drumstick is something that is very popular in the hot food eatery, so it makes sense to bring it to the Taste of Chicago."

Carbon Live Fire Mexican Grill; 300 W. 26th St.; (312) 225-3200; www.carbonmex.com.

What to expect: Steak taco, tilapia taco, chicken taco, tamales wrapped in corn husks.

Cost/booth: 4 tickets/booth 11

Carbon is hoping to make a splash with their tacos, said owner John Falduto.

"We're bringing our steak taco, which is very tender and juicy; then we have our tequila and lime-marinated chicken and our tilapia taco, which is hand-breaded with corn chips," he said.

Falduto is expecting to sell anywhere from 800 to 1,000 tacos an hour.

"We're also pricing everything at a very competitive price this year," he said. "We're trying to take the Taste back to its roots where it was years ago when it was just tastes instead of whole entrée items."

Chicago Cupcake, food truck; (312) 300-4797; www.chicagocupcake.com.

What to expect: Red velvet, turtle, bananas foster, cookies and cream.

Cost, booth: 9 tickets/food truck

Chicago Cupcake will be one of the new food trucks participating in this year's Taste. You can find them selling their delicacies from 4-9 p.m. July 12, 13 and 14 by the Petrillo Band Shell.

Flavors will include the turtle cupcake (chocolate cake, caramel filling and white chocolate Italian buttercream on a graham cracker crust); the red velvet (red velvet cake on a chocolate wafer crust and covered with cream cheese frosting) and the bananas foster (banana cake infused with brown sugar and rum on a graham cracker crust topped with brown sugar Italian buttercream).

Eli's Cheesecake, 6701 W. Forest Preserve Dr., (773) 736-3417; www.elicheesecake.com. (773) 447-1315.

Eli's Cheesecake has the honor of being the only participant at the Taste that has been with the festival every year since its beginnings in 1980.

"We've developed a lot of products in relation to Taste since we started," said owner Marc Schulman. For example, the frozen cheesecake on a stick and the cheesecake Smoosh (cheesecake and ice cream topped with chocolate sauce) are perfect summertime additions to their Taste menu.

"For us, Taste is very special because it was at that first Taste on July 4, 1980 that my dad's cheesecake had ever been sold outside the restaurant," Schulman said.

Flip Crepes is new to this year's Taste of Chicago. It's something owner Antoine Elie has been thinking about doing for a couple of years.

"We are very excited to be a part of it," he said. "The crepes will be made fresh in front of our customers, so we're bringing in a lot batter and a filling."

Wishbone Restaurant; 1001 W. Washington Blvd.; (312) 850-2663; http://www.wishbonechicago.com.

What to expect: Hoppin' John salad, North Carolina-style pork sandwich served with Lexington slaw, North Carolina-style hot dog, chicken etouffee over rice.

Cost/booth: Between 1-7 tickets/booth

Since appearing at the Taste in 2001, costumers have been asking for Wishbone Restaurant to return, said owner Joel Nickson.

"We're a first-timer as far as the Taste organizers are concerned," he said.

They are bringing a hoppin' John salad which is black eyed peas, brown rice, scallions and tomatoes.

"It's a good summertime dish," Nickson said. "Especially with the onion vinaigrette we make. Then we're doing our North Carolina-style pork sandwich, which is a little different because it is more vinegar-y and not a sweet barbecue sauce." ■

Mary Macaroni makes music, magic at Family Festival

BY MYRNA PETLICKI | Contributor

Kids love Macaroni — Mary Macaroni, that is. The lively children's entertainer will keep kids involved during a Tuesday Family Festival, 7 p.m. July 9 at Lorel Park, 8135 Lorel Ave., Skokie.

"I do a music and magic show," said Karen Burris, who performs as Mary Macaroni. "It's geared toward all children. The little kids are more interested in the music. I'll play guitar and sing. I do a bunch of interactive songs, where they're jumping and skipping and hopping. I've got instruments for them — shakers and bells and scarves."

Burris primarily performs covers although she sometimes adds her own lyrics to familiar melodies.

