Q: Why is the Lincolnwood library where you've stayed longest?

A: I love the diversity here and the small community feel — like the fact that I can get to know patrons. People are just so interesting here.

Q: Where did you grow up?

A: Alsip, where the grave-digging scandal was.

Q: What's on your reading list?

A: "The Addicted Lawyer" by Brian Cuban, who I just got to meet because my friend runs a suicide prevention nonprofit. I want to read Bob Mankoff's book — "How about Never — Is Never Good For You?" He's a New Yorker cartoonist.

Q: First job?

Q: As a kid, what did you want to be when you grew up?

A: An artist. Originally, I was doing photography and design at Saint Xavier University, which was right next door to my high school. I'm taking acting classes at Second City right now.

Q: A show or movie you'd recommend?

A: I'm addicted to a show right now, which is a little embarrassing.

It's called "Jane, the Virgin." There's mystery and drama. My daughter and I watch it. There's all these twists and turns.

Q: Favorite charity?

A: No Shame On You — suicide prevention. It's the 10th leading cause of death. With one in four people having mental health issues, and having been around many people with mental health issues, people need to know there is a place where they can go and they can talk.

Q: Words of wisdom?

A: Out of your thoughts flow your feelings. Out of your feelings flow your actions.

Q: Favorite local restaurant?

A: Cupitol in Evanston. It's a coffee to cocktails restaurant. Everybody goes there. When I go there, I see 10 people I know. In Lincolnwood, I like L. Woods.

Q: What is an interesting factoid about yourself?

A: I'm really passionate about mental health. My goal is to have a mental health podcast. I'm interested in mental health, acting and politics. They kind of go together for me.

Police do special holiday duty with program

25 children taken on Walmart trip by officers

By KYRA SENESE
Pioneer Press

Approximately two dozen area children pushed shopping carts down the aisles of a local Walmart store earlier this month — with a police officer in tow — picking out holiday gifts as part of the Niles Police Department's annual "Shop With a Cop" program.

The Niles Police Department partnered with the big-box retailer to spread holiday cheer by taking disadvantaged children shopping on Dec. 9.

The program, called "Shop With a Cop," aims to provide children with holiday gifts and clothing in addition to facilitating positive interactions with their local police officers, organizers said.

This is the second year that Niles police worked with Walmart on this jolly event, according to a Police Department news release.

This year, the kids and officers shopped at Walmart at 5630 W. Touhy Avenue in Niles. The retailer provided 25 gift cards for the holiday shopping experience worth $100, for a total donation of $2,500, according to the release.

The Niles Family Services staff identified 15 families and a total of 25 children to participate in the program, according to the release.

A Niles police officer was paired with each of the participating children, and they browsed through the store, then purchased the items children wanted to take home, according to the release.

In some cases, kids picked items that exceeded the $100 gift card amount, and police officers paid the balance out of their own pockets, according to Niles police officials.

"Shop With a Cop was created to help less fortunate children in the Niles area experience a joyous Christmas," police officials said in the release.

Ruling Morton Grove Action Party coasts to victory in 2017 election

Independent opposition fails to win one position

BY MIKE ISAACS
Pioneer Press

Despite a contested race for mayor, three trustee seats and village clerk, the ruling Action Party in Morton Grove had an easy time holding onto all Village Board seats in 2017.

In the April race for mayor, results from the Cook County Clerk's Office showed incumbent Dan DiMaria won 75 percent of the vote to challenger Dan Staackmann's 25 percent.

Other races were almost equally lopsided.

For village clerk, Eileen Scanlon Harford, the daughter of the former late Mayor Dan Scanlon, racked up 73 percent of the vote to Lori Gattorna's 27 percent.

The race for three village trustee seats showed Action Party candidates Bill Grear (24 percent), Ed Ramos (23 percent) and Connie Travis (23 percent) as the top vote-getters over independent candidates Mark Albers, Jeanine Como and Mary White, who each got approximately 10 percent of the vote.

The challengers, led by Staackmann, formed a political action party and said their coalition was meant to take on the status quo.

Following the election,

DiMaria said "the residents have spoken," meaning that they liked the direction in which the village was heading.

"It's a validation that people are liking what we're doing and it truly takes a village," he said. "I'm once again honored and just as grateful as anybody can be. I love this town."

DiMaria said the election meant the village now has an administration guaranteed of two terms in which to accomplish goals.

"We're not perfect," he said. "We have a lot of work to be done that we'll start tomorrow. We finally have continuity."

Election upset, plans for hotel mark 2017

Lincolnwood also sees the departure of superintendent from District 74.

BY GENEVIEVE BOOKWALTER
Pioneer Press

A new mayor, a retiring District 74 superintendent, a controversial hotel and more topped the news in Lincolnwood for 2017.

Election 2017

After serving as Lincolnwood mayor for 12 years, incumbent Jerry Turry was defeated by Barry Bass in the April 4 election.

Bass and Turry presented very different pictures of the state of Lincolnwood, and leveled strong criticisms at each other in a debate just before the election.

Bass criticized the mayor for his handling of the Purple Hotel property at Touhy and Lincoln avenues, which has sat vacant for years and has had a series of complications, according to Pioneer Press reports. He stressed what he said was an uptick in serious crime in Lincolnwood and said the village has leaned too heavily on tax increment financing zones — most of them unsuccessful.

After the election, Turry said he was surprised by the loss. He blamed an “anti-incumbent climate” and low turnout of his supporters for his defeat.

Uber driver attacks passenger

A 16-year-old Chicago woman was charged with killing an Uber driver in Lincolnwood early on May 30, minutes into her ride from Skokie to Wilmette.

Eliza Wasni, of Chicago, allegedly attacked Grant Nelson, 34, of Wilmette, with a knife and machete that authorities said she stole from a Walmart.

Nelson pulled over, fled the scene and was able to describe his attacker to police. He died later at an area hospital.

At Nelson’s funeral, he was remembered as a “kind soul in a cruel world.”

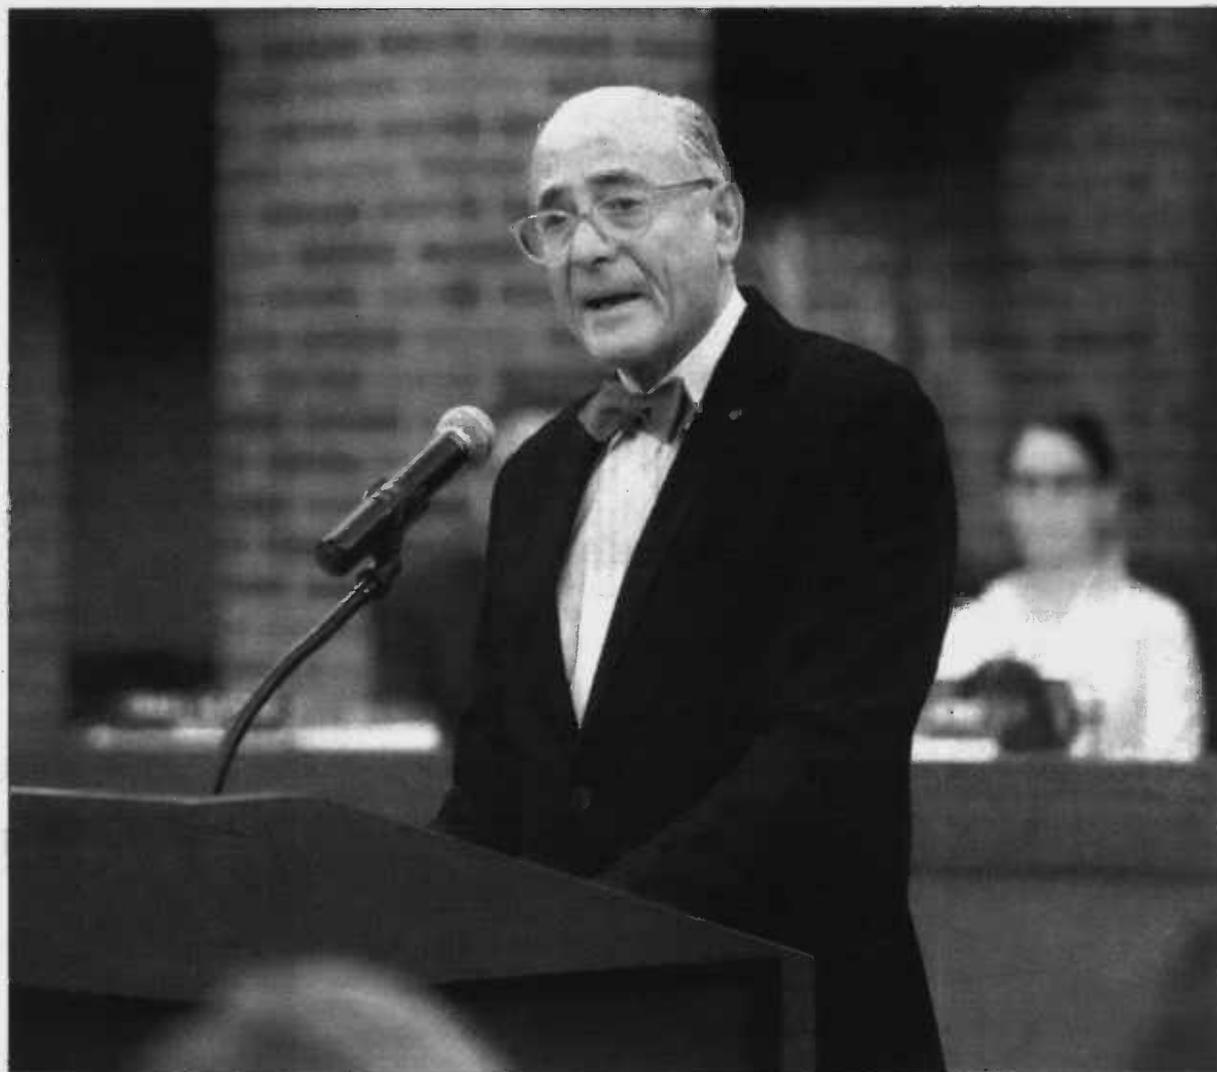

Though charged as an adult with first-degree murder, Wasni has been held in juvenile detention since her arrest immediately after the attack.

Superintendent retires in D74

The former leader of Lincolnwood School District 74 retired in June, and administrators praised him for turning around a district that, when he started, was suffering from a referendum defeat at the ballot box and a 2012 criminal investigation of alleged mispending.

Joseph Bailey led the district for four years, during which he is credited with financing a Lincoln Hall renovation, despite the referendum loss. That work entered its second phase over the summer.

Administrators also say he helped hire key people for top positions and reduced turnover, according to Pioneer Press reports.

Former Assistant Superintendent Kim Nasshan took over as superintendent in July.

Hotel plans face protest

Ongoing plans for a six-story hotel on Cicero Avenue sparked opposition from neighbors, who complain the proposed hotel would be too close to residents’ homes.

“The problem with the proposal is there is a lack of a buffer between what is a transient, potentially crime-ridden, potentially adverse-to-children (building),” Lincolnwood Planning Commissioner Steven Jakubowski said before the commission voted 6-0 against the project in October.

“It’s just too much of a risk in my view for the village to allow a project like that to come in that close to a community,” Jakubowski said.

DML Properties LLC is looking to bring an upscale Hyatt Place hotel — with 112 guestrooms and amenities such as a business center, indoor pool, fitness center — to the 7200 block of Cicero, according to Pioneer Press reports.

Others have said the hotel is too large for the community, and wondered what type of clientele the hotel would attract.

Even school officials have gotten involved.

Lincolnwood School District 74 Superintendent Kimberly Nasshan sent a letter to village officials explaining that students currently cross through the property parking lot to board their school bus because of sidewalk issues in front of the building.

“The (school) district requests village intervention now to assure that a safe and clear sidewalk is maintained in front of this property,” Nasshan said in the letter.

Lincolnwood native pleads guilty

George Papadopoulos, a Lincolnwood native who now lives in Chicago, plead guilty on Oct. 5 to lying to the FBI. He also “signaled he is cooperating with investigators as they attempt to unravel the Trump campaign’s dealings with Russia,” according to Chicago Tribune reports.

The Niles West High School graduate was convicted of one count of making false statements. The conviction carries a maximum penalty of a $250,000 fine and five years in prison. After reaching a plea deal, he is expected to spend zero to six months in prison and pay $500 to $9,500 in fines.

Papadopoulos previously served as a foreign policy adviser to President Donald Trump. He was arrested July 27 at Dulles International Airport, where he had arrived on a flight from Munich.

Lincolnwood mayor appoints treasurer, and some trustees wonder why

Most seem unaware that Greenstein quit

BY KYRA SENESE
Pioneer Press

The "ayes" prevailed as the Lincolnwood mayor sought trustee consensus recently on appointing a new village treasurer, but several officials expressed concern over the need for such a role and even said they didn't know the previous financial leader had resigned.

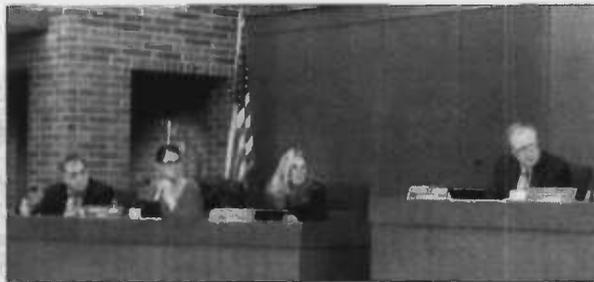

Mayor Barry Bass tapped local actuary Eric Biljetina to be the village's new treasurer, and his appointment was approved at the Village Board meeting Dec. 19.

"(Biljetina had) been given very heavy thought and consideration for the replacement. We've got a very well-qualified individual to fill the role. We found a very good volunteer from our resident pool," Bass said of his pick.

The previous village treasurer, Charles Greenstein, resigned as of Nov. 9, according to a village news release put out two days after the Village Board meeting. Several trustees said at the meeting they weren't previously aware that Greenstein had quit.