After the music, the magic begins, which is geared toward kids age 5 and older.

"I use a lot of volunteers," Burris said. "It's fun magic where things fall apart or it fools me — they see what's going on and I don't."

She described the magic stunts as "very visual with things that they know."

For details, call (847) 674-1500 or go to www.skokieparks.org.

DON'T BE FRIGHTENED

Sure, "Monsters, Inc." is about the largest scare factory in the monster world, but it's a G-rated animated film so it won't scare younger viewers. The 93-minute movie will be shown at 2 p.m. July 12 at Park Ridge Public Library, 20 S. Prospect Ave.

Steans Institute marks 25th year

BY DOROTHY ANDRIES | Contributor

Concerts, commissioned works and master classes mark the celebration of the 25th anniversary of Ravinia's Steans Music Institute.

Students in the festival's summer conservatory for young professionals will present numerous concerts in Bennett Gordon Hall throughout the season and faculty members will give a concert Friday, July 5 in the Martin Theatre.

The institute, located yearround in the John D. Harza Building since 1988, began as a dream of the late Edward Gordon, who was the festival's executive director from 1968 to 1989. A combination of a rigorous admissions policy and internationally known faculty members proved to be a winning combination, said Miriam Fried, who joined the institute in 1991 and has been director of the piano and strings program for 20 years.

RSMI, as it is now called, began with programs for piano and strings, which the first year drew 24 young professionals. Voice was added in 1992 and in 2000 a jazz program started, something unique for classical venues. The total of participants now comes to between 60 to 70.

"The students were and still are attracted by our faculty," Fried said one sunny afternoon at the festival the week the institute began. "And the faculty comes because of the high level of our students."

Faculty members commit to one week of coaching and teaching, while students, now called Ravinia Fellows, stay for five weeks. "So the young musician gets the experience of five different professionals," the program director continued.

The season will present many new pieces commissioned for the celebration of this sterling anniversary. David Ludwig, whose musical pedigree includes grandfather Rudolf Serkin, will come to the festival and coach players in his new string quartet. "There is much more give and take among composers and players than you might think," said Fried.

Ludwig, who is not yet 40, is on the composition faculty at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. His piano quartet will get its world premiere on July 8 by Steans Fellows. "It is an extraordinary opportunity for our students to work directly with the person who wrote the music," Fried declared.

In addition to his string quartet, Ludwig has been commissioned along with Jake Heggie, Aaron Jay Kernis, Ramsey Lewis, Stephen Paulus, Roberto Sierra and Augusta Read Thomas to create new works for the program for singers. Those songs will be given their world premieres on Aug. 12 in Bennett Gordon Hall.

It's no surprise that as the reputation of RSMI grew, hundreds of talented young musicians in the early stages of their careers would want to be part of this special kind of Ravinia summer. "I don't envy Miriam the job of narrowing down the number in the piano and strings program to 30 participants," said Anthony Roberts, now in his fourth season as director of the institute.

Fried recalls that before everything was done on line she had tapes in big black garbage bags. "They were in piles all over our place," she said, shaking her head, "one for 'no,' one for 'yes' and one for 'maybe.' Now it is much easier."

The jazz program is by invitation only, but the young musicians and singers are auditioned into the institute for one year. They may also be selected for a second summer of study. "It is very important to have a mix of the new and the veterans," said Fried.

The creation and idea of RSMI evolved from Ravinia's summer series of master classes beginning in 1972 with Alexis Weissenberg and Rudolf Firkušný, in collaboration with the Northwestern University School of Music. While the affiliation between Ravinia and NU did not become permanent, the seeds for a program for young musicians were planted.

When asked what she thought Ed Gordon would say about Ravinia's Steans Music Institute on its 25th anniversary, Miriam Fried replied, "He would be very pleased."

Duo Piano Fest draws international talent

BY DOROTHY ANDRIES | Contributor

The Music Institute of Chicago has been sponsoring the Chicago Duo Piano Festival for a quarter of a century.

When Nichols Concert Hall opened in Evanston a decade ago, MIC faculty members joined festival founders Ralph Neiweem and his wife Claire Aebersold and prepared two-piano pieces for an additional recital.

This year's festival opens July 12 with Aebersold and Neiweem playing a two-piano arrangement of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," as well as pieces by Schubert and Ravel.

"The festival started in Winnetka," said Aebersold, "and it was small until 10 years ago when Nichols Concert Hall opened." The Liszt 200 celebration in 2011 also sparked interest in piano repertoire, she added, observing that in addition to numerous teaching pianos, Nichols boasts two nine-foot concert grands.

Aebersold is particularly pleased that there will be two faculty recitals in celebration of the event's 25th anniversary, one Sunday afternoon, July 14 and another Tuesday evening, July 16.

Among Neiweem and Aebersold's MIC colleagues playing July 14 is Xiao-min Liang and her piano partner and guest artist Jue He, presenting an arrangement of Prokofiev's Classical Symphony. "It is a great transcription by Rikuya Terashima, not often played," Liang declared. "We heard Martha Argerich and Yefim Bronfman play it on YouTube and we decided to do it."

Also performing are Mio Isoda and her husband Matthew Hagle, who has been on the MIC faculty for 14 years. Their number is Debussy's "En blanc et noir."

"It was written toward the end of the composer's life and it is elusive," Hagle said. Hagle said that he and his wife find duo-piano playing especially easy. "We were trained by the same teacher," he explained. "We know what each other is supposed to do. It is the most fun, playing piano with my wife."

Elaine Felder of Highland Park and her piano partner Milana Pavchinskaya of Glenview will play Concertino for Two Pianos by Shostakovich, in a transcription made by the composer himself.

In honor of Wagner's birthday year, the second faculty recital on July 16 is called an Extravaganza Concert. Among its usual features will be a quartet of women playing a piano version of the composer's "Ride of the Valkyries" on two pianos, followed by four men playing the Prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

Concluding the festivities will be the guest duo Olga and Yuiri Sherbakov of the Ukraine, playing works by Ukrainian and Russian composers.

Holding this all together is Fiona Queen, who joined MIC in 2004 and is director of performance activity at MIC. She is herself a pianist, but said, "I decided to concentrate on the front of the house. People really look forward to this event, and there are so many connections this year, we want everything to be just right."

OPENING THIS WEEK

DESPICABLE ME 2

★★½
Rated
PG for rude humor and mild action
Stars
Steve Carell, Kristen Wiig, Russell Brand, Ken Jeong
The formerly despicable super-villain Dr. Gru (Carell) returns as a good guy in this tepid sequel to the surprise 2010 mega-hit. Not that it really matters, since he's been completely upstaged by his cheerily demented little yellow minions. After stealing the moon (and putting it back) in the original and renouncing his nefarious ways, Gru is now devoted to raising his cute little adopted daughters and getting into the "tasty jams and jellies" business — until he's recruited by the MI6-like Anti-Villain League to help track down another super-baddie who's stolen a monster-making serum. There's also a little on-the-job romance as Gru falls for his over-eager partner Agent Lucy Wilde (Wiig), but most of the giggles come courtesy of the minions.

I'M SO EXCITED!

Rated
R for strong sexual content including crude references, and drug use
Stars
Antonio Banderas, Penelope Cruz, Javier Camara, Laya Marti
After learning their landing gear is disabled and they may not be able to find a runway, the passengers, crew and pilots on an international flight confide their deepest secrets and explore their sexual longings. Pedro Almodovar ("Volver," "Talk to Her") wrote and directed the comedy.

THE LONE RANGER

Rated
PG-13 for sequences of intense action and violence, and some suggestive material
Stars
Johnny Depp, Armie Hammer, Helena Bonham Carter, Tom Wilkinson
The masked avenger and his faithful sidekick Tonto (Hammer and Depp) ride again in this blockbuster action comedy. Directed by Gore Verbinski ("Pirates of the Caribbean").