Some trustees at the Dec. 19 Village Board meeting appeared just as baffled by this latest action by Bass as they were at the Dec. 9 special meeting when the mayor sought to pre-empt the automatic June 2018 renewal of the village manager's employment contract.

This time, the elected representatives seemed perplexed as to whether Bass, who is serving his first term as mayor after defeating longtime Village President Jerry Turry in the April election, has the authority to appoint a new treasurer.

Further, some trustees questioned why a more in-depth process to appoint a new treasurer was not followed.

Village Attorney Steven Elrod clarified that the appointment of the village treasurer was something the mayor — whose official title is village president — gets to make.

"The mayor does not need to go through any process if he chooses not to, and he can simply bring it to the board as he did and then seek consensus," Elrod said.

Trustees Renan Sugarman and Jennifer Spino made the motions to approve the appointment. All in favor only had to say aye or nay.

Trustee Jesal Patel voted against the motion, but there were enough votes in favor for the appointment to be approved.

Trustee Jean Ikezoe-Halevi said she was unaware that Greenstein had left the post.

"I did not know the former village treasurer had retired until I got a notice saying, 'As you know, he has retired,' and it was like 'Wait, what did I miss here?'" Ikezoe-Halevi explained.

Bass acknowledged Ikezoe-Halevi's confusion, and clarified that an email had gone out regarding his resignation and that Greenstein had been in the hospital.

"He's been very ill, and I'm not sure if he's out of rehabilitation yet," Bass said.

Both Jesal and Ikezoe-Halevi said they didn't oppose the person the mayor picked, but rather didn't favor having anyone serve in the role.

Trustee Ikezoe-Halevi also explained her concerns about the appointment being a paid position.

"He is getting paid more than any of the trustees if I'm correct, so I would think that you would have to have more than one applicant for this job," she said. "This is to say nothing against the man, but I would have thought we would have a more in-depth process."

Patel said that Biljetina is expected to be paid $3,000 per year as treasurer.

Information publicly available Dec. 19 about the appointment did not confirm the salary, tell a start date for Biljetina or detail what he would do as treasurer.

'Calculating predator' gets 28 years

BY BRIAN L. COX
Chicago Tribune

Five years after the young woman was raped while working at a suburban tanning salon, the sound of wind chimes can still trigger feelings of panic.

That and other lingering effects of the assault were outlined in a statement written by the victim and read in court Dec. 20 before her attacker was sentenced to 28 years in prison.

Firas Ayoubi, 32, of Chicago, was already a convicted sex offender when he was arrested in the 2012 attack on a teenage employee at Palm Beach Tan in Niles. A jury found Ayoubi guilty last year of aggravated criminal sexual assault, kidnapping, unlawful restraint and attempted aggravated robbery.

On Dec. 20 in Cook County's Skokie courthouse, Ayoubi's mother wept in the gallery, but her son showed little emotion as Judge Jeffrey Warnick handed down the sentence.

Warnick called Ayoubi a "cold and calculating criminal predator." The judge said the community needs to be protected from Ayoubi, whom Warnick noted was convicted of indecent solicitation of a child in 2007 and later sentenced to four years in prison after violating probation in that case.

"I don't dare put this community at risk," Warnick said.

Prosecutors said Ayoubi targeted the victim, who was then 18 and was alone in the salon when Ayoubi walked in wearing a ski mask and gloves. Authorities said he dragged her by her hair into a backroom where, implying he had a weapon, he sexually assaulted her.

Ayoubi fled when a male customer entered, witnessed the attack in progress and yelled for Ayoubi to let the victim go, prosecutors said. He was arrested less than a week later, his bond was set at $1 million, and he's been in jail ever since.

Assistant State's Attorney Jaclyn Lantz read the victim's statement in court in which she said that, even five years later, the sound of wind chimes causes her to panic because chimes at the salon's entrance sounded when Ayoubi walked in.

Since the assault, the woman wrote, she has experienced ongoing post-traumatic stress disorder, is fearful when she leaves home, is plagued by nightmares and suicidal thoughts and, when out driving, worries that her car is being followed.

"I never realized how cold the world is until I faced this man," the victim's statement said.

Brian L. Cox is a freelance reporter.

The following items were taken from the Niles Police Department reports. An arrest does not constitute a finding of guilt. Only a court of law can make that determination.

THEFT

■ Maria Camacho-Saucedo, 36, of the 5700 block of North Winthrop Avenue, Chicago, and Maria Olmedo-Juarez, 28, of the 1300 block of West Early Avenue, Chicago, were each charged with retail theft following an incident on Dec. 13 at a retailer in the 5600 block of West Touhy Avenue. Camacho-Saucedo and Olmedo-Juarez are each scheduled to appear in court Jan. 23.

PUBLIC INTOXICATION

■ A 53-year-old Chicago man was ticketed with public intoxication Dec. 17 after he was reportedly found sleeping on the bathroom floor of a restaurant in the 7000 block of West Dempster Street. According to police, the man claimed to have consumed 20 beers. He was taken to a hospital, police said.

■ A 54-year-old Morton Grove man was ticketed for public intoxication on Dec. 18 after police said he was found sleeping near a Christmas tree display at a store in the 8600 block of West Dempster Street and became belligerent when he was woken up. He was taken to a hospital, police said.

ASSAULT

■ An off-duty Chicago police officer alleged that another man threatened to kill him, prompting him to take out his gun and announce he was a police officer during an argument Dec. 15 at a gas station in the 7200 block of North Melvina Avenue. According to police, a man in his 40s attempted to cut in front of other drivers who were waiting to pump gas and a "disturbance" ensued. The off-duty police officer then became involved in a verbal altercation with the man and alleged that the man threatened him, police said. No charges were filed, according to police.

BURGLARY

■ A restaurant in the 700 block of Civic Center Drive was reportedly burglarized overnight Dec. 11-12. Approximately $100 was reported stolen from a cash register.

School police patrols to get a second look

District 64 seeks clarity with second legal analysis

BY HEATHER CHERONE
Pioneer Press

Park Ridge-Niles District 64 school board members have asked a second law firm to review and revise the rules that will govern the uniformed officers set to be stationed part-time at Lincoln Middle School in Park Ridge and Emerson Middle School in Niles.

The officers were set to start patrolling the schools in September for four hours a day, two days per week, but officers have yet to be assigned to either middle school as efforts to hammer out the rules — which must be approved by Park Ridge and Niles officials along with the District 64 board — have taken longer than expected, District 64 officials said.

As of Dec. 15, District 64 has paid the Lisle-based law firm of Ekl, Williams & Provenzale $2,500 to review and suggest revisions to the school resource officer agreement, district spokeswoman Bernadette Tramm said. In addition, the Arlington Heights-based firm Hodges, Loizzi Eisenhammer, Rodick & Kohn, billed District 64 $8,259 for work on the school resource officer policy from September through November, Tramm said.

Hiring a second law firm to review the intergovernmental agreement will ensure that the rights of all students will be “well respected,” District 64 Board President Anthony Borrelli said.

Board Vice President Rick Biagi said he recommended that Ekl, Williams & Provenzale review the proposed agreement before the board considers approving the policy.

Ekl, Williams & Provenzale represents the family of the Naperville North High School junior who committed suicide in January after being questioned by the police officer assigned to the high school and the school's dean. The student was asked about an allegation that he had a video of a recent sexual encounter with a female classmate on his phone and that he had played the recording for friends. The lawsuit filed by the teen's family names Naperville District 203 as well as the Naperville Police Department, and seeks more than $5 million.

Biagi said Patrick L. Provenzale, a partner in the firm, is a friend of his from high school, and has been reviewing the role of school resource officers as part of his efforts on behalf of the teen's family.

“I believe that the firm is uniquely in a position” to review the agreement, Biagi said of Ekl, Williams & Provenzale. “They are looking at it under a microscope.”

Biagi is an attorney at Northfield-based Neal & McDevitt, specializing in trademark law. Biagi said neither he nor his firm would benefit from his recommendation.

Borrelli said hiring Ekl, Williams & Provenzale could only benefit District 64 and improve the ultimate agreement.

Once Ekl, Williams & Provenzale completes its review, the District 64 board plans to hold a special meeting in January to review and revise the agreement before it is presented to the Park Ridge City Council and the Niles board of trustees for approval, Borrelli said.

The District 64 board could formally approve the agreement at a second meeting, Borrelli said, giving parents and district residents an opportunity to weigh in on the policy.

The next regular meeting of the District 64 board is set for 7 p.m. Jan 22 at Jefferson School, 8200 W. Greendale Ave., Niles.

District 64 removed nine non-residents last year

BY JENNIFER JOHNSON
Pioneer Press

Nine students were required to leave Park Ridge-Niles School District 64 schools last year after it was determined they were living out of district, a school official said.

Investigations determined the students were living in Des Plaines, Chicago, Deerfield and the area of Niles that is not included within the school district boundaries, said District 64 Chief School Business Official Luann Kolstad.

Only one student was identified through a complaint made to the district, Kolstad said. The district learned of the other eight students through “other means,” which included random checks or registration documents that raised suspicions, she said.

Last year, the district spent $40,000 on residency checks, Kolstad said. One family was required to pay the district “over $5,000” in out-of-district tuition for the days of education they received, she added. The district's daily tuition rate is $84.21 for non-residents.

A study commissioned by District 64 this year stated that its annual cost per student is $15,613.

So far this school year, three students were identified as non-residents, and they have left the district, Kolstad said. There are currently two open investigations taking place and “three we are just starting,” she added.

During the 2015-16 school year, 12 students were removed from the district, Kolstad reported to the school board in the fall of 2016.

District 64 began taking a closer look at residency in 2015 in an effort to make sure all students live in residences that pay property taxes to the district.

The district's website includes a list of documents accepted for the 2017-18 school year to prove residency. Families must include recent paid property tax bills, a lease agreement or notarized letter from a landlord with proof of the last month's payment or a Section 8 letter plus two additional documents proving residency. The additional documents can include the most recent utility bills, a homeowner or renter's insurance policy or credit card or bank statements.

Kolstad acknowledged that the process of registering students has been an issue for some families who have multiple children because the current system the district uses requires documents to be submitted separately for each student.

“I know it's frustrating for parents to prove residency, but we're trying to protect the taxpayers of the district,” she said.

Kolstad did say that the district is “trying to make the process more streamlined” for parents, and more information on new residency verification procedures for the 2018-19 school year is expected to be presented to the school board in January.

Anyone aware of a student who does not live in District 64 but attends a district school is encouraged to contact the district, Kolstad said.

“Non-residents accessing District 64's educational resources is a cost to all taxpayers,” she said.

Evanston gallery offers 'cool' spaces

Entrepreneur opens business for art and artists

By MYRNA PETLICKI
Pioneer Press

Evanston has a new home for art and artists. Ice House Gallery opened in October at 609 South Blvd. and is already hosting a multi-artist exhibit and renting studio spaces to several artists. It has also been the site of a couple of events.

Owner Hannah Litvan, a 24-year-old Evanston resident who grew up in Wilmette, said she initially planned to pursue a career in art and open a gallery in the far future.

Her plans changed after she graduated in 2015 from Albion College in Michigan and began working part-time at the [Richard H.] Driehaus Museum.

"That was fun but there was no room to grow there into what I wanted to do. It's a customer service job, and I didn't want to do that," Litvan said.

After applying online for numerous jobs without success, Litvan decided to open a gallery.

She located the current space in August 2016.

Her mother, Marcia Smith, a business owner who has helped other startups, offered guidance and a business loan.

Litvan said she chose the name "Ice House" because the building in which her new enterprise is housed was previously an ice storage facility.

In preparation for opening the gallery, the building was brought up to code, windows were redone with glass blocks, walls were erected, floors were cleaned and finished, lighting was added and two bathrooms and a kitchen were created, she said.

Works currently featured in the downstairs gallery space are by 18 Evanston and Skokie artists who responded to an open call. It's a diverse assortment representing an array of media, with prices ranging from $12 to $4,000.

In the future, exhibits will be themed, the gallery owner noted, with exhibits changing approximately every four months.

One wall of the brightly lit gallery is dedicated to works by a local artist of the month. December's featured artist, Jim Parks, is showing works from his "Bloomz" series of floral works in large and small formats.

Upstairs are five enclosed private studios as well as several cubbyhole studios. Artists Angela Schlaud and Ann Andrews each occupy one of the private studios.

"I had a space in Chicago but it was far to drive," said

Evanston resident Schlaud, an abstract artist who works in watercolors and oils on canvas. "This space is really close to where I live and there's nothing like it around here."

The studio is working well for Schlaud, she indicated.

"It's a large space with nice light," she said. "There are a couple of artists that are really interesting and I know there are more coming."

Andrews also compliments the gallery.

"The size is perfect for me and I think Hannah is doing a great job," said Evanston clothing designer Andrews. "The location is perfect. I'm a block away."

Starting in mid- to late-January, art classes will be held upstairs, starting with drawing and watercolor.

"We want to have basic as well as specialty classes," Litvan said.

MYRNA PETLICKI/PIONEER PRESS

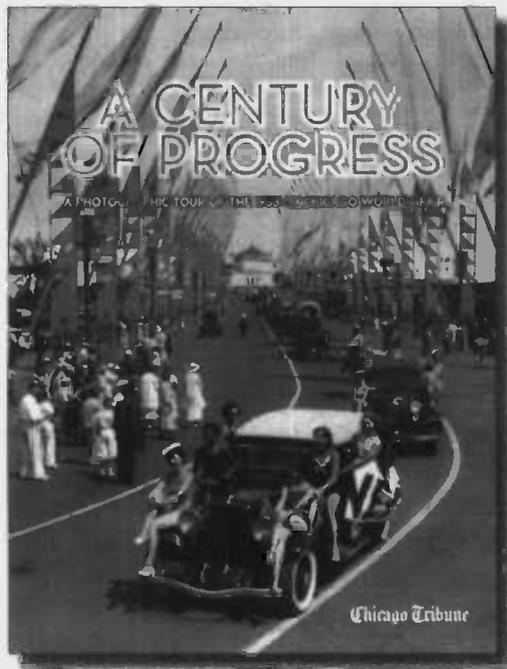

Ice House Gallery owner Hannah Litvan, shown in this December 2017 photo, is currently showcasing works by 18 local artists.