THE WAY, WAY BACK

★★★½
Rated
PG-13 for thematic elements, language, some sexual content and brief drug material
Stars
Steve Carell, Sam Rockwell, Toni Collette, Allison Janney
Though there's little that's new about "The Way, Way Back," this generally satisfying coming-of-age comedy is familiar in a good way. Think of it as a cross between 2009's summer-job-in-a-cheesy-amusement-park comedy "Adventureland" and a "Meatballs"-era Bill Murray comedy with a fair amount of teen angst and family drama mixed in. The writing/directing debut of Oscar-winning screenwriters Nat Faxon and Jim Rash opens with 14-year-old Duncan (Liam James) grudgingly tagging along with his divorced mom (Janney) for a summer vacation with her new boyfriend Trent (Carell). Some of the dramatic scenes, as Liam suffers through his mother's carousing with Trent's tawdry friends, feel a bit forced. Fortunately, the same isn't true of the lighter moments, when he's taken under the wing of the scruffy manager (Rockwell) of an antiquated water park and drawn into an awkward romance with the girl next door (AnnaSophia Robb).

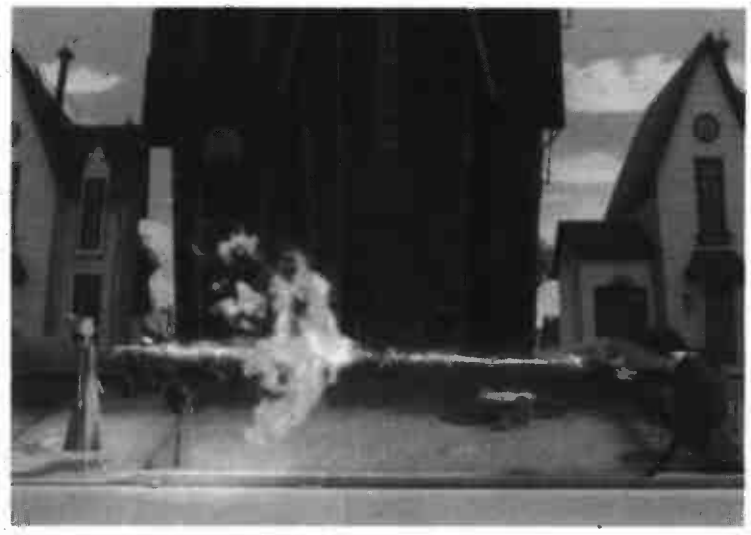
STILL PLAYING

THE HEAT

★★★½
Rated
R for pervasive language, strong crude content and some violence
Stars
Melissa McCarthy, Sandra Bullock, Marlon Wayons, Michael Rapaport
An uptight FBI agent (Bullock) and a loose-cannon cop (McCarthy) are forced to work together to take down a vicious drug lord.

WHITE HOUSE DOWN

Rated
PG-13 for prolonged sequences of action and violence including intense gunfire and explosions, some language and a brief sexual image
Stars
Channing Tatum, Jamie Foxx, Maggie Gyllenhaal, James Woods
It's déjà vu all over again (with diminishing returns) as this big-budget, White House-under-attack thriller goes over pretty much the same ground the scruffier "Olympus Has Fallen" covered just three months ago — considerably more effectively. Tatum is the one-man army in this one and Foxx is the president he has to save when paramilitary bad guys take over 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. Director Roland Emmerich provides bigger explosions and inserts humor into the equation wherever possible, but giving the president buddy-movie co-star status and rescuing him very early in the game splits the focus and neuters the suspense compared to the comparatively serious "Olympus." There are nice bits here and there, though, including an insane car chase on the White House lawn involving the armored presidential limo, a tank and some rocket launchers.



"Despicable Me 2"

MAN OF STEEL

Rated
PG-13 for intense scenes of sci-fi violence, action and destruction, and for some language
Stars
Henry Cavill, Amy Adams, Michael Shannon, Russell Crowe
Though its self-mythologizing smacks of pomposity at times and its super-mega-spectacular action sequences are so mind-boggling it's sometimes hard to follow what's going on, you have to give "Man of Steel" credit for one thing. It's not dull. This latest attempt to reboot the "Superman" franchise (a decided improvement over the decidedly dull 2006 "Superman Returns") generates plenty of entertainment and excitement when everything's clicking. It's essentially a reworking of the familiar Superman origin story with a fair amount of new stuff tossed in. The first half of "Man of Steel" is devoted to young Clark Kent trying to figure out who he is and what he wants to do about it before a whopping confrontation with Krypton's renegade General Zod (Shannon), with the fate of the Earth at stake. The best thing about it, though? Henry Cavill seems to have been born to play the lead role. ■

Movie Review

Tonto steals the show in 'Lone Ranger'

BY BRUCE INGRAM | Film Critic

"The Lone Ranger"

No doubt Clayton Moore, who played the Lone Ranger on TV from 1949-1957, could not have foreseen a time when the masked avenger would be the sidekick and Tonto would be the star.

That's exactly what's happened in the new "Lone Ranger," though, and it's kind of a welcome change. It feels like good karma, too, despite the fact that TV Tonto Jay Silverheels, a real-life Canadian Mohawk, has been replaced by Johnny Depp wearing a dead bird for a hat.

Johnny Depp and Armie Hammer in "The Lone Ranger."

Another team effort by mega-producer Jerry Bruckheimer and director Gore Verbinski, who scored spectacularly with the "Pirates of the Caribbean" trilogy (largely thanks to Depp, of course), this big, bombastic, but oddly mixed 21st-century "Ranger" is basically an origin story setting the stage for sequels. Though, somehow, it's hard to imagine this turning into a franchise no matter how well it does at the box office. Constructed as a lengthy (and not entirely credible) story being told by the aged Tonto to a little boy at a Wild West Exhibition in 1933, it gets under way on the train bringing him and future masked-man John Reid (Armie Hammer of "The Social Network") to the dusty town of Colby, Texas in the 1860s. Reid is an earnest law-and-order idealist coming home after law school to be the county prosecutor. Tonto is in chains, riding in the back with outlaw Butch Cavendish (William Fichtner), who's scheduled to be hanged.

Things don't go according to plan, of course, and Butch is rescued by his gang and subsequently tracked by Texas Ranger Dan Reid (James Badge Dale) and his posse, with brother John in tow, declaring that Cavendish must be brought back alive for due process. Treachery occurs, the Rangers are ambushed and left for dead until Tonto arrives with a mystical white stallion to bring John back to the living.

After that, and Tonto's explanation that John has become a spirit walker, they reluctantly team up to bring Butch to justice. And that process uncovers a remarkably complicated tale of white man's greed, a secret silver mine, an army massacre of Native Americans and a one-legged redheaded prostitute (Helena Bonham Carter). All of which calls for a complex mixture of mind-boggling action, heart-rending drama and oddball comedy that never quite settles into just the right formula.

Not that it really matters because Verbinski doesn't let things sit still long enough for the general offness to sink in. Also Depp is great, throughout, he and the appropriately bumbling Hammer have a nice chemistry, and the whole business builds to a whopping finale.

It helps, also, that the funniest line in the film is saved for the last and that it's uttered by Tonto.

So who was that strange masked man? Just a second-banana, it turns out. ■

Niles West alum Loyd looks to be the go-to player at Notre Dame

BY DAN SHALIN | Contributor | @danshalin

Most people who watched Jewell Loyd's All-American high school basketball career at Niles West knew the Lincolnwood native would become a college star.

Perhaps no one expected Loyd to be so good so soon at Notre Dame.

Loyd seemed to be the rare player who needed no adjustment period when going from high school to college hoops. The 5-foot-10 guard made an immediate impact as a freshman for the Fighting Irish this past season. She had a breakout game early against powerhouse Baylor and later helped Notre Dame to three wins over eventual national champion Connecticut, a victory on the road against Tennessee and a trip to the Final Four.

Loyd, who averaged 12.5 points per game and usually drew the toughest defensive assignment, was named the Big East Freshman of the Year and the Women's National Freshman of the Year by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

Even Notre Dame head coach Muffet McGraw, a Women's Basketball Hall of Famer, said Loyd had exceeded her expectations.