Coming gallery events include a Jan. 13 performance of a blues band called Last Ditch Effort. In February, a poetry group from southwest Chicago will be featured.

"Every other month will be music and in between will be something else," Litvan said. "I'm pretty open to the type of performance as long as you're not throwing paint everywhere."

Rediscovering the genius of Sammy Davis Jr.

RANDY BLASER

I always seem to be rediscovering greatness in the music I heard in my youth, though it's admittedly music that didn't play a starring role.

I grew up in the era of The Beatles, The Rolling Stones, super-groups like Chicago, Bruce Springsteen and the folk greats James Taylor and Carole King. I then graduated to The Clash and Blondie and The Pretenders.

Then something happened. I started listening to the music of the old folks that I had heard in my younger days.

I remember being at a DePaul versus Notre Dame basketball game with a group of friends. During halftime, I struck up a conversation with my old buddy Charley Krebs. Our talks always got around to music and Charley asked me who I was listening to these days. I hesitated, then decided to tell the truth.

"To be honest, Charley, I've been rediscovering Frank Sinatra," I admitted. Charley began to laugh and almost shouted: "So am I!"

So began a phase I am still in, where I recognize the greatness of artists I may have heard as a boy but brushed off as the pop music my parents' or my grandparents' generations.

After Frank, I rediscovered the brilliance of Ella Fitzgerald. All I can say is, if you haven't heard Ella, get her recordings of American standards, put in your earbuds and prepare to be blown away.

Then I started listening to Johnny Cash. I went out and bought a DVD of the old "Johnny Cash Show." Guest what? This guy was brilliant and he had everyone who was anyone on his show. One show featured Johnny and Carl Perkins jamming with Eric Clapton incarnated as Derek and the Dominos. Wow!

I will always advocate for the beautiful tones of Karen Carpenter, despite the ridicule. Just listen to her voice. If she dared sing rock 'n' roll, she'd be Chrissie Hynde before The Pretenders.

So where am I going with this?

Sammy Davis Jr.

Over the past two months, I've been staying up nights searching YouTube for every video I can find of Sammy Davis Jr. There aren't as many as I would like.

But there are enough to show that maybe, just maybe, Sammy Davis Jr., was the single greatest entertainer of the 20th century.

That's what I've been thinking lately.

I used to be sure Sinatra was the lone superstar. Who else could sing and record pop hits across the decades, own the record label and be an Academy Award-winning actor? Not many.

But then there's Sammy.

Granted, Sammy didn't own any record companies, and although he appeared in several movies, there were no Academy Awards coming his way.

But that was because of the times. As a black man, Sammy would find few opportunities beyond music and dance. Few black people were in movies in those days, unless they were named Sidney Poitier. Even fewer black people were on television, except for in snippets on "The Ed Sullivan Show" on Sunday nights.

Still, Sammy performed well in the movie roles he did earn.

He fought against racism his entire life, and was a groundbreaking performer for many African-Americans who would follow him.

He was a centerpiece in The Rat Pack, Frank Sina-tra's fellow performers who ruled Las Vegas in the 1960s. Unfortunately, he often played second fiddle to Frank. But everyone did, and Sinatra considered Sammy his best friend.

He performed on Broadway and was a great dancer. Check out his videos and you'll soon agree he was probably the greatest entertainer of his time.

And now I learn there is a show in Chicago dedicated to Sammy's life. "Sammy: A Tribute to Sammy Davis Jr." has just opened at the Black Ensemble Theater and Cultural Center in Chicago.

Chicago Tribune critic Chris Jones, in his review, calls Sammy "the greatest entertainer ever to grace a stage in these United States." He adds that whenever asked about the greatest show he ever saw, he responds Sammy Davis Jr.

Maybe it's about time we all realized that.

Letting go? I'll start with clothes tailor made for a yo-yo dieter

PAUL SASSONE

Do you make New Year's resolutions?

Me, too. I make them. I just don't keep them.

So I kind of surprised myself when I realized there is a resolution I won't have to make again this new year: Lose weight.

Turns out I lost a lot of weight in 2017, so scratch that as a new year's resolution.

Trouble is I have lost weight before — lots of before.

One of the problems with going up and down in weight is that each metamorphosis requires re-wardrobing.

The result is fat clothes and thin clothes.

I always know that sooner or later, I will gain back whatever weight I lost. Thus, I keep my fat clothes in reserve.

Conversely, I know I will regret putting weight back on and diet. So I need to keep my thin clothes handy.

The result of a lifetime of up-and-down dieting is that I have a lot of clothes lying around the house.

Many of these items of clothing are out of fashion. To be honest, many items were out of fashion when I bought them. Not that I have a lot of leisure suits lying around or anything. Still, they are clothes I no longer want to wear, fat or thin.

What should I do with those clothes?

Give them away, I guess. Donate them.

There are many fine charities I assume would accept my clothes.

There is Goodwill, of course. And I know that some food pantries accept donations of clothing. Poorly fed and poorly clothed often — unfortunately — go together.

Finding places to donate clothes shouldn't be a problem.

I just have to figure out what to donate.

Should I give thin (less fat) clothes and just give up on needing to lose weight again?

Or, should I donate fat clothes because hope springs eternal?

You see my dilemma. You thin people don't know how easy you have it. And why, all of a sudden, do I want a Snickers?

Paul Sassone is a freelance columnist.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Columnist gives Trump a pass while condemning Democrats accused of sexual abuse, harassment

I would like to point out that Randy Blaser is such an obvious right wing writer that he is offensive. In a recent column, he chose to write about the "powerful men" who have used their power to harass and abuse women. He chose to use Michigan Rep. John Conyers and Minnesota Sen. Al Franken as examples, putting them in the same category, not even mentioning that Conyers is alleged to have paid women for their silence, while there is some question as to all of the charges against Franken.

Isn't it curious that President Donald Trump, who has had 19 women accuse him of the same charges, wasn't mentioned; nor was failed Alabama Senate candidate Roy Moore, nor the other Republican congresspeople who have left in shame. Randy Blaser's bias is so obvious it's sophomoric.

Thinking about New Year's resolutions? Take them on one at a time.

PAT LENHOFF

As we approach the closing bell of 2017, most of us are analyzing options for the traditional New Year's resolutions.

Dropping some holiday-enhanced pounds, adding a fitness routine and being kinder to our families are all among the most common items on the list. But usually by mid-February enthusiasm has waned or our results haven't been positive enough to continue.

That's why I'm exploring a new way of making resolutions, one that might make it easier to feel some success. In this new method, the finish line is closer and the resolutions rotate. Breaking down an overwhelming task into smaller, shorter segments fosters enthusiasm and a sense that the goals can be accomplished. Let me elaborate.

Right after the holidays, when we are in probably the worst state of non-healthy living, a resolution for more working out and less constant eating, especially of non-nutritional food and drink, makes sense. It can get a body back on the right track to feeling stronger and healthier, which in turn feeds into a sense of success and accomplishment. Where we run into problems is in sustaining this effort, which feels so good on Jan. 2 but fades by late February.

That's where my new plan comes in. Now that the health kick is underway, it's time to move on to the next resolution. As spring approaches, many of us get the itch to put our homes in order before activities move outdoors for the warm weather. Tackling a special version of spring cleaning is productive and fulfilling, whether it's carpet-cleaning, cabinet organizing or cleaning those out-of-reach light fixtures.

It's amazing the positive difference those small projects can make, especially since they are usually the ones pushed to the side. Same principle as the winter resolution: shorter commitment, higher chance of success.

Next comes summer, and one of the things I hear (and feel myself) is that the season slipped away with many unaccomplished activities. Events noted early in the season get pushed to the side in favor of more pressing tasks, and suddenly summer is over. Outdoor concerts have ended, fireworks have faded and we're left with feelings of an unfinished summer. But not if we enact our next resolution: attending pre-selected summer outings, so that when school doors open, there are no regrets.

That takes us to autumn, which also ramps up the requests for philanthropy and charitable contributions. A good resolution could be to take care of those groups or projects before the holidays hit, allowing them access to donations earlier than usual, and giving donors a great sense of satisfaction as well as one less task on the holiday list. A win-win all around.

Those are just some scenarios for consideration. However you choose to orchestrate your resolutions, perhaps breaking them down into phases would help the success rate. Let's compare notes in 2019.

Happy New Year!

Cross-generational appeal of 'Star Wars' lures faithful

At least one stereotype was put to rest on a recent Thursday night as the "Star Wars" faithful flocked to Regal Cinemas in Round Lake Beach for the earliest possible screenings of "The Last Jedi": Parents were there with their children.

That's right — "Star Wars" nerds are capable of producing offspring. So much for the old jokes about "Star Wars" fans being dateless wonders.

Or, as Triumph the Insult Comic Dog once described the fan base, "lonely men who have never had (romance)." That is, of course, the sanitized version.

It is suddenly 15 years since Triumph was unleashed on a crowd awaiting a first look at "Attack of the Clones," which was the fifth release in the "Star Wars" series but the second in narrative chronology, for those of you scoring at home. It was also dead last in box-office appeal among chapters in the saga, even when adjusted for inflation, according to Box Office Mojo.

Some of us have generated actual children since 2002, in many cases adding to the toddlers and preschoolers we brought to see "The Phantom Menace" in 1999.

This week, those of us who were 10 the summer that "Star Wars" ruled the summer of 1977 — no small feat, considering "Smokey and the Bandit" came out the very same week in May — are now in our 50s, and we're taking our teenaged and 20-something children to not only see "The Last Jedi" but to enjoy its cross-generational appeal.

George Lucas has endured his share of pointless scorn for his alleged cinematic missteps, but he is to be thanked eternally for this gift that keeps on giving.

DAN MORAN

Thursday evening actually found the Rollins Road multiplex to be relatively quiet. We expected there to be sold-out screening rooms and people wearing Wampa costumes waiting in the cold, so we strategically purchased tickets on Wednesday — at the box office to avoid the evil "convenience charge" — and arrived on Thursday a good hour before the 7:45 p.m. start time.

It turned out we had overplanned our approach. There were no lines to speak of outside or even inside the building. We speed-walked to our designated theater and found there were only two dudes sitting up near the middle, as most cinemaphiles will position themselves. We chose the row near the front half that allows you to put your feet up on a rail.

Then the crowd slowly but steadily filtered in. Among them were parents who looked to be in their late 30s or early 40s, claiming entire rows with elementary-school kids. One mom shepherded in a small flock of children in the 10-year-old range and, apparently, several friends of those children.

Yes, down the row from us, two individual middle-aged men arrived separately, flying solo, awkwardly sitting one empty seat away from each other. Perhaps someday they will meet the Princess Leia or Mon Mothma of their dreams.

Finally, following 20 minutes of infomercials and another 15 minutes of trailers for "Jurassic World: Fallen Kingdom" and "Avengers: Infinity War," it was finally time for the Lucasfilm logo and "A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away" to come into view. My 22-year-old daughter gripped my hand as "Star Wars" jumped on screen, as she has since the days of Jar-Jar Binks.

And what do I have to say about the following 153-minute experience? Not much, since there are scenes in "The Last Jedi" that must not be revealed to any "Star Wars" fan — major, minor or otherwise. Regular readers might recall that some jerk ruined the whole "I am your father" moment from "The Empire Strikes Back" two weeks before I saw it in 1980.

What can be said is that, yes, the buzz is true that this is one of the best entries in the enduring "Star Wars" experience. Daisy Ridley as Rey and Adam Driver as Kylo Ren continue to reassure us that the ship is in talented hands and will continue to sail. The action hurdles forward toward an extended final act that will leave you wiped out. Your expectations, at bare minimum, will be met, and possibly exceeded.

It also must be said that we need to take back some of the things we've said about Mark Hamill's acting ability, because he is rock-solid as a grizzled and tortured Luke Skywalker. And Carrie Fisher? God rest her, as my Sainted Irish Grandmother used to say.

So yes, by all means, pack up the kids and head out to renew an old friendship that still seems new. And if you have a brother-in-law who has never seen a single "Star Wars" movie, as I do, tell them it's never too late to jump on board.

OPINION

Resolutions don't need to wait for a new year

"I'm going to lose 20 pounds."

"I'm writing that book I've been talking about since 1997."

"I'm going to cut out red wine."

"I'm taking that photography course I've been thinking about since before I had kids."

"I'm going to quit smoking"

These are just a few of the New Year's resolutions that will be declared in the next couple weeks by people who have the best intentions for the coming year.

New Year's resolutions are great because they give us hope and inspiration and a sense of purpose. But before you start making pledges for 2018, there's something else you might want to think about: 2017. In other words, sometimes before you move forward, it's wise to reflect back.

Here are a few questions to ask yourself about 2017 that might determine and shape your resolutions for next year:

■ Did I spend enough time with the people I love most?

■ Did I work hard and am I proud of the way I engaged in business with others?

■ Was I self-aware and able to fault myself for things versus blame others all the time?

■ Was I kind to my neighbors and community members?

■ Did I apologize to people when an apology was warranted?

■ Did I take care of myself physically the way I should?

■ Was I present, patient, understanding and loving enough as a parent?

■ Did I have gratitude and thank people when they did nice things for me and my family?

■ Was I charitable, both with my time and my money?

■ Did I love myself and act deserving of happiness?

■ Did I motivate and inspire others?

■ Did I have enough fun?

■ Did I accomplish professional goals I sought to accomplish?

■ Did I live in the moment enough?

■ Did I enrich my life with art, music, travel and other hobbies and interests?