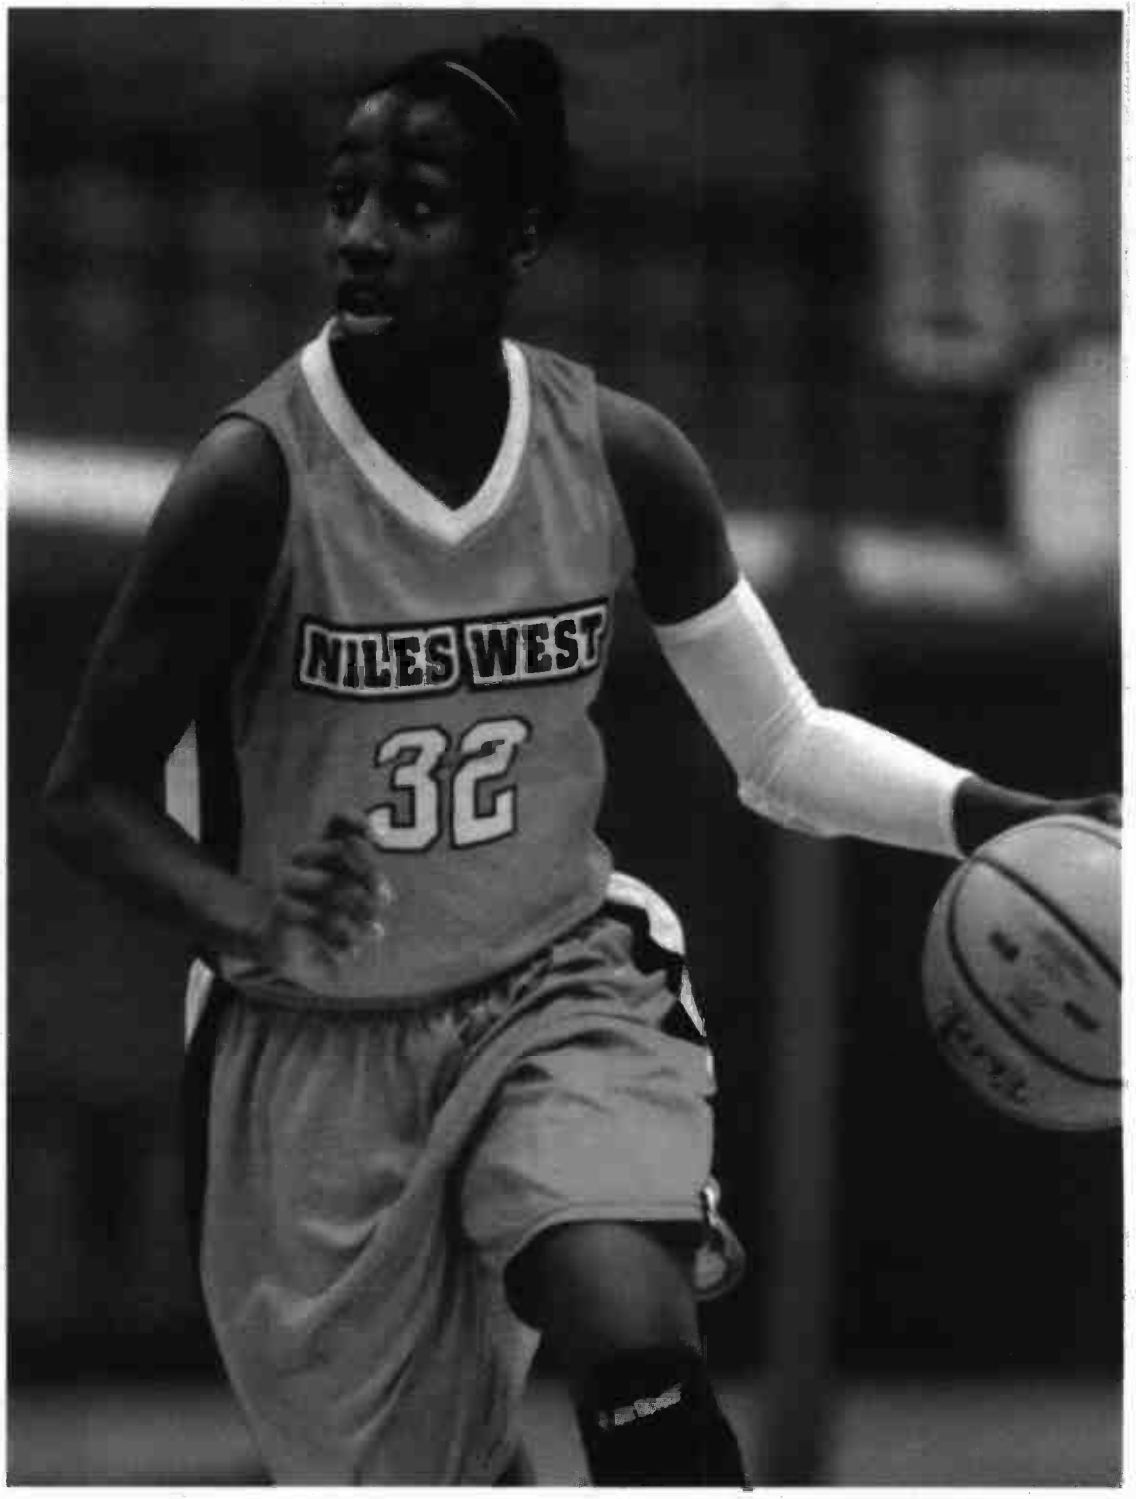
"(Loyd) was a starter the first day of practice and she had a career high early in December against Baylor. That made us realize how good she could be," the coach said. "I didn't expect that a freshman would play like that in the biggest game of the year to that point."