■ Was I a good friend to those who really needed me?

■ Did I show my spouse I appreciated and respected him or her?

I was recently at a networking meeting where the moderator suggested we go around the room and state a New Year's resolution.

It wasn't mandatory, so I decided not to participate. Why? Because I don't wait until

JACKIE PILOSSOPH
Love Essentially

Jan. 1 to decide to do something or not do something. When I feel like I want to change something in my life, I act on it immediately. So I'm actually making resolutions all year long.

I have to believe most people are the same. We just don't label the changes we constantly make as "resolutions."

Most people are constantly striving to make their lives better and desire to be the best person they can be. Hence, resolutions are occurring daily.

All that said, regardless of when someone makes a resolution, some resolutions wind up being successful and some are broken.

For example, last January, my lifestyle changed completely when I took a new job. When I first started, I made a resolution that just because I had less time to cook, that didn't mean my kids were going to be eating takeout and ordering pizzas every night. Turns out that some nights I'm organized enough to make a homemade meal, other nights we find ourselves at a Mickie D's drive-thru. So the resolution worked. Sort of.

Other examples include last summer, when I came to the conclusion that our family could benefit from owning a dog, so I got one. It was one of the best decisions I can ever remember making.

Another resolution that was successful: Just a few weeks ago, I decided to call a friend with whom I had a falling out a couple years earlier and make amends. It wasn't an easy phone call, but it ended up being the right thing to do.

A resolution that failed: Last week, I made the choice to give up sugar. That lasted less than 48 hours.

Like I said, some resolutions stick, others are broken soon after. But I think the key to a truly "Happy New Year" involves:

■ Taking a long look at the previous year.

■ Not being afraid to look in the mirror and admit faults and mistakes.

■ Not forgetting to look in the mirror and being proud of what you did right.

■ Having the courage to make changes, no matter how difficult, to make things right or better every single day.

Happy New Year, readers, and may you be blessed with good health, happiness and love — of course.

Ideas for gadgets to buy with that post-holiday cash

CATHY CUNNINGHAM
Help Squad

I thought I would keep it light this week and help all of you celebrating that most sacred of holiday traditions: exchanging unwanted presents and spending gift cards and holiday cash.

Some might argue this is the most wonderful time of the year: You select what you want, and often at a steep discount.

As a result of many hours spent by me and my children researching the perfect gift for friends and family members (we viewed many “best of” and “top 10” lists for inspiration), I now consider myself an authority on unique, inexpensive gadgets and games. Here are my recommendations:

■ Clocky alarm clock on wheels (aka, the runaway alarm clock): The very description of this product cracked me up — and of course immediately prompted me to seek out a YouTube video demonstration. My kids and I couldn’t stop laughing as we watched. Here’s the write-up from the manufacturer, Nanda Home: “Clocky runs away to get you up. Durable! Jumps from three feet high. Runs away beeping on carpet or wood. Loud R2D2-like robotic sound. Never oversleep again!” We weren’t able to get our hands on Clocky in time for Christmas, as it was out of stock, so instead we settled for the below equally annoying and entertaining clock.

■ Northwest flying alarm clock: The Flying Alarm Clock served as an exchange gift from my son to a poor, unsuspecting extended family member. It was humorously — and accurately — described thus by the manufacturer: “When the alarm sounds, the propeller launches into the air, releasing the key to snooze. The alarm continues to go off until you catch and place the propeller back in the return station. Get your day started with a flying leap out of bed!”

DREAMSTIME/TNS

What should you do with those holiday gift cards?

■ Amco Rub-A-Way Bar: Less comical and more magical, this gadget hit my culinary clean-up sweet spot. If you are an avid cook, you will know how hard it can be to get the smell of onions and garlic off your hands. By simply rubbing this piece of soap-bar-shaped stainless steel over your hands — with or without water — these odors disappear. The Amco write-up explains, “The molecules in the steel bind with the sulfur molecules on your hands, thus transferring the molecules, along with the smell, to the metal and off your hands. The Rub-A-Way Bar can also remove other strong odors, like fish and seafood.”

■ Polaroid Snap instant digital camera: The Polaroid instant camera is back, compact and designed for the modern user. This pocket-sized device incorporates the resolution and memory of a digital camera with the (new and improved) printing capability of a classic Polaroid. The digital SD card holds 32GB worth of images, and the patented ZINK (zero ink) instant printer produces 2” x 3” color photos in less than a minute. ZINK paper is sold separately. “That’s sick, Mom!” exclaimed my tween daughter when she saw the photo emerge from the side of the camera.

■ Spikeball (as seen on Shark Tank): This is a game touted as “a fun, active, and competitive (if you want it to be) 2-on-2 game played with rules kind of like volleyball. Enjoy outdoors, indoors, yard, beach, gym ... virtually anywhere and for any event.” Easy to transport and store, Spikeball is a minimalist game consisting of a round, trampoline-like net off which players bounce a softball-sized, inflated ball. Each team has up to three touches to bounce the ball against the net in a way that is unreturnable by the opponent. First team to 21 wins. After watching the video, it was on the kids’ lists.

■ VINENCO 3-in-1 stainless steel bottle cooler stick, aerator and pourer: This one was for Mom. Rather than sticking your white wine bottle in a bucket of ice to get wet, you can instead just pull the VINENCO chill rod from the freezer, insert it in the bottle and voila: cold wine. “The VINENCO 3-in-1 wine chiller with drip-free, aerating pourer will chill your wine from the inside out, keeping your pre-cooled wine at optimum drinking temperature or refreshing red wine to ideal cellar temperature.” Cheers!

MY PET WORLD

The right music may soothe dog on car rides

By Cathy M. Rosenthal
Tribune Content Agency

Q: I dog-sit my daughters lovable Yorkypoo occasionally. He happily jumps into my car, but makes the most horrendous earsplitting noises, barking, howling, all during the drive. Having him strapped in or in his kennel, having my husband hold him in his lap, makes no difference. Could he be car sick? Any idea on how we can make car travel less stressful for a very cute and smart little Brizzly. — Brigitte, Hauppauge, N.Y.

A: Occasionally, a dog might howl or bark if car sick, but mostly they just look like they want to throw up. Clearly, Brizzly is experiencing something, and it's either car sickness or anxiety related to the car ride. Here are a few things to try.

First, put him in an Anxiety Wrap or Thundershirt. Both garments can help reduce canine anxiety. Next, place him in a small airline kennel for transport, and drape a towel over the top of it, making sure that at least one side is open to fresh air. He will feel more secure in a kennel than sitting on your husband's lap. Also, crack open the back window a little, so fresh air circulates in the car.

There are over-the-counter car sickness supplements you can try. If that doesn't work, a veterinarian can provide something stronger for the ride.

If these things don't work, music might be the remedy. Research shows that classical music can reduce canine stress behaviors, like barking and whining. Some classical music may be too stimulating for dogs, so I recommend "Through a Dog's Ears," a canine classical music series created by psychoacoustic expert Joshua Leed, concert pianist Lisa Spector, and veterinary neurologist Dr. Susan Wagner. According to Spector, the music in this series has lower toners, slower tempos and simple rhythmic patterns, which appeals more to dogs.

ODD ANDERSEN/GETTY-AFP

Your dog gets stressed out from riding in your car? Research shows that some classical music can reduce canine stress behaviors, like barking and whining.

Let me know what works for Brizzly.

Q: I have a 1-year-old rescue dog named Ted. He is a Wheaten Terrier. I don't know his past. He is very social with other dogs but is extremely shy with people. He wants to approach others but darts away if they try to pet him. This includes my family who he sees him on a regular basis.

I have tried to research how to handle this, but all the suggestions recommended giving him treats. Ted will not take treats when he is stressed around people. I have noticed improvement in his behavior when I am walking him on a leash and we pass strangers on the sidewalk (he used to strongly tug on his leash to get away), but it would be nice to get some advice on how I can help my dog relax around those I consider friends in my own house.

It is very discouraging to my family that Ted will not let them pet him. I want them to love him as much as I do.
— Karen, Las Vegas

A: Most trainers recommend tossing treats to dogs, so they make a connection between yummy treats and meeting new people.

But stressed dogs often refuse treats making this a difficult training method to use. So, let's not worry about making him happy around people; let's just try to reduce his overall stress around people.

Ideally, the more a dog interacts with people, the more social they become, but he may not have learned social skills as a puppy and so is a nervous and shy dog now.

Ted may always be a bit nervous and shy, but you can do things to build his confidence.

First, ask family and friends to not reach out to Ted anymore. He needs to know he can visit with people without people assuming that he wants to be approached or petted.

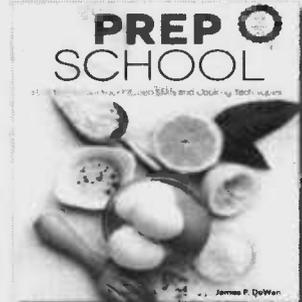

The only time any dog should be petted is if the dog approaches and appears to invite the person to do so. And, the only time Ted will let people pet him is if he feels comfortable and confident in his surroundings.

Next, put Ted in an Anxiety Wrap or Thundershirt, too. In fact, he can wear it all the time if it relaxes him. Combine this with some plug-in dog pheromones around the house, so he connects the relaxed feeling with a soothing scent.

Finally, there are chewable calming aid supplements often produced in treat form. These supplements are mild, but when combined with body wraps and scent, can reduce stress and rebuild his confidence around people.

Search online for "anxiety supplements for dogs," and keep me informed on his progress.

Fighting isolation in seniors

AARP, YMCA see aging solo as a public health issue

By Kay Manning
Chicago Tribune

Kathy Seguin is an older adult — she really dislikes labels such as senior citizen and elder orphan — who was a prime candidate for the kind of isolation that increasingly is considered injurious to mental and physical health and a challenge for communities across the country.

She lost her husband in 2012 when she was 59 and living in New York.

“I knew it was the start of a new chapter,” Seguin said, and as part of trying to figure out what to do next, she attended a weekend workshop in Asheville, N.C., on finding your passions. She decided to move there, despite knowing virtually no one.

Her loss of a loved one, scattered adult stepchildren, and sudden uprooting put her at risk of becoming disengaged from society. That didn’t happen, Seguin said, because she discovered her apartment is three-quarters of a mile along a forest trail from the Reuter Family YMCA, where she now goes six days a week for group classes — no solitary workouts for her — and to volunteer in the youth development center, among other activities.

“I wanted to meet people. I’d read that we’re social beings and we need to be for our health,” Seguin said. “I enjoy giving back to my Y and relish the opportunity to socialize even more by interacting with babies, toddlers and young children. They wear their hearts on their sleeves, saying, ‘I love you,’ and ‘Will you play with me,’ and hug so freely.”

She’s quite thoughtful about isolation, because the number of seniors aging solo is expected to grow to 1 in 4 of the 76 million baby boomers; as many as 19 million older adults could become isolated. That includes those with out-of-state family, limited connections in retirement or mobility issues.

The likelihood of isolation is prompting researchers and groups like the YMCA and AARP to focus on ways to keep individuals involved in their communities. It’s considered a public health issue because of the toll isolation takes on seniors.

“There is no question that being socially isolated has proven to have negative health outcomes,” said Lisa Marsh Ryerson, president of AARP Foundation, the charitable arm of the senior citizens organization.

She points to research showing prolonged loneliness and isolation can equal the health risks of smoking 15 cigarettes a day, and that 26 percent of people have increased risk of death due to loneliness. (Isolation is a quantifiable condition, while loneliness is a perception or feeling.)

Michelle Carlson, a researcher and associate professor at Johns Hopkins University, said more attention is being paid to whether changes in behavior can positively affect cognitive health because, despite the expenditure of millions or even billions of dollars on pharmacological ways to delay and treat Alzheimer’s disease, “no meaningful drug to offer people” has been found.

“We know that parts of

the brain will atrophy if they’re not used,” Carlson said. “When we need more cognition, we get less,” because aging people lose their work networks, their families and friends have health issues, and their children move farther away. “We have to get people off their couches, give them a reason to get up,” she said. And while “we can’t say social isolation causes dementia,” enough is known about what is good and bad for the brain that strategies can be developed as preventative measures, she said.

“Being valued and helpful to others is part of our makeup. We’re designed to be social,” Carlson said.

She and other researchers directed the two-year Baltimore Experience Corps Trial, in which the effects on cognition of seniors spending 15 hours a week tutoring public school students were compared with that of volunteers doing other tasks. In a 2015 report, men in the intergenerational activity showed an increase in volume of the parts of the brain associated with memory, and so did women, but to a lesser extent. Both groups of volunteers experienced improved cognition, Carlson said.

“Because the volunteers were re-energized and replugged into their community, we think their life trajectories were changed. They don’t just go back and plop on the couch,” she said.

AARP and YMCA of the USA have teamed up to go further, to see what besides volunteerism might be done to stem isolation. Ten YMCAs around the country were awarded grants in August to try new ways to reach out to seniors. The results, still coming in, will be compiled into a list of best practices.

In Asheville, the Disrupt Aging Community Health Challenge was launched in September with participants able to collect points toward membership in the “healthy aging hall of fame” in four categories: physical health — joining an outdoor activity, taking a group exercise class or enrolling in a falls prevention program; social health — volunteering with Meals on Wheels, attending a concert, or joining a committee on housing or transportation; community health — volunteering in any number of organizations; and intellectual health — taking or teaching a workshop, or attending a caregiver support group.

Diane Saccone has facilitated requests for the Y in Asheville to offer more chances for socialization by scheduling 58 trips this year, up from three in 2016. Still popular are traditional and specialized wellness classes.

“It’s neat to see men over 85 come in with their arms crossed, not participating, but be chatty Cathys by the end,” said Saccone, director of healthy aging initiatives.

She remembers a 92-year-old man who was signed up for classes by his daughter. He was covered with bruises from sleeping on the floor in front of the bathroom to help his wife, who had Alzheimer’s.

“He never went out,” Saccone said. “He came back to thank us for saving his life.”

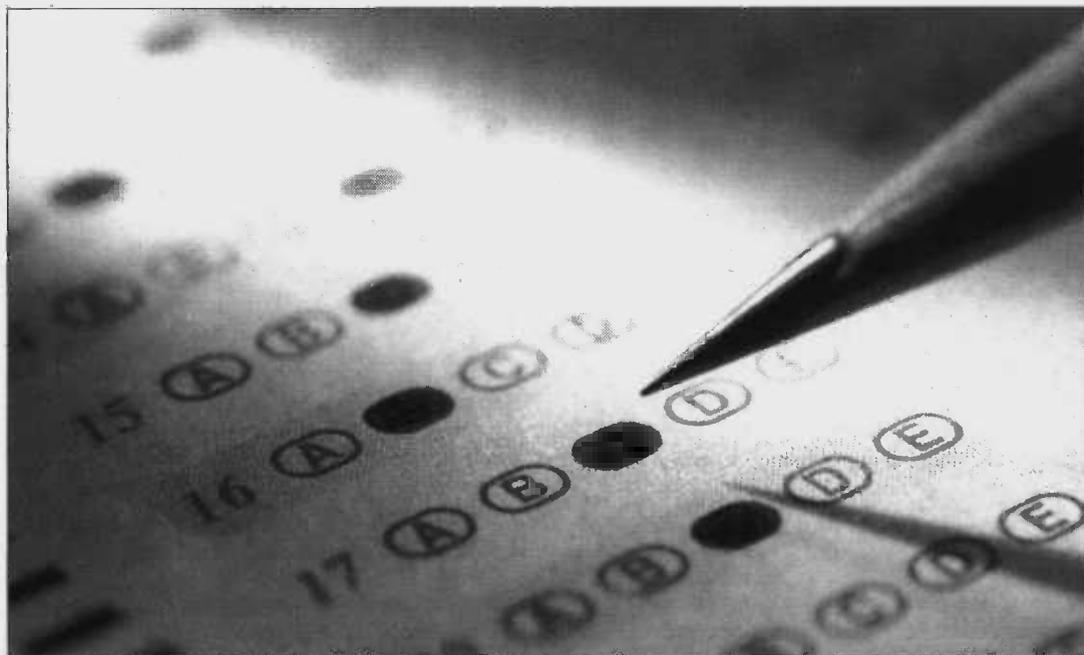

In Burlington, Vt., the Y’s original proposal was for 25 nonmembers to spend two months working with a personal trainer, taking a cooking class, joining walks, and trying out electric bikes, all for free. The slots filled up in 24 hours. Another 25 spots promoted on Facebook filled up in 12 hours, said Ryan Torres, director of community health initiatives.

Denise Schomody is a wellness coach at the Burlington Y who knows “you can’t be lonely and be a healthy person,” and while she said the program’s two months wouldn’t allow for much physical change, “it was long enough to jump-start a part of (participants’) lives not engaged in before.”

Though retired, Seguin has discovered “time passes quickly,” so she “puts herself out there,” going to concerts, on hikes and to classes.

She’s happy with the life she’s carved out, saying, “I’m getting older, but I’m not old.”

Reforming education reform

Books offer insight into limits of testing, better ways of measuring schools

By John Warner | Chicago Tribune

In 1983, the U.S. Department of Education issued a report titled "A Nation at Risk" because of a "rising tide of mediocrity" infecting the nation's schools, kicking off what has become almost 35 years of education "reform."

The Reagan administration opened the door to charter schools. If public schools were failing, Reagan argued, it was an injustice to prevent parents from moving their children into better schools.

But it also launched what I now think of as a mania for measuring the performance of schools and students, all in the name of accountability: It all boiled down to how schools and students perform on standardized tests. No Child Left Behind under George W. Bush and then Race to the Top during the Obama years only increased the mania.

And yet, the narrative about schools hasn't budged since "A Nation at Risk." The same people who thought schools were failing in 1983 think they're failing for the same reasons in 2017, even though their policies have dominated school reform for that entire period.

Curious thing, that.

The implosion of the attempted imposition of the Common Core State Standards and the selection of Betsy DeVos as education secretary have chastened at least the center-left reformers who once populated the Obama White House. Arne Duncan and DeVos are at a roughly 80 percent overlap in their views on education, but that last 20 percent appears to be a bridge too far.

This has left a little open space into which some fresh ideas can blow, and two recent books provide important insights we should pay attention to moving forward.

"The Testing Charade: Pretending to Make Schools Better" by former grade-school teacher and Harvard professor Daniel Koretz takes a comprehensive look at the use of standardized tests in education, which dates to 1930, as well as the misuses of standardized tests as part of the accountability reform movement.

Koretz covers all of the perverse behaviors — teaching to the test, cheating, value-added modeling (which judged teachers on students they'd never met) — that the reform movement has begotten, while also carefully illuminating the limitations of standardized exams to tell us meaningful things about what students are learning. Koretz declares, "Testing simply can't carry the freight that's been piled on to it. The failure to understand this, or a willful decision to ignore it, can explain much of what has gone wrong."

Moving away from measuring schools solely by test scores is a necessity to address some of the issues present in schools — which is where "Beyond Test Scores: A Better Way to Measure School Quality" by Jack Schneider, a professor who studies education at College of the Holy Cross, comes in.

Schneider's book was inspired by frustration over a crude neighborhood evaluation tool published by The Boston Globe and based on test scores, which gave inaccurate bad marks to a school in his hometown of Somerville, Mass.

Schneider set out to make a better tool and did so by broadening the discussion about what we should value about schools. Teachers, school culture, approach to character and academics all matter, but they also may matter in different ways for different people. By rooting the discussion in what we value, he creates a true framework for making informed choices, challenging the "failing schools" narrative by putting test scores in their proper, limited place.

Hopefully, these books can help us get past the patterns that have proved fruitless for so long.

Book recommendations from the Biblioracle

John Warner tells you what to read next based on the last five books you've read.

1. "The Things They Carried" by Tim O'Brien
2. "Matterhorn: A Novel of the Vietnam War" by Karl Marlantes
3. "Out Of Africa" by Isak Dinesen
4. "H Is For Hawk" by Helen MacDonald
5. "A Man Called Ove" by Fredrik Backman — Lyn M., Warrenville

One of my favorite readerly emotions is not sadness, but melancholy, a sense of the weight of the world pressing down on you but not so hard you'll buckle. I feel that in this list and think "The Shipping News" by Annie Proulx would be in Lyn's wheelhouse.

1. "Magruder's Curiosity Cabinet" by H.P. Wood
2. "A Great Reckoning" by Louise Penny
3. "Odd Hours" by Dean Koontz
4. "Ella Minnow Pea" by Mark Dunn
5. "Magpie Murders" by Anthony Horowitz — Keely S., Chicago

I just featured this in last week's Biblio Awards edition, which feels like a bit of a cheat, but I keep thinking about the book in a way that makes me want to read it again: "Anything Is Possible" by Elizabeth Strout.

1. "America's First Daughter" by Stephanie Dray and Laura Kamoie
2. "Origin" by Dan Brown
3. "A Prayer for Owen Meany" by John Irving
4. "Astrophysics for People in a Hurry" by Neil deGrasse Tyson
5. "Born a Crime: Stories from a South African Childhood" by Trevor Noah — Lori S., Riverside

For Lori, a meaty story immersed in history: E.L. Doctorow's "Billy Bathgate."

Q: I am confused about using peppermint oil for digestive problems. You have written that it is helpful for symptoms of irritable bowel syndrome. But I read elsewhere that you should avoid peppermint if you have GERD. Why the contradiction?

A: Peppermint (Mentha piperita) is not recommended for GERD (gastroesophageal reflux disease), or indigestion. That's because peppermint is purported to relax the lower esophageal sphincter. This muscle at the bottom of the food tube helps keep stomach contents from splashing back into the esophagus and causing irritation. If it relaxes, symptoms of reflux can become worse.

When peppermint oil is administered in a special enteric-coated pill, however, the pill gets through the stomach without dissolving. The peppermint oil then can act lower in the digestive tract. Studies have shown that such formulations can ease symptoms of irritable bowel syndrome (Journal of Clinical Gastroenterology, July 2014).

One reader shared this: "My daughter suffered from IBS in high school. Enteric-coated peppermint oil capsules before each meal did the trick. She took them for a couple of years, and no longer needs them."

Q: I took glucosamine and chondroitin for years. After reading about boswellia, though, I switched to a supplement of boswellia with turmeric. I also use organic tart cherry concentrate daily. That has made a big difference! I have very little chronic pain now, and before, my hips hurt every day.

Movement also is key, I believe, and I walk, lift weights, take yoga classes and do tai chi. That did not change. So I've concluded that it's the change in supplements that has led to my greater level of comfort. I've had no surgeries and take no prescription drugs.

A: Turmeric and boswellia (Indian frankincense) are potent anti-inflammatory herbs. Both have been used for thousands of years in Ayurvedic medicine. Tart cherries inhibit the same enzyme as drugs like celecoxib (Celebrex). We are delighted you have benefited from these natural healing approaches.

Q: I have twin daughters who both had bad coughs for over a week. I put Vicks VapoRub on the feet of one, and she slept like a log!

I had run out of Vicks, so I couldn't treat her sister. That one carried on coughing for another two hours. I headed to our late-night convenience store and bought some more Vicks for the other twin's feet. Bingo!

I tried this experiment the other way around the following evening, with the same result. The twin who got the Vicks on her feet stopped coughing, but the other twin carried on coughing until I finally smeared Vicks on her feet. What a joy to have twins for a sort of controlled experiment!

A: Skeptics find this home remedy ridiculous. They may not understand the role of transient receptor potential channels in stimulating sensory nerves. When such channels are activated, they initiate a cascade of impulses that could reach the spinal column. These may suppress the nerve input in the cough center of the brain that triggers a cough. Vicks VapoRub contains menthol, camphor, eucalyptus oil and thymol, among other ingredients. All of these compounds can activate TRP channels.

ASK THE DOCTORS

Angioplasty not always necessary in patients with stable angina

By Dr. Robert Ashley

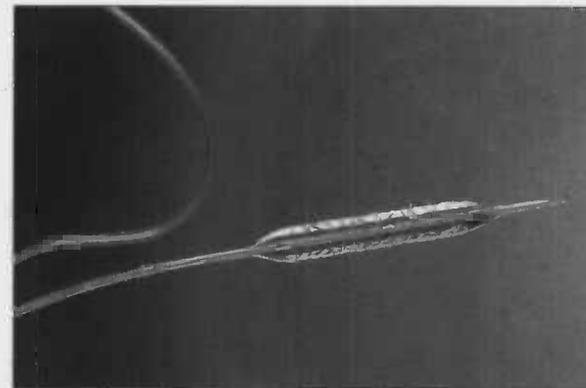

Ask The Doctors

Dear Doctor: I've been having chest pain, and my doctor said that although I shouldn't panic, I should consider a stent. Now I read they're useless. What are my options?

Dear Reader: What you're describing is angina — chest pain caused by decreased blood flow to the heart via the coronary arteries. Stable angina occurs with exertion, not rest, because the exertion makes your heart work harder. Unstable angina is irregular, can occur even at rest and is a harbinger of an imminent heart attack.

In 1977, doctors began to treat angina with angioplasty, which uses a balloon to open the partially clogged coronary arteries. In the 1990s, they started using stents to keep the arteries open and make them less likely to collapse. In this procedure, a metal stent is placed over a balloon so that when the balloon expands, the stent presses outward to buttress open the artery. Because these metal stents can increase the risk of blood clots, they're often now coated with a drug that prevents clots. Angioplasty has been found to reduce the risk of heart attacks and strokes in people with unstable angina.

For stable angina, the picture recently became murkier. The study to which you're referring assessed outcomes in stable angina patients with one or more coronary arteries at least 70 percent narrowed. People were excluded from the study if they'd had a previous heart attack, bypass surgery or another vessel blocked more than 50 percent but not causing symptoms. In the first six weeks of the study, participants received standard medical therapy, including blood thinners, cholesterol-lowering medication, blood pressure medications and long-acting nitrates.

BOSTON SCIENTIFIC

Stents can help prevent heart attacks and death in people with unstable angina, and they also may benefit people with stable angina.

After that, study subjects were randomized into a group that received a stent or a control group that didn't receive a stent. In fact, in the second group, the patients didn't even know if they'd received a stent or not. After another six weeks, all the patients underwent a cardiac stress test and an assessment of symptoms.

No difference in symptoms was found. Even an evaluation of the ability to walk on a treadmill showed no difference between the two groups. However, when given a medication to stress the heart, the stent group showed an improvement in contraction of the heart muscle as seen on ultrasound.

Similarly, a 2007 study showed no difference in death rate or heart attack rate among people with stable angina treated with angioplasty compared to those who received medical therapy. The group that received an angioplasty did report an improvement in symptoms 2 1/2 to seven years after the treatment, but it's possible the placebo effect played a role. That's because, unlike the more recent group, the 2007 study participants knew whether they'd had angioplasty.

That said, stents are not useless. They do prevent heart attacks and death in people with unstable angina, and they may benefit people with stable angina who have symptoms even on medication or who are intolerant to medication. But it seems to me that the robust benefit of stents in people with stable angina is not evident. I'd recommend talking with your doctor further; you do have a choice.

NOTICE OF SALE

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on November 7, 2017, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on February 8, 2018, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate:

Commonly known as 1816 GREENWOOD STREET, EVANSTON, IL 60201
Property Index No. 10-13-425-005-0000.
The real estate is improved with a gray, vinyl siding, single family, no garage.

Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information.

If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g)-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOMEOWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW.

You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

For information: Visit our website at service.atty-pierce.com. between the hours of 9am and 5pm. McCalla Raymer Leibert Pierce, LLC, Plaintiff's Attorney, One North Dearborn Street, Suite 1200, Chicago, IL 60602. Tel No. (312) 416-5500. Please refer to file number 8827.