While those in the area and the state certainly knew the name Jewell Loyd, it was that 24-point, seven-rebound performance against Brittney Griner and Baylor on national television that brought Loyd to the attention of a much wider public.

Although Notre Dame ultimately lost 73-61 in a rematch of the previous year's national championship game, ESPN commentators spent the broadcast raving about Loyd.

"I went back and checked my phone (after the game) and there were a ton of text messages, and Twitter was blowing up," Loyd said recently from South Bend, Ind., where she is training, taking summer classes and working the program's summer camp. "I try not to get too caught up in the media that comes with success. But (the attention) makes you feel you are doing something well. "

All the early success could have gone to a player's head, but McGraw said Loyd stayed grounded. Loyd said McGraw and the coaching staff played a pivotal role in her swift development by showing belief in her so early. The player also said teammate Skylar Diggins, the All-American point guard, was an incredible mentor.



Jewell Loyd, pictured during her playing days at Niles West, starred at Notre Dame as a freshman this past season. She said she expects to expand her role, now that All-American Skylar Diggins has graduated and plays in the WNBA. | DAN LUEDERT-Sun-Times Media

"Playing with Skylar is like playing with Michael Jordan. It humbles you as a player and a person," said Loyd about the player who is now a member of the WNBA's Tulsa Shock. "She was a great player and took me under her wing from the moment I got onto campus. She's really a big sister and helped me develop, answered any questions."

Loyd and the Fighting Irish had hoped to send Diggins out with a national title. But that dream came to an end when UConn finally solved Notre Dame and posted an 83-65 win in the national semifinal in New Orleans.

Although disappointed, Loyd said the Final Four experience was a memorable one. She said there is a sense of unfinished business heading into the 2013-14 season.

"The Final Four was a learning experience for basketball, and it was great just going to the banquet and seeing New Orleans, just getting out of your comfort zone, and (dealing with) all the media," Loyd said. "It was a great experience and you want to go back there. It's like Disney, you want to go back, and when you become a teenager, go back again. You want to go back until you can't anymore. I felt that the moment I got back into the gym (after the season), I felt motivation to get back to the Final Four. I'm pretty sure that's everyone's mind-set."

An early preseason poll by ESPNW, ranked Notre Dame at No. 10 in the country ahead of next season. The team obviously will miss Diggins, but still has a solid nucleus in Loyd, senior guard Kayla McBride and senior forward Natalie Achonwa.