Judicial Sales - Real Estate

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS COUNTY DEPARTMENT - CHANCERY DIVISION MTGLQ INVESTORS, L.P.

Plaintiff,
-v- TINU JOHN Defendants
17 CH 007874
5452 BRUMMEL ST SKOKIE, IL 60077

NOTICE OF SALE
PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale entered in the above cause on September 21, 2017, an agent for The Judicial Sales Corporation, will at 10:30 AM on February 28, 2018, at The Judicial Sales Corporation, One South Wacker Drive, CHICAGO, IL, 60606, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, as set forth below, the following described real estate:
Commonly known as 5452 BRUMMEL ST, SKOKIE, IL 60077
Property Index No. 10-28-120-032-0000.

The real estate is improved with a residence.
Sale terms: 25% down of the highest bid by certified funds at the close of the sale payable to The Judicial Sales Corporation. No third party checks will be accepted. The balance in certified funds/or wire transfer, is due within twenty-four (24) hours. The subject property is subject to general real estate taxes, special assessments, or special taxes levied against said real estate and is offered for sale without any representation as to quality or quantity of title and without recourse to Plaintiff and in "AS IS" condition. The sale is further subject to confirmation by the court.

Upon payment in full of the amount bid, the purchaser will receive a Certificate of Sale that will entitle the purchaser to a deed to the real estate after confirmation of the sale.

The property will NOT be open for inspection and plaintiff makes no representation as to the condition of the property. Prospective bidders are admonished to check the court file to verify all information.

If this property is a condominium unit, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale, other than a mortgagee, shall pay the assessments and the legal fees required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/9(g)(1) and (g)(4). If this property is a condominium unit which is part of a common interest community, the purchaser of the unit at the foreclosure sale other than a mortgagee shall pay the assessments required by The Condominium Property Act, 765 ILCS 605/18.5(g-1).

IF YOU ARE THE MORTGAGOR (HOMEOWNER), YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN IN POSSESSION FOR 30 DAYS AFTER ENTRY OF AN ORDER OF POSSESSION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 15-1701(C) OF THE ILLINOIS MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE LAW.

You will need a photo identification issued by a government agency (driver's license, passport, etc.) in order to gain entry into our building and the foreclosure sale room in Cook County and the same identification for sales held at other county venues where The Judicial Sales Corporation conducts foreclosure sales.

For information, examine the court file or contact Plaintiff's attorney: CODILIS & ASSOCIATES, P.C., 15W030 NORTH FRONTAGE ROAD, SUITE 100, BURR RIDGE, IL 60527, (630) 794-9876 Please refer to file number 14-17-06367.

Morton Grove Park District Board Vacancy Morton Grove Park District is accepting letters of interest to fill a vacant seat on its Board of Park Commissioners. The candidate selected will finish the remaining term of Commissioner Dan Stackmann who resigned. The appointed Commissioner will then serve until the April 2019 consolidated election.

The Morton Grove Park District Board of Commissioners is a five-member Board which performs a valuable and necessary service in providing for a sound Park District. The members of the Board serve without monetary compensation and this commitment involves approximately 10 hours of volunteer time per month. The Park Board's regular scheduled meetings are held on the first and third Wednesday of the month at the Prairie View Community Center at 6:30 pm. The Board functions under the authority of the Illinois Park District Code, Illinois State Compiled Statutes, and within the framework of laws, court decisions, opinions of the Illinois Attorney General, and similar mandates from the state and national levels of government. The function of the Board is primarily to establish policies of the Park District and approve the annual budget rather than administrative details.

Please submit a resume to: Morton Grove Park District Attention: Board of Park Commissioners 6834 Dempster Street Morton Grove, Illinois 60053 Or email: cmarrone@mpgarks.com. Deadline to submit is 5:00pm on January 12, 2018.

Interviews to be scheduled the week of January 22, 2018. The candidate must be a Morton Grove resident and a registered voter.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING VILLAGE OF NORTHBROOK ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS MONDAY, JANUARY 22, 2018

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the Village of Northbrook Zoning Board of Appeals will hold their regular meeting in the Board Room of the Village Hall, 1225 Cedar Lane at 7:00 PM on Monday, January 22, 2018. During this meeting, the Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct a public hearing regarding the following matters:

1. DOCKET NO. ZBA18-0001 - (2370 SHERMER ROAD - PARKING AND FENCING) - Petition by Maple Middle School/Northbrook-Glenview School District 30, 2374 Shermer Road, Northbrook, IL 60062 requesting Zoning Code relief for the following: A) A variation to reduce the required corner side yard from 35' to 8'-7" for parking along Sherman Drive; B) An exception to increase fence height in the required corner side yard from 3' to 5' along Sherman Drive; and C) An exception to increase fence height in the required front yard from 3' to 8' along Sherman Road for a property in the I-B, Zoning District. The property is commonly known as 2370 Shermer Road (PREI Nos 04-16-402-007-0000 and 04-16-403-002-0000) and is the site of new school building.

2. DOCKET NO. ZBA18-0002 - (1000 SKOKIE BOULEVARD - TEMPORARY TRAILERS AND GENERATOR) - Petition by Gordon Pilmer, Finger-EPCO Northbrook, LLC, The Finger Companies, 99 Detering Street, Suite 200, Houston, TX 77007 requesting Zoning Code relief for the following: A) A Variation to reduce the required front setback from 80' to 3' for the placement of a construction office trailer for McShane Construction, B) A variation to reduce the required front setback from 80' to 5' for the placement of a project office trailer for Finger-EPCO; and C) A Variation to reduce the required front setback from 80' to 40' for the placement of a temporary generator. The property, Zoned O-4, Boulevard Office, is commonly known as 1000 Skokie Boulevard (PREI No 04-12-300-033-0000) and is the site of a new development project.

3. DOCKET NO. ZBA18-0003 - (2120 CARGILL DRIVE - NEW SFR) - Petition by Anya Raskin and Joe Sosni, 3641 Indian Wells Lane, Northbrook, IL 60062 for a variation to reduce the required front yard setback from 99.27' (determined by averaging) to 40' for a property in the R-3 District commonly known as 2120 Cargill Drive (04-16-400-056-0000). The variation is requested to construct a new single family residence.

At said public hearing and at any adjournment thereof, all persons interested are invited to attend and be heard. If you have any questions regarding these petitions, please contact the Zoning Administrator at 847-664-4055 or via email at Jennifer.Maisch@northbrook.il.us

The decisions of the Northbrook Zoning Board of Appeals are final. Any appeal of this final administrative decision of the Village of Northbrook's Zoning Board of Appeals must be in compliance with the Administrative Review Law, 735 ILCS 5/3-101 et seq and filed within 35 days from the date of the ZBA's decision. 12/28/2017 5367749

Public Notices

PROPOSED VARIATION PUBLIC NOTICE ZB18-001

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Zoning Board of Appeals to consider a petition requesting a Variation of the Glenview Municipal Code. The meeting will be held on Monday, January 15, 2018 at 7:00 P.M., in the Village Hall, 2500 East Lake Avenue, Glenview, IL in accordance with Chapter 65, Section 5/11-13-5 of the Illinois Compiled Statutes.

The property involved is commonly known as 238 Shermer Road and is legally described as:

LOT 2 IN BLOCK 2 IN GLENVIEW PARK MANOR UNIT 6, A SUBDIVISION OF PART OF THE NORTH-EAST QUARTER OF THE SOUTHWEST QUARTER AND OF THE NORTHWEST QUARTER OF THE SOUTHWEST QUARTER OF SECTION 32, TOWNSHIP 41 NORTH, RANGE 12 EAST OF THE THIRD PRINCIPAL MERIDIAN, IN COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

The petitioners, Beth and Greg Rapp, request a Variation from the provisions of Section 98-105(b)(5) of the Glenview Zoning Ordinance to permit the construction of a single family room addition at front yard (east) setback of 30.41 feet instead of a front yard (east) setback of 39.55 feet, as allowed and required by said ordinance.

All persons interested should attend and will be given an opportunity to be heard. For additional information regarding this case, please contact Tony Repp, Planner, at (847) 904-4309.

The best meal of 2017

Chefs from across the region describe their favorite bites

BY VERONICA HINKE
Pioneer Press

What was the best thing you ate in a Chicago-area restaurant this year? We asked area chefs, restaurant owners and other food professionals that same question, and here is what they told us. Every year, several restaurants receive multiple nods, and this year, Smyth restaurant in Chicago is one of string of eateries that snagged raves from several people. From grab-and-go hand pies to lobster quenelles with black trumpet mushrooms, this year's choices run the gamut of cuisine types, price levels and fanciness.

Jeff Shapfro
Owner, Real Urban Barbecue in Highland Park, Vernon Hills and Oak Brook

■ Best meal: Bone-in ribeye
■ Restaurant: Gene & Georgetti, 500 N. Franklin St., www.Gene-AndGeorgetti.com
■ The skinny: With the red wine reduction, cooked medium, tastes like perfection with rich marbling, full flavor; paired with a nice glass of cab. Sometimes the most memorable meal truly is simple and classic.

Margarita Challenger
Executive Chef/Owner, Guanajuato in Glencoe

■ Best Meal: Milan pesto panini
■ Restaurant: Dolce Ristorante Italiano, 4204 N. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, www.Dolce-Caffe.com
■ The skinny: Best sandwich I've had all year. The flavor of the pesto is tremendous and combined with arugula, chicken and mozzarella on fresh ciabatta makes it perfect. It's a small shop in an out-of-the-way shopping plaza but well worth the search.

Bolla Loza
Executive Chef, Tuscany in Wheeling

■ Best Meal: Short rib bolognese
■ Restaurant: RPM Italian, 52 W. Illinois St., Chicago, www.RPMRestaurants.com
■ The skinny: Very tender, tasty hand-cut pappardelle with bolognese that was not overwhelming

PRIME & PROVISIONS

Mercato executive chef and partner Fabio Viviani said the best thing he ate this year in the Chicago area was Chef Joseph Rizza's dry-aged bone-in Kansas City strip at Prime & Provisions.

the overall flavor with a little touch of rosemary. Perfect balance. Perfectly rich in flavor. Pappardelle was cooked to perfection.

Ellen King
Co-Owner/Head Baker, Hewn in Evanston

■ Best meal: Pork cheek tortellini
■ Restaurant: Monteverde, 1020 W. Madison St., Chicago, www.MonteverdeChicago.com
■ The skinny: It was a cold night and I didn't feel like eating out — but as soon as I walked into Monteverde, I felt a sense of calm come over me. It could have been the amazing smells wafting in the air, or the fact that I could sit and watch my pasta being made, but I instantly felt at home. We ordered more than we should have and everything was amazing. If I had to pick one dish, it was the pork cheek tortellini. The broth was perfectly balanced and then the server added the Lambrusco and I entered a new realm of taste. The tortellini was perfection.

Eusevio Garcia
Chef, Mesa Urbana in Northbrook

■ Best meal: Beef skewers
■ Restaurant: Flight Wine Bar, 1820 Tower Road, Glenview, www.FlightWineBar.com
■ The skinny: Four tender beef skewers, with a pomegranate marinade — served with a veggie crunch salad. One of my favorite drinks there is the Moscow mule.

Rick Bayless
Chef/Owner, Frontera Grill, Topolobampo, Xoco, Lena Brava, Cruz Blanca, Fonda Frontera in Chicago

■ Best meal: Berkshire pork with kimchi
■ Restaurant: Oriole, 661 W. Walnut St., www.OrioleChicago.com
■ The skinny: Rich from luscious pork and tangy with kimchi, this dish just made us swoon. It was just one of several stunners at Oriole, which my wife, Deann, and I visited this summer for our anniversary.

Mark Grosz
Chef/Owner, Oceanique in Evanston

■ Best meal: Caviar and toast
■ Restaurant: Cherry Circle Room, 12 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, www.LSdatcaa.com/cherry-circle-room
■ The skinny: Osetra caviar. Scrambled eggs with runny yolk. Traditional accompaniments.

Luxurious, decadent and comforting all at the same time. If you really want to splurge, they will add white truffles, too.

Gale Gand
Pastry Chef/Partner, Tru, maker of Gale's Root Beer

■ Best meal: Handmade empanadas
■ Restaurant: Cafe Tola, 3612 Southport, Chicago, www.CafeTola.com
■ The skinny: It's a little hole-in-the-wall of a place handmaking empanadas all day long so they are hot when you order them from the pick-up counter. They have interesting beverages, too including horchata. Favorite flavors include chicken salsa verde, green spicy pork, steak and potato, egg,

 ■ Restaurant: Gather, 4539 N. Lincoln Ave., Chicago, www.GatherChicago.com
 ■ The skinny: My whole dining experience at Gather was wonderful from the first minute to the last. Everything is done right — from the foods to the drinks to the service. My short rib entree was perfectly executed — flavorful and tender — and beautifully plated. Everything on the plate worked together. This dish makes me want more.

 ■ Restaurant: Bombay Breakdown “pop-up restaurant” at the Long Room, 1612 W. Irving Park Road, Chicago, www.LongRoomChicago.com
 ■ The skinny: My boyfriend and I always go to this monthly pop-up at the Long Room and we love it! There was one meal in the past summer that really sticks out: crispy paneer and Kerala beef brisket congee — wow, were we blown away. The paneer was such an unusual take on saag paneer: the spinach was laid out on a plate and torched till the edges where crisp, they fried the paneer like cheese curds and put them on top with fried onions, masala and flowers. The Kerala beef congee was creamy rice topped with crispy short rib, onions, pickled peppers and cilantro.

 ■ Restaurant: Smyth, 177 N. Ada St., www.SmythAndTheLoyalist.com
 ■ The skinny: I met wine collectors from around the country to pull some corks and enjoy the company. While the wine was outstanding, the food was truly amazing. The brioche doughnut with aged beef au jus was out of this world. The doughnut was cooked perfectly — very moist and light. Then the savory beefiness took it to another level.

 ■ The skinny: I love the beet flatbread that Chef Lee Wolen is offering at Somerset. The flatbread is tender, warm and delicious and is perfect for the smokiness of the beets and the creamy smoked gouda. The dish is delicious. The duck and venison dishes were standouts too as well as the vegetable flatbread, which was hot, cheesy, crispy and tender — everything you want in a flatbread.

■ Best meal: Tomato salad with peaches and stracciatella
 ■ Restaurant: Gather, 4539 N. Lincoln Ave., Chicago, www.GatherChicago.com
 ■ The skinny: I took one of my cooks to a meal at one of my favorite neighborhood restaurants. The tomato salad with peaches and stracciatella was the first thing they dropped on the table of an awesome meal. It was that time of year when local peaches and tomatoes are at their most perfect. They were simply sliced and dressed, and served with really amazingly creamy stracciatella, which is essentially all the things you love about burrata without the outer shell of holding it in. They then paired a little black sesame with it just for a little bit of that nuttiness and texture. It was quintessential summer food. Real classic food, done really well, with a small twist, and a respect for the ingredients and farmers' work that went in to it. Exactly what you want from summer produce.

■ Best meal: Fried chicken and churro waffles

■ Restaurant: MAD Social, 1140 W. Madison St., Chicago, www.MADSocialChicago.com
 ■ The skinny: Rarely when I order waffles is the actual waffle a secondary component, but in this case, the fried chicken is what blew me away. Flaky, buttery chicken thighs double-dredged and lightly fried. Add to that the fact that the waffles have a churro-style batter to them, and then this dish becomes a no-brainer for brunch. There's also nothing wrong with drenching the entire thing in Vermont maple syrup. I call that nirvana.

crab and foie gras with scrambled kani miso is interesting because of the many layers of crab flavor and texture. The kani miso of tamale, roe and egg is really good. The salt-poached foie gras is silky and almost takes the place of drawn butter that is traditionally served with steamed crabs. Kelp chips add another layer of texture and give the dish a balanced bit of brininess.

■ Best meal: Cheese course (11-course tasting menu)

■ Restaurant: Schwa, 466 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, www.SchwaRestaurant.com

■ The skinny: I took two members of our staff — Sergio Angel and Alfredo Gonzalez — for dinner as a thank you and to celebrate our four-star review of George Trois by (Chicago Tribune restaurant critic) Phil Vettel in late May 2017. I had never been to Schwa and had only heard great things about Chef Michael's cuisine. He did not disappoint. The cheese course was a Morbier cheesecake with a sweet graham cracker crust. It was the perfect balance of sweet and savory and they even re-created the classic signature layer of ash between layers of the Morbier cheese mousse. Delicious and clever, but not cute to the point of sacrificing the integrity of the course. Spot on! Course after course delivered cutting-edge, beautiful and delicious dishes.

www.SwiftAndSonsChicago.com

■ The skinny: My favorite meal was my birthday meal in June at Swift and Sons, and the star of the meal was the beef Wellington for two — lovely, old-school preparation that you don't see often anymore. Beef tenderloin baked inside of puff pastry with foie gras spinach and mushroom. It is carved and plated table side with Bordelaise sauce poured over it. We had the Caesar salad and burrata and tomato salad as well. A martini from the bar and it makes for a contemporary spin on a vintage-inspired steakhouse."

■ The skinny: Everything from the setting (a small intimate dining space located in an industrial area in West Town), to the food (a 13-course tasting menu consisting of amazing ingredients celebrating the peak of summer (sweet pea panna cotta, heirloom tomato gelee) to the more exotic (tuna belly tartare with snail eggs, and tonburi, which is referred to as 'land caviar') — every time the chefs would introduce a dish, my jaw would hit the floor, and that was before I had even dug in. I have helped work the line with Chef Teich at a number of his pop-ups and he extended a personal invitation to my fiancée to celebrate our engagement. The entire experience blew my mind. Nothing I ate in 2017 even comes close.

■ Restaurant: Duck Duck Goat, 857 W. Fulton Market, Chicago, www.DuckDuckGoatChicago.com

■ The Skinny: First time there and picked these two by chance. They were so good. It was a tie — they were that good. The fried rice was just awesome; it had a real smokiness to it and the small duck eggs and duck were perfectly cooked. The steamed barbecued pork buns were just the most unbelievable little light pillows of deliciousness you will ever eat. We ended up ordering more of both. Just a night out with friends I hadn't been out with in a long time. Lots of fun, highly recommend.

■ Best meal: Bo la lot, chopped clams

■ Restaurant: HaiSous Vietnamese Kitchen, 1800 S. Carpenter St., Chicago, www.HaiSous.com

■ The skinny: Bo la lot is the first Vietnamese dish I ever tasted, and (I) was instantly a fan. Savory betel leaf wrapped around a simple yet tasty beef sausage and then charcoal-grilled — the charcoal grill adds a very deep flavor to the leaves — and finished off with a complex dipping sauce. Another dish that shows Thai (Dang)'s hand with subtle yet cunning flavors is a dish of chopped clams with Thai basil — no, they did not name this herb after chef — lime juice, peanuts, crispy rice and sesame crackers. To me this dish is a perfect example of Thai's deft touch with the flavors and textures of the cooking of his homeland — simple, adept and saporous.

■ Restaurant: Punjabi Dhaba, 2525 W. Devon Ave., Chicago, www.PunjabiDhabaChicago.com
■ The skinny: My grandma use to cook it for us. Light green sauce with Indian cheese. Whenever I eat saag paneer, it takes me right back to Punjab, India. I had the saag paneer at Punjabi Dhaba this year for Diwali. I have lot memories of saag paneer from my early childhood. I remember going out to the farm with my grandma to pick fresh spinach, fenugreek and mustard greens. She would then wash it and cook for, what seemed to me, for hours. Bright and smooth flavors of spinach and mustard greens with almost smoky notes of fenugreek, with a light spice and creamy - melt in-your-mouth - paneer.

■ Best Meal: Lobster quenelles, black trumpet mushrooms, Swiss chard, sauce Americaine; artichoke and foie gras salade
■ Restaurant: Margeaux Brasserie, Waldorf Astoria, 11 E. Walton St., Chicago, www.michaelmina.net
■ The skinny: The quenelles are light and flavorful with contrasting textures of mushrooms and vegetable. It is a historic dish with a contemporary flair. The stand-out part of the dish is the sauce Americaine, which has a bold lobster taste that makes evident the time put into it. The artichoke and foie gras salade is definitely worth mentioning and is another item that you will not find elsewhere.

■ Best Meal: Langostinos
■ Restaurant: La Costa Mariscos, 3119 N. Central Ave, Chicago, www.LaCostaChicago.com
■ The Skinny: This is now my go-to comfort dish when I need to indulge. Langostinos are often referred to as 'squat lobster' but are in fact closely related to the hermit and porcelain crabs. However, the taste and texture mirrors a marriage between lobster and shrimp. Langostinos are prevalent on many Latin menus but at La Costa it's the killer sauce that seals the deal. They saute the halved langostinos in this buttery hot sauce that is just the right hint of spice. The secret house seasonings, spice from the chiles, and the butter flavor provides a salty heat that is so addictive I literally use any edible item in arms reach to soak up the delicious sauce. I first had this dish while I was pregnant and needless to say everyone at the table understood 'hands off the langostinos!'

■ Best Meal: Breakfast Tacos with Scrambled Eggs, Pico de Gallo and Potatoes
■ Restaurant: Cafe Tola, 3324 N. California Ave., Chicago, www.CafeTola.com
■ The Skinny: Cafe Tola is one of my favorite places. It is such a cute little place. The outside is painted with super-cool murals of E.T., Yoda, Frida and more. Inside, there is a neat collection of toys and memorabilia, colorful cushions and communal seating. I must order the cafe con leche every time I go. The breakfast tacos with scrambled eggs, pico de gallo, and potatoes are a perfect way to start the day. Their specialty daily empanadas are delicious. My favorites are Cuban braised beef and potato, and the spinach and potato. The staff is also very nice. I'm always a happy person after eating at Cafe Tola.

■ Best Meal: Crispy Pork Belly Dish
■ Restaurant: Cindy's Rooftop, 12 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, www.cindysrooftop.com
■ The Skinny: The dish had an Asian twist to it with pickled snow peas and fermented turnips with fried rice and a soy vin. It was really balanced and executed really well; the acidity helped cut the fatty, rich, crispy belly. I didn't eat as much as I wanted, because my kids got after it...

■ Best Meal: Beijing duck
■ Restaurant: Sun Wah, 5039 N. Broadway, Chicago, www.Sun-WahBBQ.com
■ The Skinny: We've recently moved to the North Shore and are eating up here more frequently than in the city, but when we meet friends for a celebration in Chicago, Sun Wah is one of our go-to spots. We frequently share foods and swap plates and the duck is a perfect group option. It's carved tableside and served with pickled daikon and julienned veggies and perfectly soft and warm bao buns. My nephew just moved to Chicago from Florida and it was one of the first spots we brought him to in order to convince him it was worth giving up the year-long warm weather.

Death Notices

Johnson, Ralph M

Ralph M. Johnson
August 8, 1929-December 8, 2017

Ralph M. Johnson, 88, passed away December 8, 2017 at The Moorings in Arlington Heights with his family by his side. Ralph was born in Geneva, IL, on August 8, 1929 to the late Gustave and Anna Johnson. He grew up in Batavia where he met his wife of 64 years, Jean Bowron Johnson, who preceded him in death on September 21, 2016. Together, they lived in Des Plaines for over 50 years before moving to The Moorings in 2004.

After graduating from Northern Illinois University, Ralph began a 37-year career in education that was spent entirely in Skokie/Morton Grove School District 69 where he was a teacher, principal and, for the last 21 years of his career, superintendent of schools. Along the way, he earned his Masters and Doctorate degrees from Northwestern University and was a proud Wildcat.

Not one to be idle, Ralph earned his private pilot's license, travelled to all seven continents, spent 15 years as an adjunct professor teaching school law and finance, served as a school board member for 15 years in Maine Township District 207 and volunteered for many organizations, most notably Traveller's Aid at O'Hare Airport for 20 years. But most of all he was a wonderful husband, father, and "Boppa", as well as, a good friend, storyteller and dispenser of sage advice.

Ralph is survived by his son Scott (Barbara); daughter Carol Ann; grandchildren Megan Bleil (Mitch), Andrew and Christopher Johnson; great-grandchildren Annalise and Lincoln Bleil; sister-in-laws Nancy Bowron and Kay Anderson; and many nieces and nephews.

A service of remembrance will take place at 3:00pm on Feb 25, 2018 at The Mooring's Odean Johnson Chapel, 811 E. Central Rd, Arlington Heights, IL. Those wishing to send a memorial gift can do so by sending it to 'Geneva Foundation of Presbyterian Homes' in memory of Ralph Johnson. Donations will benefit the New Hope Scholarship Fund. The Foundation's address is 8707 Skokie Blvd, Skokie, IL 60077.

Arrangements have been entrusted to the Cremation Society of Illinois.

Boon for bargain hunters

BY RONALD MONTOYA AND MATT JONES
Edmunds.com

Every December, carmakers and dealerships scramble to hit end-of-year goals and sell off vehicles from the outgoing model year. But this December might be one for the record books. Inventory is at unusually high levels, and the push to clear it will be far more aggressive than in years past. Rebates will be generous particularly on sedans, which are not nearly as popular as SUVs. So bargain hunters can find significant savings.

To help you shop, here are seven deals on outgoing 2017 models that are worth close consideration. For each vehicle category, there's also a recommended car based on Edmunds reviews.

These vehicles should still be available in most areas, and all have deep discounts. Keep in mind that the manufacturer's suggested retail price, discounts, incentives and rebates may vary by region.

Compact car

2017 Volkswagen Jetta: The Jetta delivers lots of room for a compact car, with a spacious back seat and ample trunk space. All three of the Jetta's four-cylinder engines make it fun to drive and return good gas mileage. Onboard tech is easy to use.

Starting price: around $18,000

Year-end discounts: in the $7,000 range

2017 Ford Focus: The Focus is comfortable and quiet, even at highway speeds. The ride feels sporty and secure while cornering. Lots of high-tech options are available.

Starting price: around $17,000

Year-end discounts: in the $6,500 range

Edmunds pick: The 2017 Ford Focus. Although neither car has had a major redesign since 2012, both have received incremental updates and represent a good value. The Ford Sync 3 infotainment system is one of the best out there and gives the Focus a more high-tech feel. Plus, the Focus is one of the Edmunds Buying Guide's top recommended sedans for 2017.

Compact SUV

2017 Nissan Rogue: The Rogue keeps its composure over varying terrain while carrying you in some of the most comfortable seats of the cars in this class. Adding to its appeal are easy-to-use tech options and versatile cargo space, including available third-row seating.

Starting price: around $24,700

Year-end discounts: in the $8,400 range

2017 Hyundai Tucson: The Tucson's turbocharged engine gives it impressive acceleration and fuel economy. The Tucson also achieves top safety scores. And shoppers who love tech will appreciate the infotainment system found in higher trim levels.

Starting price: around $22,700

HONDA

The 2017 Honda Accord, a well-rounded vehicle that will likely retain its value in the long run, is likely to see discounts of about $6,500 as end-of-year sales goals approach.

Year-end discounts: in the $5,000 range

2017 Ford Escape: Driving the Escape feels more like piloting a car than an SUV. The Escape also offers lots of room, and the optional 2.0-liter turbocharged engine does a good job of getting the SUV up to speed. The availability of Apple CarPlay and Android Auto is a plus.

Starting price: around $23,750

Year-end discounts: in the $7,000 range

Edmunds pick: It's a three-way tie. The Escape is the best performer, especially with the optional 2.0-liter turbocharged engine. The Tucson is a great value and the most stylish option, but the Rogue is the only one with three rows.