McGraw said the team will be depending on an even greater contribution from Loyd during her sophomore year. Though she's not expected to replace Diggins at point guard, Loyd likely will have more ballhandling responsibilities.

"We're excited about the possibilities," the coach said. "Jewell has a tremendous work ethic and she'll continue to get better. We're excited about her playing a bigger role and stepping in and just knowing (we'll depend on her) every night." ■

Plenty of brothers have played in the big leagues at the same time. In fact, it's so common that brothers had actually hammered home runs in the same game a surprising 27 times. The 27th occurrence happened when B.J. and Justin Upton did it for Atlanta against Colorado early in the 2013 campaign. But the Upton blasts came back-to-back, just the second time in major league history that brothers hit dingers on consecutive at bats. The others: Lloyd and Paul Waner for the Pittsburgh Pirates in September of 1938.

Which is the most valuable franchise in all of sports? The New York Yankees? The Dallas Cowboys? The Los Angeles Lakers? No, no and no. According to the 2013 rankings by Forbes Magazine, on top is the Real Madrid soccer club at a whopping $3.3 billion – that billion, with a "b." Real Madrid supplanted the Manchester United soccer franchise, valued at $3.17 billion. Until 2013, Man U had claimed the top spot every year since Forbes began publishing the list in 2004.

Every baseball fan has hoped to catch a ball at a game – a home run, a foul pop, whatever. For Zack Hample, it's more than a hope... it's a science. Hample claims he's been able to get at least one ball at 880 consecutive games, a streak dating back to 1993. For the right price, he'll take "clients" to games and guarantee that each person will get a ball. He's been to all 30 stadiums, and he says his trick is that he is constantly on the move throughout the game. If you don't believe him, he's got a web site tracking his relentless pursuit.

Niles North's Nix gets his shot at Division I

BY MIKE ECKERT | Contributor | @Pioneer_Press

Good things come to those who wait.

Malachi Nix already had graduated from Niles North when he finally got what he was looking for — a scholarship to play Division I basketball. The 5-foot-8 Nix recently accepted an offer from Fairleigh Dickinson, and he said he will head to the New Jersey school in early July.

"I liked their whole coaching staff," Nix said. "They like to play the same way that I do."

Nix's aspirations of playing at the Division I level came true, even if it was at the 11th hour. Things also worked out for first-year Fairleigh Dickinson coach Greg Herenda with the signing.

"It's a great addition to add this late in the process," said Herenda, who was hired by the Knights in late April. "I had some tentacles out there. An alum at UMass Lowell (Herenda's former team) alerted me to him, and the more research I did, the more I liked him. At the end of the day, it was like it was meant to be."

Despite the late start, Herenda pieced together a class that includes Nix and fellow Chicago standout Scott Kingsley from St. Rita. It's possible Herenda said he still could add another player or two before the fall.

Nix said that he sees a lot of similarities between Herenda and Glenn Olson, the coach at Niles North. There also are some similarities in the two programs.

Fairleigh Dickinson has four NCAA tournament appearances since 1985 — including a 2005 first-round loss to Illinois — but the Knights were 15-74 over the last three seasons.

"(Nix is) a winner," Olson said. "Fairleigh Dickinson is struggling a little bit right now, but they've got a new coach coming in. That's the exact same situation he came into high school with. It was a struggling program with a new coach, but he was able to see it through."

Olson and Nix led the Vikings to three regional titles, two CSL North championships and one sectional title. Herenda hopes that Nix can repeat that success at Fairleigh Dickinson.

"He's not afraid," Herenda said. "He's 5-foot-8, not 6-foot-8. But he's out to prove people wrong. That's what I love about him."

If Fairleigh Dickinson hadn't worked out, Nix said he was considering going to Ohio Dominican or attending a prep school for a year. Now that he's landed at a Division 1 program, he'll be competing for playing time right away.

"I tell all freshmen, 'Don't wait to be great,' but that's especially true this year," Herenda said. "We need our freshmen to come in and help us. I know that's (Nix's) intent." ■