Midsized car

2017 Honda Accord: The Accord is roomy, and the interior is filled with stylish, high-quality materials. We think the Accord is fun to drive and has sporty handling. The higher trims are on par with entry-level luxury cars in terms of appointments and performance.

Starting price: around $22,500

Year-end discounts: in the $6,500 range

2017 Ford Fusion: The Fusion is luxurious, stylish and fun to drive, all at the same time. If that weren't enough, it is also spacious, safe and practical. Notable for its power is the V6 Sport version, which has an incredible 325 horsepower and 380 pound-feet of torque the same as the Ford F-150 truck.

Starting price: around $22,100

Year-end discounts: in the $5,700 range

Edmunds pick: The 2017 Honda Accord. It was a tough choice because both vehicles have a four-star rating from Edmunds editors. The Fusion is more powerful and has some features the Accord can't match, such as the ability to park itself. But the Accord is a more well-rounded vehicle and will likely retain its value better in the long run. Note that this is the last model year for this generation of the Accord. If you're worried about not having the newest version, you might favor the Fusion, which was refreshed this year.

Edmunds says: The best deals will be on outgoing model-year sedans, which have been slow to move. These are great cars and will often be more fuel-efficient and easier to drive than larger SUVs. Make sure you compare pricing and test-drive before making a decision.

NOVEMBER WINNER

ATHLETE
OF THE MONTH

Congratulations to James Horkavi, Central Athlete of the Month for November

James Horkavi, a standout golfer with Maine South High School in Park Ridge, has been named as the Chicago Tribune Central Athlete of the Month, sponsored by COUNTRY Financial and chosen online by Chicago Tribune readers.

Horkavi, 17, and a senior at Maine South High School helped his team win regionals this year and go onto compete at the state championship, according to Steve Scholl, Maine South golf coach. Scholl also says Horkavi had two holes in ones since joining the team and that he also shot a 72 in his first 18 hole tournament this year.

"He was as consistent as we've had in a couple of years," Scholl says. "He is a solid player. He never really messed up on the golf course. He led a Maine South High School team that was the best in 20 years with back to back appearances at regionals, the first time in 20 years," Scholl says. "He was the leader. He was the MVP."

Horkavi says he started golfing as soon as he could hold a club, and that he was always encouraged by his grandfather. He said he enjoys golf because it is different from other high school sports.

"I like how it's a friendly sport," says

Horkavi. "It brings people together you're playing with. You can go hang out with your friends and play a round of golf. You don't get too sweaty or whatever," he says smiling. "It's a neat sport where it's not about your physical attributes. It's about how you handle yourself when you hit good and bad shots. It's about how you compose yourself for the whole round."

Horkavi also excels in the classroom where he has a 3.5 GPA. He also scored a 30 on his ACT. He says he takes academics as seriously as he takes his golf game.

"I think academics are just as important if not more important because no one on our golf team is going to become a pro golfer, so you have to stay good in the classroom," he says.

Mary Jane Alagheband, a COUNTRY Financial representative in Skokie, presented a $500 donation from COUNTRY Financial to Maine South High School in recognition of Horkavi's achievements. Horkavi will also receive a plaque and sweatshirt from the Chicago Tribune.

Alagheband says she was impressed with Horkavi's hard work on the golf course and in the classroom.

"It just shows his dedication to the sport and his dedication to his community," Alagheband says. "I think he's going to be a good athlete going forward. It shows how determined he is to achieve his goals."

She adds, "I think it's a fantastic thing that he can excel academically and achieve at golf. It shows he is going to have a good future."

Horkavi also had a few words of advice for anyone "hitting the links."

"If you want to play a good round of golf you need to stay focused," he says.

"You need to stay relaxed. You can't get too serious. You can't get too mad when you hit bad shots. You can't get too happy when you hit good shots. You kind of have to stay composed for the whole round and maintain the same level of focus."

YEAR IN REVIEW 2017

Q&A: Steve Schanz, Maine East AD

By BRETT CHRISTIE
Pioneer Press

When Maine East athletic director Steve Schanz reflected on the past year, Lizeth Torres' contributions to the school stood out.

She was a team captain on the wrestling team in 2016-17, becoming the first female team captain of a boys sport in school history, according to Maine East wrestling coach Emiliano Hernandez.

She also took second in the 106-pound weight class at the Illinois Wrestling Coaches & Officials Association's first girls state tournament. The tournament was March 11 and 12 in Springfield.

Schanz shared his thoughts on Torres and many other things in an email interview with Pioneer Press freelance reporter Brett Christie about 2017 and the year to come.

Q: Who was the most dedicated student-athlete at your school over the last year?

A: We had many incredible student-athletes, but one that stands out is Lizeth Torres. What Lizeth Torres did as a female wrestler, and also our Female Athlete of the Year, was truly inspirational. As a topper, she has come back as an assistant coach to work with all of our wrestlers, with a focus on the female wrestlers.

Q: Which coach had the biggest impact on the student-athletes he or she worked with in 2017?

A: I am so proud of all our coaches as they continue to push the envelope and raise expectations for themselves and their athletes.

Q: Which team surprised you the most in 2017?

A: Competitive cheer and competitive dance. I will never be able to judge a cheer or dance competition, but to hear "Maine East" called as the winner for CSL (for) cheer and (for a Class 2A) sectional (for) dance was surprising, but only in the sense I had no idea how well the judges saw them. They both work so hard in their preparation and it was great to see the hard work pay off.

MAINE EAST DEMON SQUAD

Q: Of all the things that fall under your purview, what are you most proud of when you think about 2017?

A: More and more of our coaches and athletes are believing we can be very successful in athletics here at Maine East. We also had 14 varsity teams earn the IHSA Team Academic Achievement Award (for the 2016-17 school year).

Q: When you reflect on 2017, what was a teachable moment that really stands out to you?

A: Resilience. Seeing teams have heartbreaking losses and showing up next day not sulking, but now even more determined. Girls volleyball had a tough loss to a very good Maine West team this past season and then came back the next day and beat the first-place Highland Park team. Maine West, Maine East and Highland Park all ended up tied for first (in the Central Suburban North) at the end of the season.

Q: What was the most challenging part of your job over the last 12 months?

A: Dealing with student-athletes that made poor decisions and had athletic code violations.

Q: When you think ahead to 2018, what will make you most excited to come to work?

A: Supporting our coaches and student-athletes any way I can. Also, I love showing off our beautiful school by hosting IHSA events. We are hosting both girls and boys sectional basketball in February and March.

Q: What are the top three things on your to-do list in 2018?

A: Increase participation, encourage professional development from coaches, build student-leadership to assist in positive school branding.

YEAR IN REVIEW 2017

Q&amp;A: Brett Bildstein, Niles North athletic director

BY JAKUB RUDNIK
Pioneer Press

It was a busy fall sports season for second-year Niles North athletic director Brett Bildstein.

Two Vikings earned top-five finishes at their respective state tournaments, but the football team also made headlines because it was suspended after reports of "a possible hazing incident," according to Niles Township High Schools District 219.

The Vikings were forced to forfeit a game during the investigation, but an investigation by school officials and police determined no criminal conduct had taken place.

Bildstein spoke about the year that was and what's to come in an interview with Pioneer Press freelance reporter Jakub Rudnik.

Q: Who was the most dedicated student-athlete at your school over the last year?

A: I've got a boy and a girl, and they're both seniors. Mike Pimentel, he's a three-sport athlete (football, wrestling, track and field), he's just a workhorse in the weight room. The thing that stands out about him is he's our heavyweight wrestler, and for three years he's never been able to wrestle varsity because he's been behind some really good kids. So this is his chance to shine, and right now he is — he's undefeated (as of Dec. 21). And then we have Alyssa Aragon, she's a three-sport athlete: volleyball, basketball, softball. She also does travel softball. We have two students each year who get to help with our trainers, so she's a student trainer, which is kind of what she wants to get into in college. She's never been able to dedicate her time to one sport. She could play college in (any of the) three (sports) if she would dedicate solely to (one sport), but softball's her main sport, and she'll be able to do that in college.

Q: Which coach had the biggest impact on the student-athletes he or she worked with in 2017?

A: Andre Shaw. He's an alum, he's our boys volleyball coach and also a girls volleyball assistant. He was in his first year as head coach and carried himself like a veteran. First-year coaches will sometimes struggle with the organizational part and things like that, and he didn't. He's got the perfect mix of building relationships with kids, holding them accountable and also developing their skill potential. He connects with the kids, so they had their biggest participation numbers at the freshman level in a long time.

Q: Which team surprised you the most in 2017?

A: When you say team, I'd probably say girls tennis. We had an absolute stud for four years, Michelle Bacalla, and this was her senior year. And she did exactly what everyone expected her to do, she got fourth in state. I know she was disappointed in that, but she had an outstanding career. But the whole team was a lot better than anyone anticipated. They had a couple seniors that stepped up, and we had really good freshman numbers, and there were a couple freshmen that stepped right into the CSL South, which is brutal, and they held their own. That's definitely due to coach (Andy) Klamm. Coach Klamm's a developer. When you have a talent like Michelle, that's easy to see. But sometimes the other kids and how they progress during the season, that gets forgotten. And he does that every year. And Michelle is the type that leads by example, and this was the first year she was more vocal, and I know that helped.

Q: Of all the things that fall under your purview, what are you most proud of when you think about 2017?

A: Conor Perreault. This is the third year he's qualified for state cross country. Last year he had a good year but was battling some injuries. ... So this year, he qualified from sectionals, but he wasn't even in the top five at sectionals. He was ranked like 25th coming in from sectionals, and the last 90 seconds of the (state) race he ended up pouring it on and got fifth. He's an unbelievable student, AP-type kid. The pride thing is, sometimes you don't get that moment, where you work hard (and it pays off), and he did. The pictures of him crossing the finish line — you've got his parents, and brother and both of our cross country coaches, and it's the most pure joy I've ever seen in pictures.

Q: When you reflect on 2017, what was a teachable moment that really stands out to you?

A: I think we've had some situations where our athletes have become very aware of social media and they've also become aware of people like you, the media. It's been good because they're able to see the positive and negative sides of both of those, and I think it's opened their eyes to, in today's society, how quickly things can escalate. So you really have to be careful what decisions you're making as a student-athlete. Our kids that want to go on and play in college, it gets magnified even more at that level.

Q: What was the most challenging part of your job over the last 12 months?

A: When I first got the job, last year was observation mode. You're meeting everybody, just seeing what's in place, what the culture is. I think moving to a different district, the most challenging part was learning district systems and district policies. That's not stuff, from the outside, that you think matters, but it does. And I've been extremely fortunate: Peggy Howard, who's the admin assistant, she's literally a saint. The two assistant ADs I've had have been great, too.

Q: When you think ahead to 2018, what will make you most excited to come to work?

A: The future thing is we're starting girls badminton this spring. We haven't had that, we've had some kids who have done a club, so they're pretty excited about (the varsity team), and I think that makes us more well-rounded, and we offer something to kids that haven't been involved in competitive sports.

Right now, I'd be lying if I didn't talk about our boys basketball team. There's a tremendous amount of potential this year. The way they get after teams defensively is very, very fun to watch. ...I've seen them win games this year that I know they would have struggled to pull out last year. That's going to be fun to watch, because they're going to keep getting better, and they're pretty darn good right now.

Q: What are the top three things on your to-do list in 2018?

A: The big thing, especially after a year now, is to create our identity as a department. Making sure we understand who we are and who we want to be, that's something that has to happen.

The second thing would be to really have a lot more outreach to our community, and some of our elementary (schools) and junior highs. You always want to increase your participation numbers, but we also want to increase those participation numbers with kids that have already started to build skill before they get to high school. When you look in the CSL, a lot of these teams have park district and feeder things, I mean look at Maine South football. That's a long process to do, but we've got to start that.

And the third thing is, we've got a lot of things we're doing to try to improve, and it's to trust and focus on the process. At the end of the day, in sports everybody wants quick fixes. But as long as we know we're doing the right things, we just have to trust that process.

COLLEGE NOTES

Calamari named D-III All-American

BY SAM BRIEF
Pioneer Press

A number of college soccer players from local high schools were named United Soccer Coaches Division III All-Americans at the conclusion of the season.

Mia Calamari, a senior midfielder from Barrington on the University of Chicago women's soccer team, was named a first-team All-American after a six-goal, 18-assist season. Joining her was Megan Carroll, a junior defender for Wisconsin-La Crosse and a Mundelein graduate.

Tori Iatarola, a Loyola graduate and senior midfielder at Carnegie Mellon, also was named an All-American.

Locals pacing DePauw women's hoops

The DePauw women's basketball team started the season 10-1, and athletes from Chicago's north and west suburbs have helped the Tigers during their hot start.

Sophomore guard Sydney Kopp, a Hinsdale South graduate, and freshman forward Claire Keefe of Libertyville are guiding the Division III school in Greencastle, Ind. As of Friday, Keefe was second on the team with 13 points per game on 47 percent shooting from the field. Kopp ranks third with 11.9 points per game on 44 percent shooting.

Cashaw scoring, rebounding for Rice

Stevenson alumnus Connor Cashaw, a 6-foot-5 junior guard, has been an offensive machine for the Rice men's basketball team this season.

Through 12 games, Cashaw was averaging 16.5 points and 6.9 rebounds per game. In back-to-back games against St. Edward's and Texas Tech, Cashaw notched his third and fourth career double-doubles, with a career-high 27 points and 12 rebounds against St. Edward's on Dec. 14. He followed that up by pouring in 21 points and snagging 12 rebounds against Texas Tech on Dec. 16.

Maine South grad celebrates career night

Nina Anderson, a Maine South alumna and junior guard on the Illinois Wesleyan women's basketball team, scored 16 points on Dec. 16 in the Titans' 92-69 win against Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

Anderson's performance tied her career-high for points.
